TAFTVILLE

One of the most enjoyable private social events ever held in the village took place Friday evening in Ponemah Hall, when the Has Beens club gave their ninth annual social and old fashioned dance. Four hundred invitations had been issued for the affair, and the hall was filled with dancers and those who attend yearly to renew their friendship with the early residents of Taftville, many of whom come long distances to attend this annual dance.

The hall was tranformed into springtime in old Japan, the decorations being branches of pink Japanese lanterns. Pale pink streamers fell from the wires down both sides of the hall and across the front and back of the room. On the crosswires the electric lights were covered by small silk shades of various colors. The windows were draped in white, tied with pink ribbons, and across the front of the stage was built a railing, banked with pink cherry blossoms. At the center of the stage stood a pedestal on which rested a large bronze image of the Sleeping Bhudha, before which incense was burning. Ferns were banked about the base of the pedestal.

Behind the railing, Tinkham's orchestra, capably directed by Miss Ethel Marsan, rendered a short musical program before the dance, and played during the evening. Professor Tinkham, who has prompted at the Has Beens dance for the past eight years again held the post of honor, and directed the dancing.

The grand march started promptly at 8.45, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Aberg leading and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Webster, as the second couple. They were followed by the other officers and directors of the club, the members, and their guests. As the march started, the brighter lights were turned off and the lanterns lighted.

While the program contained many waltzes and fox trots, the older members present had the opportunity of dancing the quadrilles, lanciers and the Tempest of other days. Owing to the great number who came in automobiles it was necessary to reserve a place in the rear for parking with an attendant in charge.

The coat room was, as usual in charge of John Herd and his efficient assistants. Albert J. Aberg was the floor director, and his aides were Charles T. Webster, Earle M. Wood and Andrew Frohmader. The reception committee was headed by William F. Chamberlain and William C. Kendall. President John D. Sharples was in general charge of the decorating. During the evening, refreshments were served by a committee of the members.

A number of the overseers of the Ponemah Mills and the Totokett Manufacturing Company were at the Wauregan Hotel, Norwich Thursday evening to attend the banquet of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association.

Troop 3 Boy Scouts met Friday evening in the Basement of the Taftville Congregational Church under the direction of Scoutmaster Victor H. Davis.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS BOOST CAMPAIGN BY NEARLY $2,000 ON FIFTH DAY

The enthusiasm that has been growing day by day among the Y. M. C. A. campaign workers reached the highest point thus far at the workers' meeting Friday evening when a fine group took their places at the supper tables in the spacious dining rooms of the Association building and the reports showed the pledges for the day had come within $5 of $2,000 and the campaign total was now $11,030.

The supper was furnished by the women of the United Congregational church, and it consisted of what could justly be termed, "a dandy chowder" with plenty of clams and other ingredients that made it fit and filling for the bunch of hungry men who had developed 100 per cent. appetities in their hard hustle for funds for the association they all love so much. The blessing was asked by Rev. P. H. Graham, and Captain Herbert B. Cary of Team B was requested to express the hearty thanks of the entire company; this Mr. Cary did in a manner that reflected credit on himself and the men for whom he was the spokesman.

After supper General Shepard B. Palmer announced that there would be several short, snappy speeches, and called first on C. Edward Smith who spoke particularly of the friendliness of the people for the Y. M. C. A. and of the pleasure he felt in helping so worthy a cause. C. E. Carpenter and Emery Davis, both of whom had produced splendid results for the day, were urged to tell how they did it, and they were loudly applauded as was Captain Cary when, among other things he stated that he was more enthusiastic now than he had been during the week's hustle.

C. C. Hatfield of the state headquarters of the Y. M. C. A. in New Haven, gave a red hot speech, expressing his gratification at the success thus far, and for the fine friendly spirit of the people of Norwich toward the local association.

Rev. J. H. Graham responded to an invitation to speak to the group, and in a most interesting and impressive way, he told of the great value of the Young Men's Christian Association to Norwich, to the state, to the country and to the whole world; he called it an institution that was doing the things that needed to be done and it was doing them in the proper way, and its splendid influence would be felt more and more with the passing years; he was applauded and given three rousing cheers. At this point General Palmer requested Scorer George A. Ashby to take his place at the blackboard, and the reports were given, with applause following each team report. The results of the day's struggle were as follows:

Team	Capt.	Total
A—Philip A. Johnson		$660.00
B—Herbert B. Cary		190.00
C—Charles L. Stewart		275.00
D—Harold B. Burt		172.00
E—John M. Swahn		698.50
Total for the day		$1,995.50
Previously reported		9,034.50
Grand total		$11,030.00

After the cheering had subsided for the fine reports, James L. Case gave what might be called "a punch talk" and urged all the team men to redouble their efforts for the last day of the active campaign. His words were roundly applauded. After a brief talk by General Secretary Edwin Hill and a closing prayer by Mr. Graham the meeting was adjourned.

The supper was prepared and served by the Haviland class of the United Congregational Church school.

SPRING WAS THOUGHT FOR PARISH HOUSE MEETING

The thought of spring was the subject for the meeting of the Parish House association of Park Congregational church, which was held Friday afternoon in the church parlors, and was carried out in the musical programme and a talk on Spring Flora by Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers.

Mrs. James A. Bidwell presided during the reading of reports by Mrs. Rollin C. Jones and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne.

Miss Louisa C. Howe, the chairman of the Parish House was in charge of the entertainment of the afternoon. Mrs. Neville Blicq was chairman of the refreshment committee, assisted by Mrs. Arthur E. Story and Mrs. Hines. Mrs. Smiley and Mrs. Rollin C. Jones presided at the tea table.

The following piano selections were delightfully played by Miss Wightman: Scherzo in B Fiat Minor (Chopin), Sparks, by Moskowski and Rustle of Spring by Sinding. These were given with musical appreciation and fluent technique.

Mrs. Bidwell gave much pleasure by her spirited and finished rendition of two spring songs Spring is Here by Ethel Dick and April Rain by Huntington Woodman.

In her instructive talk Mrs. Rogers made a plea for Nature Study as an all-year-round-pastime, offering as it does pleasures to be derived from simple things and bestowing as well upon its enthusiastic devotees solace and comfort and health. She spoke of the apparently tender blossoms that come with spring's first awakening; the delicate avemones, so frail in texture, the dog-tooth violet with, no hint of hardihood swaying in the breeze yet so solidly rooted to earth. What is more fascinating than to watch the flurry over-rated leaf-buds, proof against the early rains, yet shedding gradually all their protective covering and maturing out into a new world in delicate green array!

The situation of Norwich at the junction of two rivers containing both salt and fresh water, makes it possible for the growth of seaside as well as of inland flowers.

In the radius of five miles in this vicinity over one thousand kinds of flowers can be found.

SEEKS NEVADA DIVORCE FROM NORWICH WOMAN

James McLaughlin, a wealthy lumber merchant of Cumberland, R. I., a former resident of this city, who married Miss Belle Stanton of Norwich a number of years ago, has brought suit in Reno, Nev., for divorce from her.

McLaughlin has had a previous divorce suit in Rhode Island, which was thrown out of court and Mrs. McLaughlin also brought a suit but refused to take her final decree.

A citation in McLaughlin Nevada suit was served on Mrs. McLaughlin on Thursday. She is allowed 40 days to appear in the second judicial court of Washoe county, Nevada, to defend herself against the suit.

The suit was filed in Reno April 11 by Mr. McLaughlin, who declared he had been a resident of Reno for six months. He alleged extreme cruelty and desertion for more than a year. His petition goes into his marital differences in considerable detail.

FEWER MARRIAGES AND BAPTISMS IN DIOCESE

The official Catholic directory of the several Roman Catholic dioceses of the United States and also the insular possessions and some other countries contains the latest available statistics on the Diocese of Hartford.

The directory shows the Rt. Rev. John C. Murray, D. D., auxiliary bishop, has succeeded Rev. Michael McKeon on the diocesan board of consulators. The net gain in the number of ecclesiastical students is 33. A young woman's academy was opened during the year. There are now 89 parishes having parochial schools, which is an increase of two and the number of children in parochial schools is 44,712, a gain of 216. The total number of young people under Catholic care is 46,796, a gain of 261.

The number of marriages for the year was 5,549, a decrease of 299 from the number the year previous; and the baptisms were 20,618—a decrease of 357. The adult baptisms were 62 more than the year before.

The Catholic population of Connecticut, according to the census of 1921 was 554,865, and the non Catholic population 325,132.

The recapitulation of the latest diocesean statistics is as follows:

APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF EXTENSION WORK IN STATE

Benjamin W. Ellis, county leader of the state extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs has been appointed director of extension work in Connecticut, as successor to H. J. Baker, who resigned recently to become extension director in New Jersey. The new director was appointed at a meeting of the trustees of the Connecticut Agricultural college, the headquarters of the state extension work.

Mr. Ellis has had ten years' experience as an agricultural leader in 1917, Mr. Ellis became agent for Windham county.

Mr. Ellis was graduated from the Massachuetts Agricultural college in 1913. His first year after graduation was spent as instructor at the Bristol County Agricultural school, Segregansett, Mass. In 1914 he accepted a position as farm management demonstrator with the extension service of Massachusetts Agricultural college. He was promoted to the position of assistant county agent leader and acted in this capacity for one year, resigning to take up the management of a dairy farm at South Weymouth, Mass., which position he left to enter Connecticut agricultural fields.

Mr. Ellis will assume his new duties on June 1.

TWO SEND CHECKS IN THANKING FIRE DEPARTMENT

Chief Howard L. Stanton has received two checks, one for $15 from Simon Solomon and one for $10 from Charles Gordon accompanied by letters of appreciation for the work of the department in recent fires. The money has been turned over to City Treasurer Charles S. Avery to be added to the firemen's pension fund.

PARK CHURCH GIRLS ARE WINNERS OF LOVING CUP

An enjoyable interchurch social for Sunday school girls was held Friday evening at the Community house on Church street with an attendance of 200, representing the United Congregational, Central Baptist, Christ Episcopal, Trinity Methodist, Trinity Episcopal, First Baptist and Park Congregational church.

Mrs. R. R. Graham opened the meeting with words of welcome and a programme was given that consisted of 10-minute sketches by each school, showing how some church meetings would be conducted. This was in competition for a silver loving cup, which has been held by the First Baptist church.

The cup changed hands Friday night, going to the Park church group, who gave a representation of a missionary meeting, which was in costumes and very cleverly done. The judges, Mrs. Graham, Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen, and Mrs. Arthur G. Thompson, made the award to the Park church girls, but said it had been difficult to decide as all had done so well.

Fruit punch, cake and wafers were served at the close of the evening.

WILLIMANTIC ELKS IN DELIGHTFUL LADIES' NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, April 20.—Willimantic lodge, No. 1131, B. P. O. E., held a most successful ladies' night Friday evening at the state armory on Pleasant street. About 200 couples were in attendance, and during the course of the evening they enjoyed several acts of high class entertainment, including the Hudson-Crawford piano and violin team, dancing and delicious refreshments. The refreshments consisted of novel ice cream plates. Biscuits and punch were served by Raymond Cummins and Roy W. Downer. Charles W. Hill was chairman of the committee of arrangements. The hall was artistically decorated with appropriate colors and dancing was enjoyed until 1 o'clock Saturday morning. Among those present were a number of Elks and their friends from out of town.

NEMROD GROTTO ENJOYED ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE

After a brief business meeting at which Herman Stelzner presided, in the absence of Monarch George E. Zimmerman, who was attending a Masonic event in Waterbury, the Friday night meeting of Nemrod grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., was turned into an evening of special entertainment for the members. Several of the principals in the musical comedy The Glorious Girl and two of the chorus groups gave their songs and dances, which had been feature numbers in the comedy. The chorus numbers were The Glorious Girl and The Artists.

Dancing for which the Grotto trio played was enjoyed with Kirk Ricketts, piano, Frank Sterry, violin, and William Gessler, drum, comprising the trio. Light refreshments were served under the direction of the entertainment committee, Raymond C. Brittin, chairman, Day Fillmore, Kirk Ricketts and Harry Carlson.

XENS ENJOYED PROGRAM AFTER BUSINESS MEETING

The Xens society met Friday evening at the First Baptist church with President Mrs. Edward Crowell in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted and the entertainment committee provided a short but pleasing program. Plans were made for the supper to be served by the society for the purpose of raising funds for the treasury. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

FOREST AND BRUSH FIRES CREATING HEAVY LOSSES

Forest Fire to the Southeast of Danbury Threatens a Number of Residences—1,000 Men Are Combating a Fire in Tioga County, New York—8,000 Acres of Woodland in New Jersey Has Been Destroyed — A Church, Houses and Farm Buildings Were Wiped Out.

Danbury, April 22.—A forest fire broke out around 6 o'clock last night, about three miles southeast of here, and at a late hour today was still raging despite the efforts of more than a half hundred men, women and children to quell the blaze.

The flames, which started in a mountainous section, were swiftly creeping to numerous adjacent hills, threatening a number of residences in the vicinity. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

VALUABLE OAK AND PINE DESTROYED BY BRUSH FIRE

Atlantic City, N. J., April 22.—Thousands of dollars' worth of oak and pine have been destroyed by the two-day fire sweeping fifteen square miles of brush and woods north of this resort. The menacing blaze caused home owners in the vicinity to clear the ground around their dwellings today and wet them down as precautionary measures.

On the White Horse pike at Five Oaks, between Hammonton and Berlin, thousands of valuable trees have gone down, and at May's Landing and Pleasantville home owners were fighting desperately to keep the flames off.

Thousands crowded the boardwalk today and watched the heavy clouds of smoke spreading across the sky fifteen miles away.

1,000 MEN FIGHTING FOREST FIRE IN TIOGA COUNTY, N. Y.

Corning, N. Y., April 22.—Forest fires continue to do damage in Tioga county, just over the Steuben county line. More than 1,000 men have been combatting the spread of flames with little success for the past forty-eight hours. Five new fires were reported early today, the most serious in the Trout Run region, where several hundred acres of valuable timberland has been burned over.

TWO VILLAGES IN NEW JERSEY THREATENED

Lakewood, N. J., April 22.—Two villages are threatened, 8,000 acres of woodland have been destroyed, and a church, houses and farm buildings wiped out by a forest fire which swept through Ocean county tonight.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH AFTER SAVING SHEEP

New York, April 22.—Riverdale's "millionaire colony" was thrown into excitement today when flames swept the garage on the estate of Mrs. Elie Nadelman of New York wife of the sculptor, almost causing the death of James Horan, caretaker, who was trapped after saving a herd of pedigreed sheep.

His son Daniel, chauffeur for Peter D. Duryea, whose mansion adjoins, dashed through the flames and rescued his father. Both were badly burned. The building, used as a combination caretaker's quarters, and and several automobiles were destroyed. The damage was placed at $50,000.

Adjoining Mrs. Nadelman's estate are those of Cleveland H. Dodge and the late George W. Perkins.

LARGE STOCK OF LUMBER WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

East Jaffrey, N. H., April 22.—The largest stock of lumber in southern New Hampshire was destroyed by fire here today when the lumber yard of Bean and Simonds was left in ashes. It is estimated that the loss amounted to more than $100,000.

The large mill on the plant was saved after a battle of several hours, but a dwelling house across the road was consumed. The lumber destroyed consisted of stock used in the manufacture of match blocks.

Members of an automobile party whose car broke down near the mills last night, are believed to have started the fire.

TWO SERIOUS FIRES ON STATEN ISLAND

New York April 22.—Fireboats and fire apparatus from all five boroughs of the city were rushed to Staten Island today when serious fires broke out simultaneously at Howland Hook, the northwest extremity of the island, and at Tottenville.

The blaze at Howland Hook, starting in the early afternoon in a scow moored in Staten Island sound, spread rapidly, fanned by a strong wind, to another scow, and then to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad dumping grounds and to high dry grass in the neighboring flats.

Laying waste several small boats and a number of shacks of deserted frame buildings, the blaze soon threatened the Elizabethport ferry house and a half mile wooden trolley trestle a short distance away.

Heroic work by firemen saved the Arthur Kill, a large sailing vessel, which was moored near the burning scows, and which had been set afire. They climbed to a perilous perch on a pierhead and played a hose on the vessel's burning deck until a fireboat was able to tow it out of danger.

Meanwhile fire apparatus from Staten Island had to be diverted to Tottenville, where a blaze swept through the plant of the Tottenville Copper works. A borough call was sent in for apparatus from Manhattan and Brooklyn when the flames, after gutting the factory, were carried by a strong wind to dozens of homes of workmen—a few hundred yards from the factory.

The Howland Hook blaze was put under control when the wind abated and turned away from the direction of the Baltimore and Ohio coal docks. Damage was estimated at $80,000.

TWO FIRES OF SUSPICIOUS ORIGIN IN CHELSEA MASS.

Chelsea, Mass., April 22.—The Chelsea fire of early today, which threatened to repeat the disastrous conflagration in that city a few years ago, may have been incendiary, according to Fire Marshal George C. Neal, who has has started an investigation.

Marshal Neal said that the fire department was called out to extinguish a fire earlier in the evening a few feet from the spot where buildings valued at $100,000 were destroyed an hour and a half later.

Philip Riesman, of the firm of Philip Riesman & Co., whose plant was destroyed in the second fire, declares that the blaze started from the smouldering embers of the first. Fire Chief Dan M. Hudson of Chelsea says that the first fire was set behind the Acme Smelting company's plant, six feet from the Riesman shed, but that the second fire did not start from the first.

JURY IN MURPHY SUIT FAILED OF AGREEMENT

New York, April 22.—The jury which for eight days heard testimony in the suit of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, to recover $175,000 he invested with Louis N. Hartog in a wartime glucose deal, failed to agree on a verdict after deliberating seven hours and was discharged by Supreme Court Justice Davis late last night.

Martin Conboy, attorney for Mr. Murphy, said he expected to try the suit again. He had no idea of possibilities of settlement, he added. Max Steuer, attorney for Hartog, could not be reached.

The jury began deliberationse at 3.30 yesterday afternoon and six hours later sent word to the court it had not agreed. The court directed the jury to return a sealed verdict Monday morning but that if it did not agree by 10.15 Saturday night, or after forty-five minutes' additional deliberation, it should be discharged.

STATEMENT FILED BY U. S. COAL COMMISSION

New York, April 22.—But two per cent of the domestic sizes of athracite coal was sold at the mine at higher prices than those fixed by the fair price committee of the Pennsylvania fuel commission, it was declared in a statement filed with the United States coal commission by the general committee of anthracite operators and made public today.

The prices for 98 per cent. of the coal were quoted as follows: 77.4 per cent, at $8.50 a ton or less 11.2 per cent. from $8.50 to $9.25; about 7 per cent, from $9.25 to $11 and 1.4 per cent. from $11 to $12. The higher prices, it was said, were necessitated by exceptionally high cost operations.

Declaring that many opportunities for graft and profiteering had not been taken advantage of, the statement said the operators had co-operated in their efforts to prevent shipments of "fireproof" coal.

BRITISH KING AND QUEEN ARE TO VISIT ITALY

London, April 22.—(By The A. P.)—The visit of King George and Queen Mary to Italy next month will be the most elaborate affair of its character since the war. The Italians are planning to outdo any previous efforts at entertaining royalty. This is said to be largely due to the wish to contrast the splendor of this visit with the rather cold reception given by the Italian government to the Belgian king and queen last year.

The Italian royal train will be sent to the frontier on Sunday, May 6, in charge of the Italian court, and other officials, to meet King George and his party. The British sovereigns will not be obliged to move from their private car while they travel in Italy as it will be attached to the Italian royal train. The Italian train will carry the arms of Great Britain beside those of Italy. The British royal standard will be flown from the engine.

PARTY RESCUED FROM FOX ISLAND LAKE MICHIGAN

Chicago, April 22 (By the A. P.).—Eight men and one woman who had been marooned on South Fox Island, in Lake Michigan, John Miller, the pilot of an airplane that went to their rescue and was wrecked in landing, and two Chicago newspapermen, were taken off the island at 4.30 p. m. today by a car ferry leased from the Ann Arbor railroad by Thomas E. Wilson, the packer, according to wireless messages from Manistique, Mich. The ferry was expected to reach Frankfort, Mich., tonight.

The ferry which left Frankfort at 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning, arrived at Fox island at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. It carried a physician and a trained nurse, as one of the woodsmen on the island was reported suffering from acute appendicitis.

ORDER RESTORED IN PENN. STATE PENITENTIARY

Philadelphia, April 22.—Every narcotic drug addict has been located, the morale of the guards has been restored, the lawlessness "that threatened bloodshed" in the big prison has been uprooted and good order has been re-established in the Eastern state penitentiary J. Washington Logue, secretary of the board of prison inspectors, announced tonight.

Following the resignation yesterday of Warden Robert J. McKenty, Mr. Logue declared that since March 15, when several prisoners assaulted two guards, conditions within the walls of the prison had been desperate. He called attention to numerous disorders, lack of discipline, distribution of narcotics by prisoners and the alleged running of the institution b ya committee of convicts known to the other inmates as the "four horsemen."

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT INJURIES PROVED FATAL

Springfield, Mass., April 22.—Dr. Thomas L. O'Brien of Malden, Mass., who was injured in an automobile accident near Palmer yesterday morning, died in Mercy hospital today. Dr. R. H. Shattuck, also of Malden, and Albert Thompson, a druggist, of Somerville, also were injured.

To Resume Near East Conference Today

United States May Play the Leading Role Before the Curtain Falls on the Final Scene.

Lausanne, April 22 (By the A. P.)—The stage is set for a resumption tomorrow of the near eastern peace conference, which was so dramatically ended last February, and conference circles anticipate that the United States may play the leading role before the curtain falls on a final, as yet undetermined scene which may be either the signing of a peace compact or the renewal of war.

In the public mind the prospective importance of the United States in the present conference is ascribed to the Turkish parliament's recent ratification of the Chester concession, granting extensive rights for the construction of railroads throughout Turkey and the exploitation of mineral properties in a zone within twenty kilometres on either side of the projected railway line. France and Great Britain both are looking at this concession with questioning eyes, and as economic subjects will form one of the chief issues in the dispute between the Turks and allies.

France contends that the Chester Grant conflicts with the railroad concessions received from the old Ottoman government in 1914, on which France already has advanced 17,000,000 Turkish pounds; and Great Britain says frankly that if the Chester concessions affects the mandated territory of Mosul, as the newspaper accounts say it does, then Great Britain will regard this concession as non-existent, so far as it affects Mosul or any other part of the Irak territory, which is under the British mandate.

The American official attitude, as it is understood here, will be to continue to back the traditional policy of the open door and equal opportunity for all nations; and if the American government finds, after examination, that the Chester concession is a legitimate one and does not violate the American conception of equal privileges to all, then it is predicted in allied quarters that Joseph C. Grew, the American minister to Switzerland, who will head the American delegation, will defend this grant in case it is officially protested at the Lausanne conference.

The outstanding feature of the resumed conference is the elimination of soviet Russia. The correspondent of The Associated Press learns that Moscow diplomatically sought an invitation to participate in the conference, but that the inviting powers, Great Britain, France and Italy, returned a polite negative. Russia has been told, it is said, that she was invited to the first conference to discuss the straits convention only, but that she publicly announced a refusal to sign this treaty, on which all the other countries, including the Turks, were in accord; that if any time before the adjournment of the conference Russia has changed her mind, the conference hall always will be open, and the allies will be delighted to see her.

FOUR MEN KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

Cincinnati, April 22. — Four men were killed late today when a passenger train on the Big Four railroad, Cleveland to Cincinnati, struck an automobile at a crossing at Elmwood, near here. The accident happened five minutes after the crossing watchman quit work.

The identity of one occupant of the automobile was established by police as Harry Frank, 21, a chauffeur. His name was obtained through the tracing of the automobile, which was the property of a "drive your own car" system. The records failed to give the names of the other three.

The men, all were between the ages of 21 and 25. Papers found in the vicinity of the wreck bore the name "Young" or "Junt." On a Masonic membership card the name F. Smith with no address, appeared.

According to a lone witness, the victims apparently paid no attention to the whistle of the train which was running at a high rate of speed.

The automobile was struck squarely in the center and the occupants thrown to opposite sides of the tracks.

The view of the right of way at this section is unobstructed.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN MANUFACTURE OF RUBBER

New York, April 22.—Three new developments in rubber manufacture, declared to be of greater importance than any accomplishment in the industry since the discovery in 1839 of vulcanization, were announced today by G. S. Seger, chairman of the board of the United States Rubber company.

The developments are sprayed rubber for use in the manufacture of all rubber products and web cord, characterized as a fundamental improvement in the art of cord tire making, and a new method of building and vulcanizing cord tires.

"Sprayed rubber," Mr. Seger said, "is the result of a new method of producing crude rubber from the original latex, and insures for the first time since rubber was discovered a pure and absolutely uniform product."

The new process, a marked departure from the old primitive method of heat and astringent smoke over a slow fire, he added, "takes the latex, sprays it into a snow-white dust, which is brought into contact with superheated air, driving out the water of the latex and nothing else."

TUG RAMMED AND SUNK BY OIL TANKER

San Pedro, Cal., April 22.—The tug Bahada was rammed and sunk by the Standard Oil tanker Richmond late today when the latter, coming empty from San Francisco, was about to enter the outer harbor.

The Bahada was trying to take a towline from the Richmond when the accident occurred. Her crew of five was saved.

EVERGLADES PATHFINDERS HAVE ARRIVED AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., April 22.—The country's last unbroken frontier was conquered last night after two and a half weeks of trail blazing when seven of the nine automobiles in which the Tamiami pathfinders left Fort Myers, April 4, finally put into Miami at dusk.

French Flag Now Flying Over Essen

Curious Crowds of Germans Watched the Tri-Color Hoisted for the First—No Disorder.

Essen, April 22.—(By The A. P.)—The French flag today flies over Essen for the first time. A battalion of French troops today presented arms while curious crowds of Germans watched the tricolor hoisted to the top of the flagstaff over the Kohlensyndikat, where the Ruhr coal barons once centralized a business of 100,000,000 tons. The bands of the French played The Marseillaise.

The programme had been announced for several days, and there was much spefculation among the Germans as to what the raising of the French flag might mean. At French headquarters, however, it was said there was no significance attached to the ceremony, which was merely a matter of form in order to have the French flag flying in the heart of the Ruhr.

BELGIUM TO REINFORCE TROOPS IN THE RUHR

Paris, April 22.—A Havas despatch from Brussels says it is announced that the Belgian troops occupying the Ruhr will be reinforced shortly. The decision to augment the troops is due to the necessity to occupy a greater number of mines, to keep a closer watch on the railroads and to replace the French effectives who will be withdrawal with the release of the French class of 1921.

TELLS WHY FRANCE DISTRUSTS GERMANY

Tour Meuse, France, April 22.—(By The A. P.)—Premier Poincare, speaking before thousands of residents of the Meuse department assembled in the town of Void at the unveiling today of a monument to the war dead, reiterated emphatically that France's essential conditions to a reapproachment with Germany are now, as always, "reparations and security."

Replying to the speech recently delivered in the reichstag by Baron Von Rosenberg, M. Poincare said:

"Germany's minister of foreign affairs pretended that we entered the Ruhr without sufficient cause and that we rejected, in January, 1923, an offer of thirty million marks made to the allies jointly; it was never made, and of the figure thirty billions is now named it is doubtless an attempt to appease the German socialists who suggested it.

"Let us admit for the sake of argument that Baron Von Rosenberg told the truth. What would follow? That Germany, after formally admitting her indebtedness of 132,000,000,000 marks in May, 1921, and after having obtained in return for this admission the concession that the Ruhr should not be occupied, designed in January, 1923, to offer the allies less than a quarter of the sum promised by her and fixed by the reparations commission, and at what price would she have us pay for this strange concession? She asked us for a moratorium of three or four years, and consented to give neither tangible security nor guarantee.

"How could we have faith in the promise of 1923, eighteen months after the agreement of 1921 had been made and violated? Cheated once, would we not have been liable to be cheated again? How could we be fools enough again to give the reich that confidence the allies so generously accorded in May, 1921, and which was so outrageously abused?"

COTTON MANUFACTURERS TO MEET IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., April 22.—The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers will hold its annual meeting at the Providence Biltmore hotel beginning Tuesday. At the sessions which will continue for three days experts will discuss technical problems of interest. Speakers will include W. Irving Bullard, on "Brazil," John S. Stone, on the "Co-operative movement," W. L. Clayton on "Cotton Marketing," Arthur N. Sheldon on "Some Experiments in Four Roll Drafting Applied to Slumber and Roving Frames, James McDowell on "Cotton Fibres From a Layman's Point of View." Mayor Joseph H. Gainer, of Providence will give an address of welcome. Officers of the association will present their reports at the opening session. Former United States Senator Henry F. Lippitt, of Rhode Island and C. E. Hutchison, will speak at the banquet. An elaborate social program has been prepared for the visitors.

TUESDAY TRIAL OF FORMER PATRIARCH OF ALL RUSSIA

Moscow, April 22. (By the A. P.)—On the eve of the commencement on Tuesday of the trial of the Most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, former patriarch of all Russia, on a charge of treason and hindering the carrying out of soviet orders, the soviet press today is filled with a reputed confession of the prelate.

The "confession" indicates that Dr. Tikhon must have undergone numerous preliminary examinations. Not one word in his defense is found in the newspapers. On the contrary the despatches of the official government agency from the provinces tend to show that meetings of workingmen are demanding Tikhon's execution as a counter-revolutionary.

TWO BROTHERS SHOT BY IRISH FREE STATERS

Belfast, April 22.—(By The A. P.)—The relative freedom from shootings and disorders during the past fortnight was marred today when Patrick and John Quinn, brothers of Newry, were fired upon by Free State troops after they had refused to surrender.

Free Staters were making searches near the Armagh border when they saw several young men concealed in a ditch. When ordered to give themselves up the men opened fire. The military replied, killing one of the men and wounding another.

The body of an unidentified man, riddled with bullets, was found in a ditch this morning near the Drumcondra convent, Dublin.

REACTION IN FINANCIAL AND COMMODITY MARKETS

Buyers More Cautious With the Passing of Special Demands Occasioned by the Spring Season—Production Continues to Go on at an Undiminished Rate—Numerous Recent Wage Advances Have Had a Sobering Effect in Some Quarters.

New York, April 22.—(By The A. P.)—With recent buying movements showing further signs of slackening, a somewhat more cautious tone was apparent in financial and commercial circles during the past week. This was attributed partly to the fact that consumers are now covered for some time ahead and partly to the passing of special demands occasioned for the spring season. It also seems to be the case that the numerous recent wage increases have had a sobering effect in some quarters. In any event, the change in sentiment was due to apprehensions lest the business revival may have reached its peak to misgivings lest the advance in prices and cost is in danger of being over done.

A specific unsettled factor in the commodity markets was the attorney general's petition for an injunction to restrain trading in sugar futures at New York. In this petition the attorney general takes the ground that the rises in the price of raw sugar which has taken place since February 1, has had no economic justification and that it has resulted from a combination and conspiracy by the sugar exchange, its officers and members and their clients or principles. In rebuttal the trade maintains that the rise in prices has occurred in response to growing indications of a smaller Cuban crop and points to the fact that the timely estimate, which is emphasized in the attorney general's petition, was reduced on Friday from 4,102,857 tons to 3,750,000 tons.

Whatever the merits of the case may be, it is clear that the petition exercised an unfavorable effect on sentiment in the commodity markets. Sugar futures reacted sharply and then steadied, the spot commodity meanwhile easing slightly and then recovering to the previous high price, thus reflecting the opinion held by refiners that lower prices are not likely to prevail. Cotton meanwhile turned distinctly heavy, the May losing about 1 3-4 cents and closing the week only slightly above 27 cents. Wheat prices also reacted after recent strength. While both of these commodities moved partly in relation to factors peculiar to themselves, such as weather conditions it was believed in most quarters that the government's theory in the sugar matter had unsettled sentiment. It was also felt, however, that this particular action was not to be accepted as setting up a principle to be followed in the case of the other exchanges.

Although buying has slackened, production continues to go on at an undiminished rate. Railroad car loadings for the week ended April 7 were, it is true, materially below recent records, but this was attributed to observance of the Easter Monday holiday in a number of districts. Even so, the week's traffic exceeded the year.

comparable performance in any other

Steel production also is holding up well, the steel corporation operating at about 93 per cent. of capacity and the independents recording a slight gain in activity. It is maintained that the steel companies have yet to feel the full effects of the competition for labor that comes with the season for outdoor work, but no substantial reduction is anticipated. That steel prices have reached their peak, for the time being at least, is the general belief. There have been, in fact, some recessions in the premiums charged for early deliveries.

Changes in the money market were irregular. Call and time money became a trifle easier but the rates on bankers' acceptances, after being slightly lower, firmed up to a 4 1-4 and 4 3-8 basis for 60 and 90 day periods.

ARMORED TANK WAS PATENTED IN GERMANY

Washington, April 22. — Germany while introducing poison gas and other devices to add to the horrors of the World war, overlooked one of the most effective weapons of modern warware invented and patented by a German two years before the conflict began.

A search of the records of the American patent office has disclosed, it was announced today, by the interior department, that the armored tank, first used in the war by the British, was patented in Germany by Gunther Burstyn, an Austrian, in February 1912. The invention was practically a duplicate of the type used later by the British and called for caterpillar construction to enable it to crawl over trenches, plow through wire entranglements and perform other feats which made the British tanks such successful war weapons.

In view of the recognized efficiency and thoroughness of the Germans in preparation for war, American officials are puzzled by the failure of the German government to use the tank.

GIRL JUDGE SENTENCED SEVEN MEN TO DEATH

Moscow, April 22 By (the A. P.)—A bobbed-hair young woman in her early twenties sat as presiding judge at a trial in the Moscow district court yesterday and in a calm voice sentenced seven men to death for robbery with violence. She was Citizeness Anna Gluzman, formerly of Kharkov, who several months ago so attracted the attention of the commssairiat of justice by her shrewd decisions in the Ukrainian courts that she was invited to Moscow and became a member of the presidium of the Moscow district court.

The defendants were a gang of eight highway robbers led by one Sergius Mironoff, all young, who, with the aid of several chauffeurs employed by the Moscow soviet, carried out armed robberies in clothing factories last March.

TIMID SINCE THE DEATH OF EARL OF CARNARVON

Berlin, April 22.—Since the death of the Earl of Carnarvon visitors are wary about entering the lead cellar of the Bremen cathedral where a score of mummified bodies have been exhibited for years. It has even been suggested that the lids should be replaced on the heavy oaken coffins in which the mummies are encased. These bodies were given no special treatment such as the mummies of the pharaohs had, but merely dried up in cold rarified air of the moisture-proof cellar protected by stone walls many feet thick.

MONGREL DOG HELPED LOCATE MISSING BOY

Sanford, Me., April 22.—With the aid of a mongrel dog, a family pet, five year old Lawrence Warts, missing from his home since Friday noon, was found by his brother Walter in the woods near here today.

The little boy was found on the bank of the river, about a mile from the spot where his brother Charles, aged six, who disappeared with him, was rescued yesterday. He was weak from hunger and suffering from cold and exhaustion. He was brought to the hospital here for treatment.

FOUR KILLED WHEN AUTO STRUCK TRAIN

Buffalo, N. Y., April 22.—Four persons are dead as the result of the grade crossing accident late last night when a Lehigh Valley railroad train struck an automobile.

The dead are Albert Sherman and his wife of Niagara Falls, Mrs. Emma Meahl, also of Niagara Falls, and Arnold Cumrow of Ransomville. Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Meahl are sisters. Sherman was instantly killed and the others died at a Tonawanda hospital during the day.

DANCERS HAVE BEEN SHUFFLING 91 HOURS

Washington, April 22.—Elsie Weber and William T. Farrell, Baltimore entries in a dancing endurance contest, which got under way here Wednesday midnight, were still shuffling at 7 o'clock tonight, having been tripping a far from light fantastic toe for 19 hours—a new world record.

Miss Weber, Farrell and three others warned by police they could not continue their exhibition here on Sunday, danced their way late last night in a truck to Marlboro, Maryland. There an orchestra was waiting, and a regulation floor they went on with the dance.

The three men still in the competition tonight with Farrell and Miss Weber were 36 hours behind them, having entered the contest Friday noon. Reports from Marlboro indicated that none of the dancers was ready to drop out of the race—at least not for some hours.

About a week ago Miss Weber, dancing in a Baltimore contest, established a world record at 52 hours—a mark that stood for a day or so.

MEDALLIONS AWARDED CAMP FIRE GIRLS

New York, April 22.—Mrs. Mildred Kiehlman of Bristol, Conn., today was awarded the Grace Harriman Medallion for guardian work in the Camp Fire Girls during the past year. The medallion was presented by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, national president of Camp Fire Girls.

Honorable mention was given eighteen guardians from all parts of the United States, England and Alaska, the list including: Mrs. Lena J. Moon, of Middletown, N. Y.; Mrs. A. Lents, Fort Worth, Texas; Mrs. May L. Hanslik, Wonewoc, Wis.; Miss Jennie E. Fox, Paliscades, N. Y.; Miss Francee E. Shields, Baton Rouge, La.; Miss Elizabeth Fife, Dorchester, Mas.; Mrs. Ella H. Bradley, Hamilton City, Cliff.; Miss Margaret S. Morgan, Newcastle on Tyne, England; Mrs. Andrew Johnston, Bourneville, England; Miss Lenore Marti, Petersburg, Alaska; Mrs. Coila M. Westcott, Santa Inez, Calif.; Mrs. Marguerie Marsot, Seattle, Wash.; Miss Alma Schoenberger, Cincinnati, Ohio: Miss Mary H. Vedder, Crow Agency, Montana; Mrs. Lola K. Gilbert, Keota, Iowa; Mrs. George West, New Haven, Conn.; Miss Ethel Meyers, Manhattan, Kansas, and Miss E. Gertrude Lee, Greeley, Colorado.

LARKIN TO BE INTERNED IF HE ENTERS ULSTER

Belfast, April 22.—(By the A. P.)—A high official of the northern government said today that James Larkin, the agitator, deported from the United States last week, would not be permitted to establish himself in Ulster territory. If he tried to do so, he would be sent aboard an internment ship.

The Ulster government did not possess deportation powers, it was added, but, if it did, it might be assumed these would be exercised in the case of Larkin, as the Belfast officials remembered vividly the strike organized by Larkin here in the summer of 1907.

LONDON PREPARING FOR GALA WEDDING FETE

London, April 22 (By the A. P.).—Not since the day thirty years ago when King George V, as the Duke of York, led his royal bride to the altar, has England prepared herself for such a gala wedding fete as will be celebrated on Thursday next, when Prince Albert, Duke of York—next in succession to the British throne after the Prince of Wales—weds Lady Elizabeth Bowes Lyon in Westminster Abbey.

All plans for the great occasion are completed and it only remains to put the finishing touches to the scenery for staging this royal pageant for which the world, thrilled by the romance of the young prince's wooing of a subject of his own land, has been eagerly waiting.

Those unfortunate enough not to be able to come to London will be regaled with the wedding story told by wireless broadcasting.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
81 Church Street Telephone 1048

At the Saturday morning session of the local police court the continued case of William H. Horton, president of the Willimantic Motor company, inc., was taken up. Horton was charged with reckless driving of his automobile on Saturday evening, April 14, on Church street when the machine turned over on the sidewalk and collided with a tree after it had struck and curbing.

The testimony of Joseph Peck was heard and he stated that about 9:30 o'clock on the evening in question he had seen the wrecked car on the sidewalk and after bringing passengers to their destination he hurried back to the scene and found that the gasoline had caught fire. Witness twisted the feed pipe and shut off the flow of gasoline. Judging from the wheel marks the machine must have skidded for about seventy feet and in his opinion it did not collide with the tree at first but the successive breaking of the front axle and wheel caused the car to turn over on its side.

He thought that the car must have been going about twenty miles an hour when the brakes were applied and he found that one of the wheels was locked but that the emergency brake was not in working order. The car described an angle of about forty degrees before it struck the curbing.

The defendant, William H. Horton testified that on the evening he and a male friend came down from the hill section and when coming out of Maple avenue he applied the brakes, with the result that one of the rear wheels locked. This fact caused the machine to slide across Church street and strike the curbing. He applied the brakes about ten feet before going over the crosswalk at the end of Maple avenue. The car had been driven that afternoon and the brakes were in good working order at that time.

The testimony of George Heether, an employe at another local garage was then heard in regard to the condition of the brakes following the accident.

Judge F. H. Foss stated that there was a questio nas to whether one or both wheels had become locked. The testimonies of Joseph Peck and the defendant differed in that point. The court was of the opinion that there was a question as to whether one or become locked. The case was then continued until this (Monday) morning when witnesses will give testimony in regard to the wheel marks in the roadway.

The funeral services for Joseph P. De Marchi were held from the late home, 1009 Main street, Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. The celebrant was Rev. John E. Clark. Rev. O. S. Beaumister was deacon and Rev. Charles M. Kelley the sub-deacon. The church choir, with Mrs. E. R. Portelance at the organ, rendered special music during the mass. The funeral convoy consisted of a large number of friends and relatives and the floral pieces were numerous and beautiful.

Among those attending the funeral and services were delegations from Willimantic Lodge, No. 1211, B. P. O. E., and Guiseppe Garibaldi Lodge, Willimantic, No. 267, O. F. D. I. Members of the latter lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery and Rev. Father Kelley read a committal service at the grave. Killourey Brothers were in charge of the arrangements.

The funeral of Miss Emma Catherine Bartlett was held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Green of Ashford. The service was conducted by Rev. E. C. Bugbee. Burial followed in the Dow cemetery, Ashford. Avery and Van Zant, successors of Jay M. Shepard were in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Esther Brown Dimock, widow of Addison D. Dimock of Willimantic, died Friday morning at the age of 83 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John A. Houchens, No. 389 Main street, Hartford. The deceased was born in Jewett City and is survived by two children, Mrs. John A. Houchens of Hartford and Joseph Dimock of Willington and a brother, Oscar Brown of Brunswick, Me.

The funeral services of Mrs. Anna F. Murphy were held from the parlors of a local undertaker with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Joseph's church, Friday morning. Rev. Charles M. Kelley was the celebrant, Rev. William H. Kennedy of South Coventry, deacon and Rev. O. S. Beaumister, sub-deacon. Rev. John E. Clark officiated as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Edmund R. Portlance presided at the organ and the choir sang special music. There were many flowers. After the church services the funeral cortege proceeded by automobile to Jewett City conducted a committal service. The bearers were, James F. Twomey, T. Frank Cunningham, J. E. Sullivan and M. E. Sullivan. Included in those attending were relatives and friends from Norwich, New London, Colchester, Moosup, Jewett City and Providence.

During the month of March there were only three marriages recorded at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. The ceremonies were respectively performed by Rev. H. C. Belec, Justice of the Peace. Thomas J. Kelley and Rev. Harry S. McCready. Following is the list: 5—Vincent Savail, 23 (Colchester), and Sylvia Brown, 24 (Lebanon), by Rev. H. C. Belec. 10—John F. McCarthy, 39, and Ida Haywood, 17, by Justice of the Peace, Thomas J. Kelley. 15—John J. Richardson, 37 (Mansfield) and Regina Duroche, 36 (Mansfield), by Rev. Harry S. McCready.

This (Monday) morning in police court, John Phillips of North Windham and Louis Rabinowitz will appear on the charges of reckless driving. The case is the outcome of a collision of two automobiles operated by them. A Dodge truck driven by Rabinowitz came down lower Main street about 10 o'clock Saturday morning and made a turn in the street, coming to a stop on the right side of the road and headed east.

The Phillips machine, a Buick touring, came along at this time and the cars sideswiped each other causing considerable damage to the Phillips car and but slight damage to the truck. The accident was reported to the police department and as a result of failure on the part of the drivers, to reach an agreement for settlement of the damages, they were notified to appear in court Monday morning.

The Meat and Grocery store conducted by Godfrid Chaput at the corner of Milk and Union streets has been closed by Deputy Sheriff A. J. Greenslit, through two attachments, totaling $900. The complainants in the case are Lewis De Greff and Son of New York and Haskell Rosen of Windham. The case will be heard before the Windham County superior court the first Tuesday in June. Damages of $500 are claimed by the New York firm and Haskell Rosen claims $200. The stock has been attached.

A regular semi-monthly meeting of Francis S. Long Post, No. 30, G. A. R. was held Saturday afternoon at the post headquarters in the town building. Half of the twelve members attended. Commander A. P. Benner had charge of the meeting.

There were thirty-two deaths in the town of Windham during the month of March, according to the records filed at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton and of that total 25 were over 50 years of age. The list follows:

1—Katherine Lucier, 55, post operative shock.

The regular meeting of Mary Todd LinLcoln Ten, No. 15, Daughters of Veterans was held in the G. A. R. rooms and was in charge of the president, Mrs. Minnie Mullen. Attending the meeting was Department Commander Orren M. Price of Norwich and he presented the local tent a bible. Others present were Department President Louise D. Atterbury of Norwich and several of her department officers. Five new members were obligated and the president appointed from the committees for the year.

The delegates to the state convention to be held at Norwich on May 2 and 3 were elected as follows: First, Mrs. Minnie Mathieu; second, Miss Sadie E. Curley; first alternate, Mrs. Florence Williams; and second alternate, Mrs. Lucy Lynch. The following color bearers were appointed, Edith Twomey, Corrinne Picknell, and Mrs. Florence Williams. Mrs. Mary Meehan has been previously appointed as first color bearer.

The next meeting, on May 4, of the W. C. T. U. will be in charge of Mrs. Mary S. Webster. The subject will be "Our Mothers." It is planned to make it one of the best meetings in the year and a special invitation is extended to young mothers with their children. A progressive drive for new members is under way and each union is divided into three teams, led by the president, secretary and treasurer, respectively. The number gained by each team is to be reported to county and state conventions. The divisions are made up of five sets of workers, the children, the younfi people, the active women, the inactive, because of old age and the honorary members.

Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, the new pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church, preached his first sermon at morning service Sunday morning. His subject was "A Changeless Christ for a Changing World." He was warmly welcomed by the entire parish.

The Clark's Corner Neighborhood Association opened the spring season Friday evening with a "Poverty Party," the members coming clad in rags and patches. Some of the outfits were most humorous and included decorations of clothespins, paper and safety pins. The program was as follows:

Grand march, "The Raggedy Man"; recitation by Clarence Kneeland; tableau, "Getting Ready for School," Viola Clark and Mildred Scott; "A Stitch in Time," Clara Moran and John Larkham; "Sewing Circle," Mrs. Kneeland, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. John Mavin, Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Clark. The paying of fines followed and games were enjoyed.

A supper was charged at the rate of one cent for every article, such as plate, knife and fork, foody etc. Mrs. Viola Clark, the most "poverty stricken woman" was awarded a prize and John Kneeland won the men's prize. Faun Jewett won the girls' and the boys' prize was won by John Larkham. There was a large attendance from the surrounding territory and a healthy profit was realized.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

She—"What are you thinking of?
He—"Nothing."
She—"Oh, do take your mind off yourself." — Boston Evening Transcript.

"Was the brute who struck his wife punished by the court?"

"No. When it came to trial the woman wouldn't acknowledge herself beaten.—London Tit-Bits.

Gym Teacher—"Right about, face!" Despondent 1-B—"Thank goodness, I am right about something, at last.—Newark Call.

Mrs. Noah—"Noah, dear, what can be the matter with the camel?"

Noah—"The poor beast has both the fleas."—Wasp.

Office Boy (to stationer)—The boss wants a dozen envelopes.

Stationer—What kind?

Office Boy—He didn't say, but I like the vanilla flavor. — New York Sun.

Wife (pouting)—Whenever I kiss you you ask me if it's a new gown I want. You are unfair.

Hub—Well, perhaps I am. After all, it may be only a hat. — Boston Transcript.

Actress—What will your charges be to arrange a divorce for me?

Lawyer—Madam, if I have the assurance that you'll let me handle all your future divorces I shall make it very reasonable.—Detroit News.

Some of these palmists are pretty good. One of them astonished a woman who submitted a tollworn hand on which was a plain gold band.

Without hesitation the palmist announced: "You are married."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I understand your daughter is not doing well with her studies."

"That's true, but she has so little time to give to her lessons. You know she's really the most popular girl in the school." — Detroit Free Press.

"Cousin Henry," gasped his country relative whom he was driving home, "you just missed that man."

"I know it," returned her city host, speeding up a bit, "but I haven't got time to go back and try again."—Boston Transcript.

"Well, major. How are you?"

"I wish you wouldn't call me major any more."

"What's wrong?"

"I acquired that title during the pre-Volstead era. It doesn't seem right to wear it now when I'm cultivating a taste for French pastry."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Soph (to pea-green Frosh whom he had been ragging a bit): "Say, Freshman, can you guess my correct age?"

Frosh—Come a bit closer so I can get a good look at your teeth.

Soph—What for?

Frosh—Why, down on the farm where I was reised, we always guess the age of a jackass by counting his teeth.—Exchange.

Saviour, on bended knee
I breathe my prayer to Thee;
Draw me nearer, to keep me secure,
Nearer, Lord, to Thee.

Saviour, on bended knee
I own my debt to Thee;
Humble over, grateful ever,
Dear let me be.

Saviour, on bended knee
I praise Thy love to me;
Take me now, make me now,
Now Thine own to be.

Saviour, on bended knee
I tell my love to Thee;
Words of grace, deeds of grace,
Grace Thou gavest me.

Saviour, on bended knee
I raise my hope in Thee;
Hope that labors, sweetly labors,
Labors aye for Thee.

Saviour, on bended knee
I wait the call from Thee,
To go or stay, to stay or go,
As it pleaseth Thee.
—David A. McDonald, in British Weekly.

A SHRINE.

No sanctuary can compare
With an orchard that I know,
When April slips into its aisles
And swinging censers blow—

Where, 'neath its wondrous traceries,
The choristers that sing
Are robins, at their matins or
Their vespers, in the spring.

A deep sky stains its windows blue,
And the nawlike breezes pass,
Embroidering bright petals on
Its altar-cloth—the grass.

No guide is needed but the heart,
For every passer there
May pause and see its loveliness
And offer up a prayer.

Each one can say his vespers well
In that old orchard close,
When the sun sends dying blessings down
Its deep aisles, as he goes—

And thru those aisles an acolyte
Comes stealing from afar—
It is the Dusk, and in the East
He lights the Evening Star!
—Scribner's Magazine.

All Columbia Records are now made by the new process
EVERY Columbia Record made since the Columbia new process was perfected, has been constructed with the superquiet new surface.
Not only has this added musical charm been given to the rich symphonic selections, but also to the songs of the hour, the latest dance music, and the always dear old-fashioned melodies.
Never since the phonograph was invented have the music-loving public been able to listen to phonographic music so nearly like the original in unmarred melody, so delightfully free from the scratch and scrape of needle noise.
This never-before-known surface quietness results from the Columbia process of constructing records in layers or leaves—a hard centre core overlaid with a material of such exquisite smoothness that the noise of needle friction is never created.
As an example of this great musical accomplishment go to any Columbia Dealer and ask to hear record A-3831. It is "Peggy Dear," one of the latest fox-trots, gloriously played by the Happy Six. It is like listening to the orchestra itself. And as you listen, note the absence of that old, irritating grinding sound of the needle.
All Columbia New Process Records are equally delightful. They can be played on any phonograph.
The Columbia process is patented. Only in Columbia New Process Records can you secure this perfect reproduction of perfect music.

PITTSFIELD HILLIES TAKE TWO EASY GAMES FROM HOSPITAL AND NORWICH

After two weeks of strenuous practice the Pittsfield Hillies were in fine condition Saturday and Sunday and found little difficulty in beating the Riverview club at the Norwich State Hospital on Saturday, 13 to 1, and Bill O'Leary's Norwich team, 22 to 6 on Sunday. The Hillies hit like fiends in both games and piled up a combined total of 29 hits for the two sessions against their opponents 12.

Sunday's Game

Sunday's game was more or less of a farce as far as the local team went and by the end of the second inning the locals were helplessly lost in the dust kicked up by Art Wilson's huskies in circling the bags. The Hillies started off strong scoring three runs in the first inning and adding 12 more in the second. In this inning seventeen men faced Bendett, the local pitcher, and with several errors in back of him together with some hard hitting he was in a bad way. The Hillies added three more in the third and 2 in the fourth and then the locals settled down to business and the Hillies only scored two more runs, one in the sixth and one in the eighth inning.

Van Alstyne, veteran pitcher of last season, started for the Hillies and in the five innings he pitched he allowed only two hits. Van also is well getting two singles and a double in three times at bat. Batchelder, the Boston Twilight league star, pitched the rest of the game, striking out six men and allowing four straight hits. He was off form in the sixth and seventh innings. The Hillies drove the base runners from the mound in the seventh inning and a base on balls forced in the first run. A force out at home put one away but left two on bases. Batchelder retired Eddie McKay, centerfielder and Demeranville ended the game by striking out.

GREAT COLLEGE STARS ENTERED IN DRAKE MEET

Des Moines, Iowa, April 22. Entries received for the fourteenth annual Drake university relay meet, next Friday and Saturday, indicate that many of the greatest college athletes of the country will be here to compete in the western athletic classic.

Mehegan, holder of the world's indoor pole vault, record of 12 feet 10 inches, made at the Kansas City athletic club meet last winter, was entered by Coach H. W. Hargiess, of the Kansas State Teachers' College, at Emporia.

Coach Stagg, of Chicago, entered Krogh, Befnes, Kennedy and Slater as a two-mile relay team. Frieds in the javelin throw, and Freids and Dickson in the discus throw.

Coach George L. Ride of Washington, entered a crack half-mile relay team composed of Anderwert, Breser, Blanchard and Bier. Anderwert, Breser and Bier also will compete for Washington in the 100-yard dash.

TILDEN DISPLAYS GOOD FORM IN EXHIBITION

Philadelphia, April 22.—William T. Tilden, national tennis champion, displayed much of his old time form today in defeating Manuel Alonzo, champion of Spain, in an exhibition match at the Santa Maria country club. The score was 7-5, 4-6, 6-2. It was one of the hardest fought and most spectacular matches seen in this vicinity in years.

In a doubles match which was equally exciting, Jose and Manuel Alonzo defeated Tilden and his young Portege, Sandy Wiener 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

A galaxy of other stars, including Vincent Richards, Wallace F. Johnson and Carl Fischer, also played exhibitions, the occasion being a celebration of the formal opening of the new courts.

Richards, who, with William M. Johnson, will represent America in the international tennis meet at Wimbledon, England, this year, defeated Johnson in a straight sets 6-2. The youthful New Porker gave a great exhibition of volleying.

PIRATES TAKE RAGGED SLUGMATCH FROM REDS

Cincinnati, April 22—Pittsburgh won a ragged slugging match from the Cincinnati Reds today by a score of 13 to 9. Six pitchers were used, four in the home team's box by the visitors. Rixey was knocked out of the box in the second inning. Rube Benton made his first appearance in the season but pitched only one inning, being hit hard. Morrison had to be taken out in the seventh in spite of having a long lead, and Bagby, formerly of Cleveland, finished the game.

CUBS WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT BY TRIMMING CARDINALS

Chicago, April 22—Nearly 37,000 persons, including the crowd of opening day, saw Chicago win its fifth consecutive game today by defeating St. Louis, 5 to 2. The crowd overflowed the outfield making a hit into the territory good for only two bases, thus holding a safe margin over the runners until the ninth. Osborne weakened and was replaced by Kaufmann. St. Louis tied the score. Kaufmann's wild pitch passed ball and Grimes' hit through the infield the winning run in the ninth. Score, additional details by Statz and Barnes were not at hand. The score:

CLEVELAND IN FIRST PLACE AFTER BEATING DETROIT

Cleveland, April 22—Cleveland defeated Detroit one to nothing in 10 innings here today and went into unchallenged first place. The game was a pitchers battle between Coveleskie, and Ralph Collins, the Cleveland hurler allowing five hits while the Detroit gave up only six. The game was filled with sensational playing. Two great plays on balls hit off the wall by Summa saving the game for the Indians, while Heilmann prevented a Cleveland run by a great sprinting catch.

Cleveland scored the only run in the tenth when Coveleskie hit with two out. Jamieson walked. Wamby hit to Jones, who threw wild to second, attempting to force Jamieson and Coveleskie scored. The score:

Marshall and Lasker Draw

Cleveland, April 22—The eleventh game between Frank J. Marshall of New York, United States chess champion and Edward Lasker of Chicago, ended in a draw here today.

The game lasted 76 moves and had been twice adjourned. Marshall has a one game lead over the challenger.

HEAVY HOME RUN HITTING AND BIG ATTENDANCE MARKS OPENING WEEK

New York, April 22—Unexpected strength shown by the Chicago Nationals and the Cleveland Americans, together with unprecedented attendances and unusually heavy home run hitting marked the opening days of the 1923 major leagues season.

Tris Speaker's Indians behind excellent pitching won its first five games and tonight held the American league lead. The White Sox dropped four straight games to the Indians and the Tigers provided the fifth victim today in ten innings.

The New York Yankees after winning its four game series with the Red Sox fell before Walter Johnson and the Washington club today. The Athletics, hitting heavily, took three out of four games from Washington, St. Louis, minus Sisler, won but one of the four games from the Tigers and lost again today to the White Sox.

McGraw's Giants won four of five games from the Braves and shut out Brooklyn in the first two games of their series. The Giant offensive appeared the heaviest in either league. The Cubs, after losing the season's opening game to the Pirates, have won five straight, three from Pittsburgh and two from the Cardinals.

Including today's games the National league batsmen have collected 30 home runs, 12 of this number being credited to the Cubs. Fifteen home runs have been made in the American league.

Attendance records at all parks have been high, especially at the new Yankee stadium where more than 70,000 fans gathered for the opening game. The Saturday crowd was estimated at close to 50,000 and more than 60,000 saw the Yankees lose their first game today.

GIANTS BLANK DODGERS FOR THE SECOND TIME

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 22—New York shut out Brooklyn for the second consecutive time today, 10 to 0. The Dodgers have now gone 19 innings without scoring a run. The Giants pounded Grimes for ten hits and seven runs and Smith for five hits and three runs, while the Dodgers were piling up errors. Frisch made four hits and Stengel three. The latter's drives including a home run over the right field wall. Of Brooklyn's nine hits off Scott, Schliebner made three. The score:

New York (N) Brooklyn (N)

SQUEEZE PLAY IN EIGHTH WINS FOR CHICAGO

St. Louis April 22—A squeeze play in the eighth inning enabled Chicago to win its first game of the season by defeating St. Louis, 4 to 2. Here this afternoon. The contest was a pitchers' battle between T. Blankenship and Cvengros and Shocker. Blankenship was relieved in the fifth by Cvengros after the Browns scored three runs. Third baseman Kamm of the White Sox featured at the bat with two singles which counted in the scoring. The score:

OXFORD TRACKERS WORK OUT AT FRANKLIN FIELD

Philadelphia, April 22—Members of the Oxford University track team worked off their sea legs today at Franklin field where, next Friday and Saturday they will compete, against the pick of American college runners at the Pennsylvania relay carnival. The English runners, Captain W. R. Milligan, L. R. Miller, E. P. Hewetson, C. B. E. Morgan and G. R. Renwick, arrived yesterday. With W. E. Stevenson, also a member of the Oxford team who has been training at Princeton several weeks, they took advantage of the spring weather today, spending several hours on the cinder path of Pennsylvania's new stadium. Captain Milligan said his men were in fine condition. They are entered in the distance medley relay and the two mile individual races on Friday and the two mile relay event on Saturday.

JOHNSON AND FULTON READY FOR TONIGHT'S BOUT

New York, April 22.—On the eve of the battle between Floyd Johnson of Iowa and Fred Fulton of Minneapolis both men were said tonight to be in excellent condition to step into the Arena A. C. ring in the Fourth Regiment armory of Jersey City tomorrow to decide which of the two shall take the road which leads to Dempsey.

Experts, most of whom favor the Iowan boy to win with no great difficulty, declared today that it will be a matter of Fred Fulton's highly effective left against Floyd's youthful whirlwind attack.

If the cyclone gets to Fulton before his southpaw finds a vulnerable spot in Johnson's anatomy, Floyd will be safely on Dempsey avenue via the bout with Jess Willard at the Mink Fund show, Yankee stadium, May 12, the critics explained. If not, there will be weeping and wailing in the Iowan's camp and a deal from the Minneapolis plasterer for a return bout with the world's champion.

Floyd and Fred are scheduled to go 12 rounds tomorrow night.

THREE CUSHION BILLIARD TOURNEY IS POSTPONED

Milwaukee, April 22—The world's championship three-cushion billiard tournament scheduled to begin in Philadelphia Monday, has been postponed until next fall, according to an announcement made last night by John Scanlon of Milwaukee, secretary of the Interstate league. Johnny Layton of St. Louis; Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia; Clarence Jackson of Detroit and Bob Cannefax, of New York, are the four players entered. Illness of Cannefax brought about the postponement.

THINK MISSING MAN DROWNED IN LAKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, April 22.—An overturned canoe and the fact that Benjamin Kershaw was missing from his cottage at Alexander's lake Sunday evening seemed to indicate that he may have lost his life while paddling about on that body of water during Sunday.

Mr. Kershaw is about 55 years of age and was a busy machinist at the Nightingale-Moss mills in Putnam where he was formerly an instructor in the state trade school. The fact that Mr. Kershaw was missing was discovered shortly after 5 o'clock Sunday evening when Mrs. Kershaw who is employed at the Colonial restaurant in Putnam returned from her day's work and for the first time since she and her husband took a cottage at the lake a little more than a week ago he failed to meet her at the trolley line.

This caused her some uneasiness which condition was greatly magnified when she reached the cottage in a secluded section on the north shore of the lake and found it deserted. Things were just as she had left them upon leaving for work Sunday morning but the canoe was missing. Calling to her aid James Warren, Albert Warren, John Lyons and Daniel Webster, youths who happened to be in the vicinity, search of the shores of the lake was at once begun and the canoe partly filled with water and with both paddles aboard was found on the east shore of the lake near the Back's cottage site. Searchers covered all the territory around the lake during the next three hours but found no trace of the missing man.

Before she left for work Sunday morning Mrs. Kershaw and her husband went for a ride in the canoe. She was quite expert in handling one but Mr. Kershaw is said to have not been very familiar with their use. He has said to have promised her not to go out alone with the little vessel and made her go along without stopping to wash the breakfast dishes, the task he promised to perform.

Upon Mrs. Kershaw's return Sunday evening the dishes were where they had been left. Mr. Kershaw's coat and hat was there and the cottage was unlocked. Since Mrs. Kershaw left her husband no one saw him as far as could be learned Sunday evening.

Ralph Tarcy who lives near the Putnam line saw the overturned canoe but did not recognize it as such while he was walking about the shores of the lake Sunday afternoon. Darkness handicapped those who searched Sunday night but Monday morning the search will be renewed, the state police assisting to determine, if possible, Mr. Kershaw's fate.

"VENICE" IS OPENED UNDER OWN MANAGEMENT

Saturday evening marked the opening of Venice under its own management. The hall was attractively decorated with bunting and the lighting effect was beautiful, to say the least. Venice is without doubt the most modern dance hall in the city. It has a spring floor and surrounding the north side is a large veranda overlooking the Yantic river. The weather conditions were ideal and those who did not wish to dance, sat on the veranda, partook of refreshments, and enjoyed the fine music.

When interviewed by a reporter regarding the policy to be carried out at Venice during the season, Manager Herb Smith made the following statement: "Venice is a wonderful spot. It has everything a summer dance pavilion requires, and is equipped so that it can be turned into a beautiful ball room at a moment's notice, to contend with inclement weather, so that it can be run during the winter months as well. I will run dances Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights each week. Other nights the hall is for rent. I am going to run Venice so that it's reputation will be spotless. I would rather have fifty couple composed of self-respecting patrons and those who wish to conform with the rules of my hall, than to have five hundred couple who would be liable to ruin its reputation."

The music for dancing is of the same high standard that Herb Smith's orchestra has always known. It may be safely said that Herb Smith's Venetian orchestra is second to none in eastern Connecticut if not the state.

"A BAD DAY FOR LOCAL TEAMS"

ASKS $25,000 FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Miss Fanny Taylor of Waterford has brought a breach of promise suit against Louis Markow, proprietor of the Woman's Apparel Shop of New London. She asks damages of $25,000.

Miss Taylor claims that on Dec. 7, 1921, she promised to marry Markow at his request, and is ready and willing to marry him now. The defendant refuses, however, although she requested him to marry her on March 9, 1923. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant promised to marry her after a reasonable length of time and that she has waited a reasonable length of time.

Papers in the suit are returnable before the superior court the first Tuesday in May.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, April 21.—Reactionary tendencies characterized this week's financial and commodity markets. Despite additional reports of record breaking construction and March cotton consumption, there was a noticeable slackening of demand in certain basic industries and a relaxing price tendency.

Crude Oil, gasoline, coffee, rubber, lead and copper prices were shaded during the week. Sugar prices broke sharply on the announcement of the government's suit to prevent speculation in raw sugar futures, but there made good recovery later on additional reports of a crop shortage.

Money rates continued relatively easy with call loans dropping as low as 4 per cent. Towards the end of the week and more time money available at 5 1-4 per cent. for the short maturities. Bankers were still holding out for 5 1-2 per cent for the longer dates.

One of the most significant developments of the week was the increased foreign demand for stocks and bonds. The recently announced reduction of British taxes is believed to have given impetus to foreign buying.

FOREST PROTECTION WEEK.

While there is an effort to respond to the presidential proclamation in the next several days as Forest Protection week is observed the number of grass and brush fires which have occurred within the month will be sufficient to emphasize the cooperation which State Forester Hawes declares should be given by the land owners and others in the burning of brush and rubbish.

Stop and consider that the record for the past 13 years shows the burning of 2.7 per cent of the forest area each year and you must realize that it means the burning of the entire forest area of the state in a little more than a generation. Such a condition in a state which is in need of increased woodland production makes it evident that in spite of the preventive work that is being done, and the improvement in the facilities for detecting and fighting forest fires, there is decided need for the cooperation that is advocated.

Forest protection is important. It isn't the only enemy but it is one against which much greater opposition needs to be shown. The effort that is required is slight when it comes to the matter of prevention. It may be easier for some people to be careless than it is to be careful, but the substitution of the latter for the former is far easier than fighting fires which extend over acres or standing the loss that results from such destruction.

With greater thought directed to curbing forest fires, more efficient means of fighting them and increased attention devoted to the work of reforestation there will be protection of a double type; it will mean the better preservation of that which is already possessed and it will insure an increased production in the future in a state where millions are now paid solely in transportation charges for bringing lumber into the state from elsewhere.

If you haven't given much thought to the matter of forest preservation it would be a grand good idea to make a start during Forest Protection week.

HOME GARDENING.

If you are a home gardener it is probable that you have already gotten your plot into shape for the 1923 season. For those who haven't, a backward season is certain to mean the utilization of all the spare time from now on.

Home gardeners are not as numerous as during the days of the war when it became apparent that it was necessary for everyone to do something to increase production against the shortage of farm help. It was work into which many entered with enthusiasm which was self consuming until the weeds and yields began to offer discouragements. There were benefits, however, which extended far beyond the potatoes, turnips, corn, beans, peas and other garden truck that was obtained. It brought many into touch with exercise which may have seemed for the time being to be backbreaking, but which was nevertheless highly beneficial from a health standpoint.

That there has been backsliding is probable. The number of those who will cultivate small gardens the coming summer will be much smaller than that army of enthusiasts who put under cultivation all the vacant land nearby home and at more distant points a few years ago.

There are those, nevertheless, who not only appreciate the benefits of having sufficient garden truck available for the table throughout the spring and summer months but who look upon the garden as a highly desirable opportunity for making use of what would otherwise be waste time. This class is not affected by the gardening fad. It is part of their daily efforts, and they do much thereby to keep down the cost of living and much to promote physical well-being.

These home gardeners are getting busy. They are getting their plot ready to plow if it hasn't already been done. Probably they've had their early peas in for a week or two, while their hotbeds are showing some interesting early lettuce and there is to be seen under glass the seed boxes that will soon be filled with the plants for transplanting.

The home garden fever of war days may be over, but there's the class of home gardeners who may by no means be considered faddists. They understand the game thoroughly and they can produce results.

THE NEAR EAST REFUGEES.

So far no action has been taken relative to the disposition of the refugee problem in the near east, which was recently called to the attention of the powers by this government when it let it be known that it was desirous of helping but that it could no longer continue to pour funds in that direction until something definite is established in the way of a permanent adjustment. The situation at present is such that no more than a temporary benefit is being provided, and nothing better can be expected until a solution is definitely decided upon and undertaken.

What that solution will be rests with the future. Colonel Haskell, at the head of the American relief work in Russia and the near east, is of the opinion that the half million of Greek refugees should be encouraged to take up with the offer of Russia. By that they along with the Armenians would be given land to cultivate in Russia, permitted to set up their own government, although it would be expected to conform to the soviet, and no expense would be attached except the cost of transporting them to that designated region. Just how heavy a burden would be placed upon them in the way of taxation or restriction of religious freedom hasn't been disclosed.

If these people are to be sent into Russia to be subject to taxation from Moscow careful attention will have to be given to the situation. What would naturally be turned in their direction in the way of financial assistance for the relief of afflicted humanity would be larger if they are to get the full benefit of it than it would be if the greater part of it, directly or indirectly, is to be taken from them for the support of the soviet government.

SELLING THE FORTS.

Once again the government is announcing the willingness to dispose of certain of its old forts and that they will be put up at auction. Within a year or two there were Connecticut forts included in such a list, but it appears to have been a mistake to have included Fort Griswold, which long since was given to the state and is being maintained by it, and since that time the old fort at Lighthouse Point near New Haven has been turned over for reservation purposes.

There are those states which can be expected to raise an objection to the sale of obsolete forts which hold a conspicuous place in the history of the state. It is not the purpose of the state to antagonize such feeling. The aim is to get rid of a lot of such property that is not now and is not likely to be of any further benefit to the government for purposes of defense.

What means the ending of expense on the part of the government for the maintenance cost will be regarded by the states as an opportunity to acquire the property for park or reservation purposes. There are some that will probably arouse no concern. The mere mention of others will be sufficient to cause a storm of indignation to think of having such property utilized for any other purpose than a show place closely connected with history.

That the government thoroughly understands this is shown by the fact that it has provided that states may acquire such sites at the appraisal figures, and the same opportunity is likewise offered to patriotic organizations. Safe to say no historic spots are likely to go under the hammer under those conditions.

"NEVER AGAIN."

When "Big Bill" Haywood sent to this country that alluring offer to certain of his radical followers to become interested in mining activities in Russia on certain grants which had been made to him by the soviet government, there were those who were favorably impressed. They were quick to see their chance to get something out of sovietism, and it was realized that it was an excellent opportunity for them to become acquainted with the real conditions existing there.

It meant a chance for them to have their deas regarding the soviet government and Russia under it strengthened or to become disillusioned. The proof of the pudding is the tasting.

After having experienced some months in that wonderful land reports have come back that they were dissatisfied and anxious to return. One of the score that has actually come back is talking, and if we are to judge by the statements he is making he has come back cured. He has tasted of the delights of soviet government conditions and he says "never again" in a manner which would convince one that he means it.

It was necessary for him to go to Russia to get his eyes opened but that is what he has done, and now Thomas B. Doyle of Louisiana is vigorously denouncing all forms of radicalism. His advice is being offered for the guidance of others and well may those, who have been inclined to take the same view that he formerly did, accept the advice of one who has gone through the mill. His eyesight for straight thinking has been improved.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Unless spring looks to its job it will be crowded out by summer.

Before very long horseradish ought to be helping to pep things up.

The man on the corner says: Students of the tabulated scores are now right in their glory.

Let us hope Henry Ford hasn't been telling of his wealth as the basis for boosting prices.

What the canners would like to know is whether the price of sugar is going to drop before they begin to get busy.

That clown who has inherited oil lands valued at a million and still sticks to his job probably regards oil as a joke.

Those who are complaining of the cold weather will not envy Capt. Amundsen in his attempted flight over the North pole.

That middlewest citizen who declares he drank acid by mistake should be careful. Next time he might get hold of some moonshine.

There need be no alarm over a light snow in April. It is the snow storms when peach trees are in bloom in May that unnerves the fruit raisers.

When the Turkish premier speaks in reference to the Chester concessions he says he expects it will bring Turkey a square deal from the United States. Perhaps that will set some of the other countries to thinking.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Rice pudding sweetened with brown sugar has a rich flavor.

In making a white cake substitute two egg whites for a yolk.

A delicious maitre d'hotel sauce is made by adding to one teacupful butter, the juice of one small lemon, chopped parsley, minced onions, thyme and cayenne.

A thermometer that hangs inside a room and tells not only the temperature of the room inside, but of outdoors as well, is a great convenience.

The kitchen clock loses none of its utilitarian qualities if everything but its face is concealed by a stand of cardboard painted in gay colors and attractive designs.

The continual ripping off of buttons by the clothes wringer can be prevented by folding the button inside the garment and holding it flat as you run it through the wringer.

When cutting marshmallows, dip the knife in hot water and they will not stick to the blade or the fingers.

If you do not salt eggs while they are frying the yellows will stand round and firm and the whites will be soft and tender. Season after frying.

When about to cut a pie with meringue on it, wet the blade of knife, and the result will be a good clean cut.

When opening canned asparagus lay can on its side in the sink, open the can a quarter of an inch from the top and let the brine drain away. By this method the heads are preserved intact.

A teaspoon of vinegar added to the cake icing while it is cooking prevents it from becoming too sugary.

Remember that fresh meat should be put in boiling water; salt meat into cold.

A cup of water placed in the oven is said to make cakes, cookies or roasts bake more evenly.

To keep the yolks of eggs fresh for several days, cover them gently with cold water, taking care not to break them.

To insure olive oil from becoming rancid after the bottle or can has been opened, put in two lumps, to a quart, of loaf sugar.

TABLE KITCHENETTE.

The day was when the housekeeper thought she was doing pretty well when, with the aid of a complement of electric appliances, she was able to conceal her kitchen on a closet shelf.

But now she does not even have a closet in which to keep her kitchen.

A library table has been evolved which serves in turn as kitchenette buffet, cupboard and table. Between times it is just a handsome piece of mahogany graced by a rack of books, a pile of magazines and a reading lamp. When dinner time approaches, its top turns back and reveals a completely equipped kitchenette with electric appliances.

KILLS THE ODOR.

Frying pans in which fish or onions have been cooked sometimes retain a very objectionable odor. To get rid of this put vinegar in the pan and heat to the boiling point. Then wash the dish in soap and water.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Ridges in fingernails can be filed down by using pumice stone. This treatment need not be repeated more than once in a few months. As the new nail grows in new ridges will appear, and when these seem prominent they can be filed down also. As a matter of fact, keeping the nails well fed with oil will do much to prevent ridges.

Complexions will benefit enormously from a cold cream pack. This is not a difficult treatment but it is a tedious one, to be given strictly in the privacy of one's room with no possibility of an unsympathetic family coming in to jeer.

Hair nets come cheaply enough for anyone to be able to afford them. It takes a little time and skill to learn to adjust them, and if the color is carefully chosen (and they come in every possible shade) there is no reason why they should be noticeable.

Good care of the eyes and frequent bathing with an eyecup is also good for the lashes, but if the lashes are not long or thick enough, rub over them gently at night with the finger dipped in olive oil if you want length, and castor oil if you want length and dark color. Don't worry if the lashes fall now and then, one or two a day will do no harm. Cutting them back occasionally makes them stronger and thicker, and should come first in any process of beautifying.

SAVES YOUR HANDS.

If one dislikes washing dishes or scrubbing vegetables "by hand" she can keep her hands out of the water by using brushes designed to do this work. A pastry brush will grease pans and baking dishes in less time than it takes to mention it, but such a brush must be frequently boiled to keep it from becoming rancid. Well-made brushes with soft bristles cannot harm floor, woodwork, or furniture, and they get into the corners and hard-to-reach places and take the dust away with them. Such brushes are made with long handles that protect the hands and save the back; they are equally usable in kitchen, living room, or on the porch.

ATTRACTIVE LAMPS.

Every lamp should be not only inviting but decorative, for it is usually the first thing one notices when entering a room, especially if it's lighted. Both shade and pedestal should be as much a part of the room itself as rugs or hanging, and it should not show harmonious coloring in the daylight, only to become inharmonious when the glow of the light shows through it. Whether it be a floor lamp of polychrome, wrought metal or mahogany; a table lamp of bronze or pottery; a clever little boudoir lamp with a fanciful shade and even more fanciful pedestal, or a decorative lantern or torchiere one's final decision may have an all-abiding excellence if it is made with due regard to its setting as well as its usefulness.

WAX SPOTS.

If drops of wax drip from the candles onto the rug or table-cover place a piece of blotting paper over the spot and on that lay a warm iron for a few seconds. If the spot is not entirely removed sprinkle it with French chalk before putting on the blotter and try again.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The jockey jacket is a successor to the jockey cap worn last summer. The new garment is sleeveless, of bright colors and serves as waistcoat under a coat.

A tight fitting sweater that looks like a bodice has come into fashion. Women do not relegate it to sports. It is worn on the street with a separate skirt under a jacket.

Brightly printed cretonne swirls into fashion again on the crest of the wave with figured silks and cottons. It is used for sport apparel in a lavish manner from hats to skirt hems.

There is evidence that green will be a leading color for the springtime. It appears in whatever garment clothes makers manufacture. Green shoes have become a commonplace in Florida and in shop windows.

One piece frocks of woolen repp take the place of the annual output of serge. They are treated in a fanciful way with lace and embroidery, but retain a slim silhouette.

Short sleeves and full skirts make their appearance in new springtime clothes, and long bodices can be chosen by those who do not care for the new emphasis on the normal waist line.

Crepe embroidered in a blue and white design fashions an afternoon dress edged at neck and down one side with plain navy crepe and with odd sleeves cut open on top. A sash of crushed plain crepe is fastened on one side with a curious buckle.

An all over embroidery frock in navy blue has figures in blue, yellow, orange and red, with motifs in black embroidery separating the other designs. The sleeves are very short, the lines are perfectly straight and the sash and sleeve bindings are of narrow moire ribbon.

RIBBON UMBRELLA STRAP.

Grosgrain ribbon forms a most serviceable strap for the umbrella handle. It may be used to replace worn or stained leather straps and make the umbrella look as good as new.

China beads, grass beads, beads of every description are appearing in the cabachons, cockades, fans and other trimmings made of ribbon. An effective brown cockade, the center of which is a large, red square button surrounded by a circle of shirred one-half-inch moire ribbon, is made with the bead combination. The ribbon is surrounded by an edge of red beads matching the button in color, and sewn in the space between the upper edge of the first row and the lower edge of the second row. This arrangement alternates until the desired size cockade was obtained. The edge was of the ribbon itself.

BY MEANS OF RIBBON.

The ribbon girl has a trick dress. She can make it into three. She has two ribbon sashes—one a crushed bow effect, the other a soft, meshy silk ribbon that ties twice, once on each hip and then the two ends extend way below the skirt—and still another without a sash, but a silk bandanna neckerchief made of roman stripe heavy ribbon. This last has a dressy effect and still the easy carelessness of the Deauville scarf.

And she also has a hat that she can wear three ways. Ribbon streamers swapped in front and back make a beautiful French chapeau. A tight ribbon band of Roman stripe makes a sport hat of charming simplicity. And a third, a rosette of crushed ribbon snapped on to her hat, fit her for afternoon and street wear.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Cut up two or three pieces of paraffin saved from jelly jars. Put this in the wash boiler before boiling clothes and you will be surprised at the whiteness of the clothes.

Use a clothes-pin bag that ties around your waist. In this put a hot-water bag on a cold day along with your clothes pins, and both you and the pins keep warm until all the clothes are hung on the line.

In hanging out clothes in cold weather, add a little salt to the rinsing water and the clothes will not freeze to the line.

Add a little borax to the water in which the kitchen towels are washed. It removes the dirt and grease, makes them a good color and acts as a disinfectant.

Take an article which has been scorched by a hot flatiron and hang it in the sun and you will find the scorch will disappear.

NEEDLEPOINT VOGUE.

All eyes in the art embroidery world are turning to needlepoint embroidery. The coarse linen canvases are imported from France. In the first place, artists go to the art galleries and copy the woodland scenery on canvas. In the homes these canvases are stretched on frames. The fine features and heads of animals or people are embroidered in soft-colored silks in petit point. Trees, leaves and background are partially worked in gros point in Aubusson wools. The American woman fills in the background in wools to match.

Fire screens make attractive pieces around the department. Fire bench covers, chair backs, chair seats and pillow tops are among the other favorite pieces.

Many children are taught to do this gros point embroidery. Their mothers or grandmothers buy the tiny six-inch square pieces of canvas on which a flower spray or a dog is painted. The child takes the blunt-pointed needle and learns to put the stitch "up, over and down." These pieces are either framed for wall decorations or mounted as pin cushions—Dry Goods Economist.

RIBBON DOLL SUCCESSOR TO OLD-FASHIONED RAG

The ribbon doll is the successor to the old-fashioned and dearly beloved rag doll of earlier days, and like the rag doll may be made at home.

On folded pink flesh, champagne or ivory satin ribbon draw the outline of a doll. The narrowest baby ribbon obtainable should be used for the hair; it may be yellow, brown, black or red. Sew it tackily over the head with bangs in front. Wrap pink or blue ribbon around the waist, making a large rosette in both front and back, treminating in streamers that hang to the knees. With a bit of ribbon outline the slippers and the top of the socks. If the hair is bobbed put a wide ribbon hat on the doll; if long, just a large bow on top. Now place a string of beads about her neck and give her a place of honor among the kewpies, the cuties and the bathing girls.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

By recent legislative enactment women have been admitted to the practice of medicine in India.

Miss Adelaide Gehrig, New York stenographer, has won the national fencing championship of her sex.

The first piece of cotton cloth made in America was presented to the wife of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, who had a dress made of it.

The first woman city manager in the United States is Mrs. R. E. Barrett, who has been chosen to fill that position in Warrenton, Ore.

Amendments to the British North America act, Canada's constitution, to permit of the appointment of women to the Canadian senate are urged in resolutions passed by the Council of Women in Victoria, B. C.

CLEAN PIANO KEYS.

Piano keys may be kept beautifully white by bathing them with a soft cloth dipped in alcohol, and wiping dry with a clean cloth. Don't let the alcohol come in contact with the wood or it will remove varnish.

PREVENTS SLIPPING.

To prevent a plate from slipping when you set it on a cake of ice in the refrigerator place an orange fruit jar under the plate.

RECIPES.

Cereal Pudding: One cup of any cold, cooked cereal, three cups of scalded sweet milk, one egg, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon of vanilla. Scald the milk. Mix the sugar, egg, salt and cereal together, then add the hot milk. Flavor with the vanilla. (raisins, chopped figs, stoned dates or any cooked fruit may also be added if desired) and turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish. Set the dish in a pan of hot water and place all into a moderate oven to bake until "set," or firm, in the middle. Serve hot.

Sweet Potato Custard Meringue Pie: Line a pie tin with pastry. Fill with the following mixture: 1-2 to 2 cups mashed sweet potato; 1 cup sweet milk; 2 eggs; 2 tablespoons butter; 1-2 cup sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Leave out the egg whites for the meringue. Beat the yolks of the eggs into the cooked and mashed potatoes, add the melted butter and the other ingredients, pour into the pastry and bake in a moderate oven until the custard is set. Add a pinch of salt to the whites, beat until dry, add 2 tablespoons of sugar. Mix well. Spread over top of pie and put into a very moderate oven until it is a delicate brown. A very light delicate custard may be had if the potatoes are rubbed through a sieve or strainer or put through a ricer. One-fourth cup of cocoanut may be added to the filling, or spices may be used instead of lemon. Nutmeg and cinnamon are especially good flavoring for sweet potatoes. Orange peel, dried and powdered, is another good flavoring.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What Connecticut Has Done.

Mr. Editor: Does the Connecticut legislature realize what it has done? It has passed one of the most forward acts in the history of the state. Its action means that Connecticut will pass out of the malaria belt. It means that the beautiful state of Connecticut heretofore known as a mosquito breeder, can now say to the great and wealthy west and to the rich and prosperous Middle states, "Come here to the most beautiful state in New England. Come here and build your summer homes. Come here and erect your permanent dwellings.

"It is almost suburban to New York. Come here from the metropolis and see one of the wildest of states. We can show you more wilderness just off our state roads than you can see in forty-eight hours' ride by train from Chicago to Denver.

"Our state not only has great wealth but greater beauty in its old villages, towns and cities, than have these others.

"Come to our valleys—the Housatonic, the Naugatuck, the Thames and the Connecticut. There countless glories await you. The Connecticut river has eighty miles of river front, villages with navigable water from Hartford to Saybrook into the Sound.

"Come to our shores—more than eighty-five miles of frontage on Long Island sound. No body of water anywhere offers so many attractions for sailing. Think of nature's beautiful harbors on the Connecticut and Long Island shores, the rivers, the inlets and the fish and game they contain—the pleasure, the health, and the fun.

"Come to the state to which nature has been most kind, with its wilderness of forest on its mountains and hills, its beautiful valleys and its health giving shores, its historic civilization, its colleges and schools.

"Come to its good roads, which invite you to astonishing variety of business activity and commercial enterprise in the midst of all this beauty and repose."

All this and much more, Connecticut may now say to the world.

When the governor signed the anti-mosquito bill in giving authority to the agricultural experiment station, "the mosquito must go," it said to the world, "Come."

And come it will. It means that before many years the addition of millions upon millions of added values to the state's grand list.

If the state now backs up its legislation, untold wealth, heretofore holding off because of the pest and dangers of the ruinous mosquito will come to it in volumes now scarcely believable.

All honor to Connecticut, farewell to malaria.

Stories That Recall Others

New Lunch Order.

In a filling station for hungry people—commonly known as a restaurant—a new order was heard.

"Give me some gas and a couple of tires," sang out a young man.

Doughnuts and coffee were served him.

Illustrated Injury.

Mr. Seven-year-old, one of those youthful live wires that are a menace to motor traffic every hour of the day, had been knocked down by an automobile. He had one of the thrilling escapes you read about in the paper—got away with a few scratches. The motorist got away with a wrecked machine in his wide swerving to avoid the youngster.

The slightly injured party was telling his playmates about the accident. He was the hero of the hour, of course.

"You see," he said, "I was jumping back and forth from the curb and the guy he was too fast and that was the trouble. Come out here—I'll show you just how I was going when the next auto comes along."

Then he started for the street, followed by his admirers. And just then and overly-concerned mother made herself unpopular in the neighborhood.

Wives of Famous Men

Anne Nevill, Wife of Richard III

Anne Nevill, wife of Richard III of England, was the victim of his fiendish machinations. Like so many men of evil character, Richard, withal he was ugly and deformed, was possessed of a weird fascination.

Anne, though extremely young at the time Richard decided to make her his wife, was married to his cousin Edward, a son of King Henry V. The youthful husband was killed by Richard in battle.

After her husband's death, Anne was courted ardently by Richard. He was, according to historians, a phrase maker of no mean ability when it came to expatiating upon the frailties of women. And Anne, although at first she spurned him and scorned his advances, was eventually won by his silver tongue.

At the time of their marriage Richard was Duke of Gloucester, not yet having attained the throne. The ceremony was performed in Westminster Abbey and they went to live in Middleham, one of the most beautiful sections of Gloucester. They remained there for 10 years and had one child.

Upon the sudden and mysterious death of Anne, Richard was apparently heartbroken. Yet there is much evidence that points to the accusation that he poisoned her. But this much is certain, whether her life with him was happy or otherwise, she adored him with a concentration born only of his fascinating wickedness.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Frederick Crauford Goodenough, who is to be the leading speaker at the meeting of the executive council of the American Bankers' association, opening today at Rye, N. Y., is generally regarded as one of the highest authorities on the present financial and industrial situation in Europe. Mr. Goodenough is chairman of Barclay's Bank, Ltd., one of the "big five" of British banking which has more than 1,400 branches in England and Wales and affiliated auxiliary companies operating in many countires. Barclay's Bank, Ltd., dates back over a century and was originally a private bank. Its development into one of the world's largest financial institutions is largely due to Mr. Goodenough, who became general manager of the bank in 1902, a director ten years later, and supreme head of the institution in 1917. He is chairman of the committee of London clearing house bankers and also president of the British Bankers' association.

WHEN EVERYBODY IS "CATCHING A COLD"

Is The Time To Take WINCARNIS

"I feel that I owe you a debt of gratitude for what your wonderful Wincarnis has done for me and other members of my family. We first learned of Wincarnis when we resided in England. It gave us so much satisfaction that we all used it whenever we felt the need of a tonic, as when influenza was rampant or when every body was "catching a cold."

We have continued to use Wincarnis since our arrival in this country, and we have recommended it to a number of our friends here. All of these friends are now singing the praise of your excellent preparation.

It is really surprising how quickly one regains weight and strength and recovers from nervousness when Wincarnis is taken after an attack of influenza or a very severe cold."

HOW TO SLEEP 3-IN-A-BED

YES, it CAN be done—but not like this.

The trouble is, most people go to bed with "something" on the mind—or ON THE STOMACH!

The answer is, no matter what the day has brought forth to upset your mind and digestive organs, take Beecham's Pills when you retire.

Though in no sense a "sleeping potion," this 80-years-famous household medicine so harmonizes the system that you can sleep in quiet and perfect rest, even in two feet of bed space.

Beecham's Pills are as efficient and harmless for children as for adults—sweetening the stomach, invigorating digestion and stirring liver and bowels to natural activity.

LEFT R. F. D. CARRIER LOCKED IN POSTOFFICE

Jewett City, April 22.—The regular closing hour for the Jewett City postoffice is 7.30 p. m. Friday evening Postmaster D. F. Flinn went home a little earlier, leaving Assistant Postmaster William T. Crumb and Clerk Thomas Barnett to make up and despatch the evening mail and, after the last business of the day, to close the office.

Mr. Crumb went out a minute or two before closing time. Meanwhile William Watson, the R. F. D. man, came in and went to his desk in the rear of the mailing room and was busy in connection with some matters concerning Saturday's heavy delivery.

The hour of 7.30 having arrived, Thomas turned on the night light switch, put out the office cat, put the night letter catcher basket in position, shut the telephone booth door, went out, locked the door behind him, and went home for the night.

Somewhat later "Big Bill" Watson became aware that things were unusually quiet and that the hour was late. Investigating, he found the door locked, everybody gone and the streets deserted. Bill went to the front of the lobby and, standing in the shadow, finally spotted Night Policeman Henry Veigardo on his regular beat.

A tap on the big plate glass window attracted the officer's attention to the postoffice. Although he had visions of a possible robbery, Henry is fearless and, seeing a dark form within, crouched down under the stamp window, he went over to investigate.

Peering guardedly in through the main door, he caught the hoarsely whispered words:

"Get the keys of Barnett, Henry, if you love me, and let me out of here."

The story, as far as this relation is concerned, is done, but it is understood in postoffice circles that a fitting not to say touching sequel is to follow at an early date.

Winners at Bridge and "45".

The winners at the bridge contest and "45" tournament held at St. Mary's Memorial hall last Friday evening have been announced as follows:

Bridge—First ladies, Mrs. Henry D. Buckley, embroidered towel; second ladies, Miss Nora Hartie, pottery vase; first gentlemen's, Fred Healy, silk stockings; second gentlemen's, Joseph E. O'Sullivan, black silk stockings; third gentlemen's, James Purdon, box of cigars.

"45"—Patrick J. Sullivan, silk stockings. There were three tied for first prize and Mr. Sullivan won in the final decision.

Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor, thanks all of the masses on Sunday for the auspicious opening of the new parish hall.

PRINTERS AND ENGRAVERS OF U. S. F. HOLD BANQUET

A cordial fraternal spirit ruled Saturday night at the first annual banquet of the Printers and Engravers' Association of the United States Finishing Co., which was held at the Wauregan house with covers laid for 50. Resident Manager John F. Rogers and Assistant Manager William H. Collins of the Norwich branch of the company, with James E. Murrey of Providence, Foreman Samuel E. Smiley and Assistant Foreman William B. Means of the printing department were the guests of the association and were speakers during the evening.

They spoke generally of the admirable record the engravers and printers had made in the past year and one of the predictions that won enthusiastic applause was that the Norwich branch was on its way to being the best print works in the country.

The following excellent menu was served:

Grape Fruit Cocktail

Celery	Olives
Radishes
Roast Native Milk-Fed Chicken
Cranberry Sauce	Rissole Potatoes
Early June Peas	French Bread
Neapolitan Ice Cream	Petit Fours
Cafe Noir	Cigars

Pink carnation boutonniers were at each place and music was furnished by the All Stars orchestra which was given a rising vote of thanks for contributing its services.

George A. Turner as song leader kept the men singing when they were not disposing of one of the courses and everyone co-operated heartily in this part of the enjoyable evening.

The following program was enjoyed after the banquet: Reading, A Printer's Dream, John M. MacDougall; The Problem, How We Tackled It, James E. Murray; tenor solo, Anchored (Watson), George A. Turner; The Problem, Working It Out, Samuel E. Smiley, toastmaster; The Problem, Helping to Solve It, William B. Means; The Problem, From a Point of View, William H. Collins; tenor solo, The Heart of a Soldier, George A. Turner; The Problem, After One Year, John F. Rogers; America.

The banqueters passed an enthusiastic rising vote of thanks to the five speakers, on motion of Mr. Turner, for their consideration, encouragement and patience in the past year.

The committee of arrangements which made such a success of the gathering was Frank C. Gosling, chairman; George A. Turner, secretary-treasurer; John Peterson, Louis S. Brinkman, John W. Wainwright. The orchestra members were Max Heinrich, pianist; John Exstein, cornet; Adolph Heinrich, cralinet; Albwin Kamps, violin; George Humboldt, cello.

Those present included the following:

Printers: Samuel E. Smiley, foreman; William R. Means, assistant foreman. Machinemen: Joseph A. Bruso, 2 Merton E. Parkhurst, 3 John Peterson, 4 Frank C. Gelino, 5 Albert R. Johnson, 66 Harold L. Ahlberg, 16 William H. Disco, Max Heinrich, Joseph Clark, Bruce Rogers, Joseph P. Brown; Jeremiah Bowen, Jackman.

Engravers: John M. MacDougall, foreman; John W. Wainwright, J. Templeton, F. S. McHugh, W. R. MacDougall, C. F. Kelly, James Purdon, Jr., T. H. Devlin, Jr., J. M. Buchanan, E. J. Caron, William C. Semple, Jr., A. W. Olson, A. R. Taffee.

FUNERALS.

Richard M. Coit.

Funeral services for Richard M. Coit were held Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the funeral parlors of C. A. Gager, relatives and friends attending from Bridgeport, Norwich and other places. Among the many beautiful floral pieces was one marked "Husband." The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Burial was in Yantic cemetery where Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted a commital service. Relatives acted as bearers.

Wilfred Lacombe.

Funeral services for Wilfred Lacombe were held Saturday morning from his late home at 9 Hill street, relatives and friends attending from North Attleboro. Mass., Toronto, Canada, and other places. There were many floral tributes. Solemn high requiem mass was celebrated at St Mary's Memorial church with Rev. Father Janien of the Bishops church, Toronto, Canada, a brother-in-law of Mr. Lacombe, celebrant, Rev. William A. Keefe, deacon, and Rev. Frederick M. Cobolan, sub-deacon. Henry J. LaFontaine was in charge of the music during the service and hymns were rendered at the close of the mass and when the body was taken from the church.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was read by Father Janien and Father Keefe. The bearers were Joseph, John and Edzar Lacombe, brothers, and Peter Lachance, Alfred Fontaine and Wilfred Lariviere.

Cummings & Ring were in charge.

Mr. Lacombe died late Friday night at his home of chronic heart trouble. He was born in Canada 43 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Lacombe. In business he was an electrical salesman. For many years he had resided in North Attleboro, Mass., but had made his home in Norwich for four years.

He is survived by his wife, three brothers, four sisters, and five children, Arvine, Peter, Arline, Lena and Blanche Lacombe.

Mr. Lacombe was an ideal husband and father and had made many friends while in this city.

Mrs. Andrew Hillman

Prayers were held Saturday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock for Mrs. Andrew Hillman at the late home at 8 Quarry street followed at 2.30 o'clock with a public service in the A. M. E. Zion church, Rev. Dixon Brown, pastor, and Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church officiating. During the service the choir rendered several hymns. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery where Rev. Mr. Brown conducted a committal service. Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Mrs. Hillman was born in Charles County, Maryland on December 25, 1844, the daughter of Anthony Brown and Jane Evans Brown. Her husband Andrew Hillman died several years ago. Mrs. Hillman had been in poor health for about four years.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lucy Johnson.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy Johnson was held at West Plain cemetery on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock Rev. Thomas H. Peabody conducting the services. Mrs. Johnson was a member of Mt. Calvary church of this city and had lived in the Maples home on Wauwecus Hill for more than 20 years. She was a most devout Christian.

FINAL DAY IN Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN BRINGS TOTAL REPORTS TO $11,670

Saturday closed the special drive of a week by the Young Men's Christian Association with a total of $11,670 subscribed for the association's annual budget, the largest amount that has ever been received for this object. The work of Saturday by the captains and teams added $640 to what had previously been reported.

The final meeting was held Saturday evening with a good attendance.

The supper, which was abundantly satisfying to the workers was served by the women of Trinity Methodist church. Prayer was offered, and C. C. Hatfield and J. S. Adams were delegated to extend the thanks of the men to the ladies.

Supper over, General Manager Shepard B. Palmer called on Charles L. Stewart, Frederick W. Cary, C. C. Hatfield and the general secretary for brief remarks, after which the reports of the last day of this special drive were called for with the following results:

Team. Captain.	Total.
A—Phillip A. Johnson	$100.00
B—Herbert B. Cary	108.00
C—Charles L. Stewart	210.00
D—Harold S. Burt	110.00
E—John M. Swahn	112.00
Saturday's total	$640.00
Previously reported	$11,030.00
Total for the six days	$11,670.00

Totals of the teams for the week:

Team A	$5,565.00
Team B	1,584.00
Team C	1,675.00
Team D	1,155.00
Team E.	1,701.00
Total	$11,670.00

The supper Saturday night was served by Mrs. Eugene Boyens, Mrs. Frank King, Mrs. Alvin Lewis, Mrs. Martin Colberg, Mrs. Louis Geer, Mrs. John Ferguson and Mrs. John Newton.

The management of the Young Men's Christian Association expressed Saturday night to the Norwich goes to show that as the fi- for the kindly reception accorded the solicitors during the six-day special drive for funds and declared it is a real pleasure to state that never before in the history of the association has so large a sum been secured for the year's expenses, which goes to sho what as the financial needs of the institution become larger with the growing work, its friends develop a liberality which indicates a real interest in what the association is doing for the young men and boys of the city.

The management also registered its deep appreciation of the services rendered by the team workers and the general and captains who led them in the campaign, and expressed its thanks to the women of the various churches who served the workers so bountifully. The hearty cooperation of the daily papers, it was declared, has been a factor for helpfulness in the campaign.

ROLLS DOWN TALMAN ST. BANK TOWARDS RIVER

Stanley Henschel and Frank Busch both of this city had a narrow escape from death Saturday night about 8 o'clock when the Ford service car owned by the Henschel Tire & Rubber Co., of 231 Main street, crashed through the rail fence on Talman street, plunged off a 6-foot stone wall, overturned and went over and down the bank a distance of over 25 feet, bringing up against two trees, a total wreck.

Both men were thrown out of the car as it crashed through the fence and although thrown down the steep bank escaped with only a scratch, Henschel being cut slightly over the eye and Busch receiving a slight cut on the nose. That they escaped serious injury was a miracle as the fall was from a steep bank easterly from the old Froehlichtelt hall, that falls almost perpendicular to the Shetucket river nearly 75 feet below.

Mr. Busch was driving at the time and it is alleged that the left front wheel struck a deep hole in the road wrenching the steering wheel from Mr. Busch's hands and throwing the car over, breaking the rear right wheel. The force of the car carried it to the rail fence which gave way under the weight and the car pitched down the bank, bounded and hit a tree, to bound off again finally bringing up on its side against two trees 20 feet below the sidewalk.

Two of the wheels were smashed, the chassis bent, windshield broken, fenders and top crushed in, and the steering wheel was snapped off close t othe post. Nothing was done to remove the car Sunday but it is expected that the wreck will be removed today (Monday).

The accident was reported to the police Saturday night by Henschel and Busch shortly after it had happened and the broken fence was repaired temporarily:

On Sunday hundreds of people went to Talman street to see the wreck and numerous pictures were taken. The escape of the two men in the overturning of the car and in the rolling down the steep embankment was nothing short of miraculous.

SEVEN GRASS FIRES MADE SATURDAY BUSY DAY

Seven grass fires gave the fire department a day of work Saturday, fortunately none of them resulting in serious loss.

The first call came in at 9.50 o'clock for a grass fire in the rear of the Hourigan property on Mt. Pleasant street. At 10.56 another call came in, this time for a grass fire at 85 Spruce sreet. At 12.08 o'clock the first bell alarm of the day was sent in from box 212, corner of Boswell avenue and Hickory street. This was a grass fire which was quickly extinguished. At 12.37 a call came on 1 for another grass fire at Hickory street and Deputy Chief Taft, who had gone there from Boswell avenue, called on Squad A to put out the blaze. At 1.10 a call came for a grass fire at Trading Cove, near DeWolf.'s switch, but as this was outside the city limits the Yantic Engine company took care of the blaze. At 1.11 o'clock a fire broke out near Preston bridge, near the railroad track and was quickly put out by the company. A second fire at the same place took the company out again at 1.56, the fire this time being caused by burning wood.

GRANGERS APPROVE SENATORS FOR STANDARD TIME VOTES

In resolutions passed by New London County Pomona, No. 8, P. of H., at its meeting Thursday in Waterford, the Pomona commended Senators Gibbs of Norwich and Park of Hanover of the 19th and 20th districts respectively for steadfast support and expressed appreciation of "the patriotic citizenship and high-planed devotion" to the laws of the state and nation of those senators who voted for the anti-daylight saving bill.

Regret was also expressed to the action of Senator E. E. Rogers of New London for his opposition to "enacted state and federal laws relating to standard time," and also that Senator Rogers studiously avoids making response to the inquiry of the legislative committee of the Pomona.

Copies of the resolutions were sent to five newspapers in the state.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

After spending several weeks at her home on Broadway, Miss Marion Briggs has returned to Washington, this state, to resume her studies at the Wyckham Rise school.

Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins has returned to Norwich after a week's stay at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Aycrigg, in Stamford.

Mrs. Frank H. Pullen has returned to her home on Lincoln avenue after spending three weeks with her daughters, Mrs. Clifford N. Story of Hackensack, N. J., and Mrs. C. Werter Van Deusen of Hudson, N. Y.

Mrs. Frank L. Farrell entertained informally Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Frances Ellers, a student at a secretarial school in Boston, who is home for several days' vacation.

Bruce Rogers returned Saturday from New York, where he spent several days. He was an usher at the wedding of one of his classmates.

MISS CATHERINE DODD PLAYS HERO ROLE IN CAST

On Saturday evening in the college gymnasium the German club of Connecticut College made its first appearance since its reorganization, when two comedies of Roderick Benedix, a nineteenth century playwright, Gunstige Vorzeichen (Favorable Omens) and Muller als Sundenbock (Muller as a scapegoat were presented.

Gunstige Vorzeichen was built upon the popular theme of mistaken identity, and a father's anxiety f[illegible] a suitable match for his daughter. Miss Gertrude Koetter '26, as the over-anxious father interpreted the part with a fine appreciation and understanding. Miss Mary Bristol '23, as the niece Brunhilde, who upsets the plans of the father made a charming coquette, while Miss Anna Buell '23, as the hero and lover, Holdhans, who by his mistake in taking the niece for the daughter complicated the plot and finally solved the problem by his deft handling of the situation, enhanced the comedy and won the audience. Miss Susanna Stolzenleeg '25 as the daughter who helped frustrate her father's plans was a typical German Frauleln.

Muller als Sundenbock, by the same author, was more elaborate in point of plot. The hero Gottlieb Muller was taken by Miss Catherine Dodd '23 of Norwich, who carried the burden of the action. Muller a respectable tin manufacturer of Berlin had come to the fair at helpsig to meet his sweetheart Salome Schfidt, a young widow. A series of misfortunes in which he is taken to be several less respectable Mullers interrupts his courtship until finally he convinces his "Verlobte" of his sincerety and genuiness. Miss Dodd showed remarkable versatility in adapting herself to the varied interruptions and moods o' the piece and created the atmosphere of comedy. Supporting Miss Dodd was Miss Anna Frauer '24 of New London, whose skillful interpretation of th difficult roll of the widow, and whose attitude throughout brought out the subtleties of the dialogue, established the interest Miss Ruth Bacon '22 as the other sweetheart who mistakes Muller for her Verlobte" ably carried her part and added greatly to the general complications. Of the minor parts Miss Lillian Scher '24 of New London created much mirtle in her role of the errand boy from "The Green Elephant."

Between the plays was the dance of the Three Graces, charmingly interpreted by Miss Merial Cornelius '24, as Euphrosyne, Miss Margaret Kendall '24 as Aglaia, and Miss Vivienne Mader '23 as halia.

Miss Catherine Dodd who had the title role in "Muller als Sundenbock" is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Dodd of Rockwell street and is a member of the class of 1923. During her college course Miss Dodd has taken a prominent part in dramatics, having been elected to the Dramatic club in her sophomore year. She holds the unique record of having had important roles in the Spanish and French plays and the title role in the German play.

SAYS FIVE-LETTER NAME IN TIBBITTS MYSTERY

Mrs. Isabel C. Bradley, of Boston, ballot medium, contributed something to the solution of the mystery of the disappearance of Williams Tibbitts of Pitchville with a spirit message she gave Sunday afternoon at the Spiritual Academy on Park street. The message that came to her, Mrs. Bradley said, was that Tibbitts is dead and will not be found until about the middle of May.

In substance, Mrs. Bradley said that the authorities should look for a man with five letters in his name if they wanted to find the man responsible for Tibbitts' disappearance on or about April 10th. This man, she said, spent five hours with Tibbitts and was one who had been closely associated with him and was perfectly familiar with all his actions. Moreover, said Mrs. Bradley, there were two men in the house with Tibbitts and that two men drove his horse and wagon to Norwich as a blind. When Tibbitts is found, she said, it will be in some other direction than around Norwich. He was not killed in his own home.

The medium said that the spirit message advised the inquirer to go to the Tibbitts house and find an old pair of trousers that were hanging in a closet. In one of the pockets, Mrs. Bradley said, there had been a note left that would help wonderfully in solving the mystery. It is all going to be explained in time, she said.

One of the peculiar coincidences in connection with her mention of a five-letter name is that one of the men whom the authorities would like to locate is a Canadian woodchopper by the name of Lynch, who has not been seen since Tibbitts disappeared. His name matches the five-letter test suggested by Mrs. Bradley's spirit message. In other respects he also fits into the description as he frequently slept at the Tibbitts house and knew all Tibbitts' habits.

Burial at Preston City.

The body of Ogden Holmes Stanton was removed from Maplewood vault Sunday and at 1.30 o'clock was laid to rest in the family lot in Preston City cemetery, Rev. W. L. Muttart, pastor of the Preston City Congregational church, conducted the service at the grave. The Christian's Good Night was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Henry E. Church.

On Charge of Driving After Drinking.

Joseph J. Bechard of Taftville was arrested in Greeneville Sunday night by Officer Peter DiLucoll on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was brought to police headquarters and placed in a cell, where he promptly went to sleep.

Here Is "Nature's Greatest Food"

What Scientists Say About The Chief Elements of Father John's Medicine

If you find yourself getting listless, lazy and inactive, do not attribute your condition to the so-called 'spring fever.' You are really in a run down condition and are suffering from a lack of proper nourishment. You need a tonic to build up new strength and health and to increase your power of resistance.

You should take just such a tonic as Father John's Medicine. The chief element of Father John's Medicine is commonly called by physicians "nature's greatest food." This element is divided up into the tiniest of particles which are readily taken up by even the weakest of digestive systems. Father John's Medicine nourishes the body tissue and enriches the blood, so that the people taking it are soon restored to normal health. Start taking Father John's Medicine today.

ATTORNEY STEWART TRUSTEE OF TIBBITTS ESTATE

The appointment of Attorney Charles L. Stewart as trustee of the estate of the missing William Tibbitts, the Fitchville farmer, has been made by Judge of Probate W. W. Bentley, of Boxrah. The brothers of Mr. Tibbitts, who are his heirs and nearest of kin, had agreed upon Mr. Stewart as trustee in advance of the hearing before the probate judge, who also appointed Silas W. Leffingwell and William Kilroy as appraisers.

It is estimated that the estate will inventory from $20,000 to $25,000. Mr. Stewart will take charge of the property which has been left behind by the mysterious disappearance of Tibbits, which first came to light on Tuesday, April 10, and which is still unexplained although the theories advanced include suicide, kidnapping, and murder.

At the present time William Kilroy is looking after the cattle on the farm, having been put in charge by the selectment.

FOUND STOLEN CAR ON M'KINLEY AVENUE

A 1922 Chevrolet coupe belonging to Harris W. Main of Leedyard was stolen from Water street, near Washington street, Sunday night about 8.15 o'clock, and was found in McKinley avenue about midnight by Officer Michael J. Carroll. It had evidently been left there only a sohrt time before, as the engine was still warm. The car was standing by the curb opposite the foot of Grove street when the officer located ffiit and at once spotted the registration number, 97-417. The car had the initials H. W. M. on the door.

Theft of the car was reported to Officer Henry Fenton by Mr. Main and it was learned that two men had been seen driving it away from Water street about half an hour before Mr. Main returned to find it gone.

FOREST PROTECTION WEEK IMPORTANT FOR STATE

President Harding has issued a proclamation setting apart the week of April 22-28, 1923, as Forest Protection week. It is very fitting that this week should be widely observed throughout Connecticut, one of the states where the woodlands are in most need of protection, and where a dense population makes the production of timber most important.

Land owners can co-operate in the observance of Forest Protection Week by using great care in burning brush and rubbish. The law requiring a permit for such burning between March 1 and June 1 is being vigorously enforced and several convictions have already been secured. Although 83 brush fires have already been reported this spring it is encouraging to note that the wardens are showing splendid efficiency in handling them for the average area per fire has been only nine acres. Only one fire as large as 100 acres has been reported. This was in the town of Groton and was due to the fact that the warden was not notified promptly.

Boy Scouts are taking an active part in forest protection. Already 116 Scouts have been appointed as guides by the state forester. These boys are co-operating with the fire wardens in preventing fires. During Forest Protection Week they will carry on a widespread campaign of education among people on the outskirts of our cities; and among the owners of automobiles, fishermen and others likely to set fires.

The state forester is co-operating with the state board of education in furnishing pine seedlings to teachers for Arbor Day planting about school grounds. By watching these small trees grow the children will become interested not only in tree planting but in conservation of the forests.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Friends here received word Sunday of the death at 2 a. m. at Atlantic City of Mrs. Charles Fox, 90, a resident of Stafford Springs, where her husband, who died about 40 years ago, was engaged as a manufacturer and founded what is known as Foxville. She had been at Atlantic City with a view to recuperating and had only one companion with her.

Mrs. Fox had numbers of friends in Canterbury, where she formerly visited with Rev. Marion Hastings Jones and throughout eastern Connecticut. Numbered among her Danielson friends was Mrs. Frank J. G. Bailey, Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of the superior court of this state is a nephew of Mrs. Fox's.

Saturday afternoon within a short period the fire department responded to two alarms for grass fires that were threatening damage or destruction of nearby property. The first of these fires was in the Connecticut Village section of Danielson and was sweeping over territory in the vicinity of North street when the alarm called out the department. The second alarm sent the department out to extinguish a grass fire near what is known as the Dodge property at the corner of Cottage and School streets. This fire had eaten its way close to buildings and was burning a fence when it was brought under control.

These fires caused Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department to issue another warning about setting grass fires. Included in his advice were the admonitions never to start a grass fire on a windy day, as was Saturday; never to set one at points where the fire might endanger surrounding property; and always have pails of water at hand that a fire may be controlled if it shows inclination to get out of hand.

A crash that sounded as though Thor were hammering on the roof the world directly over Danielson awakened residents of the Reynolds street section about 4 o'clock Sunday morning and upon peering out their windows in the early light sleepy-eyed men and women saw something in the form of a trailer that had certain resemblances to Noah's ark, stalled behind the motor vehicle that was hauling it when the outfit swung wide to evade being ditched in an excavation the Crystal Water company had opened in the narrow street and did not get it filled up again in time to prevent making a congestion point over the busy week end. When the towering, house-like trailer swung over its superstructure ripped some fixtures off an electric pole and pulled down electric lights, plunging the street into darkness. This caused the racket that disturbed the peace of an early Sunday morning. There was a light marking the excavation and the other usual protections against accidents in such cases, but the part of the street left available for travel was narrow and the driver of the rig with the trailer must have taken such a wide swing to get by that he swung a bit too far over, with more or less disastrous results to his outfit. The driver reported the matter to one of the night officers and proceeded on his way.

Mrs. Ada Amelia Hill, wife of Charles I. Hill, died Saturday at their home in Brooklyn. Mrs Hill had been in poor health for about eight years and in critical condition since Christmas. She was born in Dudley, March 18, 1879, a daughter of Alfred and Esther Sanger) Brown. Mrs. Hill leaves her husband, a son, resident in Guilford; a daughter, Bertha, at home, one brother, Frederick Brown, New Boston, and two sisters, Mrs. Ella Anderson, Warren, Mass., and Mrs. Mary Brownell, Hartford.

Saturday morning the funeral of Joseph Parenteau was held from his home in Plainfield, Louis E. Kennedy being in charge of the arrangements, and forwarded to Arctic, R. I. Mr. Parenteau's former home, where services were held at St. John's church and burial took place.

Statements that appeared during the past week, in financial journals and relative to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, have called forth the following self-explanatory announcement:

President Stadelman of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., denied that he in any sense represents either the Selberling interests or any of the personnel replaced at reorganization two years ago.

"Change under which Mr. Wilmer takes the office of chairman and Mr. Stadelman the presidency was a revision designed permanently to fix the executive organization, and was concurred in by all directors, including those representing common and preferred stocks," said Mr. Stadelman. "It was clearly agreed and announced that Mr. Wilmer would continue to supervise and direct Goodyear management from New York and that there would be no change in existing control.

"F. A. Seiberling has nothing to do with Goodyear today, and the prediction that the recent change in titles is a preliminary either to return of F. A. Seiberling or to any participation by him in company affairs is without the slightest foundation."

At Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. office at Akron it was emphatically denied that there is any truth in the statement that changes in titles of officers announced about a week ago would mean return of F. A. Seiberling to active participation in affairs of the company.

An occupant of a New York car who stopped at St. James' church on Sunday morning to attend the 9 o'clock mass, was pinched between the rear bumper of his own car and the forward bumper of another car that was coming in to park at the curb. Although the rear bumper on the New York car was curved in in the crash the New Yorker escaped without injury.

In Danielson Saturday the mercury ran up to 86 degrees, giving those who have been looking for warm weather as much as they anticipated—and then some. The day was a real swelterer, a leaf from July rather than late April.

Hazel Irene Carpenter, age 5 months, died Saturday at her home in Wauregan.

Obadiah Butler, who returned here Saturday from a business visit in Detroit, was reported ill with the grip at his home on Hawkins street Sunday.

A drama, given in the French language, attracted many to the Orpheum theater Sunday afternoon.

Henry C. Reisman of New Bedford was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Judge and Mrs. W. Fenner Woodward were visitors with friends in Hartford on Sunday.

Rain is badly needed all through this territory and there appeared to be promise on Sunday that it was near at hand.

What motor traffic is going to be on the main arteries of travel was indicated Sunday by the jam of cars on all the state highways hereabouts.

A horse and cattle auction at Flood's on Furnace street Saturday drew a large attendance.

J. Howard Burdick of Webster spent Sunday at his home in Danielson.

Some of the woolen plants in nearby territory have been operating on an overtime schedule recently.

There were no arrests in Danielson over the week-end, as quiet and orderly a period as one could wish.

At the meeting of the Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., held with Mrs. L. S. Ingalls April 19, a large and appreciative audience listened to a fine address given by Mrs. Frederick Harrison of Woodstock upon the subject No Ways Tired. Mrs. Harrison said in part: We who now have the privilege of the ballot must by voting help solve the difficult problems. Changing times present new duties for each to perform and thus help bring about better conditions in that part of the world in which we are placed. Truth of things takes away all fear and gives us freedom. Intelligence and faith are essential attributes which must employ in dealing with our fellowmen and feel in two ways thereby while there is so much needing to be accomplished in order to bring about right results in this our democracy.

PUTNAM

The board of governors of the Putnam Country club have let contracts for the construction of two new sun parlors on the club house. It is also intended to install electric lights and they are expected to be in working condition by the first of June.

One of the sun parlors is to be built on the south end of the club house and the other on the north end. The north room will be used by the ladies as a social and rest room and the south room will be used as a dining room. It is hoped that the club will be able to arrange for a chef to be in the house at all times. After the sun parlors have been constructed the piazza will be extended the whole length of the front of the building, the piazza being increased from 32 feet to 56 feet in length. Clarence Booth, the club green keeper and professional golf player, has arrived from New York for the season and is getting the course in shape.

The greens at the 4th, 7th and 8th holes are being given special attention and the new fifth green is to be used as the season advances. C. A. Thayer, chairman, has already laid plans for a number of tournaments with out-of-town clubs and there will be various contests among the club members, both men and women.

The contest held during the past winter put a considerable balance in the treasury after the mortgage on the club property was liquidated and the organization starts the season in excellent financial shape.

The Putnam Chamber of Commerce is planning for a big affair the evening of May 1st when a dinner will be served to members and friends of the Putnam inn at eight o'clock. Richard R. Watrous, managing secretary of the Providence Chamber of Commerce, one of the most widely known Chamber of Commerce men in New England, will be the speaker of the evening. The directors of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce have appointed a committee having in charge the arrangements.

It has been announced that August 18 to 24 inclusive has been assigned Putnam for the annual Chatauqua. The programme has not as yet been announced.

Just where Putnam stands on the Daylight saving question is an unknown quantity at the present time. Had not the railroad given notice of a change in their time card it is believed that little would have been heard of it in this section this year. No action has been taken here and as far as can be learned none is contemplated. The changed time on the railroad affects the manufacturing plants in the city and it is possible that the mills will go on a daylight savings schedule but whether this means a changing of clocks is not known. It would seem that the undercurrent of opinion at present is to leave well enought alone and were it not that Putnam will again be surrounded by a territory on daylight saving there would be little heard of the change in this city.

Frank Clark of Worcester, was in Putnam Friday to call on his brothers, Florenus Clark and also went to Woodstock to call on Newton Clark; he also visited his sister, Mrs. Emma Bosworth. Mr. Clark formerly lived in Putnam. He left here about fourteen years ago and this is his second visit to Putnam during those years, the last visit being four years ago.

A cat that makes its headquarters at the Putnam News Company, known and petted by many people as they went into the store, lost its nine lives Friday evening when it got in front of the Waterbury express and was cut in two. The cat was well cared for as many people took an interest in it and brought it milk and food. The cat usually made its headquarters on a pile of newspapers on the counter and enjoyed being stroked by the customers.

Benjamin W. Ellis, formerly Windham County Farm agent with headquarters in Putnam, who left here to become county agent leader in the state extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, has been appointed director of extension work in Connecticut as successor to H. J. Baker, who resigned to go to New Jersey. Mr. Ellis came to Putnam in 1917 following closely his graduation from the Massachusetts Agricultural college. Mr. Ellis will assume the new position on June 1st.

Miss Ruth C. Child, daughter of Mrs. Annie Child, South Main street, a graduate student and assistant in the department of English at Mount Holyoke college, has been awarded the '86 fellowship, given by a member of the class of 1886, and will next year continue her work either at Yale or at the University of Michigan. Miss Child won sophomore honors for high scholarship and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in her junior year.

She was a member of the college debating tem which defeated Wellesley in 1920.

Jumping right into mid-summer weather, with the old mercury in the thermometer on Main street crowding 90 degrees and then passing by this point for a degree or two more, all overcoats in Putnam went into the discard Saturday before the noon hour. It was straw hat weather but the bell has not rung. The first arbutus appeared when boys arrived from over the Rhode Island border with baskets filled with small, neat bunches of the fragrant flower.

On account of the sudden change people felt as uncomfortably warm as they had uncofromtably cold. There was a summer lassitude although the fine day brought many shoppers to the city from the surrounding country and clerks had a busy day. Many people let their furnace fires burn themselves out but it remains to be seen whether or not they were a little over confident that the warm weather has come to stay.

This (Monday) evening is Charter Night of the newly organized Putnam Rotary club when the club will officially receive its charter. The charter will be presented by Judge Frank Foss, on behalf of the Willimantic Rotary club, and will be received by President John F. Reardon of the local club.

Charter Night will be observed in Odd Fellows' hall and will open with a dinner followed by speeches, songs, stunts and other ceremonies. Rotarians from New London and Norwich are coming by special train and clubs from other Connecticut cities will be represented. The honored guest of the evening is expected to be District Governor Don Adams of New Haven who will be the principal speaker.

Antelope may be exterminated in this country unless steps are taken to protect them from sheep herders who wish the hunting ground for their sheep, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

"Hello, Mrs. Oriole!" shouted the little rabbit

April showers bring May flowers
And the roses of June.
The Bubbling Brook from its mossy nook
Sings a happy tune.

And so did Little Jack Rabbit, and I should think he would, for he didn't have a care in the world except to polish the front door knob every morning, feed the canary and bring in the kindling wood for pretty little Lady Love, and that's why every little boy should be good and help mother, for he has little to do except to grow up big and strong.

But goodness me, I mustn't write too much about that sort of thing, for nobody will read these stories and then, what do you suppose Little Jack Rabbit would do? Why, I guess he'd say, "I'll never do another thing except eat clover tops, drink ice cream soda and suck lollypops."

Goodness me! There goes my typewriter again, making up poetry. Maybe it can't help itself this lovely Spring day when everybody should feel as happy as the little bird in the tree who sings to his mate while she sits on the nest waiting for the little birds to come out of the shells and say:

"Here we are, now take good care
Until our wings are strong.
And then, we'll fly away and sing
Our happy summer song."

Well, anyway, Little Jack Rabbit hopped out of the Old Bramble Patch and across the Sunny Meadow till he came to the Old Duck Pond where the big weeping willow tree leaned over the water and looked at herself, for the Old Duck Pond was just as good as a looking glass, let me tell you, except when Billy Breeze ruffled it—then it looked just like a piece of crinkly white silk.

"Hello, Mrs. Oriole!" shouted the little rabbit as he stopped beneath the Willow Tree. "How many little birds have you in your cotton stocking nest?"

"S-s-s-sh!" whispered Mrs. Oriole, "they're all asleep, don't wake them."

"I won't," whispered the little rabbit and he hopped over to the big dam where the water fell in rainbow colors and ran off under the railroad bridge. Just then, along came a train, and do you know who was looking out of a Pullman Car? I suppose you don't. Well, it was Uncle Lucky.

"Stop! stop!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit, and would you believe it, the Engineer, a big black duck put on the brakes and in less time than I can take to tell it, the train came to a standstill?

"All aboard!" cried the little bunny and away went the cars and the engine tooted three times and a half for Mrs. Cow was on the track. Wasn't she foolish? But then, again, maybe she wasn't, for she wanted to cross over to the south meadow where the grass was sweet and tender and a Blue Bird had a nest in a tree nearby. And, in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

PUTNAM'S MAYOR ISSUES CLEANUP PROCLAMATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, April 22.—Putnam will have its first organized clean-up, paint-up week in several years beginning April 30th. Mayor Victor Chapdelaine has issued the following proclamation regarding the organized effort to clean up the city:

"It is a good thing to turn our thoughts to the cleanliness of our community. It is a worthy project and one which should have the united approval and united support of all of our citizens. Such an undertaking has for its chief object a cleaner, more beautiful and healthier city. All of these things are greatly desired by all of us, and if we work together for the common good, they can be made a reality.

"Ambition in its highest conception is a dream, big dreams, and to make them come true. The splendid ambition to have our city clean and beautiful is soon to become a reality by the co-operation of all of our people.

"Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as mayor and with the hearty approval of may forseeing and zealous citizens, I hereby proclaim the week of April 30th, 1923, as the opening week of a continuous Clean-up and Paint-up campaign.

"Away with rubbish piles, banish plague spots, clean up the streets and alleys, cut the weeds, mow the lawns, trim the hedges and paint and repair buildings where necessary and convenient.

"We need this thorough cleaning and renovating. It is the sensible thing to do—for the health, safety, thrift, pride and happiness of all of our people.

"It is everybody's job. Every man, woman and child should help. Therefore let us join hands during the week of April 30 and make our city shine with cleanliness. Let there be no slackers."

GRASS FIRE THREATENED PUTNAM RESIDENTIAL SECTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, April 22.—A brush fire that got beyond control Saturday afternoon set fire to the roof of a barn in the rear of the home of G. Allan Hawkins and also the roof of the large dwelling house of William Killian and for a time threatened destruction of the thickly populated Sunny Side, a residential hill section on the west side of the Quinebaug river. The damage is estimated at from 3 to 4 thousand dollars, much of the amount being due to damage from water.

The fire started about 2.20 in a field back of Sunny Side. The wind was from the south west and was blowing a gale. As the flames ate their way toward the dwelling volunteers fought the fire but it got beyond control in the high wind.

An effort was made to send in a still alarm. Chief Ralph Thurston was out of the city and Assistant Chief Phillias Cloutier was with No. 1 truck that the roof of the Hawkins barn earlier to extinguish a brush fire in the vicinity of Bates avenue in the extreme north end of the city.

A quarter of two o'clock an alarm was sent in from Box 46, corner of Church and Bridge streets and this was soon followed by a second alarm. The Hook and Ladder company from fire headquarters responded at once as did No. 3 Company from Smith street fire house. No sooner had the firemen set to work to put out the blazing bush than it was discovered that the roof of the Hawkins' barn was on fire. Within a few minutes the roof of the Killian house on Woodstock avenue was seen to be blazing briskly.

The firemen could not leave the headway and the house wasvbgkqj barn as the flames were gaining headway and the house was in close proximity. Fortunately about this time No. 1 company arrived from the first fire and soon had several streams on the Woodstock avenue blaze.

The wind was high and sparks were flying in all directions. Close watch had to be kept on the 20 or more barns and dwellings in the neighborhood and many caught fire but these small blazes were extinguished at once by those on guard.

At the Killian home, a fine, large two and a half story house, the fire at its way under the gabled roof and gave the firemen a hard battle. Once they were able to get a stream under the roof from the interior of the building the men made short work of subduing the blaze, but the resulting damage from the rivers of water poured from the several hose nozzles made the interior of the house, which had recently been renovated and repaired, a sorry sight.

It is not known whether the fire got beyond control of someone burning brush or whether it was ignited by someone carelessly throwing down a lighted match. A number of board fences and outbuildings lining the west side of Laurel street, were charred. It was nearly two hours before the recall signal was given.

MANSFIELD CENTRE

The subject at the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening was Train for Leadership. Mrs. R. E. Stearns was leader. The leader for the service at Spring Hill was Mrs. Herbert Gillette.

Funeral services for Dr. E. H. Marsh were held at his late home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock and were largely attended. Elder Cardey of Hartford and Rev. E. P. Ayer of Montville conducted the services. Rev. and Mrs. Ayer sang two selections. Saved by Grace and The City Four Square. The bearers were Alfred Oden, Daniel Ives, Gustaf Clauson and Walter Storrs. Interment followed in the local cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held.

E. B. Inman was called to Norwich, N. Y., Tuesday on account of the death of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Clark and Mrs. F. B. Eaton motored to Groton Long Point and back Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Walden of Scotland were guests at the home of E. B Inman on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Burdick motored to New Britain on Friday to visit relatives.

The selectmen have done a fine piece of repair work on the road from the top of Stimpson Hill to Wormwood Hill.

A committee meeting of the local church was held at the home of G. H. Wyman on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Eaton of Norwich was the guest of Mrs. G. C. Jenner recently.

STAFFORD

Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham have moved into the Glover house with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keuhl.

Mrs. Louis Chaffee gave a very interesting report of the Junior Achievement league as represented in Rockville at the Parent-Teachers' association. The league has 105 members. Mr. Brick, superintendent of schools, read a very interesting paper on The Old Fashioned School which was an account of his early experience as a school teacher in Woodstock county, Maine. Miss Helen Gilligan sang two selections, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Kaddy.

Rev. F. W. Tholen was the guest of friends in Preston City last week.

The annual meeting of the Women's Republican club of Stafford will be held Wednesday evening.

Miss Mary Elsin of Ohio, national secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion, will speak at the annual meeting on May 9.

WIDE-AWAKE POETRY.

CANDLE AND CROSS.

You are at once my candle and my cross,
The light I carry and the load I bear;
A beam of living love, a weight of care,
Possession; and irreparable loss
Are mine in you; aslant each dawning day
One long gray shadow falls, yet when the night
With blue black blur would curtain earth from sight
In the still dark your taper throws its ray.

My lap is filled with burning bitter sweet.
And every hour the berries brim my hand
Because of you; yet would I look above
With gratitude, still would my weary feet
Plod on toward you, who made me understand
The beauty and the magnitude of love.

Elisabeth Scollard, in New York Herald

OF AN ORCHARD.

Good is an Orchard, the Saint saith,
To meditate on life and death,
With a cool well, a hive of bees,
A hermit's grot below the trees.

Good is an Orchard; very good,
Though one shoul wear no monkish hood.
Right good, when Spring awakes her flutes,
And good in yellowing time of fruit.

Very good is the grass to lie
And see the network 'gainst the sky,
A living lace of blue and green,
And boughs that let the gold between.

The bees are types of souls that dwell
With honey in a quiet cell:
The ripe fruit figures goldenly
The soul's perfection in God's eye.

Prayer and praise in country home,
Honey and fruit; a man might come,
Fed on such meats to walk abroad,
And in his Orchard talk with God.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Last week we talked about self-confidence as an asset. This week we will talk about something that is not an asset—untruthfulness. One of the worst habits a boy or girl can have is that of telling untruths. Whether they realize it or not untruthful boys and girls are continually piling up trouble for themselves in the shape of embarrassing situations when they are found out.

There have been cases where an untruth or "lie" has followed a man throughout his life, destroying his happiness and leaving him alone and friendless. Of course cases like that are rare but the fact remains that untruths are often very harmful. Some times you will hear people say that "white" lies are harmless. That is not so as a lie is a lie whether it be a "white" lie or a "black" lie. Both are deliberate falsehoods and are told for the same purpose—to make people believe something which is not so.

Sometimes boys and girls tell untruths in order to fasten their own guilt on some one else to save their own skins. That is cowardly and despicable; cowardly because they are afraid to face the consequences of their own misdeeds, and despicable because they try to blacken the character of another they know is innocent.

People quickly lose confidence in boys and girls who have the reputation of telling untruths for their words can't be relied upon. The boys and girls who are strictly truthful and whose word can always be relied upon cannot but command the respect of their friends. Do you ever tell untruths? If you do you'd better turn over a new leaf right now.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

A Snow Storm.

Dear Uncle Jed: How the wind did blow! How the snow whirled and drifted about the old farmhouse! But within all were warm and comfortable. The fire on the hearth was kept roaring up the chimney.

The blowing wind and the drifting snow kept up all day. I tried to go out a little way but I was driven back by the cold, wintry blasts.

"My! I hope the chimneys don't blow off!" exclaimed my mother, as a particularly fierce blast shook the old house. "A fire now would be dreadful."

"I don't believe there is much danger," said my father, with a laugh.

"But, but this is a terrible storm!"

"Yes, but it seems to be getting worse," agreed my father.

Harder blew the wind and heavier fell the snow. The path that my father had shoveled was soon filled up again. Out at the back door was a drift which came up even with the windows, making it so deep I could hardly see out.

"If this keeps on, we will be snowed in," said my father as he prepared to look up for the night.

We were gathered around the big open fire, popping corn and roasting apples, when a louder blast of wind shook the house.

"Oh what a night!" sighed my mother.

Hardly had she spoken when a fearful crash shook the whole house. At the same time a blast of cold wind swept through it, scattering the fire on the earth.

"What was that" cried my mother.

"The storm has blown the old apple tree at the corner of the house over," said my father.

Soon it was time to go to bed, but all night long the storm raged. Everyone was up early in the morning to see by daylight what harm had been done.

The sun rose clear, for the storm had passed. But, oh! what a lot of snow there was! Big drifts were scattered all over the place. Soon paths were shoveled and I was able to go out.

Burdock Burrs.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing this to tell the Wide-Awakes how to make many pretty playthings out of burdock burrs. Gather them when they are in blossom, little green balls with purple tops. Try first to make a burr basket. Make a little mat, one burr in the middle, the others sticking all around it, and so on until it is the right size. This is the foundation of the basket, and the sides are built up from it.

For the foundation take all the purple parts upward, for the sides have some rows green and some purple. When it is the right size and shape, make a handle. Two rows of green with two of purple between them are pretty. You can make an armchair in the same way. You can have a solid square mass for the foundation or else make a basket and turn it upside down. Then build up the back and arms just as you did the sides of the basket.

Tables, chairs and foot stools can be made in the same way.

IDA M. ROODE, Age 13.

Camp.

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about our camp that my brother and sister helped me make. A long time ago we had a picnic down in our pasture. Then a couple of years ago we had another picnic in the same place. We liked to go down there when it was cold, so we took a large box and used it for a house. It wasn't big enough so we made a shanty of boards and covered it with roofing paper.

We got along with it all right, but there wasn't room enough for a fireplace, so we built an addition to the old part. This addition was about the size of the main part. It had a brick fireplace and a roof made of roofing paper. Last summer our father put roofing on the woodshed and we used the old shingles for the sides of the shanty.

Last fall we started a woodshed. The sides are made of fence posts set in the ground and nailed to a frame at the top.

The fireplace used to smoke but now we have fixed it and use it to cook on and for heating.

RALPH SLATE, Age 14.

The Banana

Dear Uncle Jed: Of course you and all the Wide-Awakes know what the banana is, because you have seen and eaten more or less of the fruit. Perhaps you have had your feet slide out from under you on the sidewalk, when you stepped upon some peel that had been carelessly thrown there.

The fruit is very nutritious and is now sold in almost every town in the United States. As the fruit has to be transported a long distance, it is harvested before it is fully ripe. It is not so delicate as when it is permitted to ripen on the plant.

The leaves of the banana grow from 12 to 18 inches in width, and the entire plant frequently reaches a height of ten feet or twelve feet. The plant is propagated from suckers, that spring up from the roots, and not from seed.

These suckers are set out in trenches about three feet wide and 18 or 20 inches deep. The plants are set about six feet apart each way. The plants will bear fruit in from nine to eighteen months from the time they are set.

The fruit grows upon the top of the stalk and when reaching maturity is borne down by its weight.

My Summer Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to the Wide-Awakes. I am going to tell you how I spent my summer vacation at Groton Long Point. We started about 1 o'clock p. m. and got to the cottage in which we were to stay, the name of which is King's Rest, about 5 o'clock. The next day we went to Mystic after some fish. We went bathing that afternoon. The fourth day we went to Watch Hill. We took our lunch with us and ate it at the pavilion. We went back to the cottage tired but happy.

The 2d of September was my birthday, and in the afternoon we went for a boat ride. We went home in a week, which was the 4th of September.

I hope all the Wide-Awakes had as good a vacation as I did. I will close my letter by saying good-bye to all the Wide-Awakes.

The Story of Silk.

Dear Uncle Jed: Silk worms can grow anywhere mulberry trees grow, but they are mostly grown in China and Japan. The silk worms are put on large frames and fed on mulberry leaves until they get fat. Then they make a cocoon around their bodies. The people then put them in boiling water to kill the worm, and then they unwind the silk on reels. Then it is sent to other countries where it is made into thread and cloth.

My Kite

Dear Uncle Jed: One Sunday when I came home from church I saw two boys flying a kite. When I got home I asked my father if he would make me a kite. The next Saturday he made me one. It didn't fly very good. Then he made a larger one which went up good and came down and broke. Then I tried the first one again, and have got it so it flies very good now. I have a good time flying it.

A Crow That Talks!

Dear Uncle Jed: I went up to one of our neighbor's to get some milk one night. They have some sheep and thirteen lambs. A pair of the lambs are twins, but their mother won't care them so they have to feed them with two bottles. The lady who was going down to feed them, so she let me hold one of the bottles and the sisters took turns holding the other bottle. The lamb that I was feeding had a short tail and it looked so funny to see him shake his tail all the time when he was eating. Mine finished eating before the other and then he tried to eat the other lamb's milk up.

We still have that tame crow I wrote you about before. We have had him two years this spring. Early in the morning he sits on top of grandma's house and when the teams go by he cries "Whoa, back!" at them. He can really talk some. He says mostly what he hears other people say. He gets hold of my stocking with his claws when I am not looking and then he pecks me until I run around and give him a rifle. He hangs on tight so he won't get hurt.

SARAH GILL, Age 12.

My Pet Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: One cold night while my sister and I were sitting in the dining room we heard a faint scratching at the window. Looking out I saw a little gray kitten, covered with snow, trying to get in.

Of course my sister immediately ran to open the window and in jumped the poor little kitten. It was surely a dear little thing, so soft and gentle. Of course we did not know its name so we called it Tricky on account of its cunning tricks.

One day last week a dog chased it up the tree. It was dreadfully afraid and try as we did it would not come down. For two days it would not come down. We thought it would starve or fall. On the third morning my uncle went up to the roof, put a board across to the tree and called to the kitten. The poor kitty after resisting came carefully across the plank to safety and a nice bowl of milk was waiting for it.

Glad Spring Is Here.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes although I read all the stories that the boys and girls write, and find them very interesting. So I will write to you about my English lesson we had in school about spring. We had to make up a story and also a poem and my teacher thought mine was very good.

Spring is here at last! We can't count all the things it brings. Everything is full of life. The sun's warm rays have melted all the ice and snow. Wherever you look everything is bright and beautiful. The sleeping flowers awaken and we will soon see them by the roadside.

The soft, warm breezes blow gentle and mild. The sky has a bright and clear blue. The happy birds are here with their lovely songs and we can hear them over hill and dale. Everybody is happy and glad for spring has come.

My Easter Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell the Wide-Awakes how I spent my Easter vacation. First my grandmother and I went to visit a lady who celebrated her hundredth birthday. That was quite an interesting day to me. She is a lovely old lady. Grandma used to go and see her when she was a little girl. Many went to see her that day, and took flowers and candy and lots of presents. Next I went with grandma on a hike and visited another of grandma's friends and had dinner with them. The rest of the week I played with my little brother, Lewis. We played ball and school. I also read to him from my story book. He loves to have me read to him. I had a real good time on my Easter vacation, and hope the rest of the Wide-Awakes enjoyed theirs, as much as I did.

A Visit to Hartford

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer on a visit to my grandmother's my uncle took us on a trip to Hartford in his auto. We started about 10 o'clock in the morning. We went up to the capitol, but it being Sunday it was not open. We went all around the outside and it was a beautiful sight. We also went to the Roman Catholic cathedral and the beautiful Elizabeth park. The flowers were all in bloom in one place they grew in the form of the American flag, red, white and blue, and we had lunch with friends of ours, and started home arriving about 5 o'clock. I was well pleased with my trip.

A Surprise.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you all about a surprise I got in the mail. One day a box came in the mail addressed to me. But when I took the outside paper off I found on the next paper my brother's name. So I gave it to him. He started to untie it and he thought he felt something moving, so he thought he would find out what it was. But instead he found it was addressed to both of us, so we both helped untie it. I found two boxes. One had my name on it and the other had my brother's name on it. I opened mine and I found two little kittens. That was a great surprise. My father had made believe it had come by mail.

My Easter Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awake Circle. I am going to tell you about my Easter vacation. One day I asked my father if I could chop the brush by the brook so my father said that I could. So I took the axe and began to chop. When I got a little piece done my father came to me and said that I left too long stumps. Then my father showed me that I should chop them close to the ground. I said that next time I will do better.

Pussy Willows.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to the Wide-Awakes but I am trying now. No doubt you have all seen pussy willows but, to keep it clear in your mind I will describe them. They remind me of a cat so sometimes I call them "Pussy Cats." They have a white, fuzzy dress with a brown cap or hat. They are of oval shape. They grow in marshy wet places. I found the first ones this year about March 14.

Harry's Birthday.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day in May came Harry's birthday. There was to be a large party. Harry had invited 25 children. When the children arrived they played a few games, then went to dinner. On the table were all kinds of goodies. In the middle was a roasted turkey around which were fruits, candies and many other things. Harry sat in the seat of honor. After dinner they played games. Then Harry got his presents. The best was a beautiful little pony. Before the children departed each was given a box of candy and a present.

Saw Tame Deer.

Dear Uncle Jed: Saturday as I was out in the yard I saw a deer. I ran to see him close. He came over the wall close to me. I kept still, then he came over toward me. I was eating an apple and I think he must have scented it. He came to within 25 feet of me.

I think he was one of several deers let out of a park this winter. We had heard he was fearless.

I wish to thank you for the nice books you sent me as prizes for my letters I wrote you some time ago. I enjoy reading the Wide-Awakes' letters, they are all so interesting.

A Story About a Blackbird.

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer a blackbird had its nest in our apple tree. There were three birds in it. One day as I was outdoors, the bird flew around my head. So I went to see what was the matter. When I came to the apple tree I didn't see the birds in the nest. So I looked on the grass and saw the birds on the grass. I picked them up and put them back in the nest. The next day I was hanging some clothes when I saw the bird coming to me, so I went again to see what was the matter. When I came again to the tree a cat was there so I chased him away.

Baby's Trip to Providence

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a cat named Baby. Baby has quite a few doll's clothes. Her color is gray and white and one foot looks like a piece of paper after it has been in the chinaman's laundry.

Baby loves to ride in the automobile. One Sunday we put her in the machine and she behaved very nicely so she got a chance to go again.

We took her about Christmas the first time. We shut her up at a lady's house in Providence and we went to the Christmas tree and the woman down stairs never heard her cry once. The last time we took her down we shut her in again while we went to a restaurant to get our dinner and she didn't cry then. I think the rest of the Wide-Awakes would think she is a very nice cat if they could see her. I do.

A Lively Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a dog whose name is Prince. He is black and tan with a little white on his chest.

When he sees any one he runs and jumps and barks as loud as he can. He sleeps part of the time when his time isn't otherwise taken up.

Each day he experiences new things. Just lately he has learned that when corn or grain is moved into the barn there are mice there and he makes great dives to get one to play with. Sometimes he eats them. I think a great deal of my dog and hope I will always have a pet like him.

A Dog's Love for His Master

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide-Awakes circle. Once there was a man who had a dog. The dog loved his master very much. The master died and the dog would go and lie on the master's grave. The churchyard keeper drove him away many times but the dog would return again so the keeper took pity on him and fed him daily. When the dog died he was buried beside his master.

The people placed a statue in the town showing the love of the dog for his master.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

"S-O-S, oh, please come quick.
And bring your big old hickory stick;
There's danger in the forest lane,
Oh, come and help poor Mr. Crane," shouted Professor Jim Crow through his radio outfit, as Mr. Wicked Weasel crept out from behind a tree.

Of course, he did it so softly that Photographer Crane never heard him. He had been hopping along on his long, thin legs with his camera over his back and he was feeling quite contented having taken the Big Brown Bear's picture as well as Little Blackie Crow's, a good day's work, and the day was only half over. Pretty soon, he would be at the Old Bramble Patch to make a beautiful photograph of Little Jack Rabbit. All this he had been thinking before the wicked weasel jumped out on him as I explained in the last story.

"Maybe I'll make it in colors," he was thinking, "this little bunny boy rabbit is such a nice youngster.

Poor Photographer Crane—he didn't see Mr. Wicked Weasel only a few feet behind—no indeed. It he had, he would have dropped his big camera and maybe hurt the little birds which all good photographers ask us to watch for when we sit waiting for him to squeeze the little rubber bulb and snap our picture before we move or smile.

But, no sir, the good hearted Photographer Crane never suspected for a moment that he was in danger. My, but it was mighty lucky just then that Professor Crow chanced to look down from the Tall Pine Tree House. Dear me! I can't bear to think what would have happened pretty soon and maybe mighty quick to Photographer Crane if the good professor bird had ever looked the other way. But don't worry. No sooner did the nice old Crow bird see Mr. Wicked Weasel than he shouted over the wireless the beautiful little verse printed at the beginning of this story.

"Bless my gold stripes and twenty-five silver buttons!" exclaimed the brave Policeman Dog, jumping up from his mahogany desk and in less time than I can take to tell it, he had picked up his big hickory club and was running through the Shady Forest to the Tall Pine Tree.

"Ha, ha!" chuckled Mr. Wicked Weasel to himself as he crept after poor Photographer Crane, "in just two minutes or three I'll bite in two his long skinny left leg; ha, ha!"

"I'll soon be at the dear Old Bramble Patch," thought the dear kind camera picture bird, as he strutted along, first on one leg and then on the other, "I'll make a beautiful picture of the dear old Bramble Patch with the little white bungalow in the center, the pretty yellow canary swinging in her gold cage on the front porch, the shiny brass knob on the front door, Lady Love standing at the kitchen door and Little Jack Rabbit feeding the pigeons."

"Gracious me! I wish the Policeman Dog would hurry," sighed the anxious but learned old crow bird as he peered down from his Tall Pine Tree House. He could just see Mr. Wicked Weasel's tail as he crept, oh, so softly after Mr. Crane.

"I won't do a thing to that old weasel," laughed the Policeman Dog, as he ran swiftly through the forest.

"My, but this camera is heavy," sighed Photographer Crane as he hurried along, slipping it off his back. "I guess I'll rest a minute or three," and he sat down on an old log. He didn't see Mr. Wicked Weasel lean around from behind a tree. Oh, my no.

And now, dear boys and girls, before I finish this story next Monday, get out your paints and crayons and color this illustration as carefully as you know how. Don't press too hard on your color pencil, nor splash too much paints and crayons and do your very best.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Norwich Well Baby Conference.

Your Friend and Mine, a play-play based on the essay read by Willard Mack, was shown yesterday for the first time at the Bijou theatre, where it was accorded an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Mack's play was planned in dramatic form in its transition from the spoken to the silent drama, and it has an absorbing story that is carefully produced and well acted by a capable cast.

Clarence G. Badger deserves great credit for his ability in making the dramatic moments in the picture as exciting as they are. The photoplay has real suspense, the story holding the spectator from the beginning to the end. The elaborate settings are carefully managed.

The cast assembled for the photo-drama is an exceedingly fine one. Willard Mack is seen in the role as created on the stage, and he acts with strength and authority; Enid Bennett is at all times charming, and restrained in her emotional scenes; Rigby Gordon is splendid in his portrayal; and among the others, Aileen Ray, Otto Ledrer, Harry Truby and J. Herbert Frank stand out.

Your Friend and Mine was produced by S-L Pictures (Sawyer-Lubin). It is released by Metro Pictures Corporation. Winifred Dunn wrote the adaptation. The photographer was Rudolph Berquist.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an educational comedy.

$2,000 Awaits Best Knitter in United States.

Who is she? Where is she—the best knitter in the United States? The one who can make a garment of unsurpassed beauty?

The Fleisher Yarn Company of Philadelphia is searching for her with a two thousand dollar purse. This is the largest reward ever offered for a knitted garment.

"The revival of interest in knitting," says the chairman of the governing board of the Fleisher Yarn manufacturers, "has raised the standard of needlecraft in the United States. It has developed a love of color heretofore unknown and influenced women's fashions materially. The knitting craze is one of the constructive results of the late war. From a fireside occupation for old women it has become the pleasurable pastime for women of all ages.

"We know that today there are not less than 25,000,000 knitters in the United States, a fair per cent of whom are men. Who is the best knitter? We are seeking to find that person, man or woman."

To make the knitting contest worth while to all knitters further awards of $3,000 are offered. One of $500; one of $200; 49 of $100; 49 of $50 and 49 of $25. There will be a second and third national prize of $300 and $200 respectively and three prizes for each state and the District of Columbia of $100, $50 and $25 respectively.

The contest is not limited to knitted garments. Any useful handmade article of yarn, knitted, crocheted or embroidered may be entered. The rewards will be made for the most beautiful useful article. In case of a tie, each tieing contestant will receive the full amount of the prize.

Poli Negri Great in Bella Donna at the Strand.

Incontestably proving herself the greatest tragic actress of the screen, Pola Negri, the famous European artiste, makes her debut in her first American made Paramount picture, Bella Donna, at the Strand theatre today. Suiting her personality and artistry to perfection, Bella Donna is a screen creation by this gifted actress that will live long in the memory of those who see this remarkable cinema classic, produced by that master director, George Fitzmaurice.

Pola Negri is at her best in the portrayal of such characters as Bella Donna, a notorious woman who marries Nigel Armine, an English engineer played by Conrad Nogel. When they go to Egypt, the spell of the tropics completely transforms her, and when she meets Baroudi, a desert chieftain, capitally played by Conway Tearle, she forgets her husband's love and clings to him passionately. When he suggests that she gain her freedom by poisoning her husband, she agrees. Nigel narrowly escapes death and when he learns the truth, their separation follows. Then comes the supreme tragedy of the story—Bella's return to Baroudi only to find herself scorned, her agony on seeing her husband cared for by the woman he really loves, (Lois Wilson) and her vanishment in the desert in the face of a fierce sand storm. In these scenes Pola Negri is at he rbest, and thrill after thrill is provoked by her wonderful artistry.

Mr. Nagel, Mr. Tearle and Miss Wilson, the featured players, render efficient support while the cast generally is of all star calibre. Bella Donna is one of the strongest pictures seen here in years, and no lover of supreme cinema excellence can afford to miss seeing it during the remainder of its run here.

The Three Keatons, for years one of the best known teams in vaudeville are reunited in Los Angeles, after a separation of five years.

But in The Electric House, Keaton's latest film released through Associated First National, it was necessary that Buster have a father and mother.

"Why not your parents, just for old times sake?" Director Cline said.

"A cording idea," was Buster's reply.

So in The Electric House, which is now at the Strand theatre, vaudeville fans, who remember the act, will see Father Joe and Mother Myra playing with their illustrious son. This comedy is not only a novelty but is a high voltage laugh vibrator. A news completes the program.

The management earnestly urges the theatregoers to see this program as soon as possible for the engagement is for a limited time only.

NEGRO PRISONER ESCAPES FROM NEW LONDON COUNTY JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 22.—Another prisoner at the New London county jail made a successful escape late Saturday afternoon when Albert Tyler, colored, and serving a six months' sentence for assault upon Wee Wah, a New York Chinaman last January.

Tyler, who had been a "trusty" several weeks, received his supper in the cell room about 5.30 o'clock and afterwards went to the jail yard. While in the yard Tyler observed that neither Jailer Winder Reed or Keeper William Gilbert were within view and decided to make a break for liberty. He did so and running into High street, he disappeared into Hempstead street and although a search far and near has been made by the authorities, Tyler has not been found. Tyler's escape was made known at 5.50 o'clock and after the police were informed, the jail officers started through the country in a search for him, but he was not found. Tyler would have obtained his liberty in July.

Tyler was arrested on the night of January 20th by Patrolmen John Cavanaugh, William Corcoran and Frank Linehan. Tyler had been in Golden street with two companions, one Louise Tucker, when he attacked Wah, knocking the Chinaman down with the butt of a revolver and then engaging in a row with a soldier. Patrolman Cavanaugh from the corner of Bank street observed a crowd collecting near Green street and as he approached Tyler, the Tucker woman and another negro, Joe Washington, Tyler ran behind an automobile and through Union street to Cross street. Cavanaugh put chase after Tyler and at Cross street, the negro pulled a revolver and threatened to shoot, but Cavanaugh kept closing in on the fellow and Tyler decided to attempt his escape. Running through Cross street to Union street Tyler managed to elude the officer and it is believed he did so by going through a yard to a nearby tenement occupied by negroes.

Cavanaugh when he realized that he had lost this man, decided to try and locate him by visiting negro residences, and going to a house on Green street he found Washington and the Tucker woman. Patrolmen Corcoran and Linehan were summoned and Washington was compelled to accompany the officers to Smith street where Tyler resided. Washington was ordered to seek admission to the house and when the door was opened, Tyler was found there. He had placed the revolver in a bureau drawer and had informed his wife, a bride of two weeks, that he had thrown away the cartridges. Tyler was brought to the police station and three days later was sent to jail.

James Smith, engineer of the freighter Lehigh, now unloading a cargo of lumber at the state pier, is under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, suffering from injuries, not of a serious nature he sustained early Saturday morning.

Smith was walking along Water street, presumably to go to his ship. When near the corner of John street he stepped into a small hole, causing him to be thrown, landing on his back and receiving severe contusions and abrasions. He was found helpless by the police and taken to the institution. Smith will be able to return to his boat within a day or two.

William Salering of No. 12 Reed street ,and Abraham Halpern of No. 215 Montauk avenue, have had their automobile licenses returned to them by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins E. Stoeckel. The licenses were recently suspended by the commissioner following Salering and Halpern figuring in accidents.

Arnold B. Hubbard has sold a house and lot on Darrow street to Adele Berquist.

Miss Anna Moore of Bank street and Miss Lillybelle Risley of Shapley street, patients at Lawrence- Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Saturday afternoon.

The condition of Thomas Foley of No. 138 Winthrop street, a freight brakeman in the service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, who was struck by an automobile, owned and operated by Charles Bennett of Dorchester, Mass., between Harrison and Winthrop streets, to the approach of the Thames river highway bridge Friday afternoon, is vastly improved today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital. Foley, it was believed had sustained internal injuries, but it now develops that the victim received only severe contusions and abrasions. Foley will be able to return to his home next week.

An automobile, owned and operated by James McVeigh of No. 91 Squire street, struck and felled the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Blonder of No. 47 Belden street, Saturday afternoon on Bank street. The child sustained injuries no worse than severe bruises. The child was playing on the sidewalk on Bank street, in front of his father's place of business when he darted from between motionless automobiles and ran into the street. Just at that time McVeigh's auto was about to pass and before McVeigh could bring the machine to a stop it struck the child.

A meeting of the New London branch of the Ku Klux Klan will be held in New London or vicinity on Monday evening, for it has become known that the body will initiate a large class. Where the meeting will be held, it is not known, but as the meetings heretofore have been held in the open in an isolated section of the outskirts of the city, it is probable that an out of the way place will be the scene of Monday night's session. The Klan has a large membership in New London for since the organization was started towards the late days of 1921 by members of the uniformed forces stationed at the submarine base, the membership has grown rapidly.

The police received a message from Philip Conwell of Brattleboro, Vt., Saturday afternoon, stating that a youth, Allen Conwell, had been drowned in the "bay" in New London within a day or two. The police have no report of any fatality by drowning and it is believed that the sender of the message has the wrong impression of what has happened to the young man.

Albert Frechette of Versailles recently appeared in New London and requested the police to aid him in finding his wife, who had deserted him. Friday night Frechette informed the police that he had located his wife and that "everything had been fixed up." Mrs. Frechette is now employed as a waitress in a New London restaurant.

A drop of nearly fifty per cent in the number of measles cases to develop in New London, was reported to the health department for the week ending Saturday. The number of cases of this contagious malady reported was but twenty-seven as against fifty-two for the previous week. Other contagious cases reported were one each of lobar pneumonia, tuberculosis and influenza and two of diphtheria.

All of the five stores in the Goldsmith building, corner of State and Main streets, have been leased the last of the proprietors of the stores who will occupy them being assigned Saturday. The leases are for long periods and means that there will be vacant stores for awhile on State and Main streets.

The Hart Fur company, Garfield block, has leased one of the three State street stores for a term of ten years. The Golden Rule market, on Main street, has occupied another of the State street stores for a like term while the Schulte Tobacco company, lessees of the entire building, will occupy the store on the corner of the structure. The Main street stores will be occupied by the Shu-fix company, now located on State street and the Economy Stores, operators of a chain of grocery stores throughout the city.

Edward Donohue, aged 13 years, residing at No. 112 Howard street, is reported as missing from his home. The boy's mother reported to the police Saturday morning that her son disappeared Friday evening about 7 o'clock. No trace of the young man has been found.

Bernard Luthansky, a youth residing at No. 17 Hill street, while riding his bicycle along Main street Saturday evening, was struck by an automobile, owned and driven by Charles Dunbar of Roxbury, Mass. The cycle was damaged, but the rider escaped injury.

Sunday afternoon promenaders were given a few minutes of excitement about 3 o'clock and it was all provided by a woman, who found her husband on the street and in a state of semi-intoxication.

The wife was in the vicinity of State and Main street when she espied her husband not heeding the throng of men and women that were passing, she upbraided him for his conduct, the woman's reprimand being heard for a block and causing a crowd to collect.

The husband was accused of absenting himself from home since 3 o'clock this morning and to have spent his time and money in a drinking place. While the woman censured her husband, the strain upon her was more than she could stand for she fainted, collapsing and falling to the sidewalk. Traffic Officer Frank Linehan, who was nearby, with bystanders, assisted the woman to an office building, where she was finally revived, but remained in the place until the crowd that had collected dispersed, when she and her husband departed.

Charles R. Noyes, a man addicted to the use of laudanum, and who has been in the county jail in this city a few weeks, will be taken to New Haven Monday where he will be arraigned in the United States district court, charged with having obtained the drug by fraud and the counterfeiting of prescriptions representing that they came from a practicing physician.

Miss Sadie Newman of New London, formerly employed in Hartford and now located in Providence, spent today with her sister, Miss Mary Newman of West street.

A grass fire that on Bayonet street burned over a considerable area, and which it was feared might communicate to adjoining buildings, caused a still alarm to be sent to fire headquarters this afternoon. The Thomas Hose company was sent to the scene and after a half hour's labor the firemen extinguished the blaze.

The treasury of New London lodge of Elks will be somewhat depleted as the result of their conducting a series of boxing bouts in Lyceum theatre Thursday night for the "benefit" of the Boy Scouts for the venture did not result in sufficient money being taken in at the box office to pay the expenses incurred. Although it is not definitely known just how much money the lodge will have to pay to take care of the bills, it is estimated that the treasury will be drawn on for a sum close to $200.

Some of the hootch drinkers in New London must be easy prey for the peddlars of this form of a thirst quencher, for within a week two men have been taken into custody who were supplied with plenty of funds to procure the beverages. Last night Antonio Bonoi of No. 12 Home street was found helplessly drunk on Woodbridge street, a section of the city where it is known that "hootch" is being sold in several places. When Patrolmen George Laboue and Michael O'Neill found Bonoi he was in such a state that the officers caused him to be transferred to a cell at the police station and before their victim was placed in the "iron" room, his possessions disclosed $212. A few days ago, William Rhodes, who claimed to belong in Hartford was taken into custody when he was found down and out. When arraigned in court Rhodes informed Judge Prince that he had but $5 to pay his fine, although that when he came to New London the day before he was in possession of $300.

NEW LONDON COUPLE DIED AT HOSPITAL SUNDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 22—Cold in death and lying beside each other in the Kelley undertaking rooms are the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cowan, aged 74 years each, who suffered accidental asphyxiation at their home, No. 212 Montauk avenue last Wednesday night. Mrs. Cowan died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital at 11.45 o'clock this forenoon and her husband breathed his last in another ward twenty minutes later.

Mr. Cowan, it was anticipated, would recover from the effects of the gas poisoning, but Mrs. Cowan's recovery was despaired of from the start. The former's condition, due largely to his advanced years, took a change for the worse Saturday and his decline was rapid.

A particularly sad feature of the double demise is that the couple had an endowment policy that would have expired within a year and they were looking forward to receiving the money that would permit them to enjoy their final days in more comfort and obtain more pleasure than they had enjoyed since their younger days.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowan retired about 9.30 o'clock on the night that their unconscious bodies were found. In retiring, it is believed that Mr. Cowan went to a gas heater in the kitchen and believed that he had turned off the flow of gas, but instead the cock was only partially shut off, which permitted the gas to enter the room. The couple soon fell into a slumber and while they slept they inhaled the poison fumes.

A half hour after going to their sleeping chamber, George Rogers, a young man residing in another section of the house, detected the odor of gas and conducted an investigation. When Rogers could not trace the escaping gas to the apartment in which he resided, he went to the door of the Cowan apartment, but could not gain admission and neither could he bring any response from the aged couple, yet the gas fumes were getting stronger. Going to one of the windows Rogers found one of them unfastened and he climbed through it, finding the couple in bed and unconscious.

Rogers opened some of the windows and then hastened for medical assistance. With the arrival of a physician the couple were transferred to the hospital, where they lingered until today.

JEWETT CITY

An automobile, Sunday afternoon, trying to negotiate Norman lane, off Main street, cleaned out a dozen feet of Dennis Barnett's picket fence.

Mrs. Edward Lambert of Worcester, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Chamberlain of Slater avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Lee of Webster, Mass., were Sunday guests of Thomas E. Lee and Miss Sarah A. Lee at their home on Palmer avenue.

This looks like one of the years that Dwight D. Tracy and T. E. Lee used to plant their first "Methodist" sweet corn on April 25. These two men did it for years, up to 1915; then it was discontinued on account of the ground being too cold and wet at that date. Strange changes in planting customs have been noted in the borough. Twenty odd years ago James H. Shea planted a field of southern corn on the "Plains" June 15. Old farmers laughed and predicted only fodder. Mr. Shea harvested a bumper crop to the acre.

Under the influence of three most remarkable midsummer days in April, as of August, with the mercury at from 78 to 85 every afternoon, the advance in buds and vegetation has been little short of wonderful. The big elms and maples all about the borough have put off their first spring dress of red and donned their new green attire, which means tiny leaves in a few days. Early apple trees, it is predicted, will be in bloom far ahead of time, if the weather remains at the present unseasonable temperature. Those who took walks afield Sunday were not able to note a stirring in the oaks. In fact the scrub oaks are still wearing their old rattling fall gown of last summer's dead leaves, many of which will remain until their successors come and push them from their stools.

Trouble in the electric service Sunday afternoon was not of local origin. The high tension wires between here and Plainfield were out of order. The borough was without lights for several hours. The K. of C. were not a little inconvenienced as a ceremonial session was in progress at Finn's opera house. Superintendent Hiscox looked up the matter and gave as definite information as possible.

Patrolman Martin Wolf of Goodyear, now on the night shift for the company, was a welcome visitor in the borough Sunday. Martin was looking fine as he called on many of his old friends here. He was a former police officer for the borough, assigned for several years to night duty. His record is remembered as standing to his credit.

Miss Mabel Wilcox, librarian at the Slater library, has received for the fund for the restoration of the Louvain library, from the trustees of Slater library, and a box placed in the library $18.75 and from the Riverside grammar school $10.18. Five hundred dollars has been sent to the national treasurer of the fund from Connecticut. The subscription list will be kept open until May 1.

That Jewett City has a multitude of bird lovers was fully proven last winter when so many thoughtful people here maintained their feeding boards and kept a piece of suet hanging in a tree or tacked to the clothesline post.

As the different summer sparrows are now arriving, many would like to know this one or that, and as one woman remarked, not have to call them all English sparrows.

The field sparrows came last week, not from so very far away, and in his cheery "cher wee" he is telling that he never goes south of the gulf for the winter. He is Mr. Spizella pusilla pusilla of the bird books. His red bill, brightly colored back and buff breast are outstanding parts of his April dress not to be mistaken. He is a gentle innocent little fellow, nothing like his noisy cousin, the English sparrow, that has had to struggle for his life in Griswold this last winter, and he made it, too. The white English sparrow that has lived here near the Baptist church for five years has not been reported since last fall. He was not noted in his accustomed haunts during the winter. The field sparrow's song is in keeping with his character, being a clear plaintive whistle. It is said of him that the same individuals have several different songs and that two individuals in the same locality rarely sing alike.

Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, K. of C., held a meeting with an exceptionally large attendance in the Finn opera house Sunday afternoon. A class of 40 were admitted to membership when the third degree was exemplified by a gilt-edge degree team in full ceremonial paraphernalia.

District Deputy John F. Hennon of Jewett City was in charge assisted by State Deputy John F. Callahan of Hartford, District Deputy Frank Cunningham, District Warden William Martin of Willimantic, District Deputy Day of New London, State Secretary Phillips of Hartford, State Treasurer Bradford of Willimantic and State Advocate Jerome Collins of New London.

Mrs. Arthur Strickland and two children, Marion and Arthur H., Jr., were Sunday guests of Mrs. Harry E. Paul.

Reliance lodge of Jewett City got away with the Thread City experts April 19 in the I. O. O. F. bowling contests by a margin of 20 points. The score:

Young Chickering at work on his first Piano
JONAS CHICKERING
Jonas Chickering arrives in Boston
His epoch making Grand delights the critics

A Nation-wide CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Honoring the Memory and Achievement of

JONAS CHICKERING

The Father of the American Pianoforte

One morning in April 1823—a hundred years ago—a pale, young man was seen nailing a sign over a small doorway in Common Street, Boston.

The sign read

J. CHICKERING
Piano Maker

THE pale, young man was Jonas Chickering, and he had just emerged from a period of seven years spent in study of the art which he was subsequently to develop so abundantly, and with which his name was ever afterward to be associated.

Today the world celebrates the Hundredth Anniversary of the nailing of that sign over the door of the little shop in Common Street—celebrates the beginning of a career of inventive genius which completely revolutionized piano making, not only in this country, but throughout the world, and established Jonas Chickering as one of the greatest inventors of all time.

IN BOSTON SATURDAY

IN the city where Jonas Chickering built his first piano, and where his great inventions were perfected, and where stands the vast present-day factory of Chickering & Sons, one thousand distinguished men and women, statesmen, leaders in music, business and society, from all parts of the country, sat at a superb banquet at the Copley Plaza Hotel, following a magnificent concert in Symphony Hall given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Erno Dohnanyi, Elly Ney, Germaine Schnitzer, Guy Maier, and Lee Patterson, to pay homage to this great American pioneer and to mark the Hundredth Birthday of the world-famous Chickering.

TODAY this name is known through the civilized world, the supreme expression of the highest art in piano making, and its background is musical achievement that parallels the musical history of our country.

It is significant that the greatest musicians, the musical organizations and leaders in every walk of life find in this great name something closely akin to a national institution, and desire to pay tribute to the magnificent results which are today the monument to the integrity, the high ideals, and the genius of its founder who nailed his sign over the little door in Common Street one April morning, a century ago.

Chickering

The Chickering has sung its way into the hearts of all who have come in contact with it—it is the best loved of all pianos. On this Hundredth Anniversary, its owner feels a deeper and more urgent pride in its possession and realizes anew the strength of the associations and fragrant memories that cluster about it in countless families who for generations have desired, and have had, only the Chickering.

NORWICH PREPARES WELCOME TO G. A. R. DEPARTMENT ENCAMPMENT

For the first time in about 25 years, the annual department convention of the Connecticut G. A. R. is to be held in Norwich, due to the fact that Orrin M. Price of Norwich is the department commander. The dates are Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Plans have been completed and arrangements made for extending the hospitality of Norwich and giving the visitors a royal welcome to the city.

In recognition of this event the people of Norwich generally are requested to display the national colors Wednesday and Thursday. The merchants have also been requested to display the colors during these days. Automobiles will be provided by public-spirited citizens for a sightseeing tour to the delegates and their friends during the days of the encampment. Tubbs' Military band has very kindly offered its services for a concert during the campfire meeting in the Community house on Wednesday evening. Frederick W. Lester will give an organ recital at that time and the Park church quartet will render selections.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church of Norwich. Mayor Waters will give an address of welcome and Department Commander Price will reply to the mayor's welcome. The Boy Scouts will act as orderlies insofar as possible during these two days and will serve as ushers and distribute the programs at the campfire meeting.

The people of Norwich are expected to make every effort to be present at the campfire meeting on Wednesday evening in the Community house and show by their presence at this open meeting their respect and devotion to the members of this grand old organization, the veterans of the Civil war.

The program as prepared during the encampment starts at 1 p. m. Wednesday noon with a business session lasting until 4 p. m. From 4.30 p. to 5.30 p. m. a sightseeing tour of the city and town will be afforded the visiting delegates and their friends. At 8 p. m. on Wednesday evening in the upper auditorium of the Community house on Church street an open campfire meeting, a splendid program having been arranged for this meeting, will be held and the general public is cordially invited to this meeting. After this meeting a reception will be held to the visiting delegates and the Woman's Relief corps will serve light refreshments in the lower auditorium of the Community house.

Thursday morning the delegates will convene for another business session and the election of officers for the ensuing year. At 1 p. m. the Woman's Relief corps will again serve a dinner in the lower auditorium of the Community house. The encampment will adjourn to meet again next year. The use of the Community house is donated to the veterans.

So far a fine splendid spirit of cooperation and enthusiasm has been manifest to extend the hospitality and the respect of the citizens of Norwich for the veterans. As a final touch, the general public is invited to display the national colors in all parts of the city and town and to attend the open campfire meeting on Wednesday evening. This may be the last opportunity that the city and town of Norwich may have of extending a hearty welcome and hospitality to the state encampment of the G. A. R.

The committee in charge or the arrangements is Mayor Milo R. Waters, H. M. Lerou, chairman, John J. O'Rourke, secretary, E. L. Bliven, Dr. H. B. Campbell, J. M. Lee, F. W. Lester, J. C. Macpherson, James McKee, T. C. Murphy, A. L. Peale, H. G. Peck and Orrin M. Price.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of Norwich:

On Wednesday and Thursday, April 25 and 26, the Connecticut department of the Grand Army of the Republic will hold their annual convention in our city.

In honor of these heroic survivors of that great contest, whose ranks are thinning day by day, I request the people to display the national colors throughout the city and the merchants to decorate their stores as much as possible.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

COUNTY HOME CHICKEN COOP ROOF BURNED

Four more fires were added to the long list of calls at the fire department on Sunday, bringing the total for the month to 41 calls—9 more than in April, 1922.

The largest and most dangerous fire was at the New London county home at 66 Smith avenue when the roof was burned off a large chicken coop near the main building. The call came in at 4.21 o'clock and the firemen had quite a fight before the blaze was extinguished. It was learned that one of the boys at the home had found a match and had lighted a lantern. Going into the coop in search of eggs, he reached into a corner and in doing so upset the lantern. Frightened at what he had done, he left the lantern in the coop and went into the main building, not telling Mrs. Gibson what he had done. In the meantime the fire that started when he overturned the lantern gained headway and before it was noticed had worked into the roofing. The loss by the fire will require the building of an entire new roof on the building.

The first call came at 8.06 for a fire in a trolley car at Franklin square. The damage was slight, but the car had to be towed back to the carbarn for repairs. A short circuit in the motor of the condenser caused the blaze.

At 3.57 there was a call for a fire on Mechanic street in the rear of the home of Benjamin Krieger. Boys playing with matches had set fire to the grass. There was little damage.

At 8.36 o'clock another chicken coop fire called out the department, this time at the home of Mrs. Patrick Shea of 152 Mt. Pleasant street. The damage was slight, only a part of the roof being burned. The cause was unknown.

NORWICH ROTARIANS WILL GO TO PUTNAM MEETING

A number of local Rotarians will go to Putnam this (Monday) evening to attend the Charter meeting of the recently organized Putnam Rotary club. Local Rotarians will be the guests of Rotarian Ed Regan of New London on a special train that leaves New London at 5.30 and arrives in Norwich at 6 o'clock.

Don Adams, district governor will be present and will be the principal speaker, Judge Frank H. Foss of Willimantic will present the charter to President John F. Reardon of the Putnam club.

NORWICH TOWN

Out of town relatives and friends in attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Hyde McCracken, widow of William Fulton, which was held Friday afternoon at her late home on West Town street, included Mrs. Frank Dowsett and son and daughter, Harry and Alice Dowsett, of New London; Mrs. Jennie Ellis and sons, George Ellis of Worcester, Mass., and Ralph Ellis of Providence, R. I., also Mrs. Mary Rood of Providence.

Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, who officiated at the services, spoke comforting words to the family. Rock of Ages and Jesus is Tenderly Calling were sung by Mrs. William Crowe. The bearers were James Rogers, William Burdick, George Randall and Louis Vergason.

Among the floral pieces were a pillow, At Rest, from Mrs. Ellis and sons; heart with Mother, from Arthur Fulton; casket bouquet from the Misses Rogers and Miss Bennett, and a casket bouquet from Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers, Jr.; wreath from Mrs. Minnie Edmiston, and bouquet from Arthur Fulton, Jr.

Besides two sons, Robert and Arthur Fulton, Mrs. Fulton is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Jennie Ellis, Mrs. Frank Dowsett and Mrs. Mary Rude, also several grandchildren.

Mrs. Fulton, who had been a resident of Norwich Town for many years, was a kind and helpful neighbor in times of need, and to her family was a loving and devoted mother, and in her home she will be greatly missed.

Mrs. Marie Forbes Judkins, chief district nurse of the New England District Veterans' Bureau, was removed by Mr. Edgar O'Crossman, head nurse of the Vocational school in Boston.

R. G. PLAUT DESCRIBES SOUTH AMERICA WONDERS

Rutherford C. Plaut of this city, who is making a South American trip, has written to a Norwich friend of the wonders he has seen in travelling from Argentine on the east coast to Chile on the west coast.

His letter follows:

It was on the morning of March 17, St. Patrick's day, that land was reported in sight. Directly ahead of us appeared early in the morning. A number of mountains and hills which resemble the old conventional bee hive, cone shaped. Between two of these which stand like sentienls we passed three and in among a group of them ranging in height from one to two thousand feet. We were soon following an opening which wound about between the hills like a broad river and we discovered shortly that this inland passage was the important harbor of Santos. Cadden was sick abed this day, having developed a fever of 103. The doctor on board, who was a very conscientious doctor, went right to work and in two days Cadden was on his feet again but rather weak and wabbly. We were all on deck when the boat pulled up alongside a wonderful modern docks, where all sorts of modern machinery was ready to relieve our steamer of its cargo.

I took the opportunity of our stay in Santos to take a side trip to San Paulo. The trip to San Paulo requires a bit more than two hours of time and will become when known to travelers one of the scenic pleasures of the world as it is now by reputation an engineering wonder.

Many years ago, a foreign syndicate was given a franchise to build this railroad, provided anything over a reasonable profit should revert to the government. Inasmuch as this railroad is the principal outlet of the great coffee growing district of Brazil, the profits have been enormous and the company has spent as much of the surplus as is possible. Silver trimmings are on the locomotives and they are kept up like a "Hamilton" watch. All culverts and sluice ways are lined with concrete and the surface is painted a glossy black. The stations and all equipments are most extravagant but substantial in character. The trip to San Paulo is made part way on a Cog railroad, or as they call it a Rack. We climbed on this Cog a short distance which brought us to an elevation of 2,000 feet from sea level, and above and below us was the deep tropical jungle with its mass of green, its trees of pink, and yellow colorings. Everywhere were Cascades tumbling down from the mountain tops. After the steep climb of the Cog, a regular Baldwin locomotive was hitched on to the train and we were whisked through a level country to the wonderful city of San Paulo. It was about three o'clock that our train arrived at its destination and the city reminded one of a live western manufacturing city. They claim a population of 600,000 people and it is enjoying a boom growth. The new hotel, the Esplinade, is a dandy. The population is mostly Italian and German. The greatest attraction here is the snake farm. At this farm which is really a scientific experimental, they raise nothing but snakes. These snakes are raised for the sera which is depended upon by the inhabitants of Brazil to save them from the fatal effects of snake bites. I arrived too late to see the snakes or the farm and must be satisfied to describe it to you as it was described to me.

They certainly know how to load coffee aboard at Santos but they were poor unloaders of freight from our boat and we were delayed here 13 1-2 hours. Alongside of us was another boat loading bananas, 200,000 bunches bananas at 40 milreis a bunch, figure that out, eight milreis to a U. S. dollar.

From Santos, our next stop is Montevideo, pronounced Monti-vi-day-o. We arrived here in the evening, and we went immediately to the sea shore resort called Parque. We were fortunate in getting a driver who could talk English, and I told him to call for us at eleven o'clock p. m. We had a nice dinner here and watched the Roulette Players in the attractive casino connected with the hotel. It is curious to note that this progressive republic recognizes and is indirectly a nation of roulette and other games of chance. Several casinos are conducted or at least countenanced and licensed by the city of Montevideo and excess profits from this source are devoted to maintenance of charitable institutions.

Our driver did not show up at eleven as we had ordered him and we were forced to hire another, and I instructed him [illegible] to the S. S. Southern Cross [illegible] they say "Si Si," which means yes. After driving us around for some time into the middle of the night, I understood he did not understand me, so pulled out my book and "steal" or means Valor in Spanish and "then" he said "Si Si" again and took us to our boat.

Uruguay is a country of beautiful flowers. The climate is such that roses grow in profusion throughout the year. They get indignant and say "No, we are not Spanards. We are Uraguayans." But the American will reply you certainly speak the Spanish language. Yes, we do speak Spanish, and you as Americans speak English. But surely you do not acknowledge you are English." And as the city of which they are so justly proud, has grown to a metropolis of nearly five hundred thousand inhabitants and is an immaculately clean city. We saw them scrub the streets. We are now leaving Montevideo for Buenos Aires, which is just one hundred miles away on the La Plata river which looks more like an ocean than river and is over a hundred miles wide in some places and the dirtiest looking water you ever did see, almost a terra cotta color. It was getting late in the afternoon when we saw B. A. every one calls Buenos Ayres B. A., so I will refer to it as B. A.

We would have had no trouble in getting there, the custom house here had not minnye pulled a bone and neglected to declare his hand satchel, this and our little knowledge of Spanish forced Mr. Cadden and his sister to sweat blood for a couple of hours, but they were fortunate in enlisting the services as an interpreter of a fellow passenger, one Major Davis who helped straighten matters out for them. I went ahead to procure reservations at the Plaza hotel, the finest hotel in B. A. There were 250 surgeons from the U. S. here, and they were going to sail for home on the Van Dyke this very night.

No matter where or in what manner one has traveled, he must be agreeably surprised by the charm and beauty of B. A.; a cosmopolitan city, possessing beautiful boulevards, parks, palatial buildings, theatres, museums, libraries, art gallaries, and beautiful suburbs in which reside its summer population, but beyond this it has a fascination which cannot be described and holds one in awe as do some of the famous capitals of Europe. The city although founded in 1530, was not permanently settled until the latter part of the sixteenth century. Its population now is more than a million and a half, and it is so situated that there is ample room for expansion. They seem to be a serious people and possess the desire for pleasure and social intercourse as testified by their clubs, their pleasure parks, their race track, theatres and opera houses. The Argentine jockey club is one of the greatest sporting clubs in the world and the receipts over and above expenses go to charity.

The Plaza the Congress is a great court of honor, in one direction along the Avenue de Mayo, the great thoroughfare (means Avenue of May), is the President palace, and in another with an imposing approach is the National Capitol. The many beautiful fountains and groups of statuary in the open spaces form one of the greatest attractions of the city. One of them, the gift of Spain to Argentina in 1910, the anniversary of its independence, is the most imposing and I regret to say the least imposing is the statue of Our George Washington, a gift of the U. S.

I was very glad to meet Prentices Chase of Norwich here. Prentice holds a responsible position with a very large French importing house, and he seems to enjoy B. A., and sends regards to all his old Norwich friends. Prentice invited Mr. Cadden and myself to the American club for luncheon, and we certainly appreciated the opportunity to visit this club. A friend of Prentice Chase, one W. Wheeler Spencer of Boston, connected with the National City Bank here, was with us. Spencer has the distinction of having been with Royal Flying corps from 1914 to 1917, and with the American Air Forces in 1917, and having eleven German airplanes to his credit. Spencer was also stroke oar of the Havard Varsity crew in '15, and knows Norwich and Gales Ferry real well.

Another friend of Chase's whom we met in B. A. was one Godfrey Jacoby, connected with the West India Oil Co., and a native of Stamford, Connecticut. Another peculiar coincidence was the meeting of Everett Thompson and wife. Several years ago Thompson was connected with the Norwich Bulletin, leaving there to manage and build the Yale Bowl in New Haven. He wanted me to be sure and tell Mrs. Dr. Brown that he was feeling very well and had entirely recovered from a severe sickness that he had contracted since he had been in South America. Mrs. Mary Gould Chandler, of Manchester N. H. was another acquaintance I made and Mrs. Chandler wants to be remembered to Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. Phillip Johnson and Mrs. Alice B. Prentice of Norwich.

Everett Thompson is a special representat of the United States Rubber Export Co., Ltd., of New York, and acts as a sort of diplomat between his company and foreign countries when any difficulties arise. B. A. has subways and no end of very fine eating houses and cafes on the sidewalks.

Now we are turning the corner we are preparing to leave B. A. and cross the mighty Andes, and go from the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific. The trains for this trip leave twice a week, Sundays and Wednesdays. We left on a Sunday at 9.10 a. m. For miles we passed quietly over the flat (Pampas) plains. The roads were wet and large fields covered with water were on each side of us. From the car window we saw myriads of wild fowl, at several places great flocks of flaming ges flew away. These birds are as large as swans, and the wing spread is from three to four feet. The Pampas are endless and for hundreds of miles they are as flat as a billiard table. Everything that grows in our western states will grow here. Occasionally we saw flocks of Ostriches and when I was sleeping soundly, Cadden would make me get up to see Ostriches. We arrived at a junction called Mendoza, Monday morning. This is the wine center of the Argentina, its fields for miles are filled with growing vines and purple fruit.

Although unusual a terrific rain had fallen for twelve hours and this saved us a lot of annoyance from dust, but we had some experience from the dust and cars, imagine what it might have been had it not rained when it did at this point we leave the broad guage railroad for a narrow guage road with several passenger coaches and a well stocked dining car. Our first stop is at Cachenta, this place has mineral springs which are said to cure many disorders, especially rheumatism. At Puenta de Inca, a wonderful natural bridge medicinal springs, and a good hotel combine to make a popular resort and now we are still climbing and climbing and wonder won't there be an end. We are all getting tired and all fed up on scenery as we retire to the diner for dinner. We were booked for the fouth setting but finally sat down at the sixth. All this time while climbing here, not a tree or a shrub just masses of piled rocks, some pink, some yellow, now and then a deep red, and once in a while a splash of green. At the boundary of Chile and Argentina a huge and impressive bronze Christus has been erected to symbolize the enduring friendliness of the two countries. It was cast from the bronze of an old Argentina concern and paid for by the money solocited by the women of Argentina. It was placed on the highest spot of the boundary line and bears the inscription "Sooner shall these mountains crumble into dust then Argentines and Chileans break the peace to which they have pledged themselves." This is sure a nice sentiment but these people are just awaiting a good chance for a good scrap.

About four p. m. we reached the summit. Just at this point the train slips into one of the greatest tunnels of the world. It is 10,284 feet long and 10,778 feet above sea level. Whenever this tunnel was built the calculations were so exact that at the junction there was practically no difference in the levels.

Here we begin our descent and at night we arrive at Los Andes. Here we spent the night for in the morning early we leave for Santiago, the capitol of Chile. The Pan-American Conference was assembled here at this time for a conference. We were lucky to find accommodations at the hotel Grand. This city is situated at an elevation of 2,000 feet on the river Mapacho in a valley surrounded by snow capped mountains. The site of the city is unusually beautiful and unlike other Chilean cities is blassed with rain. The troops of Chile are German trained and before the great war, the uniforms, hemlets and general uniforms were German, but have all been changed now to an English design.

We left here for Valparaiso in regular honest to goodness parlor car for Valparaiso. Valparaiso occupies a place on the long coast line half way between the upper and lower limits of Chile, and is entirely surrounded by the foothills of the Andes. In fact the city is nearly all built on several of them, many are so steep that it is impossible to mount them in any vehicles other than mexican cars. We visited the famous Vina del Mar, the Atlantic City of Chile. One thing of Santiago and Valparaiso that struck me and as being different from the other places. It was Good Friday and we saw the ladies going to church in their becoming "Manton," a sort of black shawl which covers the head like a hood, is drawn tightly under the chin and then is followed across the shoulders. It is sometimes made of very beautiful material. No woman may enter a church wearing hat or bonnet.

In the fashionable promenades we note how the youths stare at the ladies as they pass them by and make audible remarks on their appearance. This is not, we were informed, to be considered rude, on the contrary it is deemed to be the correct thing. The evening "Pasco" on promenade is perhaps the most characteristic custom of all Chilean towns. Everybody goes—young and old, rich and poor, but whenever the promenade may be, in the park, in the plaza, or in the alameda. The masses keep quite apart from the better dressed people, nor does there appear to be any jealousy or ill-feeling between them. Now we are on our last leg of our long jaunt. The steamer Santa Teresa is in the harbor waiting for us and will sail today, March 3th; at 4 o'clock. Valparaiso has no docks and we must go bag and baggage in a motor boat to our steamer, but before I leave Valparaiso I must tell you about the wonderful lobsters (crawfish) that they serve here. "Oh, boy!" Does it make your mouth water, Ah, it makes mine to write about it. Well we're off. And the next stop is at Coquimbo, Chile.

I met a John Kidnac at Valparaiso who was a classmate of Alex Finlayson when they both lived in Scotland. Kidnac is a big man in Valparaiso and asked me if Alex's little brother Hughie was in this country.

AMERICA FOR COMMERCIAL EQUITY FOR ALL NATIONS

Position Defined by Joseph C. Grew, American Minister to Switzerland, at Resumption of Near East Peace Conference—Division Made Into Three Committees, Each of Which Will Take Up Subjects in Dispute—Turkish Delegation Declares the Chester Concession Was Entirely Valid, Because Americans Knew How to Do Business on a Business Basis, Without Seeking to Exercise Any "Economic" Pressure Against Turkey.

Lausanne, April 23.—(By The A. P.)—Safeguarding of the legitimate national interests of the United States and of the principle of commercial opportunity for all nations was officially set forth today as the guiding rule of the American representatives when the Near East peace conference resumed its labors in an endeavor to restore peace between the allied powers and Turkey, and between Greece and Turkey.

Joseph C. Grew, American minister to Switzerland, and head of the delegation, made this clear in a brief inaugural speech following similar addresses by leaders of the other delegations. The conference then divided itself into three committees, each of which will take up subjects in dispute, and tomorrow active discussion of concrete topics will begin.

Minister Grew said the United States welcomed the resumption of the conference. It had reconvened on a substantial basis: an understanding had already been reached on a variety of important subjects, and upon this firm foundation the United States expected soon to see erected that edifice of a just and stable peace for which the world was waiting with eagerness. Of the position of the American representatives, he said:

"We are here for the same purposes and in the same capacity as before the adjournment, participating not on the footing of a belligerent against Turkey, nor as a party to the treaty of peace under negotiation between the allied powers and Turkey, but none the less in a fully representative capacity and with full authorization and competence to speak on behalf of the government of the United States."

Mr. Grew declared that, if other issues arose or should amplification of the American position be desired, the American representatives would avail themselves of the privilege of further statement or comment. He concluded:

"As far may be within our proper functions, and to the extent of our power, we wish to assist in serving the cause of peace."

Sir Horace Rumbold, the British leader, in the course of his address alluded to the brilliant war record of General Ismet Pasha, the Turkish foreign minister and chief delegate, but said he was convinced that Ismet was a man of peace as well as war. He bespoke for the conference a sentiment of good will and co-operation.

Ismet Pasha declared Turkey was second to no country in her earnest desire for peace. She had shown this spirit in the past and would show it in the futre. If all would act in good faith and in a spirit of conciliation and concession, he thought peace would be achieved, and he hoped it would be achieved as speedily as possible.

No mention was made at today's inaugural meeting with the Turks of the railroad or other concessions granted either to Americans or other foreigners, but the Chester concession continues to be the great topic of private discussion.

The Turkish delegation, through its spokesman, declared that the Chester concession was entirely valid, and was granted not because Chester was an American, or Turkey wished to favor the United States, but because Americans knew how to do business on a business basis without appealing to their government for help or seeking to exercise any "economic pressure" against Turkey.

The situation at the end of the first day appears to indicate that the conference may be chiefly a struggle between Turkey and France, to which Turkey owes the major part of the Turkish debt. The Turks say they want to free themselves from the economic control of France, but the French assert that they are merely trying to protect the legitimate investments of their people in Turkey and that already they have made great concessions.

The movement of irregular Turkish troops along the Syrian frontier has created apprehension in French circles as possibly indicating Turkish desire to embarrass the French mandate in Syria and embarrass France generally while she is in occupation of the Ruhr

NEW YORK OVERRUN BY CHARITY SWINDLERS

New York, April 23 —New York today prepared to rid itself of charity swindlers

Shortly after District Attorney Banton had announced he was enlisting the co-operation of city, state and nation against fakirs, once beaten but again alleged to be pocketing funds collected for the stricken folks of Europe, the Salvation Army made public a statement from Bird S. Coler, commissioner of public welfare, asking the police to protect the public against fraudulent solicitors during the Army's Home Service appeal next month.

"Because of the great work accomplished by this organization," said Mr. Coler "and the willingness of everybody to contribute to its annual appeal for maintenance funds, a particularly repreesensible type of imposted invariably takes advantage of the occasion to reap a harvest for himself."

"In the past these people have collected many dollars, and we do not intend to let such a thing happen again."

PRESIDENT TO ADDRESS A. P. MEMBERSHIP TODAY

Washington, April 23.—Departure of President Harding from Washington tonight for New York, where he will speak tomorrow at the annual luncheon of the members of the Associated Press, marked the real beginning of a series of speaking trips to be made by the executive during the spring and summer months to various parts of the country.

Through these addresses, of which about fifteen will be made during a trans-continental tour starting in June, the chief executive expects to account for his stewardship of administrative affairs, to re-state and reaffirm the purposes of his administration and to announce and explain the policies he plans to pursue during the remainder of his tenure of office.

NEW YORK DOCK EMPLOYE MAKES HIS 37TH RESCUE

New York, April 23.—John De Temple, 52-year-old employe of the department of docks made his 37th rescue today when he swam 100 feet in the Hudson river and saved Herbert Haggerty, 17 years old clerk from drowning.

Ten minutes later, after his clothes had dried, he was back at his work as a pile driver.

JERSEY RUM FLEET HAS INCREASED IN NUMBERS

Highlands, N. J., April 23.—The Jersey rum fleet has increased in numbers since it was inspected by federal prohibition officials.

ANOTHER BIG SILK ROBBERY IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., April 23—The fifth big robbery of silk materials and finished silk gowns and waists in Worcester within a few months was reported today to the police by Saul H. Feingold and Sons whose warehouse was entered last night and loot valued at $7,500 was carted away in a motor truck after the thieves had forced a rear window and bent the iron bars so they could enter.

TO MEET DEMANDS OF THE SEAMEN'S UNION

New York, April 23.—The American Steamship Owners' association today answered a strike call issued by the Seaman's union and the I. W. W. Marine organization, by the announcement that the wage scale on all ships owned by members of the association will be, beginning today, the same as that in effect on shipping board vessels.

Action was taken at a special meeting of the association at which members were urged to adhere to the wage scale until it is changed at a regular conference with a representative of the shipping board.

The appeal for a general marine strike on Wednesday was sent out in circulars issued by the Marine Transport Workers Industrial union, No. 510, of the Industrial Workers of the World.

The new wages on a monthly scale demanded by the union were: Carpenters, $85; boatswains, $80; able bodied seamen, $70; ordinary seamen, $55; oilers, $80; firemen, $75; coal-passers and wipers, $65. The association's scale in almost every case is $15 less.

Legal Victory For Eastern Railroads

Federal District Court Overrules I. C. C. Order on Interchangeable Mileage Tickets.

Boston, April 23.—The railroads of the east were successful in the federal district court today in their joint attack upon the interstate commerce commission's order of March 6 requiring the issue of non-transferrable interchangeable script coupon mileage books at a discount of twenty per cent. from their face value. A finding by Judges Mack, Brewster and Morris who, on April 12, heard the case of the railroads and the government enjoins the commission from enforcing its order and relieves the railroads from the obligation of placing interchangeable mileage tickets of a face value of $90 and good for 500 miles on sale at $72.

Commercial travellers have been especially interested in the interchangeable mileage privilege, which under a recent amendment of the transportation act by congress, the interstate commerce commission believed it was authorized and required to put into effect on May 1.

Forty-seven railroads oined in the petition for an injunction to restrain the commission from carrying out its order. They contended that the commission erred in its interpretation of the amendment and that it had no power to require the issue of interchangeable mileage. The decision of the judges while upholding the position of the railroads in this respect does not uphold the further contention of the railroads that the statute is unconstitutional.

It was understood that an appeal to the supreme court would be entered immediately on behalf of the interstate commerce commission. During argument of the case in federal court it was intimated that an appeal would be entered by one party or the other no matter what decision was rendered.

HEARING SUIT AGAINST FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY

New York, April 23.—W. W. Hodkinson, president of the W. W. Hodkinson corporation, an independent motion picture distributor, was the first witness called today in the federal trade commission hearing on the charge that the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and six of its affiliated companies constitute a "movie trust." The hearing is to decide whether the commission will bring suit, charging anti-trust law violation, operating methods and the reputed system whereby the companies involved in the alleged "trust" have cornered the film entertainment market were told from the stand by Hodkinson, a former president of the Paramount Pictures, Inc., a part of the alleged combine.

The complaint alleges the Famous Players-Lasky corporation dominates the exhibition field, and stifles competition preventing competitors from obtaining first run showing of their pictures. It is also cited that the corporation is the largest theatre owner in the world.

REPUBLICAN LUNCHEON AT THE HARTFORD CLUB

Hartford, Conn., April 23.—Vice President Calvin Coolidge and Harry L. Blair, assistant treasurer of the republican national committee, attended an informal luncheon of leading republicans of the state at the Hartford club today. The vice president arrived at 12.30 from Northampton, Mass., and was escorted immediately to the club.

The purpose of the gathering was the discussion of plans for the next presidential campaign, particularly with reference to finance and Connecticut's part in it. Governor Charles A. Templeton was not present because of a previous dinner engagement in New Haven. Among those who were present were Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham; former Governors Marcus J. Holcomb, Everett J. Lake and Rollin S. Woodruff, and J. Henry Rorarback, chairman of the republican state central committee.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF AMERICAN BANKERS

Rye, N. Y., April 23.—The present period of prosperity does not reflect inflation or a boom in the sense of over-stimulated activity, H. H. Puelicher of Milwaukee declared in an address to the executive council of the American Bankers' association, of which he is president, at the opening of its annual spring convention today. More than 300 prominent bankers from all parts of the United States are attending the meeting.

Advocating the spread of a wider economic education among the people at large, President Peulicher declared this would be one step towards continuance of prosperity. A better understanding of Europe's position in our economic situation also is essential he said.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL NOT BAR JAMES LARKIN

London, April 23—W. C. Bridgeman, the home secretary, declared in the house of commons today that James Larkin, former head of the transport Workers' Union, who was recently pardoned from prison by Governor Smith of New York, was privileged to come to Great Britain if he so desired.

The secretary made this statement in reply t oa parliamentary question urging the government to forbid the landing of Larkin in this country. He asserted that as Larkin was a British subject he could not be so restricted.

FIRE ENGINE AND AUTO COLLIDED IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, April 23.—The second collision here within a week involving fire apparatus responding to an alarm occurred here late today when chemical engine No. 3 and an automobile crashed at the intersection of Seaview and Connecticut avenues. Premier Mussolini Has Accepted Resignation of Members Belonging to the Popular Party.

Rome, April 23.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Mussolini has accepted the resignation of the cabinet ministers belonging to the popular party.

The Italian cabinet contained four members of the Catholic or popular party. Some time ago Premier Mussolini asserted that resolutions adopted by the Catholic party congress at Turin did not embrace frank adhesion to the fascisti government, and that therefore membership in the party and its participation in the cabinet were incompatible.

Thereupon the four cabinet members announced that they were ready to relinquish their portfolios.

GOMPERS WOULD HOLD IMMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS

Albany, N. Y., April 23—President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, in addressing the annual legislative conference of the New York state federation of labor today, declared emphatically against any removal of the existing restrictions on immigration, Mr. Gompers had been discussing the strikes of 1922, which, he said, were a part of the battle of the organized workers against the efforts of employers and business men to destroy the labor movement, which an endeavor he said, was bound to fail.

"Nor," he added, "is the policy of Elbert H. Gary going to prevail to throw our ports open to all the immigrants who may wish to come here. The countries from which the desirable immigrants come have not sent the quotas to which they are entitled, and we do not want the undesirable class of immigrants to come here and lower the standards of living."

Announcement that the conference would declared in favor of the repeal of the Mulian Gage state prohibition enforcement statute was made by Secretary Emanuel Koveleski.

TO MAKE ALLOTMENTS FOR RIVERS AND HARBORS

Washington, April 23.—Allotments from the $56,000,000 rivers and harbors appropriation, carried in the last army supply act, will be made immediately in the case of those projects being carried out under continuing contracts, Secretary Weeks announced today after a conference with President Harding.

The secretary of war explained that in the case of a number of projects work can be conducted most expeditiously beginning early in June and for those projects for which continuing contracts are held it was decided to make the money available as soon as possible.

The appropriation of $56,000,000 for river and harbor work was opposed by the president on the ground that the public treasury would not permit such a large expenditure, and there has been some doubt expressed as to whether the entire sum would be used. Congressional leaders favoring the large appropriations, however, have held that it was not within the province of administrative officials to limit the use of the money except to work for such economies as might be made under the act.

NO FUNDS TO EXPAND PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Washington, April 23.—Lack of funds is likely to prevent any material expansion in the present prohibition enforcement program until congress meets again, Secretary Mellon said today, adding that in all probability little could be done toward establishing wider enforcement until additional appropriations are made.

The treasury secretary said he believed air-tight prohibition enforcement could be obtained if sufficient money were provided. No estimate, it was added, has been made, however, of the amount that would be required.

As a result of Mr. Mellon's statement, it was developed that members of the cabinet at Friday's meeting with the president had suggested that the treasury, navy, state and justice departments draw up their ideas for expansion of the enforcement system with a view later of working out a program which would prove more effective than present methods. Use of naval craft to curb the activities of rum runners was suggested at the time—a suggestion of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes which has been looked on with disfavor by Secretary Denby.

YOUTHFUL MARRIAGES IN HOUSE OF DAVID

St. Joseph, Mich., April 23—Michigan's grand jury investigation of charges of immorality at Benjamin Purnell's Israelite colony of the House of David opened today with 14 young brides and 14 bridegrooms on hand to explain their sudden decision to be married in two group wedding last week.

The first witness—a girl bride—was on the witness stand before Judge Harry Dingeman of Detroit, the one man grand jury, for more than three hours undergoing examination by Attorney General Andrew Daugherty, assistant Attorney General Quay and George Bookwalter, assistant prosecutor of Berrien county.

The girl whose age was given in the marriage license as 17 is actually only 13 years old, according to county records, it was reported.

MORE FALL RIVER UNIONS ACCEPT WAGE INCREASE

Fall River, Mass., April 23.—The firemen and oilers employed in textile mills of this city tonight accepted the wage increase of 12 1-2 per cent., effective April 30, offered recently by the Cotton Manufacturers' association. The increase already had been accepted by the six unions affiliated with the Textile council.

The firemen and oilers, affiliated with the International Firemen's union, presented a demand in January for a wage increase of 29 1-2 per cent. A similar demand was made by the unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America. The manufacturers refused to negotiate with either body, but finally granted the 12 1-2 per cent. increase instead of 15 per cent. requested by a third organization, the Textile council.

SAYS OPERATING RAILROADS IS NO BUSINESS; A CALMITY

President Loree of the D. & W. Berates Regulatory Interference by the Government—Declares Commissions Are Controlled by No Standards of Law—Railroads Are Crumbling Under the Deteriorating Influence of Federal Commissions Empowered to Regulate.

New York, April 23.—Tracing railroad history in America tonight at a banquet celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the Delaware & Hudson Company, L. F. Loree, president of the road, asserted that regulatory interference with private operation had reached a point where "railroading is no longer a business; it has become a calamity."

On the centerpiece of the table at which Mr. Loree spoke was humming a motor-operated model of the first locomotive to ride the rails in America—the Stourbridge Lion, so named because its 7 1-2 tons of weight ripped up the rails and played havoc with the roadbed and flimsy track so carefully laid for its perfomance.

Around the table were directors of the D. & H. headed by Chauncey M. Depew, who is celebrating his 89th birthday.

Mr. Loree's history of transportation was a history of coal mining.

But, said Mr. Loree, the policy of couragement the government first adopted, in the form of land grants, tax immunities and other concessions, has become a policy of obstruction through the deteriorating influence of federal commissions empowered to regulate.

"The degeneracy of such a system is inevitable," he said. "It sets up a buyers' tribunal, controlled by no standards of law or equity, certain to become the advocate of those selfishly interested in depressing rates.

"All such regulation is inevitably ineffective to satisfy the hopes and prejudices of those by whom it is sustained. It cannot succeed, in this sense, because these prejudices and the hopes and the motivation of short-sighted self-interest, when not subject to the check of responsibility for financial results, are without limit. In consequence, every successive addition to the regulartory power results in renewed disappointment and this disappointment, exploited by the official body, is easily translated into pressure of still further power. In this way, the failures of regulation become, instead of recognied evidences of error leading to repeal, steps towards more drastic regulation. The end of such a progression is not difficult to foresee; in the case of railway regulation. It is plainly within the range of vision and takes the form of the disaster of government ownership and operation. This calamity, if it comes, will be the price paid for the incapacity of leadership that is apparently unable to find any escape from the grotesque and monstrous futility of adding every year to the super-structure of regulation.

"But it is not alone the railroads that are being destroyed; the very vitals are being torn from the body of our liberties, while the temptation held out to the producer to loot the savings of those who have invested in railroads is destroying the foundations of justice and morals upon which lone an orderly government can be maintained."

ELEVEN JURORS IN BOX FOR THE MORSE TRIAL

Washington, April 23—The jury which is to try Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others on charges of conspiracy to defraud the federal government undoubtedly will be completed tomorrow in the district of Columbia undoubtedly will be completed tomorrow in the District of Columbia supreme court. Eleven men were in the box at adjournment of court late today and as all except one of the twenty peremptory challenges allowed the prosecution and the defense have been exhausted, it be necessary at most, to qualify only two more prospective jurors to make up the necessary twelve.

Presentation of the government's case is expected to begin immediately after the jury is completed. Several hundred witnesses including a number of former officials of the shipping board and emergency fleet corporation, are to be called by District Attorney Gordon and it may be a month or more before the government rests. The defense also has a long list of witnesses. Subpoenas for some of which were received today by United States Marshall Snyder. They include Attorney General Daugherty, Senator Elins of West Virginia; Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post; Stuart Gibboney, of New York, and Fletcher Dobyns of Chicago, a former assistant to the attorney general who had charge of the government's case in its early stages.

FOUR JOHN DWIGHT VICTIMS HAD NO WATER IN LUNGS

Boston, April 23.—A report to the effect that four of the eight bodies recovered after the steamer John Dwight, supposed rum-runner sank in Vineyard sound on April 6 had no water in the lungs, was made to Colonel Alfred F. Foote, state commissioner of Public safety, today by an agent of his department who has been investigating the affair. The report said the skin was peeled off the faces of three of the bodies. The agent reached the conclusion that four of the men were drowned and four met death from some other cause. The medical examiner ha dpreviously announced that all of the men were drowned.

The state police, who have been looking into theories that a fight either among members of the crew or between the crew and pirates from some other vessel preceded the sinking, are now centering their efforts to find some further trace of three men seen in the vicinity at the time the bodies were recovered. These men landed from a motor boat on the Island of No Mans Land, although they displayed no outward interest in the bodies, they are said to have given some indications that they knew something about the movements of the John Dwight.

They spent the night on the island and in the next morning they were gone. By what means they departed and where they went is not known.

TO BRING NEW CHARGE AGAINST ANDERSON

New York, April 23.—Assistant District Attorney Pecora, who went before the January grand jury announcing that he would seek a grand larceny indictment against William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, today withdrew his case, but announced that he soon would submit additional evidence to another grand jury.

Investigation of Mr. Anderson grew out of charges by O. Betrsil Phillips, a former collector for the league, that the superintendent had been guilty of financial irrégularities by accepting a split on his commission. During the investigation it developed that directors of the league had paid Anderson 24,700 which he said the league owed him. Anderson declined to say for what purpose the sum had been spent, and Mr. Pecora claimed that if it had not been expended for league work, Mr. Anderson was guilty of grand larceny.

PRICE OF GRANULATED SUGAR IN CANADA RAISED

Montreal, April 23.—The Canadian sugar refineries today announced an increase of 25 cents per hundred pounds in the price of their No. 1 granuplated sugar. The price is now $11.25 per hundred weight.

AMBASSADOR HARVEY VOICES HIS REVERENCE FOR ENGLAND

London, April 23 (By the A. P.)—The American ambassador, George Harvey, speaking at the dinner of the Royal Society of St. George tonight said in part:

"Churlish indeed would be the spirit of a New England man which at such time should withhold honor and reverence from Old England, to which she owes her very being. Nor could she if she would, for both are true Englands, true to English principles, as against socialist theories, true to English Christian faith as opposed to bolshevist pagan practices, true to the highest aspirations, which they share and share alike—to raise higher and higher and bear further and further into the wilderness the torch of civilization.

"It is my high privilege to speak for the New England, and however halting and inadequate may be my words truly in my early environment may be found a certain measure of justification. My proud little native state of Vermont looks forth from her treeclad mountains and sparkling lakes upon her more populous sister commonwealths, serene in her consciousness of virtually undiluted ancestral stock. Not less than 90 per cent. of her entire population are directly and exclusively descended from adventurous sons and daughters of this kingdom.

"Can any of your countries boast less alloy? If so, I point to you my native township (Peacham), which contains no man, woman or child of other than English blood—not one."

Smilingly he exclaimed: "I have Marquis Curzon's—George N.—authority that all Georges are saints."

The Peachumites would then seek permission to name the Prince of Wales as the chief patron of their society.

And now, concluded the ambassador I speak as an unalloyed American for America, as I trust you will ever speak as unalloyed Englishmen for England when I voice the gratefulness of my country to your society for inviting Columbia to join with Cledonia, Australia, Canada and all the peoples throughout the world sheltered by Britannia in rendering homage to England secure in her matchless past still saddened, but serene and steadfast in her troubles present, resolute and confident in the contemplation of her glorious future—to England. Old England, undismayed, unaffaid, stately queenly, mother of us all. To her I am proud and happy to say no less than to you all, like the storied Ruth to the Hebrew singer of old: "Her very dust is dear."

DEPEW CELEBRATES 89TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS BIRTH

New York, April 23.—Birthday greetings from President and Mrs Harding, King George of England and scores of other friends found their way to Chauncey M. Depew's flower-banked offices today as he celebrated the 89th anniversary of his birth with a good hard day's work.

"The eighties are a wonderful decade but I look for calmer times in the nineties," said the famous octogenarian as he stood at the threshhold of the nonogenarian class with the assertion that he expected to pass the century mark.

His formula for longevity was simple:

"No cures, no fads, no medicine, no monkey glands, no dead-sure life-giving serums of any kind. A good wife a sensible diet and not much of it. That is the important thing—not much of it. I have very little time for exercise, but I believe the real secret of recreation is not eighteen holes of golf but being able to change from your daily vocation to your hobby.

"My great recreation in life—because it employs other cells of my brain than those I use for business—is making speeches. I used to make one every night, and I have twelve volumes of my published speeches."

CONFESSED KILLING OF RABBI ALFRED G. LAFFE

Phoenix, Ariz., April 23—A 19 year old youth, giving his name as G. G. Richardson, arrested here early this morning for investigation has confessed the killing of Rabbi Alfred G. Lafee, at San Francisco, about three weeks ago, police said late this afternoon. A diary found in his possession, police said, definitely connected him with the crime.

Automobile thieves are active in this section of the state. This fact was made known early Monday morning when it was found that at least three cars were stolen during the night.

Just after daybreak Monday morning, Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover went from his house to do his milking and found that his Ford touring car had been stolen from his garage. Mr. Frink and his son-in-law, Horace Hilliard immediately conducted an investigation and found footprints of at least two men near the garage. According to the wheel-marks the car had been driven in a westerly direction after leaving the yard.

Mr. Hillard's car was then secured and he and Mr. Frink started on the road in search of the stolen machine. After traveling about half a mile they came upon an Oakland touring car which had plunged through the state highway fence and lay in a wrecked condition. The machine bore the Rhode Island registry number 20-032 and the initials "L. A. M." were inscribed on the doors and on a card showing that the car was insured against theft.

Deputy Sheriff Frink then continued on in search of his car and Mr. Hilliard took charge of the abandoned Oakland and had it hauled back to the Frink garage.

It was learned later that every garage between the wrecked Oakland and Mr. Frink's home had been entered but without success as all the cars were locked with the exception of Mr. Frink's.

Later in the forenoon Mr. Frink located his car in Manchester where it had been abandoned on one side of the road after the gasoline supply had run out. The machine was not damaged. A new Essex car which had stood within a few feet from where the Frink car was left, was stolen by the thieves and they continued on their adventurous journey. The police of every nearby city have been warned to be on the watch.

The session of police court Monday morning was interesting and included intoxication, assault and reckless driving charges. There were five cases heard.

John Zalonz was charged with intoxication and he pleaded guilty. The members of a family at No. 33 Main street were the complainants and they stated that he came into their yard, called them vile names and then threatened to assault them. Zalonz was given thirty days in jail.

Edward Brenan was fined one dollar and costs amounting to $6.15 on a charge of intoxication to which he pleaded guilty. Another fine of one dollar and costs was imposed on Jan Morosk who pleaded guilty to intoxication. William H. Horton was charged with reckless driving and his case was continued until Friday morning of this week.

Mrs. Kate Zurowski was charged with assault on Bolek Patrofski, aged ten, and she pleaded not guilty through Interpreter "Jake" Heller. The Patrofski boy claimed that one of Mrs. Zurowski's children struck his little brother and when she interfered an older Zurowski joined in the fray with the result that a general fight ensued. A natural outcome was that stones were put into use and Mrs. Zurowski appeared and struck the complainant on the neck, it is said.

The court was of the opinion that the case was a boys' fight and with a sound warning to the boys that they should refrain from fighting, Judge Foss continued the case for one month.

About twenty local Rotarians journeyed to Putnam Monday night to attend the Charter Night of the newly organized Putnam Rotary club. The club officially received its charter which was presented by Judge Frank H. Foss on behalf of the Willimantic Rotary club. President John F. Reardon of the Putnam club received the charter.

Clifford C. Weeks, the eight year old son of William A. and Ellen (Phillips) Weeks died at the home of his parents in South Chaplin, Sunday night from bronchial pneumonia. He was born in South Chaplin, January 20, 1915 and besides his parents he leaves two brothers, Charles H. and Clarence A. Weeks of South Chaplin and two half-brothers, William Weeks of Plainfield and Irwin Weeks of Hartford.

Robert Macomber died at the Mansfield Training School and Hospital Sunday afternoon. The deceased was born in Franklin, Mass., February 20, 1915, the son of George E. and Lillian J. (Hunter) Macomber. The body is to be sent to Providence, R. I., for burial.

Valette De Loss Stearns died at the age of 80 at his home, No. 140 Church street Sunday from infirmities, due to old age. He had been in poor health for about five years and was confined to his bed for the past seven weeks. The deceased was born in Mansfield, January 22, 1843, the son of Captain Shepard Stearns and Lucy (Hyde) Stearns. He was born in the homestead in Mansfield which has been in the family for over two centuries. For many years Mr. Stearns conducted a large farm at Chestnut Hill, Mansfield. He spent seventy years of his life in Mansfield and ten years ago he came to this city with his wife and he resided here since.

Mr. Stearns was one of the outstanding citizens of the town of Mansfield, having served on the board of selectmen for several years and having represented the town in the general assembly during one session. He was also supervisor of road repair work in Mansfield and it was through his efforts that a part of the state highway from the Willimantic city line to Mansfield Center was improved at a time when the town was undecided about voting to appropriate the necessary money to complete the work with the aid of the state.

For about fifty years Mr. Stearns was active in the work connected with the Mansfield Center church. He was the first Christian Endeavor society president and for a deacon of that church for some twenty-five years.

The deceased leaves his wife, Emma Baldwin Stearns, a daughter, Mrs. Clarence E. Simonds, wife of Dr. C. E. Simonds; a son, Arthur T. Stearns of Cleveland, Ohio, a brother, Charles Stearns of Hartford, two grandchildren, Miss Virginia Stearns of Cleveland, Ohio, and Harold Simonds of this city.

Chief of Police Daniel J. Killourey has received a communication from George C. Erskine, superintendent of the Connecticut Reformatory at Cheshire in which it is stated that two Willimantic men are wanted at the reformatory, one for violation of the parole and the other as an escaped prisoner. Charles F. Earle of No. 25 Adelbert street, charged with attempt at breaking and entering and sentenced from the Windham county superior court May 12, 1914, is wanted for violation of parole on July 11, 1918. A reward of $10 is offered for his arrest. Arthur DeBois of No. 73 Spring street charged with [illegible] and sentenced May 17, 1917, escaped. A reward of $20 is offered.

Preliminary arrangements have been made for the holding of the annual Memorial Day exercises in this city and the Windhams on May 30. The committee in charge is from Augustus C. Tyler post, No. 30, G. A. R.

Lieutenant Jeremiah E. McCarthy will have charge of the pilgrimage to the cemeteries in the Windhams in the morning and Captain Frank P. Fenton will be marshal of the afternoon procession to the Willimantic cemetery.

A very pleasant surprise party was tendered A. D. Rail at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Laramie, Sunday in honor of his 71st birthday. A delicious chicken dinner of 75 covers was served by the hostess. Many friends of Mr. Rail called during the day to give their best wishes. Mr. Rail was presented a beautiful signet ring by his children and grandchildren. Among those present were guests from Boston, Cambridge, Providence, Bridgeport, Norwich and New York.

A call for a special city meeting to be held at the town hall Monday evening, April 30, at 8 o'clock, has been issued by Mayor Charles A. Gates. There are seven clauses in the warning. The first three are in regard to the levying of a city tax and setting the day when it shall become due and payable; the fourth in relation to an appropriation of $1,000 for the welfare bureau; the fifth, and sixth clauses concern the city ice, the former to see if the meeting will authorize an appropriation of $4,938.42 to pay for harvesting the recent crop in addition to the amount already appropriated and the latter to see if the voters will allow the city to enter into a contract for the sale of the ice for a four year period from January 1, 1924.

Miss Bernadette Ottenheimer has resigned her position at the office of the American Thread company and will enter the nurse's training school at St. Joseph's hospital on May 1st. On behalf of the office employes Charles W. Hill presented her a white gold wrist watch.

Mrs. Frank Larrabee of Prospect street returned Monday afternoon from Washington, D. C., where she went as a delegate from the local chapter to the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Judge Frank H. Foss who sold his residence at 208 Summit street will occupy the residence in South Windham owned by Mrs. William C. Fitch of New York, for the summer.

Ernest E. Bowen of Norwich was a week-end visitor with his brother, Clarence A. Bowen, of this city.

Stanley Sumner returns to Yale college Tuesday after spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Sumner of Summit street.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Herrick spent Monday in Worcester.

Mrs. Walter B. Knight of Windham street is visiting her sister, Mrs. Geo. H. Fowler and Miss Maude G. Reynolds in Pawtucket, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Stiles who have been in New York for three weeks have returned to their home in South Windham in company with Mrs. William C. Fitch and daughter Florence.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu." 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

MATCH STARTED BLAZE FROM AUTO'S GAS TANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, April 23.—A lighted match and gasoline tank again proved a dangerous combination tonight about 10.45 o'clock, and as a result the Ford roadster owned by L. A. Timmernian of Main street, New Britain, is badly damaged by fire. Mr. Timmernian drove his machine to a gasoline filling station at 630 Main street and proceeded to take off the cap of the gasoline tank and lit a match to see if the tank was empty—it wasn't!

Mr. Rosen, who was ready to fill the tank, was holding the gasoline feed pipe near by and there was a flash and the car was enveloped in flames. It was the work of but a few minutes to burn off the top of the car.

The filling talk was also threatened by the flames, but the proprietor grabbed up a chemical tank and used it on the flames, while spectators shut off the gasoline at the tank.

Morris Rosen rang in the alarm from Box 43 and Engine Co. No. 1 responded, and it was short work for them to put an end to the blaze on the Ford.

The top of the Ford was totally destroyed, the upholstery burned off and paint blistered by the heat.

The car bore the registry number 44-759, and Mr. Timmernian was on his way to Providence.

JEWETT CITY

Charles Edward Prior of Hartford, born and bred in this section, is doubtless the ranking philatelist and postoffice authority in Connecticut. His collection of postal matter, valued at thousands of dollars, has to show contributions from all quarters of the globe, and not one island of the seven seas, that maintains an authorized postal system, has been overlooked for its newest stamp editions.

Being a resident of the adjoining town of Lisbon (just across the Quinebaug from Griswold) for many years, Mr. Prior is naturally interested in anything that touches its welfare or pertains to its history. Not long ago, among some recently acquired postal matter, Mr. Prior found an old envelope, with a big green stamp attached. That was nothing new, but alongside the stamp clear and distinct, was the government postmark, Lisbon, Conn.

Hardly a man is now alive who can remember that Lisbon ever had a postoffice, duly authorized and maintained by the government. Mr. Prior had to admit that it was by him. He wrote dozens of letters to the older residents of the towns of Lisbon and Griswold, and found not a person able to furnish definite information. Last week, his friend, J. E. Phillips, in Jewett City, received a letter of inquiry. The right source had been located. Mr. Phillips, through information gleaned from his father, back in 1874, was able to positively declare that a post office once existed in Lisbon. A letter in hand from First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett to Mr. Prior containing the following hitherto generally unknown local information:

Lisbon, New London Co., Connecticut.

Postmasters.	Appointed
Thomas Kinsman	Jan. 15, 1822
Hiram Tarbox	April 26, 1836
Lyndes E. Bushnell	Nov. 14, 1849
John Batcheldor	Aug. 22, 1853
Jacob B. Batcheldor	July 7, 1857
Edward R. Rowell	April 18, 1859
Jacob B. Batcheldor	July 12, 1859
John S. Grant	July 28, 1861
John Batcheldor	July 15, 1863
Chas. W. Batcheldor	Aug. 3, 1865
A. W. Woodward	July 7, 1864
James H. Snow	April 16, 1866
James C. Vallet	Aug. 14, 1867
James H. Snow	Jan. 23, 1868

The name of the office was changed to Versailles, May 13, 1872.

The Lisbon postoffice, established 100 years ago last January, was situated in the old stone house between the Versailles and Occum mills. Many people in this section will notice some of their ancestors' names among the list of the postmasters of three generations ago.

Charles Morgan, gate tender at the state road railroad crossing here, did Sunday afternoon, just what a good many wished might be done. For two hours he kept accurate tabs on the vehicular traffic that passed through his gates, bound north and south over the state road, and made the following report to Policeman Henry Velgard. Between 3 and 4 there passed an even 200 automobiles and during the next hour 205 automobiles, one horse and buggy, two bicycles and five motorcycles. Four hundred and thirteen vehicles in 160 minutes, only a little short of one every 15 seconds. The man on the corner said it reminded him of Columbus circle at 59th street in New York.

Justice of the Peace William R. Palmer and a state official were called Saturday to two nearby towns, to hold court sessions, in both of which Judge Palmer was to "sit in chambers."

The cases were practically identical, and in different towns, neither being Griswold. Attorneys had been retained in both cases. Judge Palmer listened to the various arguments and stories presented by both plaintiffs and the defense, looked the ground over, presented his own opinions to the several litigants, and as a result both cases were settled out of court, with everybody satisfied from the attorneys down.

Which someone adds, "Was going some."

Together with the rapidly growing interest in this section in rifle shooting, is noted also the growing evidences of local skill in marksmanship. The targets made by Jewett City and Voluntown riflemen, in the last week's contest show for themselves.

Both Mr. Kaufmann and Mr. Palmer, target makers of more than local note, say that in time, after systematic practice, they will have a couple of dozen men here and in Voluntown, who will shoot so fine and sure, that deviations which occur will be traced to imperfections in the gun, rather than to the skill of the marksman.

Scores of the Voluntown Rifle club, 50 shot offhand match:

John Kaufmann	495
George Sheldon	493
Rudolph Magrey	487
James F. Hall	483
John Hall	483
C. Melvin	476
Jim Hopkins	455

Edmond medal, 10 shot match:

John Kaufmann	97
Rudolph Magrey	94
George Sheldon	94
James F. Hall	89
Everett H. Hiscox, Jr.	88
Bob LaClaire	83

The benefit dance at Pachaug town hall Saturday night under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. James Crary was well attended and very much enjoyed by all the guests present. The most pleasing feature of the evening was the presence of Sheriff Dolan, who kept a watchful eye on the property of the guests which was much appreciated by all present. Pachaug's faithful standby, Prof. Gilbert, prompted in his always pleasing way, as repeated encores to the figures and square dances testified. A fine program of music was furnished by Driscoll's orchestra.

Complaints are made of the speed with which autos are driven around the circle in Carely avenue, no warning being given of their approach.

Dr. S. H. Holmes is in a serious condition at his home on Carely avenue.

Miss Jessie Hyde of Norwich Town, Miss Gertrude Ladd of Hanover and Earle Palmer of Lisbon, all members of the official board of the Norwich C. E. Union visited the Congregational C. E. Society on Sunday evening.

The funeral services for Mrs. Hugh McLaughlin were held from St. Mary's church Monday morning. Requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Tyler, who also officiated at the grave. Face to Face was sung as a waiting hymn by Mrs. Noel Garand.

PLAINFIELD

Grange Hall was crowded last week when the Plainfield grange worked the third and fourth degrees on three candidates. The degree team was in charge of Irving Dawley and Mrs. Ernest Buell and the work was most excellent. Miss Ella Gardner, as master, rendered her part in such a manner as to call forth much commendation. There were visitors from the granges at Ekonk, Canterbury, Pachaug and Washington, R. I. The representatives from the Washington grange were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Greene who spoke interestingly on the good of the order.

Clifford Weeks, a boy of 9, and a brother of William Weeks, died on Sunday in Chaplin. The body will be brought to the home of Harry Green and burial will take place here.

Prof. and Mrs. Samuel Warner have concluded a week's visit with Mrs. Warner's parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Wilson, and returned to Cambridge. Prof. Warner is spending a year at Harvard conducting extensive research work for the American Institute of Criminology.

William B. Prentiss of Providence was at home early last week.

HOPKINTON

The annual financial town meeting was held at the town hall last Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Only about 25 taxpayers were present. The usual reports were presented by the town officials. The treasurer reported that the debt of the town had been decreased to the amount of $7,060.23. The overseer of the poor reported that three persons had been aided at the town farm and five outside, and tramps lodged and fed 33. Appropriations of $42,300 were made, of which $18,000 was for public schools, $1,500 for text books and supplies and $2,500 for maintenance of school buildings. Six thousand dollars was appropriated for roads and bridges, and the remainder for various objects usually supported by the town.

One new appropriation of $1,500 was made to hire fire trucks when needed from surrounding towns. The salary of the town clerk was fixed at $600 in addition to all fees. The salary of the town treasurer was fixed at $200.

The town council was authorized to exempt new industries to the amount of $10000 from taxation for ten years. The tax rate was continued at $2 per $100 on real and tangible personal property and 40 cents per $100 on intangible personal property. The town council was authorized to investigate the cost of rebuilding or repairing the Ashaway bridge and report July 12th at 2.30 p. m., standard time, to which date the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. A. Irene Mills is suffering from a severe cold.

Miss Phebe Langworthy has been taken to a hospital in Providence, where she had an operation, and is reported doing as well as could be expected.

As Mr. Jensen, an employe of the Ashaway Woolen company, was passing under a chute in the mill he was struck by a descending bale of card waste and suffered a fracture of a bone in his ankle. He was taken to a New London hospital. His wife died recently.

The pupils and teachers of the public schools have enjoyed a vacation the past week.

Mrs. Thomas Mercer and her two sons have returned home from Havana, Cuba, where they spent the winter.

STONINGTON

Owens Field on Saturday was the scene of a second game of baseball played between the Stonington High school baseball nine and the alumni team. The alumni team won, 11 to 10.

Friday a birthday party was held for Miss Elizabeth Walsh by her parents at their home on Water street. Many gifts were presented Miss Walsh who celebrated her 18th birthday. Refreshments were enjoyed by all.

Saturday a fire was noticed in the old boiler shop building at the shipyard by Mrs. George Keller. A pile of sawdust was found to be burning, presumably caused from some one dropping a match. Extinguishers were taken to the scene from the fire company's quarters. The fire was soon put out.

The large derrick scow of Capt. Davidson was loaded at the shipyard Monday with heavy timber and taken to New London. A large amount of machinery is already to be taken away at the end of the long wharf. Some of the big logs have been cut up and most all the wood here has been sold.

George C. Lane of Stafford Springs was a caller here Saturday.

Miss Anna Sliney has returned from a trip to Norwich.

The Y group will meet with Fred Buck on Orchard street Thursday evening. This will be a special meeting.

The new home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund P. Hyde on Elm street, now under construction, is nearly up, the roof. This is to be ready for occupancy by early fall.

NOANK

Groton Long Point, is having its roads put into commission for the spring and summer. The leveling off and grading of the streets is being done and much gravel has been put on them to make them possible. The board walk is being entirely re-built.

The cottages are being re-decorated and a general cleaning is being done.

POETRY

THE COWARD THOUGHT.

To have a care—a dark, foreboding care,
To dread tomorrow and the even-tide,
To see in fancy in the very air
The ghosts of those who of ambition died;
To doubt the power of your strength and will,
To hunger, crave—to see the rabble fed
While you stand by and question good and ill,
Nor dare to taste ambition's wine and bread;
That is the coward thought.

To hoe your candle with its glimm'ring light
Because it doth not with the sun compare,
To hide your talent from the whole world's sight
Because another ten hath to declare;
To let contentment eat into your soul,
To hide behind suffocating mode,
To see afar the bright and shining goal
Yet doubt your eyes to find its golden road,
That is the coward thought.

Have you the coward thought within your mind?
If so my friend, dispel it ere your sun
Shall set for you and leave the night behind,
And mere remembrance of a day begun.
Have you the coward thought?
—Charles L. H. Wagner, in Boston Transcript.

TROUTING TRIBULATIONS.

Have you softly "cussed" the "skeeters"
As around your head they sang,
Waiting till your hands were busy
Ere they settled down and stung?

Have you when you've made your false cast
Said a word much worse than dang?
As you sent your fly a-whirling,
Find you've snagged the overhang.

How the thunder did it happen,
Yes, you know you'd cast just right;
Where the deuce did that branch come from;
Must have grown there over night.

How the little gnats keep busy,
In your eyes and up your nose,
Planting infinitesimal stingers
Any place where there's no clothes

Heaped invective on the black flies
That in myriads haunt your path
Drown your red evaporated
Stamping right and left in wrath.

Then just as you hook a good one,
You are made a mental wreck,
As a whirling buzzing gadfly
Carves a piece out of your neck.

Still withal you've had a fine time,
And your outing's been a treat,
For you've learned life's greatest lesson,
"Take the bitter with the sweet."
—A. Lloyd Lack.

JOHNSON OUTPOINTS FULTON IN OPINION OF NEWSPAPER WRITERS

Jersey City, April 23.—Floyd Johnson, the young western heavyweight, outpointed Fred Fulton, of Rochester, Minn., in their 12-round no-decision contest here tonight, in the opinion of a majority of the newspaper men at the ringside. Johnson kept on top of Fulton throughout 11 rounds, pummeled him almost at will, but weakened in the final round and appeared on the verge of being knocked out. Fulton's showing in the last round was not considered enough, however, to overcome the lead his young opponent had piled up in the early rounds.

As a result of the newspapermen's decision, Johnson will be the opponent of Jess Willard, the former heavyweight champion, in a 12-round match at Yankee Stadium on May 12.

Fulton landed but seldom during tonight's contest but when he did connect he shook Johnson. The Minnesotan made little or no effort to shake off Johnson whose rapid-fire punching was bewildering. Fulton went to his knees once in the first round but did not take a count. Fulton weighed 210 pounds and Johnson 190.

Luis Firpo, the South American champion, shook hands with the boxers before the contest.

The New York newspapermen at the ringside were unanimous in their decision that gave Johnson the margin on points Fulton was given three rounds. The last one by a decisive margin and the fifth and eighth by a shade. The fourth and seventh were rated as even and the others were given to Johnson.

George Lavigne, San Francisco welterweight, had the best of Al Shaddy of New York in the eight-round semi-final.

RECRUIT PITCHER HOLDS YANKS TO THREE HITS

New York, April 23.—Washington made it two straight from New York today. Warmouth, a recruit left-hander, defeating the American league champions, 2 to 1. Warmouth yielded only three hits, and pulled himself out of a bad hole in the eighth inning when he filled the bases by Walking Bush, Witt and Ruth. Pipp then popped to Peckinpaugh.

Bush also pitched well, and was aided by three double plays. Washington won in the first inning, scoring two runs when Rice was hit by a pitched ball and scored on Goslin's triple. Harris's single then drove in Gossett. New York avoided a shut-out in the ninth when Meusel doubled and scored on two infield outs.

DODGERS SCORE FIRST RUN IN 24 INNINGS, BUT LOSE

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 23.—After 24 runless innings, the Dodgers scored three runs in the sixth chapter of today's game overcoming a two run lead gained by the Giants by bunching three hits off Vance. The Dodgers lost the game, 4 to 3, however, when the Giants rallied in the ninth for two runs on four singles. Vance had held the champions down to four hits up to that stage.

The Dodgers had men on first and second with nobody out in the ninth, but a double play stopped them. Stengel's timely hitting featured. Score:

WHITE SOX AND BROWNS BATTLE TO 14-INNING TIE

St. Louis, Mo., April 23.—Chicago and St. Louis played fourteen innings to a tie today, the game being called on account of darkness. The score was 7 to 7.

The visitors had a two run lead in the ninth, but McManus singled scoring Gerber and Tobin who had walked, tieing the score. After the White Sox got a way to three run lead in the first two innings, Gerber singled scoring E. Robertson, who had doubled. Williams hit into the right field bleachers for his second home run of the season, scoring Gerber and Tobin, who also had singled ahead of him.

The Browns could not retain their lead, however, as the visitors tied it in the next inning and took the lead in the eighth. Then came McManus' single which saved the locals from a defeat. The score:

RENEAULT SIGNS TO SUB FOR HEAVYWEIGHTS

New York, April 23.—Jack Reneault, Canadian heavyweight pugilist, today signed a contract to replace, in case of an emergency, any of the four principals in the main bouts of the milk fund show at the Yankee stadium on May 12. Jess Willard is matched with Floyd Johnson and Luis Angel Firpo with Jack McAuliffe, 2nd., in the principal bouts.

The contract was signed in accordance with a recent ruling of the New York state athletics commission, designating Reneault as first substitute in case any of the scheduled contestants were prevented from participating.

AUTRALIA MAY YET PLAY FOR DAVIS CUP

Sydney, Australia, April 23.—(By the A. P.)—Australia may yet be numbered among the nations taking part in this year's competition for the Davis cup, the premier team trophy of the lawn tennis world. A public subscription has been started with a view to providing a business substitute for J. O. Anderson, of the highest-ranking players, thus making him available for the team.

RICKARD HAS SIGNED CARPENTIER FOR BOUT WITH IRISH CHAMPION

New York, April 23.—Promoter Tex Rickard today announced that he had matched Mike McTigue, Irish-American conqueror of Battling Siki, and Georges Carpentier, for the world's light heavyweight championship, on July 14, either at the Yankee stadium or Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Rickard completed negotiations for the match after receipt of a cablegram from Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier, accepting terms for the Frenchman. Joe Jacobs, McTigue's manager, signed with Rickard several days ago on behalf of the titleholder, who is now in Ireland.

Financial details were not disclosed, but it was understood that McTigue was guaranteed about 35 per cent for his end of the purse. Carpentier, it was said, would get around 20 per cent.

The contest was set for a later date than at first planned because of Carpentier's inability to come to this country before July 10, it was announced. He is matched to fight Joe Beckett, English heavyweight, in London on June 4.

SAILOR MICHAELS MEETS MARSHALL ON THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, April 23.—When Sailor Michaels of the Submarine Base steps into the ring in the town hall here Thursday evening to meet Ted Marshall, light-heavyweight champion of Rhode Island, the boxing fans who will assemble from far and near will in all probability see the fastest and cleverest bout that has been staged in Danielson since the Casino Amusement company came into existence last fall.

Here are two men who can go, like to go and will go. They have the strength, the skill and the endurance to furnish the fans with a great show and that is what is promised. Those who saw Sailor Michaels in action here a few weeks ago do not have to be told about his capabilities. He is most impressive there with a pair of clever hands and a cool and calculating head. The lad that beats him will have a busy evening.

However, Ted Marshall is confident he can turn the trick, so when they hook up for what is scheduled 10-round go Thursday evening, he will have his chance. Marshall has been doing some wonderful milling around Providence, especially at Mariceville, Rhode Island's boxing capital. Sport writers rate him one of the classiest men seen in Providence in action for a long time. He is tremendously aggressive and powerful, as shown in a recent go with Battling Jim Walker, a tough negro fighter, when he was almost put out and then came back and gave Walker a beating.

Noah Brusso, much touted Attleboro fighter, is another on Marshall's list of victims. Dick Kerr has twice been beaten by Marshall in sensationally fast battles, and Kerr is a thunderbolt in action, too. From this it will be evident that Sailor Michaels has his work cut out for him Thursday night and the pair of them are sure to make a corking go in the ring. Marshall has made such a great showing the past year that he is rated one of the best light-heavyweight fighters in the east.

In the semi-final Thursday night Mickey Welch of the Submarine Base will go against Johnny Ray, a fast boy from Pawtucket, scheduled at 128-130. This looks like a good hook-up, too.

In the preliminary [illegible] Billy Glynn of Norwich [illegible] Young Choquette of Danielson 6 rounds at 136 pounds, and Young Bernier of Danielson is matched for six rounds at 120-122 pounds with Red Rankin of Norwich.

ENGLISH GOLFERS PESSIMISTIC ABOUT BEATING U. S. TEAM

London, April 23.—(By the A. P.)—The vanguard of the American golfing expeditionary force of [illegible] amateurs who have crossed the Atlantic to give the English players a chance at the Walker cup on their home grounds—arrived today. They found the game's ancestral homeland most pessimistic regarding the chances for victory in the approaching battles with the Americans, the first of which will take place at Ryc next Saturday, when the Americans will box the Oxford-Cambridge golfing [illegible] team, composed of E. W. E. Holderness, Cyril Tolley, Roger Wethered, N. L. Hooman, R. H. de Bois[illegible]ey and Ellis, Briscowe, Darwin, Gillies and Mellin.

The early season's competitions have resulted in the widest discussion of the question of the paucity of British golf, from the viewpoint of lack of new and potential talent, while the amateur prospects, considered more difficult to analyze, seems equally dark.

On Saturday a team of the leading men players was heavily defeated by women players at the annual competition between women and men players at Stokepoges. Tolley was the star of the day by halving a match with Miss Joyce Wethered, the women champion, after giving her half a stroke. But Tolley's feat was counterbalanced by one member of the men's team losing by 7 up and 6 to play to a woman opponent.

All the trouble is with putting. Every day the professionals get poorer and shorter in their green shots and the fear is everywhere expressed that the British game is suffering from a malignant recurrence of the old-time malady, "putting paralysis."

Last week's competition at Purley has been characterized as the worst exhibition of putting ever seen at a gathering of professionals—100 of them.

EASTERN LEAGUE MEETING AT JEWETT CITY TONIGHT

The fate of the Eastern Connecticut League rests on the result of tonight's meeting at the Ashland club in Jewett City.

There are four clubs who are much enthused over the prospects of a big baseball season especially if a league of six teams of the desired calibre and location can be organized.

Conditions are such as to indicate a big year in baseball circles for eastern Connecticut this season, business is booming and wages are high, a very desirable combination for successful promotion of outdoor sports.

The league as conducted last season proved to be the least expensive to the promoters of the game and at the same time afforded the fans an opportunity to witness some real battles betwen the rival towns in this part of the state, and it is a safe bet that if the league again goes through that there will be greater rivalry and harder fought games than has been enjoyed in this section for a number of years. It is a fact that the bitter rivalry that the fans enjoy, subsided to some extent with the passing of the old Eastern Connecticut league some thirteen or fourteen years ago.

There is every reason to believe that this old time rivalry can be revived, and it is up to the teams in this section to form a league for this purpose as it is doubtful if it can be done in any other way.

The fans were just getting warmed up at the close of last season, and the sentiment is in favor of league ball from the fans' standpoint, and by giving them what they want, and in no otherway can baseball be successfully conducted in any locality.

Every team in eastern Connecticut is invited to attend this meeting which will be called at 8 o'clock.

FOURTEEN AMERICAN GOLFERS ENTER BRITISH TITLE PLAY

London, April 23. (By the A. P.)—Fourteen Americans who have just come across seas and two well-known American residents in London are entered for the amateur golf championship play in which will start May 7 on the links of the Royal Cinque Ports club at Deal.

The entries have closed, and the only American who has drawn a bye is Dr. O. F. Willing of Portland, Oregon, who in the second round will oppose Robert Gardner, Jr., an American living in London. Dr. Willing also is the only visiting American to fall into the first quarter of the draw, which includes three scratch British players, Roger Wethered, the Honorable M. Scott and W. B. Torrence.

In the next [illegible] F. Nevitt of San Francisco, [illegible] meet Alexander Russell, [illegible] Montclair, N. J., [illegible] will oppose Arnold [illegible] of Shrewsbury, England. MEXICAN RECOGNITION.

Information which comes from Washington to the effect that indications point to an early recognition of Mexico means the awaiting of developments with interest.

It is unfortunate that there has not been a recognition of the Mexican government before this. The trouble, however, all lies with Mexico. This country has been desirous of reestablishing former relations, and has repeatedly made it plain that the only thing that stood in the way was the unwillingness of Mexico to furnish a proper guarantee of the rights of American subjects and propery.

As Mexican governments have changed the United States has hastened to extend recognition in the belief that Mexico would live up to its promises. Repeatedly has it found that it was being played with. Promises loomed big until recognition was obtained and then they were forgotten. Americans were being killed without much effort being made to check such practice or punish those responsible, and plans were developed for the seizure of property rights.

It was folly to permit such a situation to continue. It was in fact against the best interests of Mexico itself. The United States therefore demanded that Mexico furnish a guarantee to the effect that Americans would not be deprived of property or grants which had been legitimately obtained and that American lives would be respected.

There has been no question but what conditions have greatly improved in Mexico under Obregon and it is to be hoped that the Mexican government has been brought to the point of thoroughly understanding the position of the United States and that nt is prepared to meet the situation. We are not seeking unjust advantages, but we are insisting upon proper respect for our rights. For its own good Mexico should be anxious to do its utmost in that direction. It means as much for the best interests of that country as it does as a protection to this. The day of a full understanding cannot be reached any too soon.

RESPONSIBILITY OF COURTS.

That there is a large responsibility resting upon the courts in connection with the enforcement of those laws which are depended upon to insure greater safety on the highways is coming to be more and more recognized. And it is not solely the observer of conditions or the highway user that is conscious of it. The motor vehicle commissioner of Massachusets has recently found reason for criticising the manner in which intoxicated drivers of automobiles have been treated.

Prompted by the recent case at Pittsfield where a drunken driver plunged into a group of people waiting for a trolley car and causing two deaths Commissiner Goodwin says "What is the effect of this failure of the courts to mete out proper punishment to the drunken operators? We see it in the terrible accident that happened at Pittsfield."

Concerning the part which the courts are playing he gives the record of the particular court which must deal with this affair, and relative to the drunken drivers' cases he says: "In the last 19 cases fined in this court, ten were fined $100, one was fined $75, three were fined $50 and two $25."

The inference that is to be drawn from the statement of the motor vehicle commissioner is that the court is not meeting its responsibilty, that it is not doing what it can to discourage such highway dangers, but is on the other hand by the leniency displayed giving encouragement to that very thing that is snuffing out lives and making it increasingly dangerous for those who use the roads.

Recklessness of any kind should not be winked at. The idea of a slight fine for an intentional disregard for the safety of others is due to be regarded as nothing more than a license, and certainly if courts permit the idea to be gained that they are not giving serious consideration to the menace to the lives of others that such recklessness entails it is well that there are such officials as the Massachusetts commissioner who feel that it is their duty to insist that the courts should shoulder the responsibility that is theirs.

LAUSANNE AGAIN.

With the resumption of deliberations at Lausanne by the representatives of the allied nations and Turkey another effort is to be made to bring about an adjustment of the near east situation. All are in agreement on certain features. The Turks are willing to yield on some points. The allies are inclined to compromise on certain provisions, but it remains to be seen whether they can get together. There is considerable ground for any compromise to cover before an agreement is possible and yet the need of reaching an understanding has long since been apparent.

A new phase of the discussion will develop because of the recent recognition by the Angora government of the so-called Chester concessions. This brings the United States into the matter in a new way. Rights which were extended to Americans many years ago have been given new recognition regardless of the fact that other nations, France in particular, take the view that it is an interference with the rights which they claim as the result of the war and victory.

This country has declared for the open door policy in Turkey. That was its attitude before the action of the Angora government on the Chester concessions, and it is because the special interests of other countries interfere with such a policy that opposition has developed to the Chester grants. There seems to be no good reasons why equal rights to all should not exist in the near east as well as in China.

CANOE FATALITIES.

Capsized canoes with loss of life has come a bit earlier than might be expected, but the warm days have aroused a desire for pleasures which are indulged in regardless of the risk or the ability of those concerned to overcome it.

Four New York boys in a canoe were thrown into the water Sunday when the waves from a ferryboat hit and upset their frail craft. Three could not swim but they were fortunately rescued as they clung to the overturned canoe. The fourth, who could swim, believed he could reach shore but drowned before help could reach him.

At Springfield four boys hired two canoes Sunday afternoon. They immediately began doing stunts and acting in a reckless manner without regard for the fact that they were depending upon a cockleshell for safety. It was only what was to be expected when one of the canoes was overturned and the two occupants began struggling in the water. Neither could swim and but for the timely assistance from those on shore funeral arrangements would now be underway.

It would be interesting to know just how many lives are lost while canoeing during the months when such pleasure is being indulged in, and also how many there are who have similar narrow escapes. The frequency with which the news of the day contains references to such cases should serve to direct greater attention to the danger involved, the importance at least of knowing how to swim before entering such a craft, and likewise the wisdom of giving some consideration to personal safety by the conduct displayed while in such perilous place.

The canoe is no place for developing a fit of recklessness. Too often is it the case that those who do are permanently cured. It is a sad but nevertheless final experience and the lesson that is involved is one that should make a stronger appeal to others who have a chance to profit thereby. Unless one can swim and is prepared for it, he might as well try to race for a crossing with a locomotive as to do stunts in the unstable canoe.

CALLING PENN. TO ACCOUNT.

Some little time ago Pennsylvania filed a protest with New York against the idea of placing an embargo on the exportation of electrical energy from the Empire state. New York has the opportunity to develop vast amounts of electricity from its many water power privileges and Pennsylvania considers that it ought not to prevent the current being sent beyond the borders of the state. It feels much as any other state would feel and quite the same as some of those in New England feel against Maine which is unwilling that there shall be a development of water privileges in that state for the purpose of sending electrical energy into other states.

But while Pennsylvania is taking a broad and sensible view regarding the proposed action in New York state it is being called to account by the president of the Boston chamber of commerce for the attitude it has taken in regard to the tax on anthracite. When the Keystone state proceeds to tax anthracite, on which it holds almost a monopoly, it simply invites other states to indulge in the same policy. New York isn't taxing its electrical energy that Pennsylvania wants but it is disposed to restrict it. Pennsylvania doesn't like it but it seems to think that it is treating other states justly by imposing a tax on coal.

In calling Pennsylvania to account for this conduct by making a protest against the tax and asking where the policy is going to lead to, a proper step has been taken. Pennsylvania, however, is planning on large outlays in spite of the demands for retrenchment and the elimination of waste and it is a question whether it will look beyond its own selfish requirements in taxing its natural resources.

SOME ASSISTANCE

"Bobby, dear," began the sweet young thing in her best sisterly manner after dinner, "don't you think it would be nice if you would run down into the basement and bring up some kindling and cannel coal so that we could have a blazing fire in the fireplace this evening?"

"I think it would be a durned nuisance," frankly said the rude brother. "I can't see in the least where the nice part of it comes in! Whenever you suddenly yearn for a fire in the fireplace it's because you have a beau coming, and when you have a beau what do I get out of the fire? I have to beat it! And father and mother have to beat it so that you and your beau can sit and moon in the firelight! I don't think it would be nice in the least and you've a crust to ask me!"

"Thank you for nothing!" the sweet young thing said tartly. "You've heard mother say a thousand times how much she loves a grate fire and all I was thinking of was pleasing her, and then to have you be so horrid——"

"Now, now!" said the clever mother protestingly. "I am sure that was very nice of you, Barcelona."

"You said the same thing the last time you hypnotized me into carrying the coalhod for you," the rude brother reminded his sister heartlessly. "Only that time it was father of whom you were thinking! Poor father worked so hard all day for us and when he was a boy he had so enjoyed the big fireplace down home and we ought to think more of pleasing him—and then in comes this Lemuel St. George and in ten minutes you had all the family frozen out of the room! Wasn't there a draft on father over in that chair? Why not sit in this one, father—and after father had stood the chair which fitted him nowhere for three minutes he decided he'd rather sit up in the bedroom rocker, which is too far away from any light to read in.

"And mother—had she written Aunt Emily and told her about those things? So mother trotted off to tell Aunt Emily about those things—and as for me—this Lemuel gives me one of those suetie looks which mean I-snould-likejolly-well-old-chap-to-poison-you and when I timidly ventured a remark you didn't seem to hear me, so I went out into the kitchen and ate what was left of the steamed pudding and had indigestion."

"Never mind any more, Robert!" broke in his father. "You don't want to make your sister cry, do you? If she wants to have a fire in the fireplace when young men call she is merely employing the inalienable right of woman from the dawn of history to inveigle man into thinking what a cozy, comfortable place is a home!

"Why, when a girl can produce a fireplace in working order the battle is practically over? When two persons sit in front of a fire they never sit very far apart and there is something about the flickering flames which impels them to hold hands and look into each others' eyes——"

"Hurray!" chuckled the rude brother. "Dad is next, Barcelona!"

"I think you are both utterly horrid!" the sweet young thing declared vigorously. "When you know I wouldn't turn my hand over to attract any man on earth! When all I am interested in is making our home cheerful for the family! And then to have 'em so suspicious!"

"Now don't you worry about the family, dearie," the rude brother told her. "I'm going over to Bill's pretty soon and I'm sure mother and dad wouldn't for the world have you spend your whole beautiful evening fussing over an old fire just to make them happy! Merely the knowledge that you wanted to do it will cheer them up like sixty! It's lovely to realize how they appreciate the least evidence of real affection——"

"Not a single soul has said they—he—was coming to see me tonight!" defended the sweet young thing.

"I think that car that just stopped out in front," the clever mother interrupted, as she gathered up her sewing and rose, "is Glue Feyversmith's new Applesauce Twelve, Barcelona! Yes, he's coming up the steps!"

"Well, I'll go get the coal and things," said her father, throwing down his newspaper. "If she wants a fire it's all right!"

"Aw," said the rude brother, already halfway down the basement stairs, "if this really is a serious matter I'll help! Gee! Fancy Barcelona married and me getting a little peace!"—Chicago News.

Teachers' Pay in Other Days

Mr. Editor: I see by this morning's Bulletin that Mr. Jewett of Clark's Corners has found an old receipt which calls for $11 per month and board extra.

Now I have in my possession a book that records every school meeting in the following district, (records of the proceedings in third school district in second school society in Franklin as set off from second district in society meeting held the 10th of October, 1826) until the present time, and I find that on October 14th, 1833, it was voted that each person interested in the school shall furnish wood in the proportion of 1-2 foot per scholar, said wood to be prepared for the stove before school commences.

I find under date of Oct. 14th, 1836: Voted to hire John L. Whitman to keep our school 4 1-2 months and give him eleven dollars per month, board himself and leave it to the district if he keeps a good school; if not dismiss him."

I find under date of April 21st, 1852 "Voted to employ Mary E. Bailey as teacher of said school at one dollar per week exclusive of board."

Under date of Oct. 4th, 1852: "Voted that our committee be instructed to secure the services of Mrs. Laura Hazen at $2 per week to keep our district school for the term of 16 weeks, commencing on the first of the Nov. next.

If Mrs. Hazen cannot be obtained, he is to secure the services of Miss Mary E. Bailey at $1.56 1-4 per week for the same term and commencing at the same time. If Miss Bailey cannot be obtained he is to propose to Miss Sarah Ayer the same terms, viz. $1.56 1-4 per week for 16 weeks."

You will notice this is $6.25 per month. Miss Bailey and Miss Ayer lived in the district and without doubt boarded at home. Mrs. Hazen did not live in the district.

I find by an old register that "Joseph B. Ayer commenced school in Moll Flanders district (now Gagertown) on Nov. 10th, 1829, at $10.50, boarded myself."

Yours,
LLOYD P. AYER,
Franklin, April 21, 1923.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mrs. Herbert C. Hoover, who is presiding over the national convention of the Girl Scouts in Washington, this week, is the wife of the secretary of commerce in President Harding's cabinet, and a woman of wonderful personality. She first met Mr. Hoover while both were students at the same college. After their marriage she shared many of her adventures in various parts of the world. She was for six weeks under fire at Tientsin, during the Boxer uprising, and during one bombardment served tea to those working the guns. On another occasion a shell passed through the house in which she was playing solitaire. Mrs. Hoover is a deep student of the classics, a writer of ability and a fluent public speaker. She was co-author with her husband of a book on Agricola's knowledge of mining.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove hair from arms, neck or face make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

strongly intrenched in the near east from the standpoint of trade and commerce.

At home we produce so much more than we consume that it is in keeping with national thrift and efficiency that we find outlets for our products wherever possible.

The political situation in the near east is, of course, not yet stabilized, but sooner or later things will settle down, and America should then be in a position to compete with all nations for the rich trade of these lands.

One cannot visit these countries, many of which have a civilization as ancient as the oldest document of human history, without being impressed with the fact that the younger generations are adopting a new viewpoint toward life. These people are today weighed down with traditions and customs that are entirely out of step with modern progress. But the young people are becoming imbued with the ideals of Western Europe, and the next few years will witness pronounced changes.

These facts especially impress the American visitor to Turkey. Constantinople suggests a city soon to enjoy a great commercial awakening.

Americans stand high in the eyes of the people of the near east. They are impressed by our altruism. They have been deeply moved by our unselfish policies in dealing with problems involving the general good of mankind. And it would in no sense disabuse them of these sentiments were American business interests to display a more aggressive attitude. In fact, closer commercial contact with us would be beneficial to these people as an educational influence. It would teach them the superiority of modern efficiency in business as compared with their archaic methods.

There are many phases of thrift. The development of broader markets for American products would, as one aspect of thrift, mean the elimination of waste at home. And it would mean also the introduction of thriftier methods abroad, because as we become greater sellers we also become greater buyers and greater teachers.—American Thrift Society.

Wives of Famous Men

Isabella of Castile, Wife of Ferdinand of Aragon.

Isabella of Castile, "the Mother of America," is often called Isabelle the Catholic, so devout she was. Living in the splendor of one of the most pompous courts in Europe, she was a true disciple of the Lord. Also, she assumed all the responsibility, as well as the glory, of a sovereign. She had every desirable quality of a queen and a woman. In addition to this, she was endowed with a rare beauty, and her suitors were innumerable.

Strange as it may seem, and contrary to all rules of romantic fiction, the man to whom Isabella gave her heart was the one whom it was politically desirable she should marry. The uniting of the great kingdoms of Aragon and Castile was on eof the few political marriages wherein either or both of the principals did not suffer.

Isabella's greatest claim to fame, however, lies in her sponsoring of the Columbus expedition, which culminated in the discovery of America. She listened to the plans of the mariner when all others dismissed him as a lunatic. She pawned her jewels to furnish him with ships and men so that he could prove his claim that the world was round. This great sacrifice demonstrated her strength of will, as well as her unusual vision. Spain has had no greater queen.

CHILD TRAINING

TEACHING YOUR CHILD SELF-CONFIDENCE

By Helen Gregg Green

"Mummy, look at my airplane. Look, Mummy, dear! Look!" begged six-year old Carroll. "Isn't it just a beauty?"

"Calm yourself, Carroll, your airplane is no better than Micky's. Besides, honey boy, it is nothing to get excited about."

Carroll's happy little face fell, and his eyes lost their sparkle.

"Guess it isn't much good, Mumsy But I did think you'd like it." And Carroll and Micky picked up their once-prized airplanes, and shuffled out of the room as if half ashamed of having shown so much enthusiasm.

"I must kill his egotism," Carroll's mother exclaimed. "He's simply full of it."

But a mutual friend of Carroll's mother and of mine, a wise, young-for-her-years grandmother, though differently:

"My dear Zelia, you haven't the right perspective at all. There's a vast difference between egotism and self- confidence. Nothing wrong with a dollar claiming it's worth a hundred cents, is there? The fault would be claiming anything less for itself. A child will grow and expand because of self-confidence. He will learn to develop qualities and a character that will have to live up to his self-esteem."

Carroll's mother interrupted.

"But I think—"

"Pardon me, my dear, but I still have the floor," laughed the little Wise One. "You did not play fair with Carroll when you told him Micky's airplane was as well built as his. It was not, and you know it! Carroll knows it, and Micky knows it. You were deliberately trying to shatter a wonderful possession, self-confidence. It's the 'I cans!' and 'I wills,' that make the most out of life. Not the 'I can'ts' and 'I won'ts.'"

Carroll's mother's face was radiant. "Thank you, dear, I'm so grateful," she smiled. "I guess all of us need to be wakened up sometimes. I had never thought of my boy's sureness in his ability in the light of self-confidence before. I'll change my 'aystem' this very day."

That was four years ago, and Carroll's mother's "system" has been a different one these four years.

Carroll is now a charming youngster, full of poise and self-confidence.

His teacher tells me she thinks he's an admirable boy.

"What is his best characteristic, Miss Lloyd?" I asked. "What is there about him that appeals to you most?"

"It's his self-confidence. His belief in himself," she told me.

"And do you encourage this in all your children?" I was very much interested.

"Indeed I do!" she answered. "To many children get little encouragement at home. Will parents never learn the great difference between egotism and self-confidence?"

I walked away, wondering, too.

WOMAN SICK TWO YEARS

Caused by Troubles Women Often Have—Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Medina, New York.—"I had a great deal of trouble such as women often have, and this affected my nerves. For over two years I suffered this way, then I read in the 'Buffalo Times' about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have taken it with very good results. I am very much better and feel justified in praising the Vegetable Compound to my friends and neighbors who suffer from anything of the kind."—Mrs. WM. H. ADKINS, 311 Erin Road, Medina, N. Y.

Feels Like Girl Sixteen

Rochester, N. Y.—"After my twin girls were born I was all run-down. My neighbors thought I was going to die. I saw your advertisement in the paper and bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me and I kept on taking it. I only weighed ninety pounds when I began taking it, and I have gained in weight and feel like a girl of sixteen. I never can say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. NELLIE DORSEY, 16 Sioux Park, Rochester, N. Y.

Now is the time to fight constipation with Bran—Start to-day!

Don't give the disease that follow in the track of constipation a chance to lodge in your system! Get after constipation with nature's greatest helper—BRAN, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled—because it is ALL BRAN and because it will give you permanent relief from constipation! It is scientifically prepared to relieve suffering humanity from constipation and it will do that.

Bran's action is wonderful. It sweeps and cleanses and purifies. It knocks out the dangerous toxic poisons and frees the system from pollution! Try Kellogg's Bran for a week. Eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls each day; as much each meal in chronic cases. You will be astounded at the difference in your feelings!

Kellogg's Bran should not be confused with common bran which is unpalatable and difficult to eat. Kellogg's is cooked and all ready to serve and really delicious. Eat it as a cereal, sprinkled over your favorite hot or cold cereal or cook or mix it with hot cereal. In the latter cases add two tablespoonfuls for each person.

Do you realize what Kellogg's Bran can do for you and for your family; do you realize that it will keep sickness away; that it will put every one on a new health footing; that it will free you all from pills and cathartics?

Kellogg's Bran is particularly delightful made in raisin bread, in macaroons, popovers, muffins, etc. Recipes are printed on each package.

You will say that Kellogg's Bran is a blessing to humanity.

All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran!

Stories That Recall Others

Never Seem to Understand

Her doctor had ordered her to the hospital for a slight nasal operation. She was all excited about it and her husband heard many telephone conversations to other women friends.

"You should see the darling slippers I bought today," he heard her tell one friend.

"My new pink negligee is a delight to the eye," she told another.

"I'm having trouble in finding stockings to match my slippers, but I heard they had a new assortment at so-and-so's, and I'm going down tomorrow," she chirped cheerily to another.

The next day the startled and bewildered husband called up the physician.

"Say, Doc, what hospital did you order my wife to?" he asked. The doctor named the institution and then there was a pause.

"Well," said the husband," I didn't know. Judging from the amount of fancy flufferings she's buying, I thought she was going to be operated on at Monte Carlo."

Father of the Horse

Because Harold had been reading about George Washington at school his mother gave him an illustrated book about Washington. The first picture in the volume was that of George Washington on a horse, gazing with a wrapt expression at a part of the country of which he is supposed to be the parent. Under the picture was the caption, "George Washington, the Father of His Country."

Harold opened the book and began to read, "George Washington—George Washington, the father—" but there he halted. Finally he appealed to his mother.

"Study the picture for a while, and see if you can make it out," his mother advised.

Harold did study the picture. Suddenly he had an inspiration, and almost bursting with pride shouted: "I got it now. George Washington, the father of the horse."

MISS COGSWELL ADVOCATES SCHOOL HOUSE GARDENS

Gardens for each of the 200,000 school houses in America were advocated recently by Miss Amy L. Cogswell, principal of the Croton, (Mass.), Lowthorpe school of Landscape Architecture for Women, in outlining suggestions for National Garden Week this spring.

"Every school should have a garden as a part of its teaching, for a garden is a perpetual reminder of the need of good leadership and good citizenship," said Miss Cogswell, whose home is in this city.

Gardens would be an especial asset to our city schools, for it is in cities that gardens have a particular element of appeal. Experiments with school gardens have demonstrated the fact that a school garden stimulates an interest in the cultivation of all gardens. If work is begun with school children today, in time America will be known as the land of gardens, and its barren waste places will be made beautiful.

"The necessity of preserving bird life and wild flowers should also be taught in seminars on school gardens. May walks should also be a part of the course of study for every school class. The necessity of daily exercise and of eating larger quantities of fruits and vegetables could also be emphasized by focusing attention on gardens.

"The mysteries of soils, fertilizers, seeds and of the care of gardens, could also be taught as a supplement to the regular school curriculum. Every step of a garden from the planting of the harvest, could be taught and the lesson of patience, and of tender guardianship could be instilled in every child's character in this fashion.

"If a school is to have a garden, do not have a nameless garden. Simple markers for each flower or vegetable bed can be obtained and the names of the things that are being grown can be plainly marked on the labels, with planting dates and approximate dates for the ripening of the crops. Record keepings of this sort instinctively instill order in children and encourage them to accuracy and perseverance. The school which teaches gardening to its pupils, opens up a new realm of existence. It initiates children into the beauties and charms of outdoor life and it encourages children to become ambitious to have gardens of their own at home, thus bringing a new interest and new delight to every household.

"If we are ever to have a great back-to-the-land movement in this country, we must first instill in the hearts of our citizens a love of the outdoors and of growing plants and flowers. Then the problem of how to get people of the city into the pure air where they can live a normal healthy life, will be solved.

"Garden week will have achieved success this spring if it results in the teaching of fundamental principles of gardening to children, for the things that the children of this country want the things that will come to pass."

There are men who quit telling you how smart they are only to inform you what smart children they have.

C. J. McArthur Declares Tanlac Ended Stomach Trouble and Built Him Up 20 Lbs.

"By sticking to the Tanlac treatment, I got what I was looking for—perfect health," says Cornelius J. McArthur, 35 Williams St., Cambridge, Mass., contractor and builder for the past forty years. Mr. McArthur is also Justice of the Peace, and one of the city's best known and most influential men.

"In 1913 I was operated on and afterwards had a long, tedious sickness from blood poisoning. I couldn't regain my strength, or work for a long time. My appetite was gone, and gas caused awful pain in my stomach and made my breathing difficult. A bad taste, disagreeable breath, nervousness, headaches, dizziness, backaches, sharp pains around my heart, and in fact, troubles too numerous to mention kept me in continual misery.

"There is nothing too good I can say for Tanlac and the Tanlac vegetable pills, for the combination has ended all my suffering and built me up twenty pounds besides. I'm now in the pink of condition and feel fine in every way."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

WEDDING.

Bosworth—Smith.

On Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the Greenslit homestead in Franklin the marriage of Miss Bertha Frances Smith and Clarence Hawes Bosworth, of Mansfield, was solemnized by Rev. W. J. Tate, pastor of the Franklin Congregational church. The double ring service was used.

The bride was beautifully gowned in oyster canton crepe and carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas.

Preceding the ceremony "O Promise Me" was sung by Miss Florence Grow, accompanied by Miss Helen Grow at the piano. The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was rendered by Miss Blanche V. Smith, Evelyn and Elizabeth Smith, nieces of the bride, were the ribbon bearers. The ceremony was performed under a bower of laurel and evergreen.

The dining room decorations were pink carnations with sprays of green.

The bride received many useful gifts including money, linen, silverware, cut glass and household articles.

Several musical selections were given on the violin by Miss Frances Davis, accompanied by Miss Helen Grow, and Miss Davis and Miss Florence Grow rendered several vocal selections during the evening.

A bountiful collation was served. Mrs. Arthur L. Smith and Mrs. Ernest E. Smith poured.

Guests were present from Hartford, Boston, West Acton, New London, Niantic, Mansfield, Storrs and Franklin.

Mrs. Bosworth is a native of Franklin and the youngest daughter of the late Deacon Henry and Lydia Z. Smith. Mr. Bosworth is prosperous business man of Mansfield where the bride and groom will reside.

Babcock—Wainwright.

Cards have been received in town announcing the marriage in Lima, Peru, on Feb. 6th, of Miss Evelyn E. Wainwright of Franklin, Mass., a nurse, who was graduated from the Worcester City Hospital Training school in 1922, to Charles Irving Babcock, a graduate of Worcester Tech., whose home was formerly in Jewett City. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Greenman of the Methodist Episcopal church of Lima. There was also a civil service by the mayor of the city to comply with the law.

The marriage was the culmination of a two years' courtship. Miss Wainwright sailed from New York in January and joined Mr. Babcock after a trip of 3,000 miles.

Mr. Babcock is a civil engineer employed by the Fred T. Ley company. He is now in charge of the construction of a reinforced concrete office building which will be one of the three highest and largest buildings in Lima when completed. The building will have a floor area of 12,000 square feet and will have all the modern conveniences, including elevators. It will be completed in October after a year's work. Mr. Babcock has 110 men and five foremen under him.

Brown—Kearns

Miss Margaret Teresa Kearns of this city and Robert Lucius Brown of Quaker Hill, Waterford, were united in marriage Monday morning at ten o'clock in St. Patrick's rectory by Rev. M. H. May, pastor of St. Patrick's church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Agnes Kearns, and John McNally was best man.

The bride was gowned in biege canton crepe with hat to match and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor wore brown canton crepe with corsage bouquet of sweet peas and roses.

The bride is the daughter of the late Robert Kearns and Anna Campbell Kearns and has been a saleslady at the Eagle Clothing company. The groom is the son of John and Eva Neff Brown of Quaker Hill, and is the manager of the shoe department with Davis and Savard company of New London. During the World war he served in France with the 56th regiment, and was wounded in action. He is a member of the R. E. Hourigan Post, V. F. W. of this city.

The couple left Monday morning for New York and Atlantic City and on their return will reside at Quaker Hill.

Monaco—Cedrone.

A pretty wedding took place Monday morning at 8 o'clock in St. Patrick's church when Rev. M. H. May united in marriage Philip Monaco af 25 East Baltic street and Miss Mary Cedrone of 180 Franklin street.

The bride was gowned in white canton crepe with veil and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor, Miss Angelina Gustamachia, wore a gown of orange crepe and carried a bouquet of carnations. The best man was Constant Cellucci.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Sabatino of 25 East Baltic street, relatives and friends being present. After a tour through Pennsylvania, stopping at Philadelphia, the couple will reside in a newly furnished home at 25 East Baltic street.

The bride is the daughter of Tony and Donato Colletti Cedrone and has always lived in Norwich. The groom is the son of Peter and Mary L. Monaco and is employed as a cloth printer in a local mill.

Smith —Driscoll

The marriage of Miss Nellie M. Driscoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Driscoll of Franklin, and Charles Edward Smith of South Windham, took place at ten o'clock Monday morning at the rectory of St. Mary's church, Baltic. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. O'Brien.

The maid of honor was Miss Anna McGrory and John Driscoll, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride and her maid were attractively gowned in modish suits.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Driscoll and the wedding breakfast was served to 125 guests. The house was attractively decorated with pink roses, sweet peas and jonquils and the color scheme was pink and white which was carried throughout the dining room.

The bride who has been a popular teacher in South Windham and has a wide circle of friends, was the recipient of many choice and useful gifts, among them being a substantial check from her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left Monday afternoon for New York, Philadelphia and Washington where they will spend several days. Upon their return they will reside in South Windham where Mr. Smith is employed.

LAUREL HILL AVENUE MUST LOSE TREES IN STREET IMPROVEMENT

Laurel Hill avenue promises to become a treeless street from River avenue southward because of the march of improvements which call for a better highway in the street and are to be met by the laying of a concrete road there.

It has been found that it will be necessary to cut down the trees along the street. This will mean the removal of about 14 trees on the westerly side of the street and 20 on the easterly side. All the trees along the street below River avenue are planted in the space between the sidewalk and the curb, while in some places they extend almost into the gutter, and it is stated by the city authorities that the roots will extend so far out under the roadway where the foundation for the cement is to be laid, that it will be necessary to cut off the roots and that means the loss of the trees.

Six of those that will have to come down are along the walk at the Laurel Hill park, while across from these are five more that will likewise have to fall before the axe.

It is expected that the cement roadway will be carried as far as the Laurel Hill schoolhouse or the foot of Cranska's hill. If the money available is not enough to lay concrete on bridge hill and on the hill at the old Norman chapel, these will be laid in macadam, but all the rest of the street will be in cement with a roadway 11 feet wide on each side of the trolley tracks. In one or two places it will be necessary to do a little widening in order to get this 11-foot width on each side of the tracks which the trolley company is to move to the center of the street. Preparations for beginning this work were made Monday, when the trolley company began to distribute new rails along the street from Laurel Hill bridge.

AMSTON LAKE LEASED FOR GAME CONSERVATION

Papers have just been signed whereby Charles M. Ams, of New York city, the well known manufacturer, president of the Max Ams Machine company of Bridgeport, leases to Amston Lake Club for a term of years Amston lake, also known as North Pond, in the town of Hebron, Conn., with a large tract of surrounding woodland and wild country, for club purposes, bass and other fishing, and as a game farm and preserve.

Over a decade ago Mr. Ams purchased the great "Turner property," then called Turnerville, with its decadent silk mills, and received wide publicity as "the man who bought a town." The lake on the property, a mile long and half as wide, is a beautiful body of water, in a wonderful natural setting, and has long been noted for its bass, pickerel and other fishing. In 1917 Mr. Ams gave the free use of the property to the National Association of Audubon Societies, of New York city, as a wild life sanctuary and experimental game farm, under management of Herbert K. Job, the well known author and naturalist. This led, in time, to the organization of the Amston Lake club, which has now leased the property. Its membership is of lovers of outdoors, many of them prominent in business and professional circles, residing mostly in Connecticut, but also in New York, Philadelphia, and elsewhere. Its president is Col. Louis R. Cheney, ex-mayor of Hartford. The vice president is R. LaMotte Russell, the president of the Manchester, Conn., Trust C. Mr. Job of West Haven is secretary, and the treasurer is John F. Shepard, manufacturer, New Haven. These, with Mr. Ams and Prof. R. E. Dodge, of Connecticut Agricultural College, comprise the governing board.

The club will now entirely control the fishing, and plans soon to restock the lake with small-mouthed black bass and make the lake "the real thing" in game-fishing, with other possible fish culture. A former arrangement with the state of Connecticut is to be resumed, making the entire Amston property a "state game preserve," under state law and protection. A great game-farm is being developed, breeding and rearing pheasants, bob-whites, California quail, wood ducks, redheads, pintails, mallards, and other game. Last season over $3000 worth of game birds produced on the farm were sold, and this year arrangements are in progress largely to increase this production.

In cooperation with the National Association of Audubon societies it is planned to make this one of the great outdoor and conservation enterprises of America, with attractive educational and social aspects. The membership of the club is now being increased under careful selection of those in sympathy with the purposes of the organization. To the interested the secretary, at 601 Washington avenue, West Haven, Conn., will supply information.

BOZRAH OFFERS $200 FOR REWARD IN TIBBITTS CASE

At a special meeting of the voters of the town of Bozrah a reward of $200 was voted for conviction in the case of the mysterious disappearance of William Tibbitts, the Fitchville farmer. The sum of $500 was also voted for use by the selectmen for detention and prosecution. This can be expended in the discretion of the selectmen. The townspeople wanted to appropriate $1,000, but legal advice given showed that under the laws this sum could not be given.

There is alos a reward of $100 for the finding of Tibbitts dead or alive offered by his relatives, and it is hoped that the state will offer a reward. This, however, cannot be done until it is proved that the case is one of murder, necessitating that the body be found to prove this. Should this take place, the state's attorney may appeal to the governor and a reward may be granted, making it $3,000.

Officers were working on the case Monday and State's Attorney Hadlai Hull of New London again visited the house. Nothing new developed during the day but the officers will continue working on the case, hoping to find some clue that will give them the start they need to clear up the mystery.

ACCEPTS [illegible] GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH

Rev. W. Huntzinger of Seymour has accepted the call to the German Lutheran church on Franklin street and will fill the pulpit early in June. He preached here one Sunday in January and again as a candidate on March 4. At the April 9th meeting the congregation voted for him to be their pastor. The call was extended to Mr. Huntzinger and the acceptance was received April 18. Rev. Mr. Huntzinger was preaching in Rahway, N. J., in 1911, and in April of that year was called to Seymour, Conn. Since the death just before Christmas of its pastor, Rev. P. F. Werth, the pulpit of The German Lutheran church has been filled by supplies.

NORWICH MINISTERS THANK THEIR RETIRING SECRETARY

At the regular meeting of the Ministers' Association of Norwich on Monday a vote of thanks was extended to Rev. Frederick C. Williams, the retiring secretary of the association, for his faithful work and interest as an officer of the association. Rev. Mr. Williams takes up his duties as rector of the Episcopal church in Willimantic, May 1st, having been rector here of St. Andrew's Episcopal church.

Judge Waller Reserves Decision.

The case of the Flanders garage of Flanders against George Quinn of New London was tried before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas in New London Monday morning. The suit was to recover $140 for repairs to a Ford automobile. Judge Waller reserved decision.

MASSACHUSETTS SPEAKER FOR NORWICH W. C. T. U.

Anti-prohibition forces are spending huge sums of money in preparation for the next elections, and are securing, they claim, ten million names of voters to take before congress to repeal the Volstead act, and it is the duty of every W. C. T. U. member and every law-abiding Christian citizen of this country to see that their efforts shall be in vain, said Mrs. Jeanette H. Mann, of Boston, Mass., one of the officials of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U., speaking to a gathering at the Central Baptist church Monday night.

Facts show that the prohibition law in this country has done much to make the life of the child better, and homes are benefited; it is shown in Toronto, where there is prohibition that for every 1,000 population, there has been a gain of 57 children in the attendance in public schools.

The superintendent of schools in Boston, Mass., states that since prohibition there has been a great increase in the number of children attending public schools and also high schools, without an increase in population being shown.

We are now facing a great crisis in this country, said Mrs. Mann. We is of lovers of outdoors, many of them prominent in business and professional circles, residing mostly in Connecticut, but also in New York, Philadelphia, and elsewhere. Its president is Col. Louis R. Cheney, ex-mayor of Hartford. The vice president is R. LaMotte Russell, the president of the Manchester, Conn., Trust C. Mr. Job of West Haven is secretary, and the treasurer is John F. Shepard, manufacturer, New Haven. These, with Mr. Ams and Prof. R. E. Dodge, of Connecticut Agricultural College, comprise the governing board.

OBITUARY.

Miss Mary J. Murphy

Miss Mary J. Murphy, a native of Mystic, died Saturday night in Preston, in her 54th year. Miss Murphy was born Dec. 10, 1867, the daughter of William and Sally Ann Cheesbrough Murphy of Mystic. She is survived by the following nieces and nephews: Mrs. James E. Stark of Brooklyn, Mrs. Addison Quintard of Stamford, Miss Emily Murphy and Miss Clara Murphy of Mystic; Miss Generva E. Riker of Mystic and George H. Murphy of Brooklyn.

Daniel H. Finnegan

Daniel H. Finnegan, 41, died Sunday at his home in Mystic. He was born in San Francisco, Aug. 23, 1881, the son of Daniel H. and Annie Gaffney Finnegan. He leaves a widow, Margaret E. Finnegan; two sons, John and Daniel Finnegan; two sisters, Mrs. John R. Tarrant of Norwich, Miss Agnes Finnegan of New London, and a brother, Eugene Finnegan of San Francisco. He was a member of the B. F. Hoxie Engine Co., of the Father Murphy council, Knights of Columbus, and of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Fremont D. Palmer.

The many friends of Fremont D. Palmer will be pained to learn of his death Sunday in New York city, after an illness of a few days. Mr. Palmer had been deeply affected by the death of his wife who died on March 17th of this year.

He was born in New London on February 17, 1865. His father died on May 5, 1868 and soon afterwards he came to Norwich with his mother, Mrs. H. I. Palmer. After graduating from the grammar schools of Norwich he entered the employ of the New Haven railroad and was soon promoted to the position of locomotive engineer, continuing in this business until 18 years ago when he left for New York to enter the automobile business. He was successful and was the head salesman for the Shetucket and Reo Automobile Co., with offices on Broadway, and his knowledge and experience made him an authority in the business.

Mr. Palmer will be remembered here as an ardent sportsman and naturalist and enjoyed the companionship of others enjoying these lines. He was an expert fisherman and was happy when beside a brook in the woods of his native land. He will be greatly missed in the ranks of lovers of nature.

Mr. Palmer was a member of the Masonic order and of the Norwich Society of New York. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. H. I. Palmer of this city, a sister, Mrs. Arthur L. Story of Hartford, a brother, J. C. Palmer of Boston, Mass., and one daughter, Mrs. James L. Whitlock of Staten Island, N. Y. He was an uncle of Arthur F. Story of Norwich.

David W. Ring.

David W. Ring, a well known mason of this city, died Monday at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, after an illness of a few duration which took a turn for the worse only a few days ago.

Mr. Ring was born in Norwich Sept. 23, 1864, and always resided in Norwich. He received his early education in the public schools and later mastered the trade of a mason, and was considered one of the best in this section of the state. He was a devout member of St. Mary's church and his home was his joy. He took delight in helping his fellow men and his advice was sought after and regarded highly by his many friends.

In Norwich Oct. 23, 1888, he was united in marriage to Mary Ann Swanton, who died about 20 years ago. He leaves one daughter, Miss Lillian Ring, a nurse at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, and three sons, George Francis, Walter R., by his second wife, who was Josephine Murphy, who died Feb. 15, 1922, and Herbert E. Ring, all of Norwich. There are also four grandchildren [illegible] sister, Mrs. Charles Lutts of Norwich.

In the death of Mr. Ring Norwich loses a valuable citizen, one who at all times took interest in the welfare of the city.

TROLLEYS AND STALLED TRUCK IN CRASH

Two trolley cars and a stalled motor truck were the principals in a mixup late Monday afternoon at Ladd's Corner between Jewett City and Central Village. Motorman Lehrer received severe bruises about the body while the car he was running was crippled, having its forward trucks driven back under the platform.

Two trolley cars were making the trip, due in Central Village at 5.45, with the extra, Motorman Gay and Conductor Hughes preceding the regular in charge of Motorman Lehrer and conductor Hulbert. As the extra reached Ladd's Corner Motorman Gay discovered the truck on the track ahead of him and threw his car into reverse before it slid into the truck.

Realizing that the regular car would be along in a minute, the crew of the extra got their 10 passengers out of the car in a hurry and then tried to signal the oncoming car but were too late. The regular crashed into the rear of the extra with force enough to jam the trucks backwards and the wrecker had to be called on to get the car to the barn. The extra was able to continue the trip. There were only two passengers on the regular car.

WORKERS PLEDGE SERVICES FOR SACRED HEART CHURCH

Great encouragement for the $40-000 rebuilding drive for Sacred Heart church at Norwich Town was given by a meeting in the K. of C. home Monday night when a large party of workers from St. Patrick's and St. Mary's parishes who have volunteered their services were addressed by Patrick T. Connell, general chairman, and were instructed upon details of the work.

They made enthusiastic response and expressed their willingness and determination to bend every effort to put over the drive across.

The plans are practically completed for the opening of the drive next Sunday.

Police Court Cases

In the city court Monday morning, Eddie F. Swabby of Jewett City paid $3 for driving an automobile without operator's license and Frank Swabby paid a $5 fine for breach of the peace at a house on Central avenue. Three other Jewett City men had breach of the peace cases against them nolled. Joseph J. Bechard of Taftville, accused of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, had his case continued for a day.

Four men paid fines for intoxication, one for breach of the peace and three went to jail because they could not pay fines for intoxication.

The Great Danger of High Blood Pressure

Thousands of men and women have high blood pressure and do not realize it. Dizziness, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness are some of the telltale signs. It is usually caused by some functional derangement of the vital organs such as the liver or kidneys or a habitual clogging of the intestines. When this happens, as it usually does, in middle life, Nature calls for help and the heart tries to answer by doing double work; by pumping more blood to the attacked part of the body.

This creates a terrific pressure and often results in apoplexy, of which we read so often.

A simple, safe remedy for high blood pressure and the conditions that cause it, is now offered in scientific Bialin. Bialin will relieve your high blood pressure by acting quickly and effectively at the seat of the trouble. It will stimulate your liver and cleanse the system of the impurities that interfere with the regular functioning of the vital organs.

Bialin will make you feel better in a few days. It is put up in convenient tablet form and can be had at all good druggists such as The Lee & Osgood.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Interested Danielson people joined on Monday in the search being conducted in the territory about Alexander's lake for Benn Kershaw of Putnam, who has not been seen so far as is known since his wife left him at Shady Nook cottage back of the Phillips' farm, so called, Sunday morning to go to her work in a Putnam restaurant. His over-turned canoe, found near the shore at a point near where the Back cottage stood before it was destroyed by fire, would tend to indicate that he met death by drowning, though this theory is not accepted by all. Mrs. Kershaw, who is shocked by the disappearance of her husband, welcomes the aid of all who will assist in the search for him.

Figures contained in Monday's issue of a Boston financial paper relative to the earnings of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company during the first quarter of 1923, show that the great corporation, one of whose subsidiaries is located in this town, is making a remarkably fine showing. The earnings for the first three months of 1923 were $8,110,600 before interest and other charges were deducted and $4,778,200 after all interest and other charges had been paid, this being at the rate of $6.72 per share on the preferred stock after deducting the dividends due on the $20,000,000 worth of prior preference stock still outstanding.

The earnings for the quarter were at the rate of $23.88 per share of the prior preference stock outstanding, an amazing record of earnings, made possible because of early and favorable purchase of raw materials and the tremendous volume of business offered the company. As indicating the giant strides being made by Goodyear in 1923, it is only necessary to point to the fact that the corporation's earnings during all of 1922 were only $10,101,430. The current assets of the company are in excess of $60,000,000 and the current liabilities only a little in excess of $8,000,000 or in a proportion of 7.48 to 1.

This statement will be highly encouraging to the scores of stockholders and several hundred employes in this territory, as well as of real, if indirect, interest to all who do business here or in any way profit by the presence of a Goodyear concern in this town.

Monday morning the funeral of Miss Marcelle Anita Aubin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Aubin, was held from their home on Front street, West Side, with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. John Roux, S. S., being celebrant of the mass. The bearers were Emil Gaudette, Lionel Boulay, Alcid Godreaux and Valmore Godreau. There was a large attendance at the service. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery.

One of the special social events of the high school year, an invitation affair, is the senior hop to be held in the assembly hall of the high school building. The seniors, to be graduated in June, will have members of the student body and their guests at this dance, which it is anticipated will be one of the prettiest.

The weather this particular spring is coming through along lines similar to those of a roller coaster. First the temperature is up and then down. Having hit close to the 90 mark early Saturday afternoon the mercury began to take a glide down the tube Sunday evening, when the wind shifted into the northwest and then to the northeast and greeted early risers on Monday with a reading 43, which tending called for the resumption of heating homes and the hauling out of winter wraps and coats again.

Monday afternoon at their home in Wauregan funeral services for Hazel Irene Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miron Carpenter, were conducted by Rev. William Fyfling, pastor of the Congregational church in that place. The body was taken to Putnam for burial in Grove street cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

One who kept tabs on motor traffic moving the state highway between Danielson and South Killingly Sunday afternoon asserts that 537 cars moved over the road in the hour between 2 and 3 o'clock. While this does not match some of the high records set on Sundays soon after the road was opened last fall, it is a remarkable increase for the route, which will be one of the most congested in eastern Connecticut when the summer touring reaches its peak. Scores of Rhode Island and Massachusetts visitors came to town over the road Sunday and not a few of them stopped for light refreshments, materially boosting the business of those who cater to buyers in such lines.

At the present time the faculty, student body and alumni of Killingly High school are cooperating to increase the gymnasium fund to such substantial proportions as to make a gymnasium a reality in the future.

PUTNAM

News interest centered Monday in the disappearance of Benn Kershaw, as told in The Bulletin of Monday morning. Up to a late hour Monday not a clue had been discovered that would aid in any way in solving the mystery of what has become of him.

All day Monday searchers scoured the shores of Alexander's lake, where many incline to the belief that he was drowned while out in a canoe during the half gale of Sunday, but not a trace of him was found. Some cling to the theory that Mr. Kershaw was not drowned, but met with some accident on shore or wandered off after becoming confused, as has happened many times and to many people in the past.

Those who incline to the belief that Mr. Kershaw's body is not in the lake point to the interesting fact that both paddles were found in the overturned canoe after a search for it was started after Mr. Kershaw's disappearance was discovered. Experienced canoeists are practically a unit in their belief that no person handling a canoe, especially in a period of stress or danger, would be likely to abandon hold of a paddle until the very last gasp, and that almost invariably when a canoeist is tipped over his paddle goes into the water with him. These theorists offer as an explanation of the canoe floating overturned, or partly so, about the lake, that he may have been swept off shore near the Kershaw cottage by the heavy wind in case it had not been pulled far up on the beach—for the canoe had been in use Sunday morning by Mr. and Mrs. Kershaw before she left for her day's work in a restaurant in this city.

On the other hand, those who believe that Mr. Kershaw was drowned can offer a score of theories as to things that might have happened while he was out on the lake in the canoe that would have resulted in his death. An attack of dizziness or of heart failure might cause him to fall out of the canot while he was not engaged in paddling, but just floating idly about, as many who use canoes like to do. In such cases the paddles might remain in the canoe.

Until some development sheds more light on the mystery than was available Monday, what happened to Mr. Kershaw must remain a matter of conjecture. He and Mrs. Kershaw are the only cottagers on the north shore of the lake this early in the season. All the lakeside territory is practically deserted at this time of the year and many things might happen to a camper without any one knowing anything about it for hours or even days.

Up to late Monday afternoon no one had been found who saw Mr. Kershaw out in the canoe after Mrs. Kershaw had left for Putnam, yet he might have paddled about for hours without attracting anyone's attention. The fact remains that his coat and hat were found at the cottage, which remained unlocked, as though he expected to return at any minute.

If, giving thought to another theory, Mr. Kershaw had paddled the canoe to the west shore of the lake and left it securely moored while he went for a walk through the pretty woodland country thereabouts, he might have met with some serious accident while ashore and the canoe be blown by the wind to the point across the lake where it was found. With this theory in mind the entire country about the lake will be thoroughly searched in an effort to locate Mr. Kershaw, who may be lying seriously injured or even dead, in some patch of the wood or any one of the dense thickets that abound on the western shore of the lake.

Mr. Kershaw's friends scout the theory that he would stage any such scene as an overturned canoe to create the impression that he was drowned and then go away without telling anyone of his intentions. While he had met with some reverses business-wise in the not distant past, they were not of sufficiently serious nature his friends assert to cause him to go away in any such manner as he has disappeared.

Those who knew him well are convinced that something very serious happened to him on Sunday, though all are not certain that he met death by drowning in the lake.

A considerable number from this city were at the lake Monday engaged at different times in searching for the body about the shores of the lake and hunting for some lead that might help in solving the mystery, but their efforts, as were all others, were unsuccessful.

State Officers A. W. Williams and Merrill Keith of the barracks at Danielson went to Leominster, Mass., Monday to bring back to this territory one John De Laurier, who is being held to answer to an allegation that he is responsible for setting a fire that destroyed a garage and two trucks, the property of Linus Logee, of the Quadic district, on February 8. On the morning after the fire Mr. Logee reported to the police here, Captain Delage said Monday, that he had certain ground for belief as to who was responsible for the fire. While the officers have been saying little about the case for weeks past, they have been seeking certain information with a hope of bringing the responsible party to justice. The announcement that DeLaurier was being held at Leominster for state officers came, therefore as a surprise, as it was not known that there was any possibility of his being connected with the case.

Further tolerance of the practice of motor vehicles racing fire apparatus out responding to alarms will not be tolerated by the Putnam police. This was made very clear Monday by Captain Delage, who says that all warnings seem to have no effect on some motorists who are bound to run their machines ahead of fire trucks even if they hold up and delay these vehicles when out on active service. Saturday's fires brought several examples of this practice. As a general rule those who rush their cars along ahead of the fire trucks for directly in their wake can be arrested for reckless driving, and such a charge will be preferred against those who persist in doing it.ft Captain Delage has requested that traffic remain stationary while fire trucks are moving through the city streets, and will take the necessary means to punish those who persist in racing along with the fire apparatus.

Members of the fire department and citizens who have been endangered by the wild driving have complained to the police about the practice and the police believe the time has come to check it with a heavy hand. No motorist has a right to race a machine through the city streets at the rate the fire vehicles are allowed to travel and this will be impressed upon those who attempt it hereafter.

The police have another bit of advice, accompanied by a warning, for motorists. This has to do with the stunt of racing an automobile past a trolley car that appears to be about to stop—and then cutting sharply in on the trolley tracks ahead of the electric car. This sort of driving resulted in one minor accident in which an automobile had a fender crumpled up by a trolley near the Wolf & Kaminsky building on Main street Monday morning. The damage was very slight, but it is not so much that as the practice that counts. Much of this cutting-in on trolleys is done at Putnam Center, the police have noted, and whereas an automobile can scoot about one way or another, a trolley is limited to operating on a pair of rails and a motorman cannot be expected to compete with an automobile driver who has his choice of forty-seven different directions of travel.

An adamantine coating resembling plaster is being applied over the metal network that takes the place of laths in the First National bank building, in process of rebuilding since last winter. The finish is expected to be exceptionally durable and it is being applied throughout the interior, the work being well advanced. Staging was being erected on the Main and Front street sides of the building during Monday preparatory to undertaking the exterior stucco work which is to cover the entire wall surfaces of the building.

There was a near-panic at the Bradley theatre Saturday evening when, soon after the motor truck from fire headquarters dashed past the building on Front street, a locomotive in the railroad yard gave a number of short blasts as a further fire signal. In less than a minute the audience which crowded the theatre for the second performance was on its feet and making a hurried rush for the exists. Manager Hyde Smith came from the box office into the theatre and shouted to the people to keep their seats as only a chimney fire was in progress. Most of the audience heeded his request and soon all but a few were again seated. The operator, Edmond Gilbert, kept on grinding the picture machine throughout the disturbance.

The second feature picture started at half past eight. It had proceeded but a short way when the fire apparatus was heard to pass. Only a few heard any alarm until the railroad locomotive began whistling. This was taken to be a signal that there was a fire close by and a number of young fellows down near the stage of the theatre started out, apparently to see where the fire was out. A few more followed and soon a number of women rose tand also started out. This started a near-panic and soon nearly all of the audience was on its feet. Cooler heads made no attempt to get more alarmed pass them to the aisles, out but arose to let others who were People were pouring through all of the exits when Manager Smith came in and assured them there was no danger. It was all over in a minute or two but during that time considerable alarm was felt by the more timid.

The fire was on the long trestle south of the city. A passing locomotive dropped a spark and set the planking of the bride on fire. The yard switcher mad a hurried trip to the bridge and the fire was extinguished without any damage.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) evening is to be a big night for the Elks of this city, for they are to journey to Webster for the institution of the new lodge in that place.

Between Sunday afternoon and Monday morning there was a change of 47 degrees in the temperature in this city.

There will be no curtailment of postal service in this city on account of shortage of appropriations, Postmaster Archibald Macdonald said Monday.

Payrolls in this city and adjoining centers will be increased between $10,000 and $15,000 each week under the advanced scale of wages that becomes effective on Monday of next week, April 30.

A meeting of the Ecclesiastical and Church societies was held at the church on Friday evening. The resignation of Rev. Robert Humphrey, which had been read on Sunday, April 8th, was acted upon. It was voted to accept the resignation, the pastorate ending in June, according to Mr. Humphrey's wishes.

Mrs. James Lathrop and Miss Fanny Brown were appointed to draw up resolutions on the action of the committee.

Walter Davis was elected a deacon to fill the vacancy left by the removal of George Rowland.

The resignation of the pastor came as a surprise to most of the people. Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey came to Canterbury from a Massachusetts town about four years ago and have given faithful service to church and community during that time. A number of improvements suggested by him have been made to the church property. He has also materially aided in carrying out these plans for betterment of church, parsonage and grounds.

Mrs. Humphrey as president of the Ladies' Aid society, teacher in Sunday school and helper in every good cause has made many friends who will regret her removal.

James Lathrop, while helping to move a heavy stove at his home recently, received a severe injury to his thumb. In some way the stove slipped, falling on or against the thumb, tearing the flesh and breaking a bone. Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop were taken by auto to Norwich by Milo Appley, where the injury was dressed.

The death of Miss Frederica Olney occurred last week after an illness of several days, though she had been in poor health for a number of years. She was well known in the town, as her home had always been in Canterbury. For many years she was a nurse, having received hospital training. She was a member of the Woman's Relief corps, the W. C. T. U., and of the Episcopal church. Since the establishment of a church of that denomination in Plainfield, she often traveled the five or six miles from her home to attend the services. Following a prayer at the house, a service was held Monday at 1 o'clock at Carey cemetery, where the burial took place in the family lot. Rev. Mr. Coombs of Plainfield officiated. Miss Olney leaves two brothers, Ernest and Wilber, also nieces and nephews.

Friends in this vicinity have received news of the death of Mrs. Charles Fox of Stafford Springs. She was a frequent visitor at the parsonage in this village during the pastorate of Rev. M. H. Jones. The end came suddenly early Sunday morning at Atlantic City, N. J., where Mrs. Fox had gone for a few days' vacation.

It is hard to follow the bent of a man's mind when he is in financial straits.

Dress Your Feet Fittingly

IT IS so easy to dress your feet beautifully, fittingly, comfortably, the "Queen Quality" way, for today, as for a full quarter-century past, the Trade Mark guarantees superlative style and value, with "fit that never fails." No matter what your choice of style, or whether you are "hard to fit," or what idea you have of price, you can dress your feet appropriately from amongst the variety of "Queen Quality" types and styles now being shown.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. Clayton E. Hunt and her son David returned on Wednesday from Providence, where they spent a few days visiting Mrs. Hunt's mother, Mrs. Simon Goff.

Conrad Schriefer, the dog warden of the town, keeps a large number of chickens. On Monday night he heard his dog barking furiously for some time, but paid no attention to it. In the morning he found that one of his chicken houses had been entered and 30 White Leghorn fowls had been taken. Another house containing 100 Rhode Island Reds had not been entered, the thieves being frightened probably by the barking of the dog.

Mrs. Ethel Blakeley has rented the cottage on her property, recently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Porter, to John Hannon, who has moved into it. Mr. Hannon has resided for some time in other parts of the town.

Frank E. Bogue, who has been living on the property known as the Schillinger place, is now employed in a machine shop in Willimantic but will continue to reside in Columbia, going to and from Willimantic daily.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Porter, accompanied by Mrs. Porter's mother, Mrs. Robinson, left town by automobile on Saturday morning for Shelburn Falls, Mass., to spend the week end with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton P. Davenport. At Hartford they were joined by their son, Randall Porter, returning home on Monday morning. During their absence Edward P. Lyman, retired R. F. D. carrier, was in charge of the store and postoffice.

Mrs. Emily Little continues to remain quite ill. She is under the care of Miss Julia Perkins, a nurse from Andover.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lyman of Plainville were in town over the week end visiting their parents.

A whist party of seven tables was held at Yeomans hall on Saturday evening for the benefit of the West street school, after which there were refreshments and dancing.

Everett Bosworth of Hartford, accompanied by his father-in-law, William H. Kneeland, was in town Sunday morning making arrangements for the funeral services of Mrs. Kneeland, who died on Saturday.

The annual meeting of the Columbia Improvement society will be held at Yeomans hall on Saturday evening for the election of officers and the reading of reports.

Rev. T. Newton Owen preached Sunday morning on Is. 63: 9, "In all their afflictions He was afflicted." He said that God is no only willing but in earnest to deliver His people, and that until we realize that He is ready to help us, believes in us and trusts us, we have no God. We must go into the movement for deliverance from our sins with enthusiasm and know God by working with Him. Many people profess to believe in religion but are not in earnest. Their religion is often seeking relief from the ills of life, but without earnest and enthusiastic belief in God.

SOUTH COVENTRY

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Champlin have arrived home after spending the winter in Florida.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Thrills, breath taking and gripping romance, heart interest, humor, pathos and scenic effects that surpass anything ever before attempted are combined in the Elmer Clifton production "Down in the Sea in Ships," which will be the feature attraction at the Breed theatre in Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and Saturday.

Before the astounded eyes of the audience is depicted in this amazing drama an actual combat with a 90-ton whale. This huge leviathan of the deep is seen in battle with a crew of six whalemen, one of whom, Raymond McKee, the star of the picture has launched his harpoon into the ocean monster. All the thrilling details of this unusual combat are vividly shown in which the lives of the participants were in jeopardy many times; the chase, the harpooning, and finally the great moment when the mammal enraged and maddened with pain charged the small boat and smashed it to kindling.

The story is written by John L. Pell, a native of New England, and the co-operation of all the citizens of New Bedford was eagerly given in the production of the picture, which is intended to perpetuate for all time the golden days of whaling.

In addition to an abundance of thrills, it is replete with heart interest revolving around a beautiful Quaker maiden and a youth not a Quaker, who is determined to become a whaleman in order to win the girl of his heart.

Raymond McKee is seen in the leading male role, with Marguerite Courtot as Patience Morgan, daughter of a God-fearing Quaker who is portrayed by William Walcott.

Broadway Theatre.

The Fourth Alarm proved to be a riot at the Broadway theatre which was the headline attraction of the B. F. Keith vaudeville bill. This skit has five people and each knows how to produce fun. Valda & Co. offered dance varieties and music that scored big. Regal & Kent offered a fine novelty singing and talking act. William Dick offered a fine musical act and some singing for good measure. Downey & Claridge closed the bill with a fine comedy novelty act.

One of those screen fights that look like the real thing and show that the players were not "pulling punches" is to be seen in "Nobody's Bride," the Universal production in which Herbert Rawlinson is starring at the Broadway theatre. Rawlinson has been the central figure of many a thrilling crook picture and "Nobody's Bride" is a dramatic story of the underworld giving splendid parts to a capable supporting cast which includes Alice Lake, Edna Murphy, Harry Van Meter, Frank Brownlee, Sidney Bracy, Lillian Langdon and others. Herbert Blache directed.

Breed Theatre.

One of the most entertaining photoplays presented at the Breed theatre this season is "Your Friend and Mine," a screen version of the stage hit by Willard Mack, with the author in the role he played on the stage. It has all the elements that go to make a film of genuine satisfaction. Story, acting, settings and direction are all of the highest order, leaving nothing to be desired.

"Your Friend and Mine" tells of the plans of a celebrated author to show up the evil intentions of a bogus artist. The latter is in love with the wife of the author's friend, and the husband is ignorant of the artist's true feeling toward his wife. The author reads to the wife, in the presence of the artist, the manuscript of a play which he has written. It is concerned with a situation in which all are involved; and its dramatic climax is so impressive as to defeat the schemes of the artist.

Willard Mack is his usual self in the author's role. Enid Bennit does well as the neglected wife, and Huntly Gordon is admirable as her husband. The artist is carefully played by J. Herbert Frank. Others of importance are Rosemary Theby, Otto Ledered, and Aileen Ray.

"Your Friend and Mine" will be shown for the last times today and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and a Lyons Comedy.

Barnyard and Balehay Circus.

"Barnyard and Balehay's" bigger and better than ever, is scheduled to appear at the Y. M. C. A. this week. The circus which is being put on by the young men and boy gym members of the association is to come close to the real thing itself, and the gymnites are assuring their friends that they have everything so far, except the steam calliope, etc. However, they expect to have enough pink lemonade to go around, and have arranged for ballyhoos, fakers and what not to supply the necessary circus atmosphere. A good program of stunts has been arranged for the big show, and the performers are reporting a good sale of tickets, which probably means that the big "tent" will be "chuck full" of excitement, rain or shine.

Sale of Prospect Street House.

The two partment house, 274 Prospect street, has been transferred from John J. and Mary A. McHugh, to George J. and Bessie P. Dresher, Real Estate Broker John A. Moran conducting the transaction. Mr. Dresher is to occupy one of the apartments.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre.

Pola Negri's first appearance in an American made Paramount picture, "Bella Donna," produced by George Fitzmaurice was greeted with marked enthusiasm at the Strand theatre last night.

In this absorbing picturization of Robert Hichen's famous novel, Miss Negri marries a young Englishman who has just returned from an expedition in the Egyptian deert. On their honeymoon they return to that country so that Nigel (Conrad Nagel) may continue his work. The east lays a hypnotic spell on Bella Donna and when she meets Mahamoud Baroudi (Conway Tearle), intensely dramatic events ensue.

The love affair between the pair continues for a period, when Baroudi suggests that Bella Donna free herself by poisoning her husband. Nigel Armine is slowly wasting away as the result of slow poisoning but is saved by the intervention of his friend Dr. Isaacson (Claude King). Learning the truth, Nigel casts out his wife who, now free, joyfully makes her way to Baroudi's camp. He, however, is with another woman, and brutally orders her away. Bella Donna goes out alone into the desert, a tragic figure.

Miss Negri has set the world astir by her foreign made pictures, but this, her first American made production, overshadows them all. It is, all in all, a superb photodrama. Conway Tearle in the role of Mahamoud Baroudi, makes an unusually sinister villain, while Conrad Nagel is excellent as the week, unsuspecting husband, Nigel Armine. Others in the cast are Lois Wilson, as Patricia, Nigel's fiancee; Macey Harlan and Robert Schable. This is the nearest all-star cast ever seen in any picture.

Buster Keaton's latest comedy, "The Electric House," proved to be a riot. A News Weekly completed the program.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL LETS CONTRACT FOR THOUSAND FEET OF CURBING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 23.—A dozen applications for permission to build were presented to the city council this evening, but there was little or no new work contemplated the application being for additions or alterations generally.

The city established a precedent this evening when a contract was awarded to C. McIntosh for 1,000 feet of curbing. There were three bidders, but all the bids were for the same amount. As Mr. McIntosh was a local man and the other bidders were not residents of New London, the council awarded the contract to Mr. McIntosh.

There is a probability that the dock at Ocean beach will be enlarged and extended further into the river before summer. The matter was brought up at the council meeting this evening when it was estimated that the work could be done for $7,000 to $8,000.

Councilor Gragan advised that the dock be rebuilt and strengthened so that steamers the size of those that come here from Providence during the summer could land there instead of landing up town. He believed the change would be for the benefit of the city. Councilor Fox brought the matter up and said that the improvement of the dock would result in the city getting more taxable property at the beach, though how that can be the result was not apparent.

Witnesses in the case against Charles R. Noyes, the Old Lyme man who is charged with having obtained laudanum illegally, were before the grand jury in the United States court at New Haven today. They were Police Sergeant Frank Howard and Frederic Beebe, a drug clerk who sold the laudanum to Noyes on a forged prescription. What action the grand jury will take has not been announced. Noyes is still at the New London jail. He did not go to New Haven today as there was no necessity for his presence there. He admits all that he did, it is understood. His case will probably come to the police court when the [illegible] at New Haven has finished with it.

Christopher Bruno, an Italian shoemaker, who has contributed his share to the city treasury through fines imposed in the police court for intoxication, will have another opportunity to make a contribution tomorrow morning for he was arraigned before Judge Fellows on a drunkenness charge. Bruno, who goes and is familiarly known as "Charlie O'Brien" was taken into custody this evening by special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad when he was found in a helpless state roaming about the railroad property.

Bruno last appeared in court a week ago, when he was fined $5, all the money he had on his person about [illegible] arrested, for intoxication. He promised the court at that time that he would mend his ways and walk the straight and narrow path, but the one he was walking when the special agents found him was so crooked that a snake would get dizzy trying to follow it.

The condition of Milton Card, aged 19 years, operator of the automobile that ran down and killed Mrs. Leo Brogan of No. 8 Park avenue, Groton, a week ago, is such that the patient is still in a comatose state at his home in Groton. The young man, who has not fully regained his senses since the fatality, has spells of partial consciousness and during one or two of these intervals he has declared that he has no recollection of the accident, although he realizes that something occurred. It will be some time yet before the young man's condition will warrant his being examined by Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich to determine whether Card is criminally liable for Mrs. Brogan's death.

This will be done as soon as the attending physician considers that such an ordeal will not be detrimental to Card's recovery. If the finding of the coroner is that Card is criminally responsible Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows will issue a warrant for the young man's arrest. Coroner Desmond has already interrogated several witnesses.

Leon Hawley of this city, is suffering from a fractured arm sustained Sunday afternoon when an automobile he was riding in crashed into a telephone pole in Westerly.

Hawley, together with Norman Miller and Clifford Douglas, the latter of Raymond street, and driver of the car had reached a point near the Babcock farm, when, according to Douglas, a machine, owned and operated by F. S. Marcof of Westerly crowded the Douglas car, and caused the driver to leave the highway with the result that the New London car hit the telephone pole with great force. Douglas and Miller escaped injury other than bruises. The automobile was extensively damaged.

Mrs. Laura Wilson, wife of Michael Dwyer, under treatment at Preston for several years, died at the state hospital Sunday. She was 70 years of age and besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Frank Cotton, of Auburn, R. I., and a sister, Mrs. Culver of Willimantic.

Defective wiring, resulting from a short circuit on one of the poles supporting the cluster electric lights on State street, at the corner of Main street, created an element of danger this evening, causing the lights to smoke freely and to emit sparks to the sidewalk. Fearing the charging of the pole, Patrolman Clarence Wells was stationed at the danger point to warn pedestrians to remain a safe distance. Employes of the Connecticut Power company finally removed the danger, but a section of the cluster failed to illumine the remainder of the night.

Mrs. Kate Hoinsky of No. 641 Main street was taken into custody early this evening by Patrolmen Rehn and Selesnitsky upon complaint of the woman's husband. Mrs. Hoinsky was drunk at her home and creating such a disturbance as to make her a nuisance about the place.

Christopher Hanson of Dodge Island, Mystic, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow forenoon, charged with violation of the city ordinance regulating the parking of automobiles. Hanson parked his car on the east side of North Bank street, on which side of the thoroughfare parking is not permitted. He was ordered to appear in court when Patrolman Rehn observed the violation.

The county authorities nor the police have been able to obtain any clue to the whereabouts of Albert William Tyler, the negro who escaped from the county jail, where he was serving a six months' sentence for assault upon a Gilmanton, Wee Wah. The surrounding country has been thoroughly searched and officers of adjoining townships have been requested to maintain a sharp lookout for the fugitive. Tyler when arrested resided on Smith street, but his wife has since taken up her abode on Church street, and she professes ignorance of Tyler's whereabouts.

William Leary, a practicing attorney of New York and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Leary of No. 54 Fremont street, will be married to Miss Mary Small of New York Wednesday. The wedding will be solemnized in Edgewood, N. J., and will be attended only by relatives and intimate acquaintances of the couple. Edward T. Leary, brother of the groom and a funeral director here, will be best man. Following a wedding tour, the couple will take up their residence in New York.

Several members of the Knights of Columbus attended the conferring of the third degree on a class of candidates by Jewett City council at that place Sunday afternoon.

The funeral of Miss Ella Kenyon, formerly employed as cashier at the Hotel Mohican, whose death occurred at a Boston hospital last week, where she had been under treatment for a long time, was held this afternoon at 1.30 o'cock at the undertaking parlors. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee. Employes of the hotel and former intimate acquaintances of Miss Kenyon acted as bearers. The body was sent to Franklin, Conn., where Miss Kenyon formerly resided, and where burial took place.

The Hart cottage at No. 76 Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach, was discovered unlocked early this evening by Patrolman John Hogan. The owner was notified and secured the place. There was no evidence that anything had been stolen from the cottage.

The junior high school which New London has long and fondly anticipated seems to be as far away as it ever was. The city has the authority to issue bonds for the construction of the building but it cannot get from the council the order to go ahead with the work. When the matter was up before the council a month ago it was declared by some of the members that the city had school buildings of that sort in abundance and these members would not vote to begin work on the proposed structure. The plan then was to erect "wings" of the building, and that scheme did not seem to meet with approval. If the building ever materializes the city will have its grammar school, a grade school and a junior high within a stone's throw of each other. It has been hinted very strongly that the grammar school might be enlarged if there is a demand for a junior high school and it is also claimed that the recent addition to the Bulkeley school building affords all the accommodation that is necessary in the way of high schools.

One of the councilmen sought information as to why the city needed so many school buildings for the pupils, as the junior high would create grades in the intermediary, the grammar, the junior high and the high schools. He did not get a satisfactory answer to his queries. So he pointed out that at a time when the pupils of the schools graduated from the district school the high school the percentage of pupils who went to the colleges was as high as it is now with all the new notions of grading the scholars. And he declared that the percentage of pupils who go from the New London schools to the colleges is smaller now than it was under the old system.

There is a large percentage of people in this city who believe the trolley fare is too high, or at least that a distinction should be made in the fare charged for a ride of a block or two and a ride of a mile or two. A patron may get on a car at State street and ride to the beach, a distance of more than three miles, for the same fare that is charged for a ride of a few blocks. That is where the injustice is alleged to exist. No objection is made to the fare for the full ride, but every one finds fault at being charged the same for a short distance as for a long one. This discrimination must eventually be made, and no doubt it will be established voluntarily by the trolley company.

Walter J. O'Neill, alias Thomas Brady, who is under arrest in Boston, charged with forgery, larceny and having narcotics in his possession, will be brought back to New London for trial for forgery as soon as his case in the former city is finished. O'Neill is now under treatment at the Boston City hospital and he will be tried May 9th. A warrant for his arrest has been forwarded to the Boston authorities and will be served on O'Neill whenever his case has been disposed of. O'Neill is wanted by the New London police for passing a worthless check on Isadore Miller, a Bank street tailor, for $56.16. When arrested O'Neill had two bogus checks on him. The finding of the checks caused the Boston authorities to communicate with the New London police and that brought about the issuance of a warrant that will bring the accused back here for trial.

Mrs. William Bailey of Groton, Mrs. John Ganley and baby of Harris street, John Smith of Charlestown, Mass., Albert Tiffany of Groton, Mrs. Fred Ostman of Stonington, Herbert Stanley of Norwich, Mrs. Ernest Ozanni of Waterford, Miss Jane Corkey of Alger place, Mrs. Richard Leather of Groton, Frederick Weinan of Mystic, Miss Elizabeth McDonald of Lee avenue, Mrs. Elizabeth Gilbert of Waterford and Richard Einhardt of Wadsworth, N. Y., patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Henry G. Keeney of Blackhall street has returned to her home after having spent several weeks in Florida.

William M. Redden and others have sold a parcel of land on West High street to Harry A. and Celia A. Johns.

Max Moscovitch, proprietor of a small manufacturing establishment on Bank street, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the automobile laws. Moscovitch was ordered to appear in court this morning by Traffic Patrolman Hohn Courtney for an alleged violation committed Saturday.

Miss Harriet Emmerich, clerk in the probate court, and her mother, Mrs. William Emmerich of Connecticut avenue, are spending a week with relatives in New York.

George H. Jr., the ten months old son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crane of No. 100 Green street, died this morning following a brief illness.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Daniels, wife of William Daniels of No. 20 Chappell street, who died at the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital last Friday, following a brain hemorrhage on Broad street, took place this morning at 9 o'clock with a mass of requiem at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Rev. John McGrath officiated. The bearers were Thomas Ganey, George Hendry, John Phillips and Thomas Phillips. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Lucy K. Woodmansee of No. 6 Lewis street, died at the Home Memorial hospital Saturday night, in which institution she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Woodmansee was the widow of Edward F. Woodmansee and was 52 years of age.

Mrs. Mary E. Sizer, for many years matron of the Smith Memorial home, died at the institution this morning. Mrs. Sizer's demise ending a long illness brought about by her advanced years. She was the widow of John B. Sizer, superintendent of the home nearly fifty years and whose demise occurred about five years ago. Mrs. Sizer was 90 years of age and a native of Waterford.

New London taxpayers are beginning to wonder when City Manager Barlow will determine what the tax rate for the ensuing year is going to be. The announcement should have been made months ago, but to date no one, not even the city manager, is sure what the millage will be. The assessors completed their work over a month ago and the tentative budget is now in the hands of the council, yet with the budget not definitely decided upon and which should have been six months ago, property owners are still kept in ignorance of what tax they will be compelled to pay.

MYSTIC

Four baseball teams have entered the Mystic Junior league which was started Monday evening by the community house director. The first game will be played on April 28. A double-header will be played, and the games will always be played on the Rossie field and Industrial place, alternating each week. The teams are the North End Juniors, Hill Pirates, Noank and the Bulldogs.

Members of the respective teams are as follows:

Hill Pirates: M. Foote, manager, D. Grimes, captain, B. Jeub, B. Cini, M. Jones, T. Cordner, E. Earnshaw, T. Caswell, J. Foote, A. Barraclough.

Bulldogs—R. Hatfield, manager, L. Bishop, captain, B. Stuart, P. Gray, J. Gray, L. Wilkinson, W. Brown, H. Gremley, A. Neff, R. Davy C. Hempstead.

North End Juniors: G. Foley, manager, H. Hughe, captain, R. Davis, J. Hreschek, C. Arnold, A. Radicioni, R. Panciera, E. Schmift, E. Smith, J. Donch, B. Trent, M. Radicioni, R. Woodbury.

Noank has not sent the names of its players.

A ladies bowling tournament has been organized at the community house. Two teams have made application up to date. Team No. 1 is Florence Craig, Elsa Richter, Minnie Duerr, Viola Lamphere, Mildred Beebe; Team No. 2, Evelyn Kenney, Alice Colby, Priscilla Lamb, Daisy Verry, Helen Clark. Any other team wishing to enter the tournament should see the secretary of the Community House before Wednesday.

The recent organization of the Mystic Concert Association has been instrumental in securing Orville Harrold, tenor for the Metropolitan Opera Company, to sing here soon. The association plans to have at least one famous artist appear in Mystic each year.

Saturday morning the marriage of Miss Margaret Elizabeth Lovett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lovett, of Ramsdell street in Groton and Leslie D. Harrison, son of Mr and Mrs. Dynes Harrison of Industrial Place, Mystic, took place. The couple were married by Rev. Dr. Hurlbert, pastor of the Congregational church, at the parsonage. Miss Mary Lovett, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and Avery Fitch of Noank was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison will reside at Industrial place, upon their return from the wedding trip.

Monday evening the monthly meeting of the Men's club was held in Odd Fellows' hall. When the members assembled they were addressed by Rev. John Beauchamp, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church. He spoke interestingly on The Bible in the Light of the Present Day. Ladies were guests of the members. Refreshments were served.

Indications prevail that daylight saving time will be more generally observed this season than ever before. The majority in the town will set their clocks ahead one hour Saturday night. In view of the law passed by the last legislature no public clock may be altered. The courts, post office and other county and federal agencies will operate on standard time. The schools of both the town of Groton and Stonington will be started an hour earlier and the mills and stores are to operate on the early schedule.

A new automobile bus which has been purchased by the Stonington Traction Company, arrived here at about 12.30 Sunday afternoon. The Westinghouse air brake, operated by a foot lever, is ready for use with a 50 pound air pressure, within two minutes after the engine is started. It has an underslung body. The body is of trolley car design and is handsomely decorated on the inside with seats of light brown leather. The woodwork is of mahogany finish. The lower half of the outside is painted dark green and has metal panels with the words "The Groton & Stonington Traction Co." The upper part is painted light green. The engine has four cylinders and is capable of making 40 miles an hour.

There are to be two of these buses put in use, one for express service between Westerly and New London, and one between the Griswold hotel and Eastrn Point, New London. The run can now be made by the bus in 30 minutes, compared with 55 minutes by trolley. The Old Mystic bus is still to run and the tracks are kept cleared so in case anything should happen, a trolley might have to be put on to help out.

REPORT MUCH GAME WAS KILLED IN CONNECTICUT

Hon. Arthur L. Millett of the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries attended a meeting of the state board of fisheries and game held in Hartford last Thursday and gave his views about the best method of obtaining statistics of the commercial fisheries of the marine district.

While the development of the fisheries, not only the commercial fisheries but that of the angler which has very intrinsic value in addition to its recreation value, is regarded as a work which produces more tangible results in proportion to the efforts and money expended, the importance of fostering the game of the state cannot be overlooked and the revenue from hunting licenses makes it possible to do a good deal to improve hunting. The value of game annually killed runs into rather large figures. Based on the reports of licensed hunters who sent in their returns for 1922, approximately 75,000 cottontail rabbits and 1700 varying hares were killed; approximately 4000 coons, 17,000 skunks, 70,000 squirrels and 30,000 muskrats were brought down by the hunters. Based on the reports of one-third of the licensed hunters, over 28,000 ducks, 46,000 ruffed grouse and Hungarian partridges, 73,000 pheasants, 30,000 woodcocks, 7,000 quail, 4,900 rail and a smaller proportion of other water fowl were killed.

It is hoped when the hunters realize the importance of having these statistics on file in the office as a basis of comparison from year to year, they will be more ready to promptly respond with their reports at the close of the hunting season.

These statistics do not include the large amount of game killed by hunters who are not required to have a license because they hunt on their own lands.

Only 46 foxes were reported killed by one-third of the licensed hunters, although it is well recognized that if all of the fox hunters had made reports the number would be much more than trebled.

Very interesting reports have been received in regard to the survival of Hungarian partridges, so much so that the commission is planning to import one or two thousand next fall.

Senator McLean and some others have indicated their intention to purchase some quail for introduction in Connecticut. For this reason, a close season of two years has been recommended for favorable action in the lexislature.

At the state game farm in Madison pheasant eggs have been started in one of the large incubators and as the brooder system of producing pheasants is rather new and it is being watched by a great many people, it has been decided to employ Donald MacVicar, a retired game breeder, who has in the past raised from 20,000 to 30,000 pheasants annually where he was employed before he came to this country, to act as a consultant to the superintendent of the game farm for a month or two during the active period of the brooding operations.

In certain sections of orchard development where the cottontails are doing damage, the commission desires to make arrangements with farmers' boys to trap rabbits and retain them alive for transportation to regions where they can furnish sport without doing damage. Some of the sportsmen's clubs are ready to defray the expenses of this work.

ATTACHMENT ON FORMER PLANT'S GAME PRESERVE

Suit against Thomas Frusher of East Lyme for $4,000 on the common counts has been brought by the Geigy Co., Inc., of 89 Barclay street New York, and attachments have been filed on 16 parcels of real estate in East Lyme, Lyme and Old Lyme.

The real estate attached comprises most of the large tract which was formerly the Morton F. Plant game preserve and includes tracts deed to him by Cornelius O. Banta of East Lyme, Annie and Joe Gurvitz of East Lyme, Julius T. Rogers of East Lyme; Josephine and Robert H. Noble of Old Lyme, James B. Huntley of East Lyme and United States Trust Co. of New York, trustee of the estate of Robert G. Erwin, deceased.

Many a city man who boasts of his boyhood back on the farm continues to reside in town.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is extensively used in hospitals and in factories as first aid to the injured. It is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces lasts a very long time.

Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that soft bunches, goitre, swollen glands and wens are reduced. It is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Your druggist can supply you.

Itching Piles

Druggists refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Stops Irritation, Soothes and Heals. The first application gives ease and rest. 60c.

JEWETT SIX

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, April 23.—Prices in today's stock market continued their irregular and uncertain course of last week, early irregularity giving way to heaviness before noon and rallying considerably in the late hours on short covering operations. There was evidence, also, in the later hours of confirmed buying.

Taking advantage of the announcement of the long expected cut in Mid-continent oil prices, coupled with reports of labor disturbances and the absence of public participation, speculators for the decline forced prices down throughout the list in the early dealings. Motors, oils, steels and equipments all gave way one to three points.

Sugar shares showed strength throughout on further increases in the price of the raw and refined product.

While a majority of the stocks closed fractionally lower on the day, buying during the last hour brought recoveries almost equal to the earlier declines. U. S. Steel which touched 104 1-8 at one time, closed at 105 1-2, an advance of 3-8. With the exception of a gain of 1 3-8 points by Pan American, the oils generally were slightly lower at the close, Cosden losing 1 1-8.

American Locomotive, which was pressed down in the early selling, rallied sharply and registered a gain of 1 1-2 points. Other equipments, however, failed to muster sufficient strength to overcome the selling pressure and closed fractionally lower.

Gains of a point or more were recorded by All American Cables, American Woolens, Atlas Powder, Gruber Bros., and U. S. Retail Stores, while losses of one to two points were registered by American Metal, American Radiator, Brown Shoes, California Petroleum preferred, Central Leather preferred, and United Drug. Woolworth jumped 5 points on a small turnover.

Railroad shares were comparatively dull with fractional losses predominating. Chicago Great Western preferred dropped 1 1-8 and Norfolk & Western a point.

Call loans opened at 4 1-2 per cent. Rates remained unchanged the day. The time money market appeared easier with plenty of money available at 5 1-4 per cent. for the shorter maturities. Bankers bid out for 6 1-2 per cent. for the longer term loans. The commercial paper market was quiet. Prime names commanding 5 and 5 1-4 per cent. With less known names going at 5 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were fairly firm. Demand sterling was off fractionally being quoted at 4.64 7-8. French francs were somewhat improved at 6.67 cents. Cables from Berlin reported an increase by the reichsbank of the rediscount rate from 12 per cent. to the unprecedented rate of 18 per cent. Marks were off 2 1-8 points at .0054 1-8 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, April 23.—Bond prices were relatively firm today, foreign issues particularly displaying marked strength. Easing of time money was believed to be responsible for the firmness of the bond market in the face of declining stock prices.

The U. S. government bonds fluctuated within narrow limits, the tax exempt 3 1-2s advancing 5-32ds of a point while most of the other active issues remained stationary. French issues were in demand, reaching new high records for the year and the Mexican 4s were up 1 1-4 points.

Railroad mortgages were irregular with price changes small and unimportant. Tractions showed signs of weakness, third avenue adjustment 5s declining 1 1-8 points. Industrial bonds were mixed, United Drug 8s gaining a point while Punta Alegre Sugar 7s dropped a point. The steel company liens were off fractionally.

Total sales (par value) were $10,745,000.

An offering of $10,000,000 General Petroleum company 6 per cent. five year bonds was oversubscribed during the day. The bonds were sold at 97½ with interest to yield 6.60 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, April 23.—Although rain and snow in Nebraska and elsewhere had a noticeable bearish influence on the wheat market today the effect was afterward counter-balanced by indications of improved demand from exporters and by talk of further delay to seeding northwest. Closing prices were unsettled at 1-4c net decline to 3-8 advance with May 1.24 3-4 to 1.24 7-8 and July 1.22 3-4 to 1.22 7-8. Corn gained 5-8 to 7-8c and oats a shade to 1-4c. In provisions the outcome was 5 to 7c decline.

Besides the timely supply of moisture to the winter crop in the west and southwest, lower quotations at Liverpool tended to bring about a downturn of values during the early dealings in the wheat market here. Nevertheless, sellers were cautious owing partly to smallness of the amount of wheat on ocean passage and because of wintry conditions hindering the water route arrival of grain at Montreal.

Price rallies which acquired considerable force in the last hour of wheat trading were accompanied by removal of hedges here against export business including some to Germany and by assertion that Greece was seeking offers on 1,000,000 bushels. Numerous reports were also at hand telling of cold weather and other impediments to seeding of spring wheat in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Some notice was taken too, of a decrease in domestic visible supply figures, and there was buying also on the basis of relative value of commodity.

Better demand from shippers, together with rain interfering with field work, gave strength to prices for corn and oats.

Provisions were depressed by a downturn in hog values.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

On all projects in Norwich and vicinity good progress was made during the past week and many of the buildings under construction were brought up well along toward the completion stage. Noticeable progress has been made on the block for Alex M. Frasnik on West Main street. The brick walls have been raised to the roof and the studding for the partitions in the building have been set in place. Before the week is out, if the weather holds good the interior work will be started.

The work on the new Palace theatre is well along and the walls are nearly complete. The steel truss structure for the roof is practically all in place and the other work on the building has advanced in proportion. It is expected that the theatre will be ready for occupation by the first of August.

The building at 58 Main street owned by George Greenberger has been brought out to the edge of the old platform and projects about four feet beyond the other buildings adjacent. The new entrance is of the arcade type which is becoming the vogue in Norwich.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton two building permits were granted during the past week, one for alterations to a building on Main street, and the other for a garage.

P. F. Sweeney has been granted the contract for alterations to the building of Beckenstein and Taylor at 104 Main street. The present front of the second story will be torn out and a new plate glass front installed. A flight of stairs from the first to the second floor will be built and several partitions taken out to make a store on the second floor.

Charles S. Storms has been granted a permit to erect a frame garage at 575 Main street. The garage will be 18x20 feet with a spruce frame and white pine siding. The roof will be covered with composition roofing.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 15 sales of real estate as compared to 18 sales for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $254,234 and $38,450.

There were 8 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, two more than for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $22,975 and $21,290.

THE STATE SITUATION.

Building operations do not proceed in the volume that was anticipated a month or two ago, and a certain degree of hesitancy is noted in the awarding of contracts and starting of new projects, which is evidenced in the statistics of permits. The record of new permits granted in the leading centers of the state shows 322 permits issued during the week, for buildings costing $1,157,928. Comparing with these figures 267 permits were granted in the corresponding week of last year, for buildings costing $1,009,089, and 283 in 1921, the permits aggregating $640,588.

NEW LONDON.

Work has been started on a residence at Ocean beach for Harris Sadofsky, 16 Mahl avenue, Hartford. E. E. Snelton has the contract. The house will be 26x38 feet, of frame construction, containing seven rooms, with the usual conveniences. The cost will be $4,500.

A residence is to be built on Gardner avenue for C. E. Dimick, 47 Squire street. The plans call for an attractive house of frame construction, finished in hard woods, with hardwood floors. The heating will be provided. Cost about $10,000.

Contracts have been awarded for the erection of the Stanton avenue school as follows: General contract, Joseph A. St. Germain; heating Hopson & Chapin Co.; plumbing, Charles Smith, and electric wiring, the Modern Electric Co. The plans are by Architects Palmer & Keete.

Architects have been commissioned to draw plans for the proposed chanees to the building on State street for P. J. Henael 322 Bank street. A new front for the three stories will be made, arranging the structure for stores and offices. The plans will soon be ready for figures.

Plans are being completed for a residence to be built on Gardner avenue for H. H. Smith, assistant treasurer of the Mariners Savings bank. The house will be of frame construction, finished in hard wood floors The baths will be tiled and provision will be made for hot water heat and all conveniences. Cost $10,000.

NEW VIGOR FOR WORN-OUT WOMEN

ARE you suffering from "spring fever"—hardly able to drag one foot after another, and dull, sleepy, languid and worn out?

You ought to take Gude's Pepto-Mangan for a short time. Get a bottle and begin now—you'll be surprised to see how much stronger and more ambitious you feel—how much more work you can do, how your cheeks fill out and the rosy color comes back.

Your druggist has Gude's—in both liquid and tablet form.

WEATHER

Conditions

Monday night an extensive area of low barometer was over the west Atlantic and pressure was also low over the Mississippi valley and the southwestern states. Areas of high barometer of considerable magnitude were central Monday night in the region of the great lakes and low over Saskatchewan. This pressure distribution has been attended by cooler weather in the middle Atlantic states, New England, the Ohio valley and the northwest. There have been rains within the last 24 hours in the north Atlantic states, the lower Ohio valleys and Mississippi.

In New England and New York the weather will be fair Tuesday and Wednesday with slowly rising temperatuge Wednesday. In the middle Atlantic states the weather will be fair Tuesday and Wednesday without material change in temperature. In the south Atlantic states the weather will be partly cloudy Tuesday and Wednesday with a slightly lower temperature in the Carolinas and Georgia.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Fresh and strong northwest and fair weather Tuesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Fresh north and northwest and weather fair Tuesday.

Forecast

For New England, East New York—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday, rising temperature Wednesday.

TAFTVILLE

Albert Lafleur, and his son and daughter, Miss Annie Lafleur and Frank Lafleur of South B street were in New Bedford, Mass., Monday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Gobeille, Mr. Lafleur's sister, who was a resident of this village several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bouley of Hunters avenue had as their guest over the week end, their daughter, Mrs. William Cushion of Plainfield.

Albert Labarre of Goodyear, spent he week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Labarre of Hunters avenue.

The St. Louis Society held a specal meeting at their hall on Dion street, Sunday afternoon with President David Lambert in the chair. While no definite information has been given out, it is rumored about the town that one of the social organizations of the village has been carrying on negotiations with the society for the leasing of the hall, to be used as a clubroom, and that this special meeting was called for the purpose of considering the proposition.

William Shea of Occum Road passed the week end with his parents in Pawtucket, R. I., making the trip in his touring car.

Picket fences on South Second avenue are being repaired.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thoma of Lisbon entertained over the week end, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Bauer of Attleboro, Mass., who made the trip in their automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Z. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson's sons, Milton and Chester Gordon of North B street are moving to Goodyear, Conn., where they have accepted employment in the plants of the Goodyear Cotton Mills, Inc. Mrs. Johnson is the sister of William Tibbitts, who disappeared recently from his home on Fitchville Road.

Cards were received in the village Monday from Philias C. Dion of Merchants avenue who is touring the Holy Land. One card comes from Bethlehem and shows a view of the village, another is postmarked Jerusalem and bears a picture of the Grotton of the Agony, showing a small place of worship cut in the solid rock with stone altar. Although Palestine is now a Jewish state, the stamps affixed to the cards bear Turkish inscriptions.

Lake Benoit and William Donahue of Norwich avenue were in Plainfield, Sunday.

John Ely of Lisbon is able to return to school after being confined to his home by injuries resulting from a fall from his bicycle.

Mr. and Mrs. Desire Dion of Terrace avenue, are, with their family moving to the Falls, Norwich.

The Community Sewing class met Monday evening in the Red Cross Rooms in the Ponemah Building.

Troop 4, Boy Scouts, met Monday evening in their rooms in the Sacred Heart school building under the direction of Scoutmaster Rev. Henry F. Chagnon.

Through an error it was stated that the refreshments served at the recent Workers Conference at the Taftville Congregational church were in charge of Mrs. Eugene N. Monty's Sunday School Class. The refreshments were served by Oscar Mathewson's class.

Miss Margaret Hasler and Miss Abbietta Hasler of South Fifth avenue were week end visitors in New London. On Monday, Miss Margaret Hasler attended the Driscoll-Smith wedding in Franklin.

NORWICH MILLS AGREE TO GO ON DAYLIGHT SAVING NEXT MONDAY

Norwich manufacturing concerns with 7,000 employes, which include practically all the largest mill and manufacturing industries in the town, are to begin operations next Monday morning, April 30, on the so-called daylight saving time, according to an agreement which they have signed.

The following are the industries making the agreement: American Woolen Co. (both plants), Atlantic Carton Corp., Brainerd & Armstrong, Carpenter Mfg. Co., Crescent Firearms Co., Davis-Warner Arms Co., Falls Co., Glen Woolen Mills, Lester & Waseley Co., J. B. Martin Co., Norwich Belt Mfg. Co., Norwich Paper Box Co., Ponemah Mills, Ratner, Werman Co., Reliance Yarn Co., Richmond Radiator Co., Saxton Woolen Mills, Shetucket Co., Ulmer Leather Co., Uncas Paper Board Co., United Metal Mfg. Co., U. S. Finishing Co., Vaughn Foundry, West Side Silk Mill.

This action on the part of the manufacturers is imperative because of the railroads going on daylight saving time and the main offices of many of these plants being located in other cities and states that will be on daylight saving time. The shipments of the manufacturers must be in the freight house at 1.30, standard time, which will not give the manufacturers sufficient time to make their daily shipments promptly should they operate their mills on standard time.

The Connecticut Street Railway Company will arrange their schedules in unison with the manufacturers.

The school board will also conform the school session hours to daylight saving time, because of the action of the manufacturers.

This action on the part of the manufacturers is taken through the necessity of the surrounding states being on daylight saving time, as well as the train schedules. It is suggested that the people of Norwich generally advance their clocks one hour to conform with daylight saving time. All the industries will advance their clocks beginning operations on daylight saving time, next Monday, April 30th and continuing until Sept. 29th. With the industries, trolleys and the schools on daylight saving time, it will mean that the merchants will in all probability take similar action at a special meeting to be called for Wednesday morning.

C. E. INSTITUTE PLANS TAKING DEFINITE SHAPE

It has been definitely decided that the four Acorn Institutes which will be put on this spring by the Connecticut Christian Endeavor Union will fall on the four week-ends in May. They will be held in New London, Bridgeport, Hartford and Middletown respectively, and the local committees in each of these centers are hard at work in order that the entertainment of the delegates while in their city shall be the best. There are to be three general themes for the conferences, and anyone who takes the four conferences under any one theme will be enrolled by the United Society of Christian Endeavor as having completed a course in leadership training in accord with the outline laid out for the country. The three general themes will be I. Christian Endeavor Relationships with sub-conferences on (a) The Church, (b) The Community, (c) The Denomination and (d) The Home; II. Missionary Methods, divided into (a) Denominational Field and Work, (b) Missionary Program, (c) Missionary Publicity and (d) Missionary Education; III. Service Opportunities with the four conferences on (a) Working (general Christian Endeavor), (b) Giving (denominational), (c) Teaching (Sunday school), and (d) Example (Big Brother and Sister Movement).

A will be noted, denominational representatives have one conference in each group for the presentation of the program for the young people of their denomination, and the Baptist and Congregational men will be at each institute. All Presbyterian young people will be gathered either at Bridgeport or Hartford, and at these two places the Presbyterian representative will be on the program. The three conferences in the Missionary Methods section will be led at the New London and Hartford institutes by Miss Isabelle M. Chute, missionary superintendent of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Union.

Flowers at Mary Kearn's Funeral

The following were floral tributes sent for the funeral of Mary Kearns on Friday from relatives and friends:

Pillow, Mother and Father; cross, Grandma. Agnes and Margaret Kearns; basket, Classmates; bouquet, Thomas McGuinness; wreath, Longo Family; pillow, T. A. Fitzgerald; lilies, Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Reid; blanket bouquet, from the Old Corner; spray lilies, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kelly; carnations, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Counihan; basket of roses, Miss Elizabeth Morrison; carnations, Mr. and Mrs. John Cleary; lilies, Mary and Thomas Foley; spray carnations, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cochrane, carnations, Edward Comerford; basket, Mary and Rose Fitzgerald, Elsie and Mary Bundy; basket, John McNally; spray carnations, McCune children; floral basket, Edith McGreevey, Sherrad and Eunice Ingalls.

Workmen's compensation.

Four workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

New London Ship and Engine Co., employer, and J. D. Burke, employe, scalp laceration, at rate of $10.57.

Richmond Radiator Co., Norwich, employer, and J. W. Murray, 24 Garfield avenue, employe, finger fractured, at rate of $18.

Robert Gair Co., Uncasville, employer, and Enrico Bergnisi, New London, employe, right side lame, at rate of $10.69.

Patrick F. Sweeney, Norwich, employer, and Silas Woodworth, 76 Lafayette street, employe, deep gash in left wrist, at rate of $18.

FIERY, ITCHING SKIN IS QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

BERT LUCAS WRITES OF HIS TRIP TO SEATTLE

Herbert W. Lucas of this city, who is making an extended stay in Seattle on his western trip, has written The Bulletin of some of his sights and experiences on the way from Denver to Seattle. His letter follows:

I left Denver, Col., March 25th, in a severe snow storm, on the Colorado Southern, it being one of the smoothest riding railroads I have yet been on. The train was completely packed owing to academy students returning to school at Boulder, Col., where there is the state college. I arrived at Fort Collins, another fine city of Colorado, which is 70 miles from Denver. Longmont, the next station, is the largest beet sugar raising town in the world. The town owns its own gas and electric plant and makes each house put an electric light on its front porch, which helps to light the streets. This is put in free by the town.

All along the route there are very beautiful lakes, and when I arrived in the state of Wyoming I saw some great oil fields. Among these were the Mutual Oil company, Sinclair, Standard Oil, Indiana and Texas Oil holdings. At Casper I saw the largest oil refinery in the world. The Texas Oil company has a very large pipe line and filling station here. I passed through the town of Thermopolis, where there are hot springs the same as in Arkansas. You can see the water boiling right out of the ground. There is a large sanatorium here where hundreds of people come for their health. They were erecting a large addition to the sanatorium. I passed a large body of water called Bear creek, and at this point I saw the largest flock of wild geese I had ever seen flying around everywhere.

I have met several different ranch men and they all say that the cattle business is shot in the head. There is no money in it, many being hard hit last year. A great many are selling their ranches at a low figure.

I arrived at Billings, Mont., where I changed cars for Seattle, Billings being a junction on the Northern Pacific. I arrived here at 8 p. m. and left at 9.30. This is a swell train called the Northern Coast Limited and composed of all steel cars, and believe me it sure does fly. The first town from Billings was Longstone, a very beautiful little town. I also passed through a number of nice towns before arriving at Butte. Just before coming into Butte the view is wonderful as we are way up in the mountains and can look off in the far distance and see the glimmering lights of our destination. As we wind down from the mountains towards Butte, which lies in the valley, it makes a wonderful night scene.

I arrived at Butte early in the morning. The next big town I arrived at was Missoula, quite a railroad center, the railroad shops being located there. It's a beautiful city. There is a big freight yard there and as we pulled in through the depot we could see the ruins of a large brewery which at one time made a great deal of BEER. Now it looks more like a battlefield, all torn to pieces.

Beautiful Sight from Paradise.

The next town of any size was called Paradise, and it deserves its name for it is a swell town. As we leave it we wind our way out of it almost in a figure 8 and go up in the mountains again. As you look back you can see the auto roads winding in white streaks in and out the hills, and sometimes can see the trains and automobiles almost underneath us. It is a thrilling sight to look down probably some 2,000 feet below and see the automobiles which look like little ants crawling along. On top of the mountain there is a big lake called Pond Lake. We go all the way around it until we come to Sand Point, where is located the largest lumber yard that I have ever seen. The lumber is in piles as far as one can see. This marks the beginning of the lumber region. I arrived at Spokane at 6.05 o'clock Tuesday evening. Just before coming into Spokane a large stone was thrown through the car window and nearly killed a child who was in its mother's arms. It crashed through two panes of glass and went almost to the opposite window across the car.

The Northern Pacific railroad is equipped with the finest of dining car services. The gardens, orchards and dairies along the railroad are justly famed for their produce which are of rare flavor and rich quality. From these come the fruit, vegetables, etc., that supply the diners. The pasteurized milk is put up in individual bottles rich with cream. The butter used exclusively on these tables is unsalted. This choice butter is also used for cooking purposes in the kitchen. Soups are made fresh for each meal, no canned varieties being used on any of the diners. No cold storage stock is served, insuring the use of fresh poultry, eggs, meat, sea food and so forth, and is served by men who have been carefully selected and trained in these particular duties. They operate their own bakeries and butcher shops at Seattle and St. Paul, in which all their bread, cake and pastry are made, and where all meat is cut into portions, wrapped in parchment paper, ready for the range.

Snow 25 Feet Deep.

Coming through the Cascade mountains before we reach Seattle we saw considerable snow, the largest amount I have ever seen, it being then over 25 feet deep. In this region also were a great many lumber camps. There were some beautiful waterfalls and streams all through the Cascade mountains. I reached Seattle after a ride of three nights and two days from Denver. I was met at the depot by my relatives and we took a jitney to Allen place, where I am stopping for a time. Seattle is a very hilly city, Jail Hill and Summer street, Norwich, being tame compared to the hills of Seattle. No section in the world could offer any greater variety of interesting excursions and pleasurable outings than this city. The Puget sound country, embracing Seattle, Tacoma and the British Columbia cities of Victoria and Vancouver, is naturally endowed with every requisite to make it a summer playground of the world. The average summer temperature is 64 degrees. Snow-capped mountains that stand out in all their majestic height of 5,000 to 14,000 feet furnish scenic beauty that can scarcely be duplicated in any other section.

There are wonderful lakes here—Big lake, Otto lake and Washington lake—where you can get the finest bass, perch and trout. There are many streams like the Canyon creek, Cedar river, Greenwater river, Skykonish river. Running along the last named river is a road where a short time ago two automobiles plunged over the bank into the river and all the occupants were drowned. I drove over this same road Sunday, and saw the Great Locks canal built at the cost of $500,000, connecting Puget sound and the Pacific ocean with Lake Union and Lake Washington, and gives ocean vessels access to fresh water industries and allows boats to harbor in the cleansing water of the lake.

Great Shipping Facilities.

This fresh water relieves them of all barnacles on their hulls. These locks are second in size to the Panama canal. At Smith cove is the largest commercial pier in the world. It is 2,530 feet long and 1,376 feet wide. Palatial vessels that carry passengers back and forth to the Orient are tied up here, and you can go aboard any of them by obtaining a pass. Seattle has 25 motion picture houses, about 50 banks, and some very fine hospitals—Seattle General, St. Luke and Seattle City being among the largest. There is a mail service by airplane every day from here. A Carnegie library which has over a million volumes in it is beautifully located here.

Other points of interest in the city are the aquarium, the totem poles from Alaska, the L. C. Smith building, 42 stories high, the tallest building in the United States outside of New York city; wonderful parks averaging in acreage from 163 to 184 acres, in which are all kinds of animals imaginable. Volunteer park 450 feet above sea level, has a fine observatory. There are also some great automobile trips out of Seattle, as well as long trips on the trolley cars all for a nickel, as the price here is five cents the ride, plus a transfer, and another transfer on top of that—a long ride for five cents. At the port ships from Alaska, the Far East and South America load and unload their cargoes. Again there are mammoth lumber mills, shingle mills, all of which was of great interest to me. Besides this there are fish canneries, shipbuilding yards and huge flour mills.

Tacoma, the gateway to Mt. Ranier, a city of 100,000 people, is a beautiful place. Point Defiance park of 631 acres is considered the most beautiful park in the northwest, and well called so. To reach Tacoma by boat from Seattle is a trip of two hours, the round trip fare being 80 cents.

Seattle is a beautifully lighted city, especially the Standard Furniture building. All automobiles are parked in a dirt road running between the two asphalt roads. The roads here are brick.

Today I took a trip up to Everett, quite a large city, which is a great lumber center. A big lumber millionaire has a lot of lumber mills here. I came up here from Seattle by the interurban and believe me I traveled some, 70 miles per hour. Then we took the auto 'bus from Everett to Lake Stephen, where I have spent the week. It is good fishing in the lake. Up beyond the lake is a station on the Great Northern railroad called Hartford, but it is some different from Hartford, Conn. I think there is one store, one depot, and a few chickens there. From the lake you can see in the distance beautiful mountains, among the highest being Pelchuck. One day I took an auto and we took a ride up to a place called Granite-ville, about a 40-mile ride. The climate here is real nice, all the trees are in bloom and everything is fine.

Last evening I went over to the large new Christian Science church. It's a beauty and was filled to overflowing. About every afternoon now I go down in front the Seattle Times building and watch the baseball scores. They have a regular board and each play is reproduced as it is made. There are thousands in front of the bulletin board each day.

Business here is not as good as it is in the east. Laborers get $3 to $3.75 per day but skilled mechanics get good pay. It is a fine city and one can't help liking it. It has a university to feel proud of with 8,000 students, 347 acres and 50 beautiful buildings on the property, situated in a scenic spot near the shores of Lake Washington. The stadium of the university is near the lake and cost $500,000 and was built by efforts of the student body. It seats 56,000 people.

Will Go to Alaska.

I took a long ride today, way up into British Columbia, to Victoria, by boat. From Victoria I went by auto to Brentwood and saw the magnificent Burchard gardens. Next week I expect to take the trip to Vancouver, 162 miles from Seattle. In July I expect I shall take the boat and go up to Alaska, as I am now the nearest I shall ever be to it.

SMITH COLLEGE CLUB HELD ANNUAL MEETING

Miss Helen K. Whiton of New London was elected president of the Eastern Connecticut Smith college club at its annual meeting held Saturday in New London at the home of Mrs. George T. Brown of Prospect street. Miss Whiton graduated from Smith in 1910. Other officers chosen to serve for the ensuing year were:

Secretary and Treasurer—Mrs. C. Hadlai Hull, New London.

Councillor—Mrs. F. R. Cummings, Willimantic.

Among the members attending were Mrs. F. R. Cummings and Miss Muriel Kennedy of Willimantic; Miss Flora Davidson, Miss Eunice Gulliver and Miss Charlotte Gulliver of Norwich; Mrs. Irving Davis of Storrs.

In addition to the election of officers annual reports were read and a report given by Miss Eunice Gulliver, last year's councillor, on her attendance at the annual federation meeting of Smith college clubs in New Hampshire last February. Following the business session tea was served.

Thursday Afternoon Whist.

The Thursday afternoon whist club met last week with Mrs. William Ingraham, at her home in Hallville. The prizes were awarded as follows: Old rose cream pitcher, Miss Margaret Ensign, of Hartford; handkerchief, Mrs. William H. Covey; glass mayonnaise serving dish, Miss Edith L. Boynton. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

GAVE CORSET TALK UNDER FARM BUREAU

Are all corsets wrong? If not, what is a correct corset? What may be expected of a correct corset? What connection is there between a corset and good looks? These were some of the questions that were discussed by Miss Cora Irene Leiby, a former state clothing specialist, now educational secretary of the H. W. Gossard Co., at two meetings of the New London County Farm Bureau women on Thursday and Friday afternoons of last week.

The meetings were held in Stonington and Lyme and were attended by about 50 women. These women represented 8 communities. These meetings were arranged by Miss Gladys Stratton the Home Demonstration Agent and Miss Edith Mason the State Clothing Specialist.

The subject of the demonstration was "The Corset in Relation to Health" In part Miss Leiby said "The time is past when we go up to a counter and buy our corset by asking for 'something in size 28, about $5.00 and pink'. The selection of a corset which is to be correct, calls for more serious thought than that.

"Corsets are now designed to suit all types of figures, and if your corset is to be correct, you must have the corset that has been designed for your type. Be sure that you are not getting the small size of a big woman's corset or the big size of a small woman's corset. And be sure that the corset has been designed to give the proper anatomical support. Unless a corset gives this support, it will not be healthy, comfortable, or give you the line and proportion that you should have.

"Many women think that a corset has to be uncomfortable, that unless it is it will not sufficiently restrain the figure. A corset that is uncomfortable is either not the right corset for your figure, or you are not wearing the corset correctly. A corset to hold the hip anchorage and to give the right upward lift over the abdomen, must be daily adjusted. Take care to see that your corset is unlaced every time that it is taken off and that it is relaced each time it is put on.

"Judge your corset by these points: It should be anchored at the hip-line, so that it will not 'ride up'; it should be loose at the waist-line, so that it will not compress the vital organs; it should be long enough in the back to come well below the curve, so that it will give the smooth back-line that is the foundation of present day fashions; it should be full enough in the top, so that the bust is not raised either when standing or sitting, so that flesh is not caused to roll over the shoulders.

"Be sure that your corset is large enough. This is essential from the viewpoint of health, comfort and good looks. A correct corset gives perfect support where it is needed. It eliminates the unattractive curves and angles, and emphasizes that which is good."

SUES FOR $2,000 FOR BROKEN RIGHT LEG

Leo Democh of New London, a minor, has brought suit against Arthur Grodexke of Norwich for $2,000 for injuries received on Sept. 2, 1922, when he was struck by the defendant's automobile while he was sitting astride of a fence beside the highway between Groton and Norwich. The boy brings the suit through his father, Edward Democh. It is alleged that the defendant was driving his car recklessly and at a dangerous rate of speed as a result of which his car left the highway and ran into the fence on which the boy was sitting. The plaintiff claims that he received a compound fracture of the right leg, sprain of the left wrist, contusions of the face and loss of his front teeth.

The suit is returnable to the superior court the first Tuesday in May.

YALE TO ESTABLISH UNDER-GRADUATE NURSING COURSE

Funds Provided by the Rockefeller Foundation for the First University Under-Graduate School of Nursing in the United States—Requirement for Admission Will be a High School Course or Its Equivalent—Routine Tasks Are to be Eliminated—Curriculum Will Cover Diagnosis, Care and Treatment of Disease, and Factors Relative to the Conservation of Health—Course May be Shortened to 28 Months.

New Haven, April 24.—President James R. Angell announced today the establishment at Yale of the first university undergraduate school of nursing in the United States the funds for which are to be provided by the Rockefeller foundation.

Explanatory of this new departure in education the announcement said, that this would be the first school of nursing organized as a separate school in a university, with its own dean, its own faculty, buildings and budget. In its curriculum the Yale school will break away from the present apprenticeship system of nurse training. The nursing course will focus attention upon the educational training of the student, eliminating many routine tasks which contribute little or nothing to the training.

This announcement further says that by adopting the educational plan the period of preparation can be shortened, probably to 28 months.

The requirement for admission to the Yale university school of nursing will be a high school course or its equivalent. Primarily for the girl without college training, provision will be made for an elective pre-nursing period of university work, chiefly in the sciences.

Throughout the course an attempt will be made to present all the factors which contribute toward the diagnosis, care, and treatment of disease, and which have relationship to the conservation of health. Patients will not be considered as hospital "cases" only, but such factors as heredity, environment, child development, psychology, economics, sociology, industry and public health will be presented in their bearing upon each problem as it is studied. Such a plan will emphasize sickness in its true relationship as a family, community and public health problem. The new school will embrace field work and community nursing as a part of the basic training.

IRREGULARITY IN HOUSE OF DAVID GROUP MARRIAGE

St. Joseph, Mich., April 24 (By the A. P.).—Further evidence of irregularity in the group marriage last week of fourteen couples at the House of David was uncovered today in the grand jury investigation of charges of immorality in "King" Benjamin Purnell's Israelite colony, according to reports from the grand jury room.

Three sisters, of whom at least one's age was said to have been misrepresented in order to obtain the marriage license, testified, it was reported, that Mrs. Louise Brake, 50, could neither read nor write, although what purports to be her written signature appears on the parents' affidavit of consent attached to the license application.

Another discovery by Judge Harry Dingman of Detroit, the one-man grand jury, was that several of the license applications bore the name of the bridegroom written on a typewriter and the typewritten word "Miss" followed by a blank in which the prospective bride's name was filled in with a pen.

As former evil members of the cult have frequently charged in court actions that it was customary at the group marriages which have preceded other state and local investigations to draw lots for husbands, the grand jury inquiry will delve into the possibility that some similar system may have been followed this time.

STATE TAX FOR NORWICH MAY BE REDUCED $7,949

Hartford, Conn., April 24.—Reduction of the state tax on towns by $500,000 a year is provided in a bill which will be favorably reported to the general assembly tomorrow by the finance committee.

The reduction of the state tax on towns, according to the committee means that the property tax, through the levy of which the state tax is paid, can be lowered. The expectation of the committee is that this will mean a slight reduction in rents, and so a reduction of the entire cost of living. City Treasurer Slocum of Hartford said tonight that had the reduction been known when this city was making up its budget, it would have been possible to have a lower tax rate during the coming year.

The state tax was increased from $1,750,000 to $2,000,000 by the 1921 session of the general assembly. The reduction has been made possible, according to House Chairman Ernest W. Christ, of New Britain, by the belief of the finance committee that the expenses of the state will be lower as well as the feeling that the property tax must be reduced.

The proposed tax will mean reduction of $7,949 for the town of Norwich.

SKULL FRACTURED WHEN HIS AUTO STRUCK FENCE

Winsted, Conn., April 24.—Irving Drinkwater, of Waterbury, was seriously injured on the Torrington road late this afternoon when he lost control of an automobile, which crashed into a fence. The posts from the fence were hurled through the windshield, striking Drinkwater. He was taken to the Litchfield county hospital, where it was found that he received a fractured skull. He is in an unconscious condition and little hope is held for his recovery.

Clifford Rassel, of Waterbury, the owner of the car, was held as a material witness. He and two others in the party were not injured.

GEN. PERSHING INSPECTS FIRST CORPS ARMY AREA

Boston, April 24.—General John J. Pershing came here today to inspect various departments of the First Corps Area of the army. He visited the army intelligence bureau and arranged to go to Camp Devens later in the day.

General Pershing has decided not to visit Camp Devens. After an inspection of the army base including the piers and warehouses, he planned to leave for Washington late today.

REPEAL OF MULLAN-GAGE LAW DEFEATED BY ONE VOTE

Albany, N. Y., April 24.—The final attempt to repeal the Mullan-Gage state prohibition enforcement law failed for the lack of one vote in the assembly late today. The vote on a motion, by Minority Leader Charles D. Donohue to discharge the committee on rules from further consideration of the Dunnigan repeal bill, which has been passed by the senate, [illegible]

CZECHOSLOVAKIA IS EXPELLING HUNGARIANS

Budapest, April 24 (By the A. P.).—Owing to Czech reprisals, trains running from Hungary to Czechoslovakia have been halted and travelers are returning to Budapest from border stations. The Czech legation here has suspended the granting of vises to passports of Hungarian citizens.

Seventy Hungarian estate owners in Czechoslovakia, including a number of prominent aristocrats, have been handed expulsion orders from the Czech authorities.

Count Albert Apponyi, the opposition leader, at today's session of the national assembly asked the Hungarian government's interference against the Czech reprisals. Premier Bethlen said, regarding a recent shooting incident in the border, that the Hungarian government had offered to have a neutral commission investigate the trouble, but that the Czechs had chosen reprisals against Hungary. Hungary, the premier added, was ready to give full satisfaction for the attacks on Czechoslovak frontier guards by Magyar soldiers and would ask mediation in the controversy by the allies.

The Hungarian newspapers, commenting on the situation, declare that the reprisals are "contradictory of the peaceful overtures made in the Easter message of President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia as published in Budapest."

BIG FIRES AT CONEY ISLAND AND FAR ROCKAWAY

New York, April 24.—Coney Island and Far Rockaway, two of New York's best known seashore resorts were visited this afternoon by fires that caused damage estimated at $500,000.

A tiny spark flying from an electric motor mixing machine, set the blaze in Far Rockaway that destroyed the 250 room hotel Tack-a-pou-sha and three thousand bath houses on Ostend Beach.

The new Tramore hotel, of 350 rooms and the Ostend hotel, 400 rooms directly in the path of the fire, were saved from destruction by the prompt work of firemen of four seashore towns who answered the five alarms. Swept by a west wind, embers from the beach fires carried to the Far Rockaway, destroyed a $25,000 summer residence, caused slight damage to an old railroad station and started a brush fire that swept across two miles of flatland before being halted. Five firemen were slightly injured.

While the seashore fires were at their height seven alarms were sound ed in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx, so that between 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon more than 40 per cent. of Greater New York's fire departments was on duty.

The Far Rockaway blaze was but a few miles from Arverne, where several hundred frame bungalows, residences and summer hotels were destroyed last year by fire.

PORTRAIT PAINTER TO BE EXAMINED IN STOKES CASE

New York, April 24.—E. Stetson Crawford, a portrait painter, will be examined tomorrow before a court stenographer here by Frank Laughlin, counsel for W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy realty operator, retrial of whose divorce suit against Mrs. Helen Elwood Sickes is scheduled to begin next Monday.

Crawford plans to sail tomorrow to make his permanent home in Paris and counsel for Stokes informed Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Newburger, who granted the application for taking of the testimony, that the painter possessed information regarding charges of improprieties between Mrs. Stokes and S. Montgomery Roosevelt, another portrait painter, who died recently.

Isadore Shapiro, representing Mrs. Stokes, declared that during the criminal trial before Justice Finch, Roosevelt's name had been eliminated from the list of alleged co-respondents and that any information Crawford might have would be hearsay, immaterial and inadmissable.

"To allow the taking of Crawford's deposition would be greatly prejudicial to the defendant's interests," said Mr. Shapiro.

NEW DIVIDEND BY THE INLAND STEEL COMPANY

Chicago, April 24.—(By The A. P.)—The new preferred stock of the Inland Steel Company, one of the largest independents, today was placed on a dividend paying basis of $1.75 a quarter by the directors who also increased the dividend on the common stock from 25 cents to 68 1-2 cents a quarter.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Awaiting Royal Wedding.

London, April 24 (By the A. P.)—Londoners who have been unable to wait until Thursday for the royal wedding swarmed about the gates of Buckingham palace and No. 17 Bruxton street, the home of the Strathmores, from early morning until darkness today to catch a fleeting glimpse of the principals in the nuptial pageant. Their vigil was repaid in the afternoon when Lady Elizabeth escaped from the dressmakers long enough to visit the palaces, and the Duke of York emerged from the palace in an automobile.

ESCAPED MURDERESS, MRS. CLARA PHILLIPS, CAPTURED IN HONDURAS

San Salvadore, April 24 (By the A. P.)—Mrs. Clara Phillips, the Los Angeles murderess, who escaped from a California prison some time ago, has been captured through the combined efforts of American detectives and the local police in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, according to information received here. The woman was arrested in her room in the Hotel Agurcia.

Mrs. Phillips arrived here some time ago, accompanied by several Americans. She put up alone at the hotel Nuevo Mundo, whence she moved after a short stay to the Hotel Astoria. She registered under the name of Mrs. R. M. Young.

Later the woman took the Oriente railroad for La Union, proceeded to Puerto Amapala and thence embarked for Tegucigalpa. The Salvadorean police followed her, and when she was located advised the Honduran authorities of her whereabouts.

Suspicion first was attached to the woman when a cable from the chief of police of Los Angeles was received here requesting the police authorities to apprehend her.

YORK, PA., BANK CLOSED; CASHIER UNDER ARREST

York, Pa., April 24.—State bank officials today closed the City bank of York, one of the largest financial institutions in the city, and caused the arrest of Thomas E. Baird, cashier, and his assistant, William H. Boll, on charges of embezzling approximately $800,000 of the bank's funds. Boll was taken into custody here and sent to jail in default of $100,000 bail, while Baird was arrested in Baltimore.

"The inevitable has happened," Boll was said to have told the officers who arrested him. "I appealed to Baird on different occasions to take his friends, who are bankers, into his confidence and get this thing straightened out. But he couldn't see it that way. I am here to face the music."

Neither Cashier Baird nor Assistant Cashier Boll has made a definite statement regarding the shortage. State banking examiners said that Baird had confessed that he had used some of the money, but refused to state the amount or how it had been misappropriated.

The City bank was organized in 1887 under the state banking laws. The report of its condition at the close of business Dec. 30, 1922, showed total resources of $4,494,556; capital stock paid in, $250,000; demand deposits, $1,884,372, and time deposits, $2,069,993.

News of the alleged embezzlement and the closing of the institution spread rapidly throughout the city and for hours throngs of men and women depositors stood about the building seeking information.

THEFT OF $22,000 FROM NEW ENGLAND T. & T. CO.

Worcester, Mass., April 24. — Edward T. Wallace, and Herbert D. Shaughnessy, arrested here today charged with stealing $22,000 from a New England Telephone and Telegraph company paymaster, have been depositing large sums of cash in the safety deposit vaults of the Park Trust company for several days and the police of this city and Boston have been watching for them until the time was ripe to catch them with most of the stolen money. Wallace entered the bank this afternoon, apparently to take some money from the box they had rented, as Shaughnessy was waiting for him in an automobile in front of the Bancroft hotel. When he called for the keys to the box, he was placed under arrest and then told the officers where Shaughnessy was waiting for him, so the officers went to the hotel and nabbed his pal. The men were taken back to Boston.

CONVENTION OF NATIONAL COUNCIL OF GIRL SCOUTS

Washington, April 24.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover was renominated to be president of the national council of Girl Scouts at the opening session today of its ninth annual convention. The report of the nominating committee was adopted without opposition and the candidates named, all of whom are unopposed, will be elected Thursday. The nominations included Mrs. Arthur Osgood Choate of New York to be first vice president; Mrs. Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, second vice president; Mrs. William Hoffman of Barrington, R. I., third vice president; Mrs. Robert E. Thornton of Atlanta, fourth vice president, and Mrs. Martin E. Olmstead of Harrisburg, Pa., fifth vice president.

The speakers at today's sessions emphasized the purpose of the Girl Scouts to develop character and ability to do practical things.

SUGAR INJUNCTION HEARING NEXT FRIDAY

New York, April 24.—The hearing on the government's application for a temporary injuncelon restraining the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange from further trading in raw sugar futures, unless backed by actual ownership or control of the commodity, will be heard here before the four judges of the United States circuit court of appeals next Monday, United States Attorney Hayward announced today.

R. I. SENATE VOTES 20 TO 17 AGAINST 48-HOUR WEEK

Providence, R. I., April 24.—The state senate early this evening defeated the Lavander bill, providing for a 48-hour working week, on roll call vote, 20 to 17. The action follows a ten weeks' filibuster staged by democratic members with the purpose of forcing the special legislation committee to report this and other bills out for immediate consideration.

World Court Topic of Committee Hearing

Petition Introduced by Representative Ayres to Commend President Harding for His Attitude.

Hartford, April 24. — President Harding's proposal that the United Sates go in the permanent court of international justice was the center of a brisk hearing today before the committee on federal relations on a petition introduced by Representative Harry M. Ayres, of Westport, asking the general assembly to commend the president for his attitude on the court, and requesting Connecticut's senators at Washington to work for it.

Proponents of the resolution declared that the president's hands should be upheld in his fight for the entrance of the United States into the court, while its opponents maintained that public opinion was against the proposal and that the present general assembly had no moral right to "pretend to represent" the attitude of its constituents on the international court issue.

Representative Ayres, a professor at Columbia university, is a democrat and the introducion of his petition has been called a "political" move, although he has declared repeatedly that it should be considered as an entirely non-partisan measure. Other democratic supporters of the petition were Minority Leader Fenton and Thomas J. Spellacy, defeated democratic candidate for United States senator at the last election. There was no republican support from either branch of the assembly, Senator Brooks and Representative Wall, of Torrington, appeared in opposition.

Others who appeared in support of the resluotion were:

Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent; Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale university; Mrs. Josepha Whitney, of New Haven, who ran for the state senate and several women representing the Connecticut League of Women Voters.

Benedict M. Holden, well known Hartford lawyer, opposed the resolution and for a short time engaged in a brisk debate with former Senator Spellacy as to its propriety.

The hearing was begun in a small committee room but after a short time was transferred by Senator French, chairman, to the hall of the house in order to accommodate the hundred or more persons present.

Representative Ayres asserted that it was merely his hope to help in crystallizing sound public opinion on President Harding's proposal. In discussing the propriety of the petition, he quoted from a letter which he had received from the president's secretary referring to a letter which President Harding had sent to the Ohio senate after that body had passed a resolution commending him for his attitude on the court. Mr. Ayres cited the letter as an indication that the president would not consider such expression from any of the state legislatures as improper.

Mr. Holt, who spoke next traced the history of the world court and declared that it had been the dream of every administration since the Civil war. He said that the court had never been an issue in the league of nations and that President Harding was not going against the traditions of his party in supporting it.

Professor Fisher declared that opposition to the resolution could come only because of politics. He also asserted that the world court had been favored by Presidents Roosevelt and Taft and in addition mentioned the "committee of 31" as representative of the beliefs of a large portion of the republican party.

Former Senator Spellacy made a plea that the question be considered from a non-partisan basis. He asserted that the president should be supported in "trying to end the isolation of the United States in international matters."

Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. S. C. Shaw, of Redding, Connecticut League for Women Voters, Mrs. James Rourke, of Bridgeport, also representing the league, and several other women spoke in support of the resolution.

Mr. Holden, the first speaker in opposition, declared that the resolution was an impropriety and that the "general assembly should tend to its own business and let Connecticut's representatives in Washington consider the world court without interference." His contention was that the members of the assembly had no right to decide an issue upon which their elections is no way were based, and to "pretend to represent" a constituency that had not been consulted on the issue. He engaged in a sharp debate with Mr. Spellacy on the propriety of the resolution when Chairman French intervened.

Senator Brooks and Representative Wall also spoke against the measure both contending that the United States was better off in its isolation than "entangled in Europe's selfish struggles." T. M. Crowley, of Hartford asserted that public opinion was overwhelmingly against the United States entering European questions in any form, pointing to the last presidential election as an indication of the public's attitude.

President Harding's Views of World Court

Believes Participation by the United States Would be in Harmony With the Party Pledges.

New York, April 24. — President Harding today committed himself and his administration without equivocation to American membership in the permanent court of international justice.

Speaking at the annual luncheon of members of The Associated Press, Mr. Harding set forth the reasons which impelled him to recommend to the senate shortly before the adjournment of congress the adhesion of the United States to the world court protocol as drafted under the league of nations, outlined the advantages he believes would accrue from adoption of the recommendation, and presented for the first time answers to the arguments of opponents of the administration plan.

In doing so, the chief executive asserted his conviction that American membership in the court would be "in harmony with party platform pledges, candidatorial promises and American aspirations." It would not be, and could never be, construed as being an indirect entrance into the league of nations, he declared with emphasis.

The address made before a thousand of the nation's leading newspaper editors and publishers was generally considered as the beginning of the presentation which the president plans to make during the spring and summer of the principal policies to be pursued during the next year.

Political leaders throughout the country, admitedly in disagreement as to the wisdom of the world court recommendation, awaited with intense interest the address tonight were watching for the country's reaction. Whatever reception it might be accorded by the American people, the president indicated that he stood firmly behind his recommendation.

The address was the principal feature of the executive's visit to New York, the first in a year and a half.

Accompanied by Mrs. Harding and several high officials, he arrived in the metropolis shortly after six o'clock this morning. After breakfast on his specially train he with his party went to the Waldorf Astoria hotel. The morning was spent relatively quietly in receiving callers, among them Will H. Hays, former chairman, and Charles D. Hilles, New York member of the republican national committee.

After the luncheon the president hurried out to the New York Yankee Stadium where he saw New York defeat Washington 4 to 0 and Babe Ruth get his second home run of the season. Before leaving on the return trip to Washington tonight he, with Mrs. Harding, attended the theatre and then, to round out a day of pleasant association with his fellow newspapermen, he visited the new plant of the New York Tribune. He planned to return to Washington on his special train at midnight.

BOX OFFICE RECEIPTS TEST OF MOTION PICTURE

New York, April 24.—The acid test of a motion picture is box office receipts, W. W. Hodkinson, independent producer, declared today, testifying at another hearing by the federal trade commission of the allegation that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and six affiliated companies comprise a movie trust.

Hodkinson, who was president of Paramount, declared that the history of the business has shown that the most successful pictures have been developed by individual efforts rather than by mass production, where there is no necessity for special regard to quality.

The independent producer, being denied the patronage of the larger theatre does not receive compensation sufficient to successfully compete with othr independent producers, and this stands to lower the quality of pictures, he said.

"The supreme test of the quality of a picture is in the box office. This depends to some extent on advertising, on the appeal of the story, on the popularity of the actor or actress, and other factors."

TENANTS MAY STRIKE AGAINST LANDLORDS

Fall River, Mass., April 24.—A general strike on the part of tenants against unreasonable landlords in this city, if the present conditions are not remedied by the proper authorities, is favored in a resolution made public today by the members of the Doffers' union of the United Textile Workers of America. Many members of the union have complained to the officers of alleged unjust increases in the prices of rent.

The union has also decided to continue the agitation in favor of a full 29 1-2 per cent. wage increase as recommended by its executive officers in New York.

BROOKLINE TO CONTINUE AS "PICTURELESS" TOWN

Brookline, Mass., April 24.—Voters of Brookline decided by an overwhelming majority today that the town should continue to be without moving picture shows. In a referendum presented by the selectmen at a spection election the Noes had it, 5,634 to 1,659.

For several years efforts have been made to introduce the movies into this "pictureless" town, but on each occasion the selectmen refused. This year the town fathers decided to let the people pronounce judgment.

LYNN SHOE STRIKE HAS BEEN SETTLED

Lynn, Mass., April 24.—The Lynn shoe strike was settled at 3.40 this morning at a joint conference committee made up of representatives of the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' association and Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, the latter taking over the working agreement of the United Shoe Workers' organization. Strikers returned to work this morning.

UNEMPLOYED MEN CLASHING WITH THE GERMAN POLICE

One Man Killed and One Badly Wounded at Katenberg, Near Essen—German Officials Attribute Unrest Throughout the Ruhr to Communist Agitators—The Outbreaks Are Regarded by the German Authorities as Preliminary for a Big May Day Celebration.

Essen, April 24.—(By The A. P.)—A mob of unemployed men clashed with the police today at Katenberg, near here, in another outbreak of the unrest throughout the Ruhr which German officials attribute to communist agitators. One man was killed and one badly wounded.

According to German accounts, several hundred men under communist leaders attempted to present demands to the city authorities, but the mayor ordered the police to hold them off. The crowd resented the efforts of the police, and the collision followed.

The men, as in other similar demonstrations, had formulated demands for free supplies of potatoes, increased municipal unemployment allowances and a certain amount of shoes and clothing. These demands, the German authorities say, are largely inspired by communist agitators who go from place to place, wherever there is unemployment, organize the men and incite them to trouble.

The unemployed in Essen recently included in their demands free street car tickets.

These outbreaks are regarded by the German authorities as preparation for a big May day demonstration which the communists are actively arranging. Merchants in the principal centers, such as Essen, Bochum and Duesseldorf, whose stores are not already equipped with the European protection of steel curtains or shutters, are hurriedly installing them.

TURKS NOT DISPOSED TO MAKE CONSESSIONS

Lausanne, April 24.—(By The A. P.)—The resumed Near East conference got under way today with the Turks apparently in a more conciliatory frame of mind than at the previous conference, which collapsed over the economic and financial problems of the proposed peace treaty. The Angora delegates, allied spokesmen said tonight, gave no impression during the day's proceedings of an intention to make concessions on any of the disputed points.

Hassan Bey, the Turkish financial expert, told the financial committee of the conference at its first meeting that Turkey wanted the whole world to understand that she was ready and determined to pay her just share of the Ottoman debt, but wanted a definite understanding that the provinces detached from her territory as a result of the great war should also bear their just share of the total debt burden.

He contended further that the succession states, including Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia and the others, should stand a proportionate cost of the withdrawal from circulation of the Turkish paper money. The allies flatly declined to accept the Turkish contention that the paper money constitutes a debt to be borne by the detached provinces, but agreed that division of the Ottomon debt shall be obligatory, and the matter will be submitted to experts who will work out the details.

Numerous other financial questions of an extremely technical nature were attacked, but the majority were referred to the experts.

The American representatives did nat participate in today's discussions, as they have decided to limit their official activities strictly to such matters as directly affect American interests.

JURY FOR MORSE TRIAL HAS BEEN COMPLETED

Washington, April 24.—Completion of the jury and the beginning of the oral presentation of the government's case by District Attorney Gordon marked the trial today in the District of Columbia supreme court of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others. They were charged in indictments returned more than a year ago with conspiracy to defraud the federal government in connection with ship construction and operating contracts awarded during and after the war.

With eleven men in the box when court convened, little difficulty was had in selecting the twelfth juror, only one talesman being examined. The jury is composed of seven salesmen, two cashiers, one hotel proprietor, one clerk and one collector. The jury was not locked up, but was given the customary warning by Justice Stafford against discussing the case with outsiders or reading newspaper accounts of it.

District Attorney Gordon had not completed an explanation of the indictments at the adjournment of court and will resume that task tomorrow. It may be that the actual taking of testimony will not be started before Thursday, although the government witnesses in court today were directed to report tomorrow.

WOULD USE THE ENTIRE GASOLINE TAX ON ROADS

Hartford, April 24.—Allocation of the entire gasoline tax of the state to the state highway department for use on the roads will be provided for in in a bill which will be favorably reported tomorrow by the legislative finance committee. The bill does not change the present rate of the tax, one cent a gallon, but it exempts from the tax all gasoline used in motor boats. The tax amount to about $700,000 a year.

Under the proposed system, the money will be paid to the state treasurer as it is now, but instead of going into the general fund will go from the state treasurer to the highway department.

Thecom mittee also will repeal an act of the 1921 session of the general assembly, authorizing the state to issue bonds for $3,000,000 to meet an expected deficit. It was not necessary to issue the bonds.

REUNION OF BRITISH WAR MISSIONS TO THE U. S.

London, April 24 (By the A. P.)—Memories of American wartime hospitality were revived tonight at the fourth annual reunion of the British war missions to the United States and Anglo-American relations came in for critical analysis.

"All Americans should revere England; all Englishmen should be proud of America, not jealous of her," summed up Colonel George Harvey, the American ambassador, after covering the field of economic, industrial and historical relationship. He assured his distinguished audience that the bulk of the American people who live in the broad belt of country stretching from New England across the Middle West to the Pacific are English in their antecedents and present sympathies.

Earlier in the evening Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, had said that he was only recently admitted to the ranks of the British war mission reminiscents, but in view of his debt funding junket he was convinced he had paid the highest entrance fee.

"Your payments to America are the cheapest insurance any country could have," responded Ambassador Harvey. "I would like to see Germany or any other power attack England now.

"We have got the money in the bank over here," concluded the ambassador amid applause.

KLAN FACTIONS HAVE SIGNED AN ARMISTICE

Atlanta, Ga., April 24.—Hostilities for control of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan ended today with the signing of an armistice between the opposing factions, William J. Simmons, emperor, and H. W. Evans, imperial wizard, are retained in their posts under the agreement.

The controversy was brought to a close through the efforts of a commission of klansmen, aided, it was said by independent counsel, Arthur G. Powell and Hollins N. Randolph, nonmember of the order. Judge E. D. Thomas, on motion of counsel for both sides, dismissed his order and dissolved the commission of three which had been directing the affairs of the klan. This commission was composed of Emperor Simmons, Imperial Wizard Evans and J. M. George, marshal of the municipal court.

The contest originated over the Kamelia, the women's organization formed and founded by Colonel Simmons along the lines of the klan.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
61 Church Street Telephone 1042

William Price asked Judge Foss of the local police court for a little time to mend his ways with a promise never to become intoxicated again, at the session of court Tuesday morning. The wish was granted and the time was thirty days in jail. The sentence also included Mrs. Price who appeared on a similar charge. Later in the day the couple were escorted to Brooklyn. Allan Potter, also charged with intoxication was arrested in company with the Prices. He was fined $10 and costs with a suspended sentence of thirty days in jail. Potter received a severe warning and was told to keep away from the Price family.

When the charges of intoxication were read to William Price, his wife, Etta Price and Allan Potter, all quickly responded that they were not guilty. Mrs. Margaret Griggs, a neighbor of the Prices testified in the case and said that the residents of Arnold's Lane were tired of the drunken orgies and vile language at the Price home. Besides the thirty day sentence the Prices will have to work out or settle the costs amounting to $13.64.

Professor George H. Lamson of the Connecticut Agricultural college was the speaker at the regular weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club Tuesday noon. President "Jim" Mustard was in charge and the guests were "Ed" Andrews of the Greenwich club and former principal of the Windham street Model school, Walter E. Collins of Hartford and Professor Lamson of Storrs.

In regard to the fact that there had been some dissatisfaction expressed at hearing the same regular Rotary quartet at all meetings, John F. Ahearn installed a new foursome and labelled it the "Four Harries" and it consisted of Harry Branch, Harry Standish, Harry Blanchette and Harry S. McCready.

The four Harries showed fine team work and were loudly applauded for their rendition.

Secretary Hill read a communication from the Putnam Rotary club in which information was given to the effect that the Putnam club would attend the proposed field day at the Connecticut Agricultural college to be held some time before July 28. According to the plans the four Rotary clubs of eastern Connecticut, namely, New London, Norwich, Putnam and Willimantic, will be present. Norwich has consented to take part in the affair and word is being waited from New London.

A letter was read from the Decatur (Ills.) club in which the attention of the local club was called to the holding of a National Courtesy Campaign and a Thank You book on courtesy was enclosed. Another letter was read from Mrs. Maud L. Murphy in which she acknowledged the receipt of a gift to ex-President Valentine Murphy.

A vote taken at the last meeting provided that Secretary Charles Hill should sing a song and choose his own accompaniment. Taking advantage of the last privilege, Charlie named the famous "Silent Three," including John Tracy, Fred D. Jordan and Val L. Murphy. They sang a well chosen song and one of the hearers proclaimed it a "fine execution." President Mustard ruled that there be no encore.

A few remarks were hear from "Ed" Andrews and John Ahearn then introduced Professor Lamson, professor of zoology and geology at C. A. C. The professor's talk was most interesting nad although brief covered a wide field in regard to who and what the farmer is and what constitutes his work. The speaker gave a summary of the work being carried on at the college in which he stated that much is being done in turning out farmers who specialise in some one line of production. As a conclusion he pointed out a number of places in this part of the state which were marked by historical events and men of historical fame. Professor Lamson was given a rising vote of thanks.

Raymond A. Parker acted as song leader during the session. At the conclusion of the meeting a meeting of the boys' works committee was held in charge of Fred D. Jordan.

Edward M. Day of Hartford was the guest of his sister, Miss Elizabeth Day, on Norwich avenue over Sunday.

The first baseball game of the season was played on the park ball grounds Saturday afternoon, between the Colchester team and the Lebanon team. The score was 10 to 3 in favor of the Colchester team. Manager Samuel Friedman was chosen for another year to manage the team and will give the public this season the chance to see some of the best teams in this vicinity in action. Slavkin and Hall will be in the box and Slavkin and Dember behind the batter. He was obliged in Saturday's game to use some of the Academy team to fill out, as three of the regular team were out of town.

Representiative Henry A. Rogers of Salem was calling on friends in town Saturday.

John and Harold Wade of Hartford were the guests of relatives in town over Sunday.

State Commander of the American Legion Edward L. Kelly was the guest of his aunt, Miss Nora Kelly, on Lebanon avenue over Sunday.

Several of the young people of the borough went by auto to Marlboro Saturday evening to attend a social dance.

Mrs. Nellie Doane and Miss Anna O'Brien were visitors in Willimantic Friday.

William Johnson and A. Alpert were callers in Hartford Saturday.

The Misses Annie and Rose Smith were guests of relatives in New London Saturday.

John and Harold Wade Walter B. Lombard and Patrick Connors of Hartford were at their homes in town over Sunday.

Sunday being a fine day for autoing, a large number of cars passed through the village on the Hartford-New London turnpike.

Roger Foote of Lebanon was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur H. Chapman, Sunday.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Serafin was held at St. Edward's church Monday morning at nine o'clock. Rev. Feilx J. O'Neil officiated and burial was in St. Edward's cemetery. Mrs. Serafin was a native of Italy, but had lived in Stafford Springs for the past 25 years. She was 83 years old and leaves one son, Angelo Serafin of this town, and several grandchildren.

The Stafford Springs baseball club has elected the following officers: Manager, James Sheppard; assistant manager, Napoleon Gilman; secretary and treasurer, Edward Green. The team will be composed mostly of local players and the games will be played Sunday afternoon at Keefe Plains.

An effort is on foot to organize a baseball league to be made up of teams from the local factories. The games of this league if organized will be played Saturday afternoons at Hyde Park.

The seats for the new town hall have arrived.

Mrs. Patrick Sullivan who came here from New York city to see her son, Frank Sullivan, who is ill at the Johnson hospital, has returned to New York.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

POETRY

SEVENTY-SIX.

What heroes from the woodland sprung,
When, through the fresh-awakened land,
The startling cry of freedom rang
And to the fife of warlike string
The yeoman's iron hand.

Hills flung the cry to hills around,
And ocean-mart replied to mart,
And streams, whose springs were yet unfound,
Pealed far away the startling sound
Into the forest's heart.

Then marched the brave men from rocky steep,
From mountain-river swift and cold;
The borders of the stormy deep,
The vales where gathered waters sleep,
Sent up the strong and bold.

As if the very earth again
Grew quick with God's creating breath,
And, from the sods of grove and glen,
Rose ranks of lion-hearted men
To battle to the death.

The wife, whose babe first smiled that day,
The fair-faced bride of yesterave,
The aged sire and matron gray,
Saw the loved warriors haste away,
And deemed it sin to grieve.

Already had the strife begun;
Already blood, on Concord's plain,
Along the springing grass had run,
And blood had flowed at Lexington,
Like brooks of April rain.

The death-stain on the vernal sward
Unplowed to freedom all the shore,
In fragments fell the yoke abhorred—
The footsteps of a foreign lord
Profaned the soil no more.

—William Cullen Bryant.

THE HIDDEN HEART.

I hid my heart away.
It was my own,
All of its hidden stores
Were mine alone.

I feared a thief might come
Prowling in stealth
To rob my treasury,
Steal all my wealth.

Came Life, the trader, by Wishing to trade;
Bright gauds he offered me
That would not fade.

So Life, the trader, said—
Ah, they shone fair—
I brought my treasure forth
To buy a share!

Passed Life, the trader, by
With all my gold—
I was quite satisfied
With what he sold.

Ah, but they did not last,
Those gauds so bright!
Soon passed their beauty—soon
Passed my delight.

Again I hide my heart,
Empty, alas!
Lest they should rate me
All they who pass!

—Rosalie Mercier Montgomery, in New York Herald.

JOHNNY KILBANE IS GRANTED A NEW LICENSE BY NEW YORK COMMISSION

New York, April 24—Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, world's featherweight boxing champion, today was granted a license by the newly created license committee of the New York state athletic commission. This action in effect removed the ban by this state imposed upon Kilbane nearly a year ago by William Muldoon, chairman of the commission. All obstacles in the path of the world's featherweight boxing championship match between Johnny Kilbane, American holder of the title and Eugene Criqui, of France, European champion, at the Polo Grounds on June 2, have been eliminated. Matchmaker Tom O'Rourke announced tonight after the New York state athletic commission had granted a license to Kilbane.

Kilbane and Criqui, O'Rourke added, both have signed an agreement calling for the weight of the bout to be at 118 pounds. Dundee of New York, within three months. This, he said, was imposed by the commission as an aid in order to its stipulation that Kilbane must meet Dundee's long-standing challenge before boxing the Frenchman. Dundee was said to have agreed to this arrangement.

The action of the newly created license committee of the state commission in granting a license to Kilbane is construed by the followers of the sport in this state as recognition by the commission of the validity of the 126-pound title won by Kilbane from Johnny Kilbane, who was president with Will H. Muldoon, chairman of the commission, defeated Kilbane a little more than a year ago after the latter had ignored Dundee's challenge for a title bout. Dundee was declared the featherweight champion when he defeated Danny Frush, an Englishman, at Ebbets Field.

O'Rourke said he hoped a bout between Dundee and the winner of the Kilbane-Criqui match about the middle of September at the Polo Grounds.

YANKS POUND OUT VICTORY OVER SENATORS

New York, April 24—The Yankees recovered from their batting slump today and pounded out a 4 to 0 victory over Washington with President Harding and his personal staff in the stands. Babe Ruth got his second home run of the season and posed with the president.

George Mogridge retired from the game in the first inning when Dugan's hard drive hit him on the pitching arm. The Yankees won by bunching hits on Brillheart in the third. Ruth's homer in the fifth ended the scoring. The score:

EASTERN CONN. LEAGUE MEETS AT JEWETT CITY

Although nothing definite was decided regarding the continuance of the Eastern Connecticut league during the coming baseball season, those who were present at the meeting at Jewett City Tuesday evening spoke optimistically of the league. The clubs represented at the meeting were Jewett City, Taftville, Baltic, Plainfield and New London. Jewett City is heartily in favor of the league and wants to continue in the league another year.

Baltic is also very enthusiastic over the league. Taftville and New London are in doubt as to whether a team will be entered or not, but the representatives spoke favorably on the matter. The situation at New London is peculiar. Frank Silvia is to conduct the New London team this year and while in favor of continuing the league could not speak for the rest of his team. At Taftville the situation is practically the same and a meeting of the Taftville Athletic association will be called this week to definitely decide on the matter. Plainfield was dubious at first about entering the league but on Tuesday evening the representatives changed their opinion and spoke very favorably on their chances of becoming members of the league. The baseball situation in Willimantic is still up in the air and until it is decided whether Willimantic will have a team or not nothing will be done. Although the Thread City was not represented at last night's meeting, word was sent that they would like to retain their franchise for a time longer.

Another meeting is to be held at Jewett City next Tuesday evening, when the matter of a league will be definitely decided upon.

GIANTS WINS CLOSE GAME FROM DODGERS

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 24—New York cleaned up the series with Brooklyn today, winning a close game by 6 to 4. The Giants knocked Ruether out of the box in three innings, bunching seven hits for five runs off the southpaw star. They could get only one hit off Dougherty in the last six innings, a double steal by Frisch and Young and two passes giving them the only run of the Memphis recruit.

The Dodgers knocked Clinton Blume, former Colgate star, out of the box in the fifth. With one out and a man on base, Fred Johnson, right handed pitcher from San Antonio, finished the game and shut out the Dodgers without a hit. Only two batters reached first while he occupied the box and those on passes. Virgil Barnes, one of the New York pitchers was operated on today for appendicitis. The score:

ALDRIDGE HOLDS CARDINALS TO TWO LONE SINGLES

Chicago, April 24—Vic Aldridge held St. Louis to two hits today while Chicago hit Jesse Haines opportunely, making a clean sweep of the series by shutting out the visitors, 3 to 0. Hartnett's homer, his fourth of the season, gave the locals the first run, while hits by Statz and Heathcote, an infield out and Heathcote's steal of home, accounted for the other two runs. Only one visitor, Mueller, who doubled, reached second base. Today's victory was the seventh consecutive win for Chicago. The score:

TIGERS HALT INDIANS AFTER SIX STRAIGHT WINS

Cleveland, April 24—Detroit broke Cleveland's winning streak that had reached six games today, winning a loosely played game, 8 to 7. Pillette held Cleveland to five hits but errors behind him allowed the Indians to score four runs. Metevier started for Cleveland but was taken out in the fourth when misplays had given Detroit the lead. Shaute was effective until the ninth. The score:

VAN GILDER TURNS IN SECOND VICTORY FOR BROWNS

St. Louis, April 24—Elam Van Gilder, who won the only previous victory for the Browns this season, repeated his performance today and the locals defeated Chicago 1 to 0. He allowed the visitors but four hits.

The run that gave the Browns the contest came in the fourth when Tobin doubled, went to third on McManus' sacrifice, and home when Elsh's throw to Collins, in an attempted double play, after he had gloved Severeid's fly, went past the Sox's second sacker.

The victory gave the Browns an even break on the three game series as yesterday's score was tied. Score:

REDS EVEN UP SERIES WITH THE PIRATES

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 24—Cincinnati evened the opening series with Pittsburgh by winning the final game today 5 to 4. After the third Luque pitched strongly until the ninth when the Pirates pulled off a threatening rally, with the tying run on third and the winner on second.

Luque fanned Russell for the third out. Pinelli made four clean singles in four times up. Russell had a busy day in rightfield with seven putouts. The score:

EASTERN LEAGUE STARTS PENNANT CHASE TODAY

New Haven, April 24—The Eastern league opens its eighth season tomorrow, with the following schedule: Worcester at Pittsfield; Springfield at Hartford; Waterbury at Albany and Bridgeport at New Haven.

Six of the eight clubs enter the pennant race with new managers in charge. Bill Donovan, who led New Haven to the flag last season, remains as manager, and Gene McCann again will pilot Bridgeport. At Pittsfield Art Wilson replaces Gus Gardella as manager; Eddie Sayres takes John McMahon's place at Worcester and Patsy Donovan succeeds John Hummel at Springfield. The Hartford club has Paddy O'Connor at its head, Bill Rodgers is the new pilot at Albany and Herman Bronkie is manager of the Waterbury team.

Sayres, Brodie, Rodgers and Wilson are playing managers.

DOCTORS SAY COLLAPSE OF RUNNERS DUE TO LEGS NOT "ATHLETIC HEART"

Boston, April 24 (By the A. P.)—The "athlete's heart," admittedly a bugbear to the medical profession for many years, failed absolutely to put in an appearance among the contestants in the American marathon run here last Thursday.

Dr. S. A. Levine of Boston, who with two other members of the staff of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, Dr. Burgess Gordon of Spokane, Wash., and Dr. Albert Willmaers of Belgium, conducted a series of experiments upon the long distance runners taking part in the gruelling 25-mile test, said today that although it had not been scientifically proved, success in long distance running was probably more a matter of legs than heart or wind power.

The experiments conducted on the marathon runners were designed, according to Dr. Levine, who had charge of the research work, to bring to light information on the old controversy concerning "athlete's heart."

The condition of each athlete's heart immediately after the race and at normal were determined by the taking of X-ray pictures of each runner immediately after the finish and again after the man had rested for several hours. The pictures were then compared.

"The surprising thing in our results was that the heart in no case became any larger as a result of the race, but in a number of instances it became smaller," Dr. Levine said. "This is diametrically opposed to the old view that dilation of the heart is apt to follow over-exertion."

The runners were also examined as to their wind power, or the "vital capacity of the lungs." The physicians concluded from comparisons of their tests before and after the race that in general the wind power of the runners was above normal, but that there were some who were slightly below. The winner, Clarence De Mar, of Melrose, who registered his third success in the event, and is the record holder, had a wind power of 20 per cent. above normal, but two men who finished far down the list had greater strength in that particular.

These tests were repeated on as many runners as possible as soon as they had finished to see just how much of this "wind power" had been lost. Invariably we found that the long hard road had taken away much of the strength from the lungs.

The mass of facts and figures collected by the physicians has not yet been tabulated but Dr. Levine stated that results so far learned indicated that a man of moderately small stature, of below the average weight, with strong, muscular legs, a normal heart and wind power, would apparently be most successful in long distance runs. He also said that as far as could be learned from the experiment just completed the contestants sustained no immediate ill effects from the race.

Dr. Levine added that experiments conducted on animals at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, when the animals were run to a state of exhaustion and then were examined as to the effect on their hearts, bore out in every particular the results obtained from the experiment on the marathon runners.

"We performed no tests on the muscular abilities of the runners," Dr. Levine said, "but from our observations, the result of such a race as the American marathon depends almost entirely upon the muscles of the legs. When a man collapses in such a race it is usually because his legs refuse to carry him further rather than that the heart or lungs refuse to do his bidding."

ACADEMY TEAM IS LACKING IN SPIRIT

Not so many years ago players on an Academy team would consider it an overwhelming disgrace to be beaten by the smaller high schools in the eastern part of the state, but not so today. The boys seem to have none of the old fighting spirit of years past and an overwhelming defeat such as was given them last Saturday by Plainfield High means nothing in their young lives provided they are having a good time. Victory is the least of their troubles.

In watching the Academy players in practice yesterday afternoon there was a noticeable lack of spirit and enthusiasm. Not one of the players seemed to be trying to make good, just doing enough to escape the criticism of Coach McKay and laying down on the job when he wasnt looking. There is not that old fight in the players that brought home laurels to the old school in years past. The spirit of indifference that apparently prevails among the players is no fault of Coach McKay. Coach McKay sees it and is doing everything he can think of to put the old fighting spirit back into his players but it is a discouraging task.

Coach McKay was a member of one of the best teams that ever represented the Academy and knows what spirit means to a team. Mr. McKay played on the Academy team back in 1911 when Merwin Aultman was coach and knows what hard work the team put in under Coach Aultman. Day after day the players reported at 2 o'clock and were kept at practice until seven o'clock at night, but the old fighting spirit was there and the Academy team brought home victory after victory. But times have changed and it is almost impossible to get the boys to put in an afternoon of good solid practice. It seems a shame that the boys won't snap into it and show a little spirit for the old school.

O'NEIL OPTIMISTIC OVER EASTERN LEAGUE PROSPECTS

Springfield, Mass., April 24.—President Dan O'Neil declared tonight that the prospects were of the brightest for a successful season of baseball for the Eastern league.

"Everything points to a bright season," declared Mr. O'Neil. "Apparently all the clubs are strengthened, promising a tight race."

President O'Neil announced his umpires, their pairings and opening day assignments tonight as follows:

Frank Brown and Marty Conroy, Albany; "Cy" McDonald and "Fat" Summers, Hartford; "Mike" Breslin and Jack Stafford, Pittsfield; Hugh Rorty and Allie Kuhn, New Haven. Brown, Conroy, McDonald, Summers and Kuhn were in the league last season. Breslin umpired in the Virginia league last season. Rorty formerly umpired in the New England league and Stafford has seen service in both American and Eastern circuits. The umpires met here today for instructions.

ONE TEAM READY TO ENTER TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Nuggets baseball team, the team that really started the twilight games in Norwich last year, is the first team to signify its intention of entering the proposed Twilight league. Geo. Madden said Tuesday that he would have a team in the field this year whether there was a league or not, but also said that he would rather enter a league if possible.

James J. Madden has already offered to put up a trophy for the winning team if such a league is started. Mr. Madden said that the trophy would be one well worth winning and the team finishing first in the league would retain permanent possession of the trophy.

Other teams in the city talked yesterday of entering the league but nothing was decided definitely.

As soon as six or eight teams have signified their intention of entering the league a meeting will be called and officers chosen and a schedule adopted

AMERICANS PLAY PRACTICE ROUNDS ON ENGLISH LINKS

London, April 24.—(By the A. P.)—The visiting American golfers were engaged today in playing matches among themselves at Walton Heath in order to regain their playing form for the coming tournaments in which they will participate. It is expected the men will undergo hard practice before the championship tournament at Deal.

Jesse Sweetser, of Siwanoy, seemed to be playing in his best form today. With his partner, H. R. Johnston of St. Paul, he halved a four ball match with Robert Gardner, captain of the American team and Francis Ouimet. Later Sweetser and Marston won from Ouimet and Fred Wright of Los Angeles, 2 up and 1 to play. Gardner and Johnston afterwards halved a match with John F. Neville, San Francisco, and Dr. O. P. Willing, of Portland, Ore.

MASCART SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER MATTHEWS

Paris, April 24.—(By the A. P.)—The French bantamweight Mascart tonight technically knocked out Billy Matthews in the sixteenth round of their scheduled twenty round bout.

The French boy, who during the past six months has been conceded a "comer" by reason of his good work in the ring, won almost all the way tonight. He badly punished the Englishman and the referee stepped between the men in the sixteenth round when Matthews was helpless. Matthews last December was knocked out by Eugene Criqui in the seventeenth round.

Tonight the Englishman held the Frenchman even in the second, third and fourth rounds but in the other sessions Mascart was his master.

GREEKS HAD TO BE TOUGH TO BE BOXERS

The old-time fighter of the small purses and the bare knuckles says the present boxer has a cinch. But the fighter of ancient Greece was one who earned everything he got out of it. Theseus, son of Aegeus, king of Athens 3,000 years ago, was the mythical originator of boxing.

Boxing appeared in the annuals of the Olympic games about 500 B. C. The ancient Greek boxers "augnt" to a finish, which was death. The Greek boxing glove of that era was made of leather and iron, with short spikes fixed on the knuckles of each hand—an implement of terrible punishment. There was no foot work, no backing away. He who sought to avoid a blow was considered a coward.

VON ELM'S SUSPENSION TO BE LIFTED BY SEPT. 1ST

New York, April 24.—(By the A. P.)—The executive committee of the United States Golf Association today announced that the suspension of George Von Elm, of Salt Lake City, former Trans-Mississippi and Pacific Northwest champion, would be terminated September 1, thus permitting him to participate in this year's national tournament, September 10 to 15, at Chicago.

Von Elm was suspended indefinitely by the U. S. G. A. last August. No official explanation was made at the time, but it was understood his connection with a sporting goods firm, in violation of the association's amateur regulations, was responsible for the action.

"FLYING COP" DRAWS SUSPENSION FROM N. E. A. U.

Boston, April 24.—Bob McAllister, holder of the 100 yard championship and known as New York's "flying cop" was definitely suspended today for six weeks by the New England A. A. U. on the charge of "conduct unbecoming a gentleman." The New England association had suspended McAllister indefinitely on March 19 after the sprinter had engaged in a wordy conflict with President William C. Prout, of the National A. A. U. at the Knights of Columbus indoor track meet held here in February. The suspension imposed by the N. E. A. A. A. U. was made retroactive to March 19.

EDDIE RUELBACH HAS A UNIQUE RECORD

Edward Ruelbach, former pitcher for the Chicago Nationals, is credited with being the only pitcher in organized baseball, who pitched both contests of a double-header and was able to blank the rival team each time.

Ruelbach beat Brooklyn twice on September 26, 1908, when the Cubs were making their great drive for the pennant. At that time the Chicago pitching staff was in poor condition and Ruelbach volunteered for the double-header. Accounts of that say Ruelbach was better in the second game than in the first.

C. H. EBBETS, JR., RESIGNS AS DODGERS' SECRETARY

New York, April 24.—Charles H. Ebbets, Jr., son of the president of the Brooklyn National League club, has resigned as secretary of the Dodgers, it became known today.

Club officials declined to make any statement but it was reported the younger Ebbets' withdrawal was due to differences with S. W. McKeever, treasurer of the organization. No successor has been named.

SOUTHERN TARGET SHOOTERS LED NORTHERN OPPONENTS

Pinehurst, S. C., April 24.—Southern target shooters led their northern opponents by two points at the close of today's opening session of the sixth annual north and south target tournament. The five southerners rolled up a total score of 445. George S. Hamilton of Two Rivers, Wis., and George D. Williams of Miami, Fla., were the outstanding stars of the two teams.

SAVE THE LAUREL HILL TREES.

In view of the fact that there is planned such a wholesale slaughter of the trees that do so much to beautify and enhance the value of property there is little wonder that much indignation is expressed by the residents of Laurel Hill avenue over the plan to rip out those sound, noble trees which represent the growth of 30 or more years.

Laurel Hill avenue is one of the much traveled entrances to the city leading as it does to the state hospital, the submarine base and being in fact the beginning of the military highway. It has been in need for a considerable time of the permanent improvement that is planned for it, but there is no surprise that it comes as a jolt to the residents of Laurel Hill to learn that the highway betterment cannot be accomplished without the sacrifice of the handsome shade trees. That is no different than is to be expected from residents of any street where the ruthless removal of beautiful shade trees is undertaken. It is in fact a matter which might well concern the entire community for whatever is done to detract from the attractiveness of any section reflects upon the entire community.

Norwich may not have been as active as it might of late in efforts to beautify the city, but it is to be realized that if anything is to be done to prevent the loss of something like 40 trees, and the turning of a shady into a sun-baked street, before it is too late it should be undertaken before the woodman gets busy with his axe.

If the situation was such that the placing of permanent pavement in Laurel Hill avenue could not be accomplished without shifting the trolley track and removing the trees a philosophical view might be taken of the matter, but that doesn't appear to be the case and the feeling quite generally expressed is that the trees ought to be given a chance.

The present plan calls for an avenue with no trees, except for those which happen to stand on a banking, and twice as many poles. To those that have no interest in the matter it is easy to say, "Oh, rip out the trees" but it is decidedly another matter for those who face the loss of the real and the esthetic value of the trees and the shaded avenue.

Quickly recalled at such a time are the lines by Joyce Kilmer:

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

SENTENCING THE POTTERS.

Once again it has been recognized by a federal judge that respect for the law calls for reinforcement by the imposition of fair sentences. This was disclosed in the case of the 20 individuals an dthe 23 corporations in the pottery industry where conviction had been secured for conspiracy in the restraint of trade. Their particular act was fixing the price of their goods in which agreement they apparently felt that they were not likely to be detected, and if they were they carried the idea that it would be nothing more than a fine which could be easily paid and money saved.

These corporations represented a majority production of that particular industry and by their close understanding had the business entirely by the throat. They aimed at the stifling of competition and apparently accomplished it. The evidence produced against them was convincing and the judge took the view that such a flagrant violation called for something more severe than a fine. It was a time to let it be understood that the law means something and that conditions warranted the setting forth of the fact that its teeth are real and not ornamental.

The action of the judge is bound to and was intended to have more than a local effect. He desired it to serve as a notice to all men engaged in similar activities, or contemplating such an arrangement that no toleration of such trust formation can be expected.

Even though the jail sentences were for less than a year, they will doubtless mean more to those who are not hardened to such treatment than it would to some others who have become accustomed to such institutional restraint. At the same time the imprisonments and fines make it evident that there are times when it is not always possible to get around the law.

IDEALS AND PRACTICE.

From time to time there are those who advocate prison reforms. Just how extensive it should be varies with the individual. There are those who would govern it by investigation, waiting until conditions become serious before making a move, some would go the limit and provide nothing less than clubroom advantages while there are those who would be governed by sound reason.

Just now special attention is being directed to the situaton surrounding the Eastern penitentiary in Pennsylvania, where an investigation is underway, where the warden has suddenly resigned and where it is declared that the institution has been run by a committee of convicts the members of which are notorious. Their conduct has been such that many of the prisoners have been afraid to enjoy the privileges that were permitted them.

Such examples of home rule in prisons fail to make a good impression. They not only reveal the folly of indulging in such laxities but they serve to give a black eye to reform measures which would be entirely justified.

If it was necessary for Pennsylvania to have a demonstration of what would happen under such a policy there can be little doubt but what it has obtained all the information it desired and that henceforth it will see the wisdom of giving more thought to the consequences before permitting the introduction of such fads. If everything should work out as one might imagine it ought, all would be fine. There is a vast difference, however, between ideals and putting them into practice, and Pennsylvania isn't the first state to find it out.

WELCOME TO THE G. A. R.

Norwich today extends a cordial welcome to the delegates from the various Grand Army posts of the state as they gather for the state department reunion. Too seldom has the city had the opportunity of entertaining this organization, but there is a satisfaction that all must feel in having one of its citizens as state commander and in greeting the representatives of other posts as they come here to record another year in the veterans' organization.

The gathering of the Boys in Blue today doesn't mean what it did back in the Civil war days. Norwich was diligent and earnest in its preparations for that great struggle. The spirit of that period was well manifested by the many who went forth to participate in the contest.

The history of the Connecticut volunteers is a glorious one. They fought and bled and died in response to duty. Theirs was an example of devotion and service that had a tremendous bearing upon the future of the nation.

Today there are but few of the survivors of that valiant army. Their numbers are diminishing all too rapidly. Their sacrifices, their service and their influence have nevertheless left a lasting impression which years cannot efface.

Norwich appreciates the honor which is permitted it today in greeting the veterans and hopes that it will have many more opportunities.

TRAINING CIVILIANS.

This is the season of the year when interest develops concerning the training camps. During the summer the war department will provide military training for 300,000 or more civilians at established camps.

The purpose of this training isn't to develop warriors. It is simply a matter of preparedness. The hopes are general that there will be no more war. There was confidence a little over a decade ago that there would be no more war, that it would be unreasonable to think of such a thing. Nevertheless it was followed by the worst the world ever experienced.

Does it do now to say that there will be no more war? Such a hope is thoroughly justified, but in view of what has happened the wisdom of being prepared against eventualities must be uppermost. It is an important move in behalf of peace that is made in establishing adequate preparedness.

To be trained in the duties of a soldier, or an officer, doesn't need to encourage war. We cannot afford to disregard protection and we cannot fail to see that such safeguards are maintained that our safety will be insured. We cannot neglect our defense and it is of the greatest importance in that connection that the benefits which are derived from the training camps should be insisted upon.

There is no question that the demand today throughout the nation is for peace. It is more insistent than ever, but it is not believed that the demand is such that it would cause the nation to close its eyes to the proper means of insuring such a peace. The training is a fine thing even though there is peace.

Even though April may be fickle you can rely on a full dandelion crop.

For Laurel Hill avenue the plan seems to be to cut down the attractive shade trees and replace them with unsightly poles.

PAINT BRUSH PERIL

"The most dangerous weapon you can give a woman," pronounced the Tyde Park man, who had met his friend from Woodlawn for lunch, "is a paint brush. Any old kind of paint brush seems to inspire feminine nature to do a little bit more than its worst! It's the saving in them coming to the surface—they can't decorate their complexions with dots and dashes of emerald green and deep orange so they take it out on whatever's handy!"

"They're so restless!" the Woodlawn man agreed gloomily. "They are always wanting to change things. Just when you get so that you can remember that your living room is chaste gray you come home and are amazed to find that it is not gray at all—it is maroon red with lavender stripes or something like that!"

"And when they entwine their rage for the paint-brush with a nobly expressed desire to save you money," proceeded the Hyde Park man, abandoning the menu and ordering a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee, "you are practically helpless. Roped and tied, as it were! When a wife with long, curling eye lashes says trustingly, 'See what I have done for you, darling, while you were away working hard at the office for me! I wanted to show you that I could help, too!' I should like to lay eyes on the brute or a man who could let out a roar because she has dripped paint all over the newly varnished floor.

"Imogene got hold of an article in one of these pernicious magazines. The article was shocked at the idea of discarding furniture because it was old, tattered or out of style. With a can of enamel and a paint brush, it pointed out, it would rival the $2,000 set in the best window downtown.

"Imogene said that was precisely what she had always felt—that a little patience, ingenuity and hard work would put money in the bank for most people. Instead of buying a new bedroom set, as we had reluctantly planned, we would use the old one. She should enamel it.

"She got one chair painted sharkily before she discovered that the old finish must come off. One friend told her to use lye and an old broom and the other said it was hopeless. Imogene hired a man to carry the set down in the back yard and applied the lye, entirely ruining the whole grass crop, her own shoes and dress and spattering the lye in the eye of a curious boy from the alley who ventured too near.

"Imogene then decided to do her painting down in the laundry, but it was a poor bet, because the next time the laundress boiled the clothes everything belonging to the family came out tinted apple green. Imogene having carelessly dropped a paint brush into the boiler and forgotten it. I had apple green shirts and collars and all the doilies and sheets also were springlike in their tone.

"The night the Fitzhooks called I hospitably hastened down stairs to the fruit cupboard to tap our home brew and I forgot all about the painted chiffoniers and dressers and what not standing loosely around. I had on my new winter suit that is not yet paid for. Naturally, therefore, I bumped one arm into the chiffonier, remembered, yelled, jumped, landed in a mess of dresser drawers standing on end and tumbled over, with the whole batch landing on me and trying to crawl down my collar. When they got me out I looked like a picture of a camouflaged battle ship. Nobody could tell which way I was headed or what I was likely to do when I got there, or why I had started in the first place. Everybody grabbed a chunk of paint in the excitement. 'Two hundred dollars,' our lady visitor was moaning as they departed, '$200 I paid for this dress only yesterday—and look at it! All around the skirt!' They had a bad opinion of us, I'm afraid.

"When the things did dry they were so streaked and lumpy that we had to send them to a rummage sale. I figure that in express wagons, paint, jaintor labor and spoiled clothes it cost $19 to get rid of our old bedroom set and the new one cost $600 as it is. Imogene says she has just got her hand in now and the next thing she tackles will be the dining room set, so I don't know. Maybe it would be just as well to break up and board at a hotel.

"Well, I'm going to tear all the paint and varnish ads out of the magazines before I take 'em home!" declared the horrified Woodlawn man.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Opposed to Removal of Trees.

Mr. Editor: Will you give me a little space in your paper? I am looking for information.

As a resident and taxpayer on Laurel Hill I am asking what are the necessary steps to take to prevent the cutting down of all those beautiful trees growing on the sides of the avenue that add so much to the beauty of the street and comfort of the residents in that section? While we appreciate good streets it seems to me little less than sacrilegious to cut down perfectly good sound trees, for what?

Really, when I read the report in The Bulletin this morning that the plan was to cut down all the trees on the sides of the avenue, from River avenue south, I wondered if something couldn't be done to prevent it.

Does it mean if the trolley tracks are put in the middle of the street that it will be necessary to put trolley poles on both sides of the street? I wonder how many residents of the avenue would rather see trolley poles in front of their homes in place of the lovely shade trees that are there now.

I hope, Mr. Editor, someone will tell us how to prevent this commercializing of Laurel Hill avenue and that the residents will do something before it is too late.

Why do the trolley tracks have to be changed?

AN ANXIOUS RESIDENT.

Good Man and Fine Neighbor.

Mr. Editor: Having read what has been printed in the papers about Mr. Tibbets, I think the public that did not know the man as I have known him has not been giving a correct idea of the man. Now I do not write this to obtain notoriety, but as a sense of duty, because I counted Mr. Tibbets as my friend.

I have known him for more than 35 years. As a boy he was a quiet, faithful, honest, industrious boy. He worked in our neighborhood and I have heard the man say whom he worked for that he never expected to get a better boy than Will Tibbets was. Every dollar he had in the world he earned with his own hands, working by the month, and I have heard men say whom he worked for that they never had a better or more faithful man.

When he had saved enough money, he bought his farm. He probably made a mistake in not getting married at that time, but there are very few people that do not make mistakes at one time or another. Since he has been on his farm, the writer has often talked with him and done quite a great deal of business with him and I can honestly say I have never done business with a more honest man. Morally I never knew a better man, and he never used liquor or tobacco in any form. Mr. Stark, his nearest neighbor, and the last man to see him alive, says, "I never expect to have a better, kinder, or more accommodating neighbor."

Now, as for Mr. Tibbets acting worried he is not the only farmer that is worried. With a large farm and absolutely no help to be had at any price, grain at $60 per ton and milk at five cents per quart would worry most anyone. The writer was well acquainted with his financial conditions and he had nothing to worry about along that line, as he told me not long ago if he could collect what was due him he could easily pay every dollar he owed. Now as to his being crazy, the writer never supposed that to be honest, industrious, and ambitious, were signs of insanity.

There seems to be something very mysterious about this case, but we had one in our own town not so very long ago about the same and the people are asking who will be the next man to go the same way.

It seems to me that the state should offer a large reward for the person or persons who committed this crime.

Wives of Famous Men

Olivia Langdon, Wife of Mark Twain

Not a romance in any of the books of America's great humorist, Mark Twain, ever equalled that of his own love affair and marriage with Olivia Langdon. The girl first became known to Samuel Clemens, as he was known privately, when his mother showed him a miniature of her. The picture captured his imagination; from the first time he saw it, it haunted him day and night. The girl captured his heart; from the first time he saw her he never stopped thinking of her. He said himself when an old man:

"That was forty years ago. From that day to this she has never been out of my mind."

Olivia Langdon was 22 when she first met Mark Twain. As delicately beautiful as the miniature, she was a slender graceful girl, with an air of great fragility. This physical aspect which rather enhanced her beauty was the result of a fall on the ice which had occurred some years before. This accident had confined her to her bed for two years. All physicians had given up hope and the girl's health was steadily waning when as a last resort her father summoned a celebrity of the day—a doctor who alleged to cure all by "laying on of hands." In a miraculous fashion he had the girl sitting up and soon walking. Although she never became robust, she regained to a large degree the health that had been shattered.

Her temperament was as lovely as her appearance, and her mind matched them both. She made a perfect wife for the genius and was the mother of a talented family, which idolized her.

Stories That Recall Others

Reciting From the Bible.

Pupils in a third grade had been required to learn several verses from the Psalms. The memory verse for the week began, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

One little girl was called on to recite. Very much excited and intent on getting through as soon as possible she began: "Make a joyful racket unto the Lord."

Afraid Ceiling Might Fall.

Fifteen year old Charles has gained an elementary knowledge of electricity. So much so that he conceived the brilliant idea of running a wire from a connection in the upstairs hall to his bedroom, so that his mother would only have to press a button down in the kitchen to wake him up in the morning. So he proceeded to bore the hole for the wire. It was hard work, but dad's outfit would do anything and finally he got through the wall. But when he pulled the bit out water began trickling through the plaster. Alarmed and ridlike he stopped the hole with a wooden plug and the water ceased to trickle.

Thereupon he decided he wouldn't do any more that day and went aut to play.

A half hour later little Dorothy went into the dining room and discovered water dropping on the table. A little later and a big chunk of plaster fell. The big brother came in, guessed that a pipe had begun to leak and ran down stairs and shut off the water. Later the whole story came out, of course. But the sequel:

Now when little Dorothy goes out with her mother she walks into the hostess' dining room the first thing and looks at the ceiling. If there is so much as a spot or a shadow there she rushes back to her mother and tries to induce her to go right home. She's afraid the plaster is going to fall again!

The choir sang Lead Kindly Light and Abide With Me, Howard Bushnell presiding at the organ. The service was concluded by the pastor reading the poem, Crossing the Bar. A wealth of beautiful flowers showed the esteem in which Mrs. Palmer had been held by her many friends.

Burial was in the family plot in the Preston City cemetery. The bearers were Frank Brewsters, Ernest Kennedy, Wallace Palmer and Walter Hyde. Church and Allen were in charge.

OBITUARY

James Edwin Olcott.

After an illness of seven weeks, James Edwin Olcott, one of the older residents of Norwich, died Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his home at 10 Nelson place.

Mr. Olcott was born in Norwich, May 26, 1851, the son of James H. and Harriet Place Olcott, and after attending local district schools completed his education in Spooner's private school on Church street. When a young man he entered the employ of the Blondin skate factory, where his father was superintendent, and mastered the trade. He also was employed by Lester & Wasley for about 18 years. For many years past, however, he had led a retired life.

On November 15, 1871, he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah M. Richmond by Rev. Mr. Worth, pastor of the Methodist church. In 1885 with his wife he left for California, remaining there for several months, during which time his wife regained her health.

Mr. Olcott for many years was a member of the Royal Arcanum and of the Norwich Red and Gun club, but of recent years had dropped out of all organizations. He was a lover of nature and when health permitted there was never an April 1st that did not find him out with his favorite rod fishing the brooks and he always brought home a fine catch. Fishing was not his only pleasure for he was also well known as a hunter and took delight in tramping the woods during the hunting season, bringing in a fair day's catch.

Mr. Olcott was a member of the First Baptist church for many years.

He is survived by his wife, his mother living in Trenton, N. J., one daughter, Mrs. Jane E. Crawford of Norwich, two grandchildren and one great grandson, also one brother, Frank E. of Waterbury and sister, Mrs. H. G. Judd of Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Olcott was a home-loving man and his delight was to meet his friends and talk of old times and outings. His chief enjoyment was his summer camping trip at Lake Mashapaug where he with other sportsmen spent the summers of the past 18 years.

The news of his death will come as a shock to his many friends in Norwich whose sympathies go out to the family in their time of sorrow.

Mrs. Frank R. Murdy.

Elizabeth M. Lilly, beloved wife of Frank R. Murdy, died Tuesday morning at 10.45 o'clock at her home at 20 Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Murdy had been ill for about one week.

Mrs. Murdy was married in Boston on June 21, 1896, to Frank R. Murdy, by Rev. William Barry, pastor of St. Thomas' church. She is survived by her husband and four children, Frank R., Gerald C., Charles A. and Margaret M. Murdy of this city, and one brother, Thomas Lilly of Boston.

Mrs. Murdy came to Norwich about four years ago and quickly won her way into the hearts of a wide circle of friends in this city. Her fine personality brought her many fast friends who will mourn her loss. She was a loving wife and mother and her home was a joy. As a member of St. Patrick's parish she was ever ready to take active part in all church activities. The members of her family left to mourn the loss of a valued member have the sympathy of a host of friends.

Mrs. John Long.

After an illness of about one week, suddenly taking a turn for the worse Monday, Margaret J. Higgins, wife of John Long, died Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock at her home at 118 Summer street, Portsmouth, N. H., of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Long was born in Norwich about 38 years ago, the daughter of Michael and Mary McCarthy Higgins. She attended local schools and was a member of St. Mary's parish. In August 1918 she was united in marriage to John Long of Portsmouth, at St. Mary's church by Rev. William H. Kennedy, and shortly afterwards left to make her home in New Hampshire where her husband was in business.

Besides her husband she leaves her mother, of Norwich, two brothers, Eugene Higgins of Newark, N. J., and Joseph Higgins of Norwich, and one sister, Miss Bernice Higgins of Norwich.

The news of her death came as a shock to her many friends in Norwich where she was kindly regarded and the sorrowing family have received many messages of sympathy from friends in the city.

HEBRON

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Raymond are pleased to learn of their safe arrival home. Mr. Raymond has been in Hartford hospital for six weeks undergoing treatment after a serious operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bissell of East Hampton were guests Sunday of Mrs. W. O. Seyms and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Tucker of Hartford were the guests over Sunday of Mr. Tucker's mother, Mrs. F. A. Burnham.

Miss Ruth Griffin was home from Hartford for the week end.

Miss Clarissa Lord of New London visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lord, over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Raymond passed Sunday in Canterbury.

Bridgeport.—The bill authorizing the issue of $350,000 bonds by the city has been signed by the governor. The proceeds will be used for the completion of the proposed new East Washington avenue bridge.

PROPOSED CUTTING OF TREES STIRS LAUREL HILL RESIDENTS

People living on Laurel Hill avenue, in the neighborhood between River avenue southward, evidently do not like the plans of the city which propose the cutting down of some 34 trees along the avenue to make way for the cement highway soon to be laid over Laurel Hill.

Although the people have expressed themselves in positive disagreement with the belief that the trees must go to make way for the new highway improvement and some of them are for starting a petition to prevent the cutting of the trees no definite action has been taken. It is the opinion of the majority, however, that some arrangement should be made wherein the street may be improved, the new highway laid, and the trees left as they are.

The residents on Laurel Hill living where the trees are to be cut down feel that there is no necessity for the destruction of 34 beautiful trees that for years have made the avenue one of natural beauty, and claim that there is no need for their removal. It is generally felt that the tracks of the Connecticut company should be left as they now lay, on the right of the street, the cement placed over the present width of the street. This, they state, will provide sufficient room for all traffic that will pass over the street and as the trolleys run but once in a half hour there will be slight chance of a traffic jam on the avenue.

Other residents, although they do not like to see the trees go, state that they do not want to let their personal feelings stand in the way of the development of the city. They state that traffic is increasing over the avenue and when the bridge at New London becomes free of toll the traffic will show a decided increase.

A few of the statements by residents on Laurel Hill given to The Bulletin Tuesday evening after it was learned that the plans of the city called for the cutting down of the trees, widening of the avenue, and removal of the trolley tracks to the center of the avenue, are as follows:

G. Frederick Noyes would have the trees saved and would rather have them than the new cement highway. He would rather have a good macadam road, kept in good repair, the trees, and no cement highway.

John Irish, another resident, said that it would be a shame to cut down the trees, but if it was necessary to cut them down to build the new highway there seems to be no way to prevent it from being done. He would prefer the trees to the new highway.

Another resident of Laurel Hill avenue said that as far as he could see there was no need of widening the street or moving the tracks of the Connecticut company. In past years autos had managed to use the road without accidents, and if the cement was carried across the tracks as they now are the street would be as good as others in the city. He did not want to see the trees cut down.

C. D. Gallup stated that if it was necessary to remove the trees to widen the street under the plan for improvement he would be willing to see the trees go. It is too bad, he said, to see the fine old trees go from the avenue, but if it must be done there was nothing to be said.

N. Eugene Smith stated that he would do everything in his power to prevent the cutting down of the trees in front of his home, and that he was against the plan.

William C. Bode stated that some of the trees were breaking up the sidewalks and should be removed anyway. If it is necessary to remove the trees to make the street what the plans call for he favored removing them, although he disliked to see the trees cut down.

Frank D. Sevin also said that he disliked to see the trees destroyed but that he wanted no selfish views of his to stand in the way of the development of the city. He suggested that young trees be planted inside the sidewalk at the park, which will in part make up for the cutting down of the trees along the avenue.

John W. Spicer stated that he was against removing the trees but he realized that the roots of the trees would hinder the work of laying the cement on the avenue. To plant trees in the park would in part detract from the bare appearance of the avenue.

Frank E. Waters said that he would do all he could to prevent the trees from being taken out, and could see no reason for moving the trolley tracks from the present location. There would be sufficient room for traffic if they were left as they now are. He stated that other residents nearby felt as he did.

AGAINST DEMOCRATIC JUDGE WHOSE BROTHER IS MAYOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 24.—The hearing before the judiciary committee on the town and city judgeships this afternoon developed some queer forms of opposition. One of the objections to George L. King as deputy judge of the city court of Meriden was that he was brother to Mayor King of that city, who is a democrat.

John B. Dillon of Bridgeport asked that his name be withdrawn as a candidate for the judgeship of the city of Bridgeport. He favored the appointment of Ralph T. Beers as judge and William J. Buckley as deputy judge. It was announced that Judge William B. Boardman, the present incumbent, was not a candidate for reappointment.

Representative Lederer of Bridgeport was in favor of Frederick A. Bartlett for judge, as Judge Boardman had withdrawn, and it was to be regretted that he had done so; but Arthur M. Comley would make an equally good judge.

Seward Price, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, presented a petition of 2,000 legal voters of Bridgeport in favor of Arthur M. Comley as judge. It represented the wishes of voters without regard to party affiliation and of nearly every nationality in the city. He was in favor of Ralph Beers as deputy judge. He would favor Ralph Beers if Judge Comley did not meet with the favor of the committee.

The candidates were Arthur M. Comley, Ralph T. Beers, Frederick A. Bartlett and William Buckley.

In answer to a suggestion of the committee, a large number by a standing vote favored Judge Comley for appointment.

It was to be noted that the hearing was unusually free from bitterness and no personalities were indulged in.

NATIONAL ESSAY PRIZE TO GRACE M. COREY

Notice from Washington was received Tuesday morning by Miss Grace M. Corey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Corey of 45 Union street that she had been awarded the first prize for Connecticut in the National Highway Education Board essay contest. The prize is $15 and a gold medal for an essay upon "Safety First," in the second national safety campaign.

Miss Corey was a recent winner of an essay prize from the Norwich chamber of commerce for her essay on "Industries of Norwich,' and her success in the national contest is pleasing proof of her ability as a writer and will bring her congratulations for winning the first national prize in Connecticut.

ST. MARY'S PARISH WORKERS TO MEET THIS EVENING

Plans are underway for an enthusiastic meeting in St. Mary's Memorial Hall this (Wednesday) evening at 8 o'clock when members of St. Mary's parish who have volunteered their services in the coming drive for $40,000 for the rebuilding of Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, will meet and discuss plans. Indications are that the amount will quickly be subscribed if the enthusiasm of the volunteers may be taken as a guide for what is to take place when the drive is started Sunday.

The meeting for completion of pre-campaign plans is to be held at the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway on Thursday evening and it is expected that there will be a large attendance at the meeting.

NEW LONDON GIRL IS MISSING FROM HOME

The local police were notified late Tuesday evening that the New London police were searching for Elizabeth Ennis, 9 years old, daughter of Mrs. Bridget Ennis of 40 Reed street, New London. Mrs. Ennis told the New London police that her daughter had been missing since 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and had not returned home. The report to the New London police was made shortly after 11 o'clock on Tuesday evening.

MOHEGAN

Several from the local church attended the union meeting held at the Uncasville church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Dolbeare and Mrs. Skeesucks were in Norwich recently.

Mrs. Strickland was in New London over the week end.

Norwalk.—The Crofut & Knapp Co. of Norwalk has increased its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

CLEVER TROUPE APPEARS IN Y. M. C. A. CIRCUS

The lure of the canvas and the brilliant lights of the sawdust ring took over 400 people to the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night when the 3rd annual Y circus was presented. Star acts on apparatus, well executed drills by members of the Y and girls of the Norwich Free Academy, and the usual funny stunts of the many funny faced men were given to the music furnished by Swahn's orchestra.

Everything was carried out in true circus style and the various acts were applauded by a delighted audience. The value of the training received in the Y gymnasium was shown in the manner in which all participants took their parts and executed the difficult movements, a compliment to the training they had received under the guidance of Physical Director Elmer Fritz.

The folk dances by the Park church Camp Fire girls and the drills by the Academy girls were worthy of praise, their attractive gym costumes adding to the features of the drills.

Another feature of the evening that goes with every well balanced circus was the side show and many people took advantage of the opportunity to see the strong man, bearded lady, hopeless wonder and snake charmer. Boys' Secretary Emery Davis being in charge of this part of the circus and General Secretary Edwin Hill was ring master.

The entertainment is to be repeated this (Wednesday) evening for the benefit of many people who were unable to crowd into the gym Tuesday night and several new features are to be added.

The program of the evening was as follows:

Grand Entry. Junior dumb bell drill, clowns, penny funnel, dynamite box, leaders parallel bars, academy girls in folk dance, clowns, growning thing, fish hunt, Academy boys Indian clubs, clowns, duck hunt, any one a cat?, park church camp fire girls folk dance, clowns, Dr. Killem, diving act, land divers, pyrotechnic clubs, Charles Roesser, junior boys pyramids, clowns, Bulshevski, fire cracker, horse and buck, clowns, midget orchestra and dance doll, leaders wand drill, elephant leaping, employed boys, clowns on elephant, paper stretcher, Academy girls, clowns, barrel clown, ball rolling, tumblers in acrobatics, clowns, hair cut, coptramp, juniors lantern drill.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE FOR G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Decorations in the national colors began to appear Tuesday in the Norwich store windows and on store fronts in honor of the Connecticut department encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which will bring from 100 to 125 Civil War veterans from all posts in the state to this city for today (Wednesday) and Thursday.

Commander Orrin M. Price will open the business session of the encampment at 1 p. m. at the Buckingham Memorial. This, it is expected, will last until 4 o'clock. At 4.30 there will be a sightseeing tour of an hour by automobile and in the evening at 8 will occur the annual campfire at the Community house on Church street, which is a public event to which all citizens will be welcome.

The program will be as follows:

AUTO CRASHES INTO WALL AFTER SIDESWIPE AT CURVE

A Studebaker touring car, driven by John Hoelck of 49 West Broad street, Pawcatuck, who said he was making 40 miles an hour, and a Buick touring car, driven by Dan S. McDonald of Montville, crashed together about 10.30 o'clock Tuesday evening on the curve near the Brown residence at Quaker Hill.

Hoelck was bound from Norwich to New London and the Montville man was coming the opposite way. The Montville car had its left side raked by the Studebaker, which then plunged to the left across the trolley tracks and into a stone wall. Timothy Daly of Pawcatuck, who was sitting with Hoelck, was thrown out but was uninjured. The car had its left forward wheel crushed, axle broken and front end smashed in.

The McDonald car was twisted across the road and came to a stop in a diagonal position on the westerly side. The brake was locked on so tight that it could not be moved after the accident.

Trolley traffic was blocked by the Hoelck car because its rear wheels were against the easterly rails of the line, and passengers had to transfer around the point for the rest of the night.

State Policeman M. R. Sterling went from this city to investigate the accident and summoned Hoelck to appear before Justice of the Peace Thomas Morton in Waterford at 3 o'clock this (Wednesday) afternoon, where he will be charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Pieces of a broken bottle were found in the rear seat of the car and were taken by the officer as evidence.

A garage wrecker got the Hoelck car out of the way of the trolley line after 1 o'clock this morning and a trolley car that had been held the other side of the wreck was able to get to Norwich.

Before the state policeman had arrived the Pawcatuck party had been taken to the New London police station, where the accident was reported.

DRAG YANTIC RIVER AFTER FINDING CAP

The finding of a cap in the Yantic river between the Canada bridge and the file works dam at the Falls set the authorities to dragging the river Tuesday on the possibility that the cap might belong to William Tibbitts, the missing Fitchville farmer, and that his body might be found in the river. The effort was fruitless, however.

The cap has not been identified as his but it is similar to those he used to wear. It has in it the trademark of L. L. Chapman and it is known that Tibbitts knew Chapman. The cap also has dark stains in it which may or may not be blood and it is now in the hands of the medical examiner to determine this if possible.

The cap was found at a short distance from shore between the bridge and the dam, where it had lodged and been held fast in shallow water.

County Investigator W. E. Jackson, Constable Jeremiah Sweeney and a man named Abel spent a large part of Tuesday morning and afternoon dragging the river with apparatus that they had had prepared for the purpose. They covered the space below the Canada bridge during the morning and in the afternoon they did some dragging farther up the stream near the bridge at the Sayles woolen mill.

EAST THOMPSON

The Thompson W. C. T. U. held a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. William Mayhew recently, the subject being Americanization, Patriotism and Christian Citizenship. Mrs. Mayhew and Mrs. Florence Lockwood were hostesses.

Mrs. Nettie Upham, widow of Leroy Upham of Webster, Mass., passed away Saturday at 5 p. m. She suffered a shock last Saturday. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Ann Joslin, and a brother, Silas Joslin, of this place.

Mrs. Everett Huntington is recovering from her recent operation in a Worcester hospital, where she had her tonsils removed. She came home Saturday, having spent a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly, in Wilsonville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Swenson are employed in Thompson.

The telegraph men who have been living in two railroad cars near the station while doing work for the Western Union, have moved on to East Douglas.

Rev. and Mrs. Miller were in East Woodstock one day last week and called on Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dodge.

NORTH LYME

Mrs. Eva Tucker, who has been spending several weeks with Miss Emily Stark, went to Essex last week for an extended stay.

Mrs. William Sisson called on Mrs. Henry Rogers in Salem last Wednesday.

J. L. Raymond and Thomas Tucker attended an agricultural meeting in Middletown Wednesday evening.

Henry Hall moved Monday to the Sterling Brown farm and will continue his work in F. S. Phillips' sawmill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Warren and Warren Rogers' family have been recent victims of the grip.

Misses Marian and Jennie Stark were recent visitors at Sidney Askley's in Chester.

Alma F. LaPlace, aged 67 years, passed away at his home here Friday after a period of ill health resulting from heart trouble, lasting over a year. He was confined to his room but a few days. Mr. LaPlace was born in Brooklyn, the son of Roswell LaPlace. He married Katie Sisson, who survives him. He is also survived by one son, Edward LaPlace, of this place, and by three sisters, Mrs. Ida Harding of Lyme, Mrs. Oliver Raymond of Hartford and Miss Bertha LaPlace. Mr. LaPlace was a carpenter by trade making a specialty of fine work, in which he was an unusually fine workman. He was a highly respected citizen, of genial and obliging disposition, and will be much missed in the neighborhood. The funeral, which was private, was held at his home Monday at 10 a. m., with burial in Pleasant View cemetery.

ROCKVILLE

Rev. Paul S. Burdick and Albert S. Babcock were in Westerly Sunday.

Miss Ada Woodmansee was a visitor in Providence last week.

Frank M. Hill was a business caller in Boston Monday.

Arthur G. Burdick of New London and Edwin Burdick of Westerly were callers here Sunday.

Charles Boss is critically ill at his home.

Mrs. James C. Matteson is ill and is attended by Dr. Warden of Ashaway.

Several Boy Scouts from Hope Valley and from this place hiked to Yawgoo pond, Sequt farm, with the scoutmaster, Rev. Paul S. Burdick, and remained over night Thursday of last week.

Leonard Edwards has had a radio installed at his home.

Howard Woodmansee is employed at Shannock.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the Orpheum theatre Tuesday evening a cast of high school students presented the comedy Sunshine before an audience that was appreciative both of the talent of the players and of the material with which they were working. The evening was a very enjoyable one for the large audience and those who attended have the satisfaction of knowing that they not only were well entertained but assisted in increasing the high school gymnasium fund, to which the net proceeds from the play will be added.

The cast included Miss Anna A. Heneault, Miss Nora Holehouse, Miss Elizabeth C. Francis, Arthur A. Bessette, Miss Margaret R. Burton, Paul A. Gareau, Miss Doris E. Hope, Harry M. Boyd, Miss Louise Hargraves, Philip W. Armington, Miss Frances B. Tillinghast.

John B. Heald, who has coached a number of Killingly High school plays with success, was in charge of the cast for the production of Sunshine and achieved his usual fine results.

Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 at her home in West Brooklyn funeral services for Mrs. Ada Amelia Hill were conducted by Rev. John R. Pratt of the Brooklyn Congregational church. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. The bearers were Judge Oscar E. Atwood, S. Irving Frink, Marshall J. Frink and Charles A. Blake. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

State police from the Danielson barracks were giving attention during Tuesday to operations involving dragging the waters of Alexander's lake in search of the body of Benn Kershaw of Putnam, who is believed to have lost his life while canoeing on the body of water during Sunday. The day's work brought no results and at nightfall the details surrounding Mr. Kershaw's disappearance were as great as at any time since it was first known of Sunday evening.

This week's weather has put a quietus on baseball enthusiasm in this territory, but it has not stilled the talk of a Mill league that has been stirring the imagination of many fans for the past few weeks. The present prospect is that there will be such a league and that a number of manufacturing concerns hereabouts will be represented by teams.

Inadvertently a few days ago an error was made in this colmn in stating the date of the next set of boxing exhibitions in the town hall. These bouts are scheduled for Thursday evening of this week and advance indications are that the fans are intensely interested in them.

Recent real estate transactions include the sale by Waldee Barbeau of Dyer street of two dwellings. One of these, on Franklin street, was disposed of Tuesday by Mr. Barbeau to Joseph Poudrette of Wauregan. The other, on High street, near the Danielson graded school, was sold by Mr. Barbeau to Isaie Bailliargeron, also of Wauregan.

Recently also Damase Boulais disposed of two bungalows on North Main street, near Davis switch, to Miss Exilda Marshall, a graduate nurse who is with a mill company at East Taunton, Mass. Miss Marshall formerly was of Danielson and Plainfield.

There will be no additions or subtractions to the number of passenger trains operating through Danielson on account of the change in time that becomes effective at 2 a. m. next Sunday. However, the trains will operate about an hour earlier than their present running schedule. This will put them in harmony with the daylight saving schedules in New York and Boston, although the trains of the New Haven road will continue to operate on standard time.

A number of Killingly boys have plans in mind to spend two weeks of their summer vacation at the Tri-County Y. M. C. A. camp—Camp Woodstock—at Black pond, in Woodstock. Several Danielson boys were in the camp last year, when it was opened for its first season. The first camp for boys will open this year on June 29. There will be 125 present, whereas the greatest number in camp last year during any two weeks' period was 100.

The following are newly elected officials of the Pentecostal church: Treasurer, Kent A. Darbie; clerk, Julius A. Rainville; trustees, Rev. Joseph Richardson, Mary Hill, K. A. Darbie and Miss Laura Reynolds; stewards, Mrs. Phineas Aldrich, Mrs. William Mason, Mrs. George Miner, Mrs. Bertha Baker, Mrs. Harry Ware, Mrs. Frank Hill. With a membership of 40, the church raised $2,200 during the last financial year. Rev. A. E. Gallup, the pastor, has been extended a unanimous call to remain for another year at a substantial increase in salary.

Motorists did their first swearing of the season in this territory Tuesday over something that will be very pleasing to them a little later and throughout the season—the oiling of the state highway between Attawaugan and Putnam. This annual operation is not relished by drivers, especially those with nice cars. Road oil doesn't come off cars easily. There were many who made detours over back routes Tuesday to avoid the oil on the Attawaugan route. Tuesday's was the first oiling of highways done in this territory this year.

White street crossing at Dayville is no more. It is fenced off and freight cars were standing across it Tuesday. Thus passes a death trap where several fatal accidents have occurred in years gone by. Closing of the crossing will not cause any great amount of inconvenience. Traffic coming from the north now moves around the westerly end of the hotel property and out into Main street over a newly built stretch of macadam roadway.

Mrs. Joseph Richardson of Mechanic street is at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam to undergo a major surgical operation.

Motorman Fred Leherer, injured when trolley cars figured in a rear end collision at Central Village Monday evening, was reported Tuesday as resting comfortably at his home in Dayville. He is not seriously injured and it is anticipated will be about again within a few days.

The cars that figured in the accident were not as badly damaged as might appear to many who saw them after the crash. Only two days' work will be required to make repairs on one car and four days of work will be sufficient to repair the other damaged car. Both cars are in the carhouse at Dayville.

What is known in telephone circles as a PBX board—a private branch exchange—is being installed this week at the Goodyear mills. When in working order, this board will connect all departments of the big plant with the main office of the concern, rendering communication easy and speedy and facilitating the work of the office and manufacturing staffs.

Motorists traveling between Danielson and Hampton during Monday forenoon noted the carcass of a deer lying beside the state highway about midway between Brooklyn and Hampton. The assumption of some Danielson men who saw the dead deer was that the animal had been killed during the preceding night by some automobile. Representatives of the state game commission took charge of the carcass.

Danielson Elks will turn out strong this (Wednesday) evening for the trip to Webster to institute a new lodge of the order this evening and the members of the Putnam lodge, to which many who will join the Webster lodge have belonged up to now, are especially invited. Practically all of the Elks who are going from Danielson will make the trip in motor cars.

Members of the Bohemian club enjoyed an exhibition by a professional pool player with but one arm Tuesday evening. A lunch was provided for all attending.

George A. Channing of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Postmaster Raymond Allen, who is retiring the first of the month, said Tuesday that he has made no decision as to his future occupation. He will take a needed rest during the next few weeks.

Dealers in cord wood are assembling a big surplus of green wood against the demand that is anticipated next fall and winter, when coal is not likely to be selling for less than $15 a ton. All supplies of seasoned wood were practically exhausted hereabouts the past winter.

Something must have slipped somewhere. Not an invitation has been received here as yet for the Duke of York-Lady Elisabeth Bowes Lyon nuptials in dear old Lunnon tomorrow. There's something hard to understand—everything considered.

Along with the wages of textile workers in this territory, pay of the union carpenters will advance with the coming of May, the new rate for carpenters—which is lower here than is being paid in New England cities—equalling the wartime schedule.

Henry Babson, who spent the past few months at Winterhaven, Fla., has returned here by motor car, with A. Cingras, who also was in the south during the winter.

Jack Feeney, who has been ill in Westerly, motored to Narragansett Pier, Saunderstown and Belleville on Sunday. Mr. Feeney was accompanied by his nephew.

PUTNAM

John DeLaurier, brought back to Thompson from Massachusetts by state police officers, is now an inmate of the county jail at Brooklyn, awaiting trial under bonds of $5,000 for having caused the fire that destroyed the garage and two trucks at the Linus A. Logee place, near Quadic, on the night of February 8. When put to plea before Justic Percy Tourtellotte of the town to Thompson, DeLaurier admitted his responsibility for the fire, but he was advised to demur from the charge and this advice was accepted, but probable cause was found for holding him for trial at the May term of the superior court, which is a term at which consideration will be given to cases on the criminal list.

DeLaurier admits that he went to the Logee garage during the night to get some gasoline, surreptitiously. This gas was for use in a machine he was driving. While engaged in filling his machine he lighted a match to see how much was in the tank of his car nad the gas ignited, setting fire to his machine, which he drove off, nevertheless and managed to extinguish the fire when he stopped some distance away from the Logee place. In the operation he was quite badly burned and his car so damaged by the flames that he later had to bandon it. The accident that was the indiscreet cause of the fire set the Logee garage ablaze and it was entirely consumed and two trucks in the structure practically ruined.

DeLaurier is a woodsman and had been employed at one time for about a year by Mr. Logee, who is in the sawmill and lumber manufacturing business. After the fire he made his [illegible] to Connecticut, which led to his being suspected of having caused the fire and his arrest sought by the Connecticut state police. DeLaurier was taken into custody at Leominster by Massachusetts officers and held for the Connecticut state police.

Jerry Belisle of Goodyear came into the city court Tuesday morning to answer to a charge that he was driving an automobile in this city while intoxicated, Monday evening. He admitted the allegation and was fined $100 and costs, a total of $117.34, which the court gave him time to pay.

Belisle's troubles began when his machine struck a horse-drawn vehicle in which John Kouaich was driving on Park street about 6 o'clock Monday evening. The crash was of a rather serious nature and resulted in a complaint be lodged with the police about the affair. The number on Belisle's car having been obtained after the collision with the wagon it was not difficult to locate him.

Rotarians of this city were rehearsing with very evident pleasure Tuesday the Charter night session held in Odd Fellows' Hall Monday evening. This affair brought delegations from Rotary clubs in Norwich, New London, Willimantic and others cities to formally welcome Putnam Rotarians into the general organization of the state. There was a banquet, speeches, good music by an orchestra, singing and a flood of the goodfellowship that is so characteristic of Rotarian gatherings. John F. Reardon, president of the Putnam Rotary club, presided.

Willimantic was represented by a large delegation and Judge Frank H. Foss of that city formally presented the charter to the Putnam club. Presentation of the code of ethics was by Valentine Murphy of Willimantic. A feature address of the evening was by Governor Don Allen of New Haven. Others who made addresses were President James Mustard of the Willimantic club, Judge Arthur M. Brown of the Norwich club and James Hammond of the New London club. About 120 were in attendance, the Norwich New London delegations numbering a total of about 65 coming to this city on a special train. The banquet was prepared under the direction of Frank Warren, chef of the Putnam Rotary club, and his associates.

Numbers of Putnam citizens are not awaiting the official clean-up week opening next Monday, but are taking time by the forelock and are busy with rakes and shovels clearing up accumulations that when carted away will leave their premises looking much better than at any time since the snow and ice departed, revealing in all its ugliness the refuse of winter.

Secretary John H. Corbett of the Windham Y. M. C. A. said Tuesday that he is pleased with the manner in which plans are shaping up for the Boys' camp at Black pond in the town of Woodstock the coming summer. Indications now are that there will be 125 boys in Camp Woodstock as the vacation resort is known, for a period of six weeks. This means that three groups numbering 125 to the group, or a total of 375, will get the benefits of the camp, each group remaining two weeks.

The leaders' training camp will be from June 22 to June 29. The first boys' camp will be from June 29 to July 13, the second boys' camp from July 13 to July 27 and the third boys' camp from July 29 to August 3.

E. T. Thienes, E. P. Hardy, J. H. Corbett and J. V. Lamberton will be the camp directors. Mr. Thienes is county secretary in Hartford county. Mr. Hardy county secretary of Tolland county and Mr. Lamberton is industrial and physical secretary in Hartford county. The tent leaders will be Y. M. C. A. secretaries and capable young men from college, school and professional life.

Hartford, Tolland and Windham counties are interested in the camp and the tri-county committee is made up as follows: W. E. Moss, Putnam; A. W. Buchanan, Mansfield, vice chairman; Henry R. DRAG ALEXANDER'S LAKE FOR MISSING MAN

Putnam, April 24—Alexander's lake was being dragged Tuesday in an effort to locate the body of Benn Kershaw, a lakeside cottager whose home has been in this city and who disappeared Sunday while Mrs. Kershaw was at her work in a Putnam restaurant. Dragging the lake for the body, a work directed by state police from the Danielson barracks, was almost as unpromising a task as hunting for the proverbial needle in a haystack and was without result. The lake is a large body of water, very deep in many places and no definite information is at hand as to which part of the lake would most likely hold the body of Mr. Kershaw if he is drowned, and no one is absolutely sure of that.

State Officer Merrill Keith, who has been working on the case, has found persons who tell of having seen a man paddling about in a canoe at the lake during the forenoon hours of Sunday, but these people do not relate that he appeared to be in any difficulty at the time. The information merely establishes that Mr. Kershaw did use the canoe after Mrs. Kershaw had departed for Putnam.

It was recalled here Tuesday by one who knew Mr. Kershaw very well that he was a powerful swimmer and in the past has made his way across Woodstock lake, a sizeable body of water. His prowess as a swimmer leads those who knew to the fact to wonder what could have happened to him at the lake Sunday. They point out that even though he were tipped out of the canoe into water that is very cold at this time of year—so cold that it would sap his endurance much more quickly than in summer—that he would be likely, if not taken suddenly and seriously ill, to be able at least to regain a hold on the canoe and use it, though it were overturned, as a float on which to conserve his strength until he could get it to shore, where the wind would be sure to drive it in any event.

The case is a puzzling one to all who have studied it and many are inclined to believe that Mr. Kershaw has not been drowned, but has met with some other misfortune. This, too, is merely conjecture. In the meantime search of the lake will be continued daily and also search of the territory around the lake.

TEXTILE COMPANY TO ADVANCE WAGE SCALE

Putnam, April 24—It was learned on excellent authority Tuesday afternoon that the French River Textile company of Mechanicsville will advance its scale of wages, the new rates effective next Monday, April 30, at which time many mills in eastern Windham county are to start paying higher wage scales. The French River Textile company, producing high grade worsted fabrics, will benefit between 450 and 500 operatives by paying the higher scale and all of these are pleased over the prospect of a summer of real prosperity.

WINDHAM

The last bean and salad supper to be served by the L. A. S. of the Congregational church this season occurred Friday evening with the largest attendance of the year. The tables were attractive with pink candles and pink tulips. After the supper, Samuel Chesbro of Willimantic gave a very interesting account of his recent trip to South America. Mr. Chesbro is a native of Windham and his many friends here were glad of the opportunity to hear him speak. He held the close attention of an audience which nearly filled the church for an hour. There were a number of out of town people present, including about 25 from Willimantic. The officers of the L. A. S. who were in charge of the supper follow; President, Mrs. H. C. Lathrop; vice presidents, Miss Clara Johnson and Mrs. Ada Larrabee; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John M. Potter. They were assisted by Mrs. George Keeney, Mrs. Guy Richmond, Mrs. A. E. Harvey, Mrs. J. G. Lathrop, Mrs. D. E. Colman, Mrs. H. Sandstrom, Mrs. Edward Billings and Mrs. George Potter. Those who assisted in waiting on the tables included Mrs. Homer Wood, Miss Charlotte Lathrop, Carl Josephson and Eden Cook. The proceeds were over $50. The next supper will be given by the men next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Harvey and son Earl and C. Arthur Keeney motored to Putnam Sunday afternoon and attended the organ recital at the Congregational church.

Dr. Robert Yergason and family of Hartford were at their summer cottage on South street Sunday.

The Advancement of Science Keeps Up

New Help Found for the Weak and Debilitated

SCIENTIFIC progress has become so rapid that it is almost impossible for the average person to keep up with the wonderful discoveries that are leading to complete mastery of disease. We have come to feel that there is really no limit to what the tireless workers in the field of medical research can achieve.

The cause of the extreme weakness of body and mind and the nervous exhaustion that is so often seen in men and women, and for which they have not been able to account, has been found. And, what is much more important to the thousands thus afflicted, a way has been discovered to relieve these symptoms and promptly restore vigor to the body.

It has been found that the loss of weight, strength and energy that brings distress and depression of mind to countless men and women, is often due solely to the fact that the inorganic elements present in the food they eat are not properly utilized by the millions of little cells of which our tissues are composed. When these cells fail to receive the proper amount of these inorganic elements—when they are faced by a famine—they lessen their functional activity in order to escape death through starvation. In other words, these cells curtail their production of vital energy and, as a consequence, the entire body is weakened, just as it is after a day of extremely hard labor if we do not take time for a mid-day lunch and rest.

In Wincarnis—the reconstructive tonic—are combined the inorganic elements present in the food we eat, and which the cells of the body require in order to produce strength and energy and rebuild tissue. When taken three or four times a day, Wincarnis furnishes the cells with an abundance of the necessary inorganic elements, and the body promptly regains its lost vigor, weight is restored, and there is a full recovery of energy. For almost half-a-century, physicians have prescribed Wincarnis for the weak, anemic, nervous and run-down.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sheep Demonstration at Salem

Prof. R. E. Begg, sheep specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be present at Nathaniel Clark's place in Salem on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock to give a sheep demonstration. Everyone interested in this is invited to be present at this time.

Breed Theatre

What will be written in screen history as a masterpiece of its kind is offered in Elmer Clifton's Down to the Sea in Ships—a romance of the golden days of whaling. Taking more than a year to produce, it presents mute testimony that anything extraordinary in production cannot be achieved by working per schedule. Here is a picture which exudes the richest kind of atmosphere, local color, detail and romance. It is authentic because Clifton went up to the whaling city, New Bedford, and gained the co-operation of its people. The director has gotten away from the beaten path.

While the picture brings forth the whaling industry of the fifties with its dramatic moments revolving about this vital enterprise of yesteryear, there is also interwoven a romance, the background of which is colored with a rich glamour. The relics and heirlooms of the dead past live again with all their picturesque atmosphere. It serves as an education as well as an entertainment. Everything, seemingly, has been done to make it complete with the color and detail of the period in which it is laid. Painstaking care is behind every touch—every incident. It's a heart story as well as a graphic one. And because it is so unusual in theme, characterization and production, it will be talked about as one of the sensations of the year. The photography is exceptional, and the acting is genuine.

Other pictures on the bill include The New Leather Pushers and Movie Chats.

Broadway Theatre.

There will be five excellent B. F. Keith vaudeville acts at the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week and a special photoplay.

Kentucky, home of mint julep aristocracy, beautiful women, thoroughbred horses and magnificent scenery.

The Pacific ocean, romantic, tyrannic and historic, grave of hopes and boon to idle dreams.

These two were the "locations" Universal chose in filming The Kentucky Derby, the Universal-Jewel special which will be shown at the Broadway theatre on Thursday.

The story of The Kentucky Derby is based on The Suburban, a stage play which thousands remember today, though it was presented twenty years ago for the first time. Charles T. Dazey wrote it.

Universal assigned King Baggot to direct it immediately after he had made Human Hearts, the country life picture now enjoying popularity on American screens.

Baggot chose Reginald Denny, Universal's star of The Leather Pushers, as the best type for the leading male role.

Lillian Rich will be seen opposite Denny as a daughter of a stableman, brought by education and culture into the very heart of the mint julep aristocracy of the Blue Grass state.

Lionel Belmore, Emmett King, Gertrude Astor, Kingsley Benedict, Harry Carter, Bert Tracy, Bert Woodruff, Walter McGrail, Wilfred Lucas, Pat Harmon, Verne Winter and Anna Hernandez are other members of the all star cast.

Romantic variety and breadth of locale is promised, the action switching from Kentucky to New York slums and then to the high seas and the China coast.

At the Strand.

A tremendous Paramount picture, Bella Donna, starring Pola Negri, was shown for the second time at the Strand theatre last evening and was received in a manner befitting its excellence. This is Pola Negri at her best. Never before has she been quite so charming as in this beautiful production. Bella Donna brings an Americanized Pola Negri to the screen, and it is as delightful as it is impressive.

The story is of a woman's love for an Arab chieftain, for whom she quits her husband, Nigel Armine, played by Conrad Nagel. Conway Tearle is the other man in the picture. The climax is a real novelty, although essentially tragic.

Robert Hichens is the author of the novel from which Ouida Bergere made the adaptation. George Fitzmaurice supervised the production. Lois Wilson is featured and Macy Harlam and Robert Schable have prominent parts. The story is a romantic tragedy and impresses all alike by its dramatic strength and interest.

Buster Keaton in The Electric House caused convulsions of laughter, a sure tonic for all. A news weekly closed the bill.

Due to the tremendous crowds that want to see this master production and inasmuch as the engagement is limited, it is advisable to come early.

WESTERLY

Judge John W. Sweeney, formerly of Westerly, a member of the supreme court bench of Rhode Island, has been chosen a member of the executive committee on the drive for $1,000,000 for Catholic high schools in Rhode Island. Mayor Joseph H. Gainer of Providence is also a member of the committee.

The funeral of John Ahearn, who died last week at the Elks home in Bedford, Va., was held Tuesday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception on High street, Westerly. The funeral was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. William McGrath of Newton avenue. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan at 9 o'clock. During the services Miss Helen McGrath sang Face to Face and Thomas V. Clancy sang Calvary. Interment was made in St. Michael's new cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Sullivan and Rev. J. J. Keane. The bearers were the following members of the Westerly lodge of Elks: John J. Walsh, A. F. L. Ledwidge, Andrew W. Martin, Joseph Wagner, Al. J. STONINGTON

Mrs. Lucie Burdick Cowan died Sunday night at her home on Water street. Mrs. Cowan was well known and possessed a charming disposition. She was ever ready to assist those in trouble and need and her many charitable acts endeared her to all. The deceased was born in Ashaway, R. I., Jan. 17, 1859, and had resided here many years. She was a member of J. F. Trumbull, W. R. C., No. 34, and Ruth Chapter, No. 44, O. E. S., of Stonington. She is survived by her husband, Charles Cowan, two daughters, Mrs. George Allison of Stonington and Mrs. Carl Judkins of Lewiston, Me., and one son, Charles H. Cowan, Jr., of Stonington.

The Atwood Machine Co.'s plant will close this (Wednesday) afternoon, the moving picture house was closed here Tuesday evening. Mr. Cowan is identified with both.

Word has been received here of the death of a former resident, Albert Schultze, chief engineer of the Sound steamer Chapin, who died at the home of his daughter, in West Hoboken, N. J., on Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Schultze formerly resided on Cutler street, Stonington, and had been on the steamboats for 40 years. He was born at Hanover, Germany, and was 64 years old.

A handsome boat of the New York line type of steamer has been on exhibition in a local store window for the past few weeks. It is a large steamboat which was made by stevedores on the New York line of steamers when they ran out of Stonington. Miniature tugs are noticed in the setting, with natural color of the water. It is said that nearly every stevedore that worked on the boats had a hand in the making of the exact reproduction of the steamboats used several years ago.

Miss Cartha Eaton of Westerly is acting as organist at Calvary Episcopal church, in the absence of Miss Zangrandi.

Friday evening there will be a get-together meeting at the First Baptist church parlors. Rev. B. W. Hatfield of Westerly will address them.

Marlborough.—The basement room of the Congregational church is being redecorated the work which will cost over $100 to be paid for by the Ever Ready Girls' Group.

GOOD HEALTH SECRET OF BEAUTY.

Beauty lies in the care a woman bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ailments peculiar to her sex, which drag her down and leave tell-tale traces upon her countenance. Sparkling eyes, the elastic step and a clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. Distressed expressions, a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude, headaches, and mental depression are the telltale symptoms of women's ailments. Women so troubled should not lose a day in taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, the most successful remedy known to overcome woman's ills and restore health and beauty.

CLAIM NEW LONDON'S CITY TAX WILL NOT EXCEED TWENTY-FIVE MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 24.—Since the announcement that New London's tax rate would probably be close to thirty mills and larger than that of a year ago, one of two members of the city council and those who are in favor of the present form of government, take exception to the statement by declaring that the millage will not be in excess of twenty-five mills, which is about two mills less than that of last year. City Manager Barlow is authority for the statement that he is of the opinion that the millage will be "about twenty-seven mills," but with the tentative budget being $16,000 more than that of a year ago, it is hard to conceive how a lower tax rate can be reached than last year when the expenses of operating the city's affair was not as great as will be, the case this year if the tentative budget is adopted, which, it is apparent, will be.

From present indications Ocean Beach will be thronged with summer visitors again this season for already there is a desire of non-residents to procure cottages at the shore, either for a part or the entire season. Even with the temperature being such today as to compel the wearing of heavy apparel, several prospective cottage occupants were at the beach, accompanied by real estate agents, seeking the most desirable places to be rented there. Last season was one of the biggest that the shore resort has experienced, but this year the demand for cottages, it is believed, will be even greater.

For several months it has been known that hatchways to stores throughout the city are in a dangerous condition. The police have frequently reported the danger to the highway department and a few weeks ago Patrolman David Nagle fell through one on Railroad avenue, luckily escaping injury. Early this morning, Patrolman Howard Sloan in walking along Main street, stepped on the hatchway to the vacant store at No. 21. The covering gave way beneath the officer's weight and he was pitched into the cellar opening, sustaining such severe bruises that he had to be treated by a physician. It is fortunate for the city that paid servants are those to suffer falls through the hatchways for if pedestrians were injured in this manner the city would be made defendants in law suits and it is a well known fact that the city has been forced to defend many damage suits because of alleged defective highways.

Lieut. Nelson, stationed at Fort Wright, notified the police this morning that a prisoner he was in charge of in New London had made his escape. The police instituted a search for the prisoner, but without locating him.

Youths for several seasons have used the vacant lot in the rear of the Palmer Bros company on Broad street for playing baseball, but in the future the youngsters will be compelled to seek another lot to participate in the national pastime. Today William H. Reeves, an official of the company, requested the police to stop all ball games on the company's property unless the games were under the supervision of Supt. Richard W. Mansfield of the Learned mission or some other proper person. Mr. Reeves, who is also a trustee of the Williams Memorial Institute, also requested that boys be stopped from playing baseball on the school grounds.

State Policeman Wheeler at Centerbrook, this morning observed a large Pierce Arrow automobile headed for New London and the officer was of the impression that the car had been stolen. He communicated with the New London police, giving the department the registration number carried by the car. A short time afterwards Motorcycle Officer William Babcock found the car in traffic on Bank street and ordered the driver to go to the police station. There he was questioned and from credentials he displayed, showed himself to be Peter Rocco of Paterson, N. J., and the car to be the property of Albert Kluge of Hackensack. Rocco stated that he was en route to Boston to join the owner of the car and there being no charge against him, he was allowed to continue.

Mrs. Samuel Winram complained to the police late this afternoon that a quantity of furs had been stolen from her home and that she suspected the thief. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock was assigned to the case and his investigation revealed that the furs alleged to have been stolen, were taken from a bath room, to which place other than Mrs. Winram had access. The complaint may result in a civil action being instituted.

Charles Ulaum, aged 28, a fisherman residing at No. 15 Smith street, who attempted to end his life by inhaling gas at his home last Saturday and who was admitted to Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital for treatment, had so far recovered this afternoon to permit his return to his home. William tried to end his life lying on the floor and inserting a rubber tube attached to a cock of a gas stove and placing the other end of the tube in his mouth, inhaled the escaping poison. No cause is known for his act.

The will of Harry C. Holmes, former prominent cafe proprietor with place of busines on Bank street, whose death occurred last week, was filed in the probate court today. The will which was drawn Oct. 11, 1888, and witnessed by William R. Austin, Lemuel C. Smith and Charles C. Lippitt, bequeaths all of the testator's property, both real and personal to his widow, Mrs. Kate H. Holmes. Mrs. Holmes is also named as executrix. The estate has not been inventoried.

Samuel Myrick, colored, of Washington, and employed as a Pullman car porter, died of heart trouble last night, while the train upon which he was employed was between Providence and New London. The body was removed from the train in New London and now awaits its claimant by relatives at an undertaking establishment.

Myrick was one of several porters in charge of about a dozen "dead" Pullman cars, en route from Boston to Washington. The victim was in one of the cars alone when stricken and was found by a fellow employe. It was not believed that Myrick was dead when he was discovered when the train was approaching New London and upon its arrival here a physician was summoned and it was then determined that life was extinct.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy K. Woodmansee, widow of Edward W. Woodmansee, occurred this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the undertaking parlors. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiated. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Funeral services for George H. Jr., the ten months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Crane of No. 100 Green street, were held this morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the child's parents. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiated. Interment was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Frank S. Gardner, whose death occurred at a New York hospital last week following a lingering illness was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mr. Gardner's former residence, No. 749 Ocean avenue and was attended by a large throng of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. The bearers were George G. Avery, Dr. Gordon Hislop, Patrick O'Brien, Alvin Fowler, Charles Ogden and H. E. Rogers. Interment was in Gardner cemetery.

Dennis D. Sullivan of No. 124 Cedar Grove avenue, and employed by the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company, died last night at Home Memorial hospital, in which institution Mr. Sullivan had been under treatment about a week with pneumonia. Mr. Sullivan was about 48 years of age and is survived by a wife, three children and two brothers, the latter being James of Bridgeport and Jeremiah of Groton.

Mrs. Harold Hempstead of Groton, C. Hadlai Hull of Vauxhall street, Thomas Doherty of Main street, Spencer Brown of Washington street, George White of Brooklyn, Mrs. Harold Peabody and baby of Waterford and Mrs. Harry Illion and baby of Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were able to go to their respective homes today.

Miss Beth Keeney, assistant city clerk, is confined to her home on Blackhall street by a throat affection.

THIRTEENTH TIME IN COURT IN THREE YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 24.—Catherupo Bruno, a shoemaker, was in the police court this forenoon for the thirteenth time in three years. His offense has always been intoxication. Thirteen proved an unlucky number for Bruno for he was sent to jail for the first time. That he was sent to jail instead of to the undertaker or to the hospital was fortunate for him though he probably did not take that view of his thirteenth experience, for he was found so drunk that he could not get his feet under him and he was reclining on the railroad track near the Union station when Railroad Officer Finch called the police patrol to take charge of him.

Bruno says he is through with the booze now. He said the same thing Monday when he was in the court in these words: "That's all right, judge You know I just drank a little bit because my brother come to this country and we must drink little bit. I cut out till next time. You watch me cut 'em." Bruno has been working at two jobs, one in the daytime and another in the evening, for which he was paid $35 a week he said.

Mrs. Katie Hornitzky, charged with drunkenness by her husband, told the court that she drank only medicine that was brought to her bya "a lady," and that she only took a teaspoonful of it. She declared that the medicine was not liquor and that it had no odor of alcohol. "Ten days for you," said Judge Prince, but then he recalled that the woman had several small children so he suspended the execution of the judgment and put her in the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield during the next six months.

Chris Hansen of Mystic drove his auto up to a street sign that prohibited the parking of cars on North Bank street and went away, leaving the car there for an hour. His car was tagged and in the police court he claimed that he did not see the parking sign.

Max Moskowitz, a manufacturer here was fined $10 for parking his car on Bank street for nearly an hour while he was waiting for a shave in a nearby barber shop.

John J. Woods, charged with intoxication, had $235 in his duds when he was arrested, very drunk and abusive. The court took about $20 of his roll.

NO PENALTY PROVIDED FOR SCHLEIFER CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 24.—It is likely that Ernest Schleifer, the railroad agitator who was arrested here after he had addressed shopmen strikers and urged them to various acts of lawlessness and criminality, will not be punished for his offense, which is something in the nature of a new one, for it is likely there is no penalty provided for the offense. It is likely that there soon will be a penalty however, for State Attorney Alling of New Haven county, where Schleifer was tried for an offense similar to that on which he was arraigned here, will go to the general assembly and ask that it shall be put upon the statute books. Judge Webb of the superior court had the Schleifer case to decide in New Haven and he went through the statutes and he is understood to have found no penalty to be provided for the offense.

So the complaint against Schleifer in the superior court for New London county is likely to be nolled when it comes before that tribunal in May next. The state has been subjected to a heavy expense in dealing with the Schleifer case, for there was a trial of several days in New Haven and in this city a day was consumed in hearing the case.

JEWETT CITY

The laying of the stone foundation for the Maynard block has begun. During the excavation the workmen uncovered the strata of white sand, almost as fine as flour, that extends from north to south under the borough. This vein first became known to people generally when the cellar for the Whiting block was being dug forty-five years ago. At that time hundreds of pounds were carried away in boxes and pails. Since then the same deposit was opened when the addition to the Rioux block was built, and now it is laid bare in the Maynard cellar. Long before the Whiting block was built, there used to stand an old red blacksmith shop on its site. Joe Congdon, a half breed, was the smithy, and hardly such a one has existed since. He knew of the white sand away down under his forge. A certain well known poem would have found here, an animated expression of the wonderful picture, for the childre ncoming home from school, used to love to stop at the open door and see the flying sparks, and hear the bellows roar.

Joe Congdon knew the value of the white sand, which he used in the process of welding tires.

Under about where the vault of the Jewett City Trust company now stands, Joe had dug a hole, like a dry well, down seven or eight feet, to tap the sand layer. Happy was the boy whom Joe selected from time to time, to be let down into the hole, at the end of the rope, which was used to haul oxen up into the sort of stall, where they were slung up to be shod. The boy was supplied with a tin pail and an old pewter spoon, with which to fill the pail with the cleanest and whitest sand. Then Joe would haul him up.

This sand was mixed with borax, and when a spoon full was placed on the surface of the weld, white hot from the forge, it would fuse in an instant, and run like molten glass Joe's tires might break under the strain of later teaming, but never at the point of welding. The old pewter spoon grew smaller and smaller, as the result of unguarded moments when in applying the sand, it would accidentally come in contact for the fraction of a second with the gleaming metal.

Reports from Rev. Howard Stephenson in New Haven are much more encouraging, although he may not be able to come to Jewett City for a few weeks. His physician says the pain he has suffered is entirely muscular, and that the internal injury is not serious.

Gershom Young and his daughter, Miss Idella Young, are to leave their farm in Moosup and live in the Barrett house in Lisbon. Miss Young is principal of the Glasgo school.

James Olson is suffering from an injured finger which was caught between two rolls while at work in Aspinook bleachery.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Harrington and James Watson of Norton, Mass., have been recent guests at Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stewart's.

George Rapp of Burnham, Penn., has been spending a week at Mrs. John Blake's on Mechanic street.

Pachaug Community club meets on Thursday evening. Rev. Mr. Prentiss of Plainfield is to give an illustrated lecture and the Plainfield male quartette will furnish music.

Reliance Lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F., and Undaunted Lodge, No. 34, K. of P., hold their second annual banquet on Friday evening. The supper will be served by the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church in the church vestry. The entertainment and dance are in Rioux hall.

Last Saturday the mercury rose to 84 in the shade. Monday evening it stood at 44 with half a gale of wind. The observant citizen said the "heavies" were like Brannigan's train, "off again on again." Furnace fires were started again all over the borough.

Mrs. F. H. P. Clement comes in for first honors. She picked violets in the open Monday.

The Jewett City Savings bank will open at 9 and close at 2 during the advanced time period.—adv.

In the return match of the Jewett ity Rifle club with the Schenectady Rifle club, the local boys again defeated the Schenectady team. This match was for blood as evidenced by the scores. In the first match with the Schenectady team, the local boys won, 90 to 492. This was the first defeat of the season for the Schenectady team and to be defeated by a hitherto unknown team was too much for them and they immediately challenged for a return match the results of which are as follows:

Jewett City Rifle Club.

Charles R. Palmer	100
Jack Davis	100
Dona Ballou	99
E. S. Hiscox	99
A. L. Stebbins	99
Total	497

Schenectady Rifle Club.

J. Thomas	100
V. J. Hadin	100
George Hotaling	99
E. Kellogg	99
H. Schnett	97
Total	495

Other high scores for Jewett City were William Marshall, 98; W. Benjamin, 98.

The Jewett City team shot 47 bullseyes out of a possible 50, the Schenectady team shooting 45 bullseyes out of a possible 50. The distance shot was 25 yards on the regulation N. R. A. target, 2 shots on each bullseye. As the bulleeye is slightly larger than the end of a lead pencil it seems almost impossible to hit it at that distance that number of times by five different men. Yet practice makes this possible.

The only thing that saved the local team was that they were able to place two shots 1-32 of an inch closer to the bullseye than their opponents.

On May 1st the local club will shoot against the Cleveland Rifle club. Several challenges from other clubs have been received, but they will not be shot until the local rifle range is completed, giving everyone a chance to shoot.

JEWETT CITY TO GO ON DAYLIGHT TIME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, April 24.—Next Monday morning, April 30, the borough will be practically on daylight or advanced time. The factories will set their clocks ahead an hour and Monday morning the whistles will blow in accordance. This will include The Ninigret Co., The Aspinook Co., The A. B. Burleson Co., The Textile Novelty Co., and The Ashland Cotton Co.

The post office will conform to train time and will open and close one hour earlier, the clocks remaining on standard time. The Riverside Grammar school will begin sessions and close the same, one hour earlier. Their clocks will remain on standard time.

The library will make the same change in the hour of opening.

Rev. J. J. McCabe, pastor of St. Mary's church heretofore has kept his church and parochial school on standard time.

It is believed that the Protestant churches will change as last year. Future votes of these bodies are to decide the matter. It seems to be the general opinion that it is the better plan to do away with the confusion that has existed in former years.

The writers of this column are authorized to say that the trolley service between here and Norwich will be maintained on the same schedule as last summer, which will work out this way. For those who set their clocks ahead the south bound trolleys will leave three minutes past the even hours, instead of three minutes past the odd hour.

For those who do not advance their time there will be absolutely no change in the hours of trolley service.

JEWETT CITY WITHOUT LIGHTS TUESDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, April 24.—High tension wire trouble somewhere above the town caused by the high wind put the local lighting system out of commission at 9.30 tonight. The wire which blew down at Slater avenue in Main street, a little earlier, had nothing to do with the light trouble. Superintendent Hiscox in looking for the trouble found that Danielson and Plainville were affected as well.

New Haven.—A joker hung a sign "For Sale" on a door to city hall in New Haven. For hours after Town Clerk Doughan was personally busy on the telephone telling inquirers that the building was not to be sold.

SPRING HILL

The Ladies' Aid society catered at the third annual banquet of the Block and Bridle club of Stonington at the church supper room here last Thursday evening. Thirty were seated at table. Roast beef, soup, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, creamed onions, rolls, sweet and sour pickles, cheese, pie, coffee were prepared and served. Prof. H. L. Garrigus, president of the club was toastmaster and responses from Messrs. Beach, Beardsley, Fawcett, Salisbury, Storrs and others made the event a very enjoyable one.

On Saturday evening 50 neighbors and friends of Daniel C. Flaherty gave him a surprise party at his home several came from Willimantic. Music and games, sociability and a general good time were in order. Ice cream and cake were served, and as a token of remembrance of the birthday occasion a chair was presented to Dan.

C. C. Davis and family and LeRoy Smith and family went to Franklin on Saturday evening to attend the wedding of Miss Bertha Smith and Clarence H. Besworth, both of Spring Hill and highly esteemed and respected by all who know them.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting on Sunday evening Prof. A. J. Brundage of the C. A. C. gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the subject for the meeting, Leadership. The quartette rendered two selections.

Oscar and Eric Ericson and their families, of Norwalk, spent Saturday night and Sunday with the Littleworth family.

Mrs. Nelson White of Winsted spent the week end at the Flaherty home

CANTERBURY PLAINS

Frederica Olney died Friday night after a month's illness. She had a second shock Thursday night and did not rally. She was 84 years old. She leaves two brothers, Wilberforce of New York and Ernest of Providence.

Anna Hansen of the Frost school won first place in the recent speaking contest and Nelson Carpenter second place.

The Frost school has won the banner from the Chelsea bank which will be presented May 1st to the school. The children have saved from Sept. 1 to April 1, $130, and a bankbook is held by each child. The two youngest children, who are 5 years old, have each saved one dollar. There are 23 scholars in the school.

The Good — In Bigness

THE good in bigness lies in its capacity to serve. Because it is big it strives for bigger and better things, for greater efficiency, and greater service.

The bigness of the American Woolen Company makes for efficiency. It furnishes the organization and the "know how" to produce at a minimum cost, the cloth that clothes the millions.

More than 35,000 skilled employees ably and tactfully directed, working under pleasant conditions and receiving consistently fair treatment; sixty mills fully equipped with every labor-saving and time-saving device known to the industry—all are co-ordinated to secure economy in production so that the ultimate clothing wearer may benefit.

FENTON PRESENTS UNFAVORABLE REPORT ON SOLDIER BONUS BILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, April 24—On the ground that the opinion of the attorney general declaring the soldier bonus bill unconstitutional left no other course open to them, Representative Fenton of Windham, chairman of the committee on military affairs, presented an unfavorable report in the house today on the measure.

Mr. Fenton made his longest speech of the session and said in part:

"This bill is the so-called "Bonus Bill". It provdes for the payment on the part of the state of Connecticut a bonus of ten dollars per month to all veterans of the World War who served their country and were Connecticut soldiers. In view of the newspaper publicity given to the reporting of this bill in the Senate (which was of course an unfavorable report) it seems proper as this bill is to be rejected by the house that I should state the position of the Military Committee. This bill as you will recall was heard here in the hall of the house at one of the largest attended hearings of the session. Ex-service men, veterans of the world war from all sections of the state, appeared in favor. Every seat in this house was taken. Besides the veterans themselves, a great many senators and representatives recorded themselves in favor, speaking very forcibly for the bill. In fact more of the members of this General Assembly were recorded in favor of this measure than any other bill before this body this term, somewhere between 30 and 40 members. In addition to this there were filed with the Committee on Military Affairs a great many petitions favoring this legislation. These petitions were signed by veterans of this war in great numbers and came from all over the state. I am not citing these facts on the merits of the bonus or to prove anything or as a matter of argument, but from the fact that it has been claimed by some, and through the press that there was no great demand from the men themselves for this legislation. At the hearing the American Legion, through their Commander, Mr. Kelley, took the position that they were only opposed to the bill if the passage of the bill would jeopardize the State Aid Fund. Their opposition was only conditional. At the hearing only one spoke against the bill and his opposition was of such a nature that it could not be considered by any fair minded man. After careful consideration the committee found themselves in the matter of a bonus with a majority of one, but the committee was favorable to the proposition of the bonus with a referendum allowing the people to decide by vote whether the State should pay the same. So if the question of this bill had been found constitutional by the Attorney General the General Assembly would have had a favorable report on the same with a referendum. But there came the question of constitutionality and the Attorney General has ruled it unconstitutional. As he is the chief Legal Advisor of the State your committee has but one course consistently to follow and therefore reports it unfavorably. By vote of the committee we report it unfavorable on the grounds of the Attorney General's opinion and NO OTHER grounds".

The bill was rejected.

Salary Raises Voted

The appropriations committee reported this morning, bill concerning salaries of state and court officials.

State's Attorney in Tolland county is raised from $1,500 to $1,800; Windham county from $2,000 to $2,300; the sheriff in New London county is raised from $4,000 to $5,000; Windham county from $2,500 to $3,500, Tolland county from $2,000 to $3,000.

Messengers in supreme and superior courts in New London county from $1,200 to $1,500 and clerks in this county are increased $1,000. In the court of common pleas the clerk is given an increase of $300 and the assistant clerk $600.

Highway Casualty Money

Among the appropriations recommended by this committee are $50,000 for two years to the state highway department for the purpose of insurance, to protect the state against claims for damages, arising from accidents due to defective highways, also including theft and fire risks, and injuries to workmen while employed on the highways.

$101,570 is given to the Connecticut Agricultural College for improvements This is a reduction of $72,605 from the amount asked for. Nothing is allowed for class rooms or dormitory extensions.

The bill concerning the teaching of citizenship which was tabled in the early part of February was taken up today and passed without opposition.

Among the bills passed in the house today was one making appropriation of $12,000 for a sprinkler system at the state pier in New London. The placing in the trunk line system of highways. The road known as the "old New London turnpike" from Norwich Town green by way of Backus corner to a junction with the Norwich-New London state road near the village of Trading Cove in Montville. The appointment of a commission consisting of the lieutenant-governor, the speaker of the house, one revision to be nominated by the state board of education and one senator, two representatives and two other persons who may or may not be members of the General Assembly, to rearrange and simplify the school laws.

The bill providing for protection and preservation of trailing arbutus was amended and then rejected.

For Norwich State Hospital

New construction at the Norwich State Hospital is provided for in the bill already passed by the senate. It appropriatgs: For two ward buildings, with necessary furnishings, each for the accommodation of one hundred and twenty-five patients, $425,000; for a nurses' home and necessary furnishings, $146,000; for one house for the staff physicians, with necessary furnishings $10,000; for alterations and improvements in power plant $30,000; for enlarging cold storage and refrigerating plant $10,000; for the purchase of a farm $9,000; for the improvement of the same $3,000; for kitchen and laundry improvements $8,000; for a chicken farm $600; for auto truck and food truck $4,000.

The house was called to order at 11.15 and prayer was offered by the senate chaplain, Rev. Dr. Campbell of Hartford. All bills passed in the senate last week were tabled for calendar and printing.

S. B. 34—concerning teaching of citizenship was taken from the table and passed. Bills creating a deputy tax commissioner and providing for an appraisal of certain state properties were tabled for calendar and printing. All bills with a favorable report received the same action.

H. B. 976—providing for changes in the gasoline tax law was rejected.

In concurrence with the senate forfeited rights were restored to Hiram W. Mills of Hartford.

S. B. 318—providing for taking of town boards of education away from control of town boards of finance, allowing Hartford Electric Light Co. to issue notes convertible into stock. Concerning compensation of committee and stenographer in civil actions, were tabled for calendar and printing.

Mr. Averill of Branford and Mr. Hill of Shelton were appointed on the committee to investigate the ballot law.

House Leader Buckley gave notice that there would be a call of committees on Thursday morning.

The bill amending an act concerning property exempt from taxation was recommitted to the committee on finance.

On motion of house leader all matters requiring action by the senate, was under suspension of the rules, transmitted to that body.

SENATE

The committee on claims reported unfavorably on the claim of John P. McGuire of New Haven for $46,461.63 on account of loss sustained on contract for building a state highway in the town of Ridgefield due to changing of grades and lines by the state division engineer. The report was accepted and the claim of Mr. McGuire denied.

A communication was received from Governor Templeton reappointing Chairman Richard T. Higgins of the town of Winchester a member of the public utilities commission for six years from July 1, 1926. Referred to the committee on executive appointments.

The committee on claims reported that Louis Leopold be paid $400 on account of the forfeiture of a bond for $500 for Charles Gross. The report was accepted.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill to prevent the employment of children between 14 and 16 years "in any occupation during the hours when the public schools are in session." The bill was rejected.

The committee on appropriations reported unfavorably on senate bill No. 74 making an appropriation for a nurses' home, and general repairs and replacements at the Connecticut State hospital. The bill was rejected.

The committee on appropriations by providing that such appropriations shall lapse and be covered back into the treasury on June 30 in the fourth year after the appropriation is made, an exception being made in the case of appropriations for the highway department. Calendar.

The committee on appropriations reported favorably on appropriations amounting to $101,570 for the Connecticut Agricultural college. Calendar.

The committee on education reported a substitute bill providing that the state shall pay $800 a year towards the salary of local school superintendents of towns that come within section 897 of the general statutes. Calendar.

No Preferential Ballots

The committee on the judiciary reported a bill making it unlawful for any town or city to use preferential or proportional ballots in elections. Calendar.

The committee on public health and safety reported an amendment to the law concerning the practice of dentistry and it was tabled for calendar.

Calendar

Passed. Concerning the furnishing of probate bonds by banks; appropriating $72,000 for vocational training; appropriating $47,000 for the state board of fisheries and game; appropriating $310,000 to the Connecticut State hospital for equipment.

The senate adjourned to Wednesday at 11.15.

MONTVILLE

The Ladies' Aid society of the Uncasville Methodist church held its annual business meeting and election of officers in the chapel on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of twenty-one. Reports were read and approved. The secretary, Mrs. Ella Church, gave a fine report of the year's work, summed up in the following: On May 10, a play by the ladies of Norwich, with a supper served by this society. On May 30, a lunch was served to the visitors participating in the services of Memorial Day; June 15, the annual picnic at the home of Mrs. Charles Hope. July and Aug. were vacation months with the exception of a food sale in July, and on Aug. 3rd, a clam chowder dinner was served in the chapel, with vegetables, ice cream, cake, candy and fancy work for sale. On Sept. 21, an all day picnic was held with Mrs. James Comstock.

On Oct. 18, the society met in the chapel for the birthday box opening and in the evening the husbands of the ladies were invited in for a social hour. On November 2, there was a chicken-pie supper in the chapel. On Nov. 16 the ladies went to the Oakdale club house by truck to a quilting bee, and were served with a chowder dinner at noon by Mrs. Hubert Dart. Dec. 6 and 7 the annual Christmas sale and supper was held in the chapel. Feb. 7 a silk sock social was held in the chapel. April 5, the closing meeting of the year, the president, Mrs. Richard Johnson was given a surprise in honor of her birthday anniversary, with 26 present, among whom was Mrs. Tibbitts, wife of a former pastor.

The society has finished paying for the furnace, $300 on shingles for the church, bought communion glasses, and linen, which was very nicely embroidered by Mrs. Claude Wilson, replaced broken dishes in the chapel, and given money toward church expenses. Also the ladies are looking toward a new kitchen. Flowers have been sent to the shut-ins, also a postal card shower to one of our sick members. One of our oldest and most faithful members was taken from us, where we know she is now more happy. Three new members have joined this year, making this year more prosperous than the previous year. Much credit is due out president and others who have made this year count.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. R. W. Johnson; 1st vice president, Mrs. Charles Hope; 2nd vice, Mrs. Burke Hewitt; 3rd vice, Mrs. Reuben Bolles; secretary, Mrs. William Spiers; assistant secretary, Mrs. Wallace Potter; treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Avery; assistant treasurer, Mrs. George W. Dart; chaplain, Mrs. A. B. Newton; sewing and cutting material, Mrs. John Botham, Mrs. Hubert Dart, Mrs. Joseph Smith; sick and visiting committee, Mrs. John Botham, Mrs. Albert Kellogg, Mrs. A. B. Newton.

After the election of officers the meeting adjourned and a social hour followed with refreshments of salad, sandwiches, cake and tea served by Mrs. R. Johnson, Mrs. Spiers and Mrs. Charles Hope.

On May 9th Hugh Kinder, music teacher from Norwich, with his class of pupils will give a free concert at the Club House in Oakdale.

A large number of candidates will receive baptism at the Union Baptist church on Sunday morning.

The Ladies Home Missionary society of the Uncasville Methodist church will meet with Mrs. Ralph H. Meleer on Thursday afternoon.

Cochegan Camp, M. W. of A., No. 9306, had a large attendance at their minstrel show on Friday night and a good time was enjoyed by all present. Ice cream was for sale and the proceeds amounted to $125. The school children also sold candy to the amount of $7.60.

The union service held at Uncasville Methodist church on Sunday evening in which Mrs. Mann, W. C. T. U. worker of Boston, gave an interesting address, was attended by a number from Palmertown, Montville Centre, Mohegan and Uncasville.

The Ladies Aid of the Union Baptist church will hold its yearly dollar meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ray Woodmansee.

Mr. and Mrs. John Watt of New London visited relatives in town on Sunday.

Rabbi H. Meleer of Uncasville has returned from a trip to Seattle, Canada, the west, and a visit to his mother in California, and reports a fine trip.

Clarence Taylor was able to resume his duties with the J. B. Martin company on Monday after being confined to the house for several weeks with an injured foot.

Fred Chapel and Mark Furber were callers in New London on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dart of Uncasville and Miss Elace Dart of Oakdale were week end visitors to Mason's Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Bunnell and son Irving and daughter, Beatrice Payne spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Mary Jane Bogue of Yantic.

STRENGTH AND SAFETY IN THE BODY OF STEEL

If you could see the main body structure of Dodge Brothers Business Coupe before the enamel is baked on, and before the interior is furnished, you would be profoundly impressed by its strength.

You would see that every panel, every pillar, and every rib is steel—that even the door sills and window mouldings are steel.

You would see that all of these parts and sections are electrically welded together into one staunch steel body, with no bolts or rivets to work loose, nothing to rattle or squeak or warp.

And you would realize that, like the all-steel Pullman coach, this unique construction—originated by Dodge Brothers for this car—represents the last word in protection to passengers—the ultimate achievement in closed car sturdiness.

The Price of the Business Coupe Is $1090 Delivered

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

The weather chart of Tuesday night showed an extensive area of low barometer of considerable intensity south of Sable Island and moving slowly eastward over the ocean. It also showed low barometer along the southern border and high barometer over the northern states from the Great Lakes westward to the Pacific coast.

There have been rains within the last 24 hours on the New England coast, and local showers and thunder storms in the gulf states and the Mississippi valley. The outlook is for generally fair weather Wednesday and Thursday in the Washington forecast district except that the weather will be unsettled Wednesday on the New England coast.

No important temperature changes are indicated for the eastern half of the country during the next two days.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Strong north and northwest, unsettled, rainy weather Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh north and northwest, and weather fair Wednesday.

Forecast.

For Southern New England: Partly cloudy Wednesday; Thursday fair, continued cool.

CIRCULAR SHOWS GENERAL STRIKE CALLED BY THE I.W.W.

Document Found in Hand Bag of Alice Chase, Arrested in Los Angeles on a Charge of Criminal Syndicalism—1,400 I. W. W. Marine Workers in Boston Called Out on Strike—I. W. W. Agent Ordered Men in Baltimore to Leave Their Ships—Real Test in New York Will Come Saturday—Loggers in 25 Camps in Washington Have Quit Work.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 25. — A general strike was called today by the Industrial Workers of the World, according to a circular seized by the police. They said they found the circular in the handbag of Alice Chase who was arrested on a charge of criminal syndicalism while circulating other I. W. W. literature.

1,400 MARINE WORKERS ON STRIKE IN BOSTON

Boston, April 25.—Officers of the Marine Transport Workers division of the I. W. W. claimed tonight that 1,400 workers were out today in this port obeying their strike call. This figure, it was explained, included a number who had declared "job strikes" within the past few days. A "job-striker," it appeared, was a man who left ship to take a shore job when his demands were refused by the ship owners.

The strikers include firemen, oilers, water tenders, sailors, stewards and cooks, on vessels in port. As other ships arrived, officials said, their crews will be invited to join the strikers. The I. W. W. demands include a $20 a week increase in wages for all hands; that private owners pay the same rate as the shipping board; that all vessels of foreign registry signing on crews in American ports meet the American wage scale; the eight hour day aboard ship, with a 44 hour week while in port; and that overtime work be paid for at the rate of 60 cents an hour.

The waterfront was placarded today with copies of a proclamation addressed by the I. W. W. to all marine workers on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf ports, and to all other marine workers throughout the world. It referred to so-called "abominable conditions" at sea declared the present strike would be the greatest ever known in the marine industry, and concluded with the appeal: "Let us awaken up and show the might that is ours."

REAL TEST OF NEW YORK MARINE STIKE SATURDAY

New York, April 25.—Conflicting statements were made tonight on the result of the first day of the strike called by the I. W. W. Marine Transport union.

The union's publicity committee announced that ten ocean-going steamships had been left without crews and that seamen were walking ashore irrespective of nationality or affiliation. Steamship owners and shipping board officials declared, however, the harbor shipping was unhampered.

The real test of the strike is expected Saturday, the port's heaviest sailing day when usually more than a score of large passenger liners and freighters put to sea.

Six liners were delayed today through the reported walkout of alien firemen, but their places were filled and the ships proceded. Delay also in the departure of a few coastwise craft was attributed by owners to freight difficulties and not the strike.

An hour's delay in the sailing of the French liner Paris carrying 800 passengers was said by officials of the line to have been due to trouble in obtaining ship's papers.

T. V. O'Connor, shipping board commissioner, former president of the International Longshoremen's union, declared the strike had no effect on the ships under his direction.

Joseph T. Ryan, vice president of the International Longshoremen's union said his organization would not support the strike being found in a wage agreement until September 30.

James Walsh, chairman of the strikers publicity committee said the union expected to have between 60,000 and 80,000 of its 126,000 members through the country on strike by May 1.

Tranquil conditions along the waterfront were reported by the police.

LOGGERS IN 25 CAMPS IN WASHINGTON QUIT WORK

Aberdeen, Washn., April 25.—Obeying the I. W. W. strike call, loggers in 25 camps of the Grays Harbor district went on strike today.

I. W. W. leaders say that 2,000 men quit and that another 1,000 will quit tomorrow. Some of the camps in which men went out closed today, but operators say the shutdown will be only temporarily.

Loggers in the largest log operation in the harbor district did not walk out.

BALTIMORE I. W. W. WORKERS ORDERED TO LEAVE SHIP

Baltimore, Md., April 25.—The seamen's strike became effective at this port today when Fred Wiley, an agent of the Industrial Workers of the World arrived at the headquarters of the order and ordered seamen in the harbor to leave their ships.

Just how many men obeyed the order was not known, but the I. W. W. claim to control 75 per cent. of the seamen on ships entering Baltimore.

NO GRIEVANCES GIVEN FOR GOING ON STRIKE

San Francisco, Calif., April 25.—The Industrial Workers of the World, who announced a general strike for May 1 advanced the date and put the walkout into effect today along the Pacific coast. The call was obeyed more generally in Washington and Oregon in the lumber camps than on seagoing vessels, according to reports received tonight.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 men in Washington lumber and logging camps joined the strike and at a number of points longshoremen and dock workers were reported to have walked out. Some seamen were said to have refused to sign on vessels ready for departure.

No demand for wages or changed working conditions were made on any of the employers, the talk among the men being that the call was issued to force the opening of the prison doors on men who are serving sentences for violations of war time legislation.

DISCUSSING PRIVILELEGES FOR FOREIGNERS IN TURKEY

Lausanne, April 25.—(By The A. P.)—The question of privileges for foreigners in Turkey, which the Turks asserted were abolished in 1914, was raised in the political committee conference today when the allies demanded restitution of the income taxes collected from foreigners during the war; the allies insisted that the levy was illegal, being in violation of the capitulation rights of foreigners.

The unilateral declaration of the Turks in 1914, the allies held, did not modify the situation. It was decided to reserve the income tax question until the entire problem of capitulations comes up for settlement.

Ismet Pasha brought the Russians back into the discussion by announcing that if any question arises modifying the straits question the delegates should be invited back to Lausanne.

Ismet said that the Turks were satisfied, however, with the provisions relating to the straits arranged at the previous conference, and had no intention of bringing the subject up again, but that the Angora government felt the Russians should be afforded a chance to sign the document if they wished to.

Sir Horace Rumbold, head of the English delegation, informed Ismet that the Russians had been notified they would be welcome if they desired to change their attitude of opposition to the provisions, shown at the last conference.

Ismet Pasha unsuccessfully put in a claim for the island of Castelloriza, on the ground that it formed an integral part of Anatolia. The allies replied that the Turks had accepted the territorial provisions of the treaty already agreed upon and had been informed by the allies that the discussion would not be reopened. The allies declared they would not ask only to surrended the island.

LONDON ALL AGOG FOR ROYAL WEDDING TODAY

London, April 25 (By the A. P.)—When Prince Albert, Duke of York, leads Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon to the altar in Westminster Abbey tomorrow he will have the blessing of the whole British empire. His union with the young girl from the Scottish uplands has struck a popular chord throughout the kingdom, equalled only by Princess Mary's marriage to Viscount Lascelles. It is universally hailed as another bond between the crown and the people.

London's entire population is in carnival spirit for tomorrow's glad event; multitudes of visitors from the British Isles and the continent have flocked to the capital.

England's most talked of and most envied girl spent the last evening of her single life in perfecting herself for the supreme part she will play. This afternoon she added nineteen pairs of silver, gold and silk slippers and sandals to her trousseau. The Duke of York spent the last day of his single existence under the paternal roof discussing final details of the wedding with the king and queen. Later he called on his sister, Princess Mary, and wished her many happy returns, for today was her birthday, and inspected the house he will occupy with his bride after their honeymoon.

CHILD RUN DOWN WHILE PLAYING IN THE STREET

Meriden, April 25.—Run down by an auto truck while playing in the street, Anna Gwara, 10 years old, of 40 Veteran street, was seriously injured. At the hospital it was said the child had internal injuries which are expected to prove fatal. The driver, Walenty Augustyn, is held under a technical charge of reckless driving in $500 bonds.

CONVENTION OF UNITED STATES DAUGHTERS OF 1812

Washington, April 25.—Mrs. Samuel Preston Davis of Arkansas was elected president-general to succeed Mrs. Clarence F. R. Jenne of Connecticut today at the thirty-first annual meeting of the National Society, United States Daughters of 1812. Mrs. Robert C. Maxwell of New Jersey was chosen to succeed Mrs. Davis as first vice president.

TO REPORT FAVORABLY AVIATION CODE BILL

Hartford, April 25.—The roads, bridges and rivers committee today voted to report favorably tomorrow on the aviation code bill. The bill provides for a set of laws governing aviation and conduct of airplanes and aviators while flying over the state.

APPOINTED GUARDIAN OF HEIRESS DOROTHY GORDON

Cambridge, Mass., April 25.—Judge Loggatt in the probate court today appointed John M. O'Donoghue of Lowell as guardian of Dorothy Gordon, heiress confined in the McLean hospital for the insane at Waverley, pending litigation over the question of a permanent guardian.

Woodbridge.—At "Ye Olde Manse" in Woodbridge Miss Elsie Jane Ladd, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Tingley of Woodbridge, and Clifford Cornelius Downs, son of Mrs. George B. Treadwell of Spencer, Mass., were united in marriage by the Rev. Luther M. Kenerson, pastor of the Woodbridge Congregational church.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Earthquake in Sicily.

Messina, Italy, April 25.—(By the A. P.)—An earthquake extending along the eastern coast of Sicily, accompanied by eruption of Mounts Etna and Stromboli, caused a considerable panic among the population of the district today. Many people are camping in the open, fearing further and more serious disturbances.

To Abandon May Day Celebration.

Milan, April 25.—The Milan chamber of labor has decided to abandon its plans to celebrate May 1 as a labor holiday. This decision follows the action of the police, who called in the leaders of the socialists and communists and notified them that any incident to a strike on May 1 would be repressed and severely punished.

POLITICAL LEADERS SPLIT ON WORLD COURT PROPOSAL

Washington, April 25.—The reflex upon republican leaders in Washington of President Harding's New York pronouncement on American membership in the world court became clearly noticeable today soon after the return of the executive to the capital. It ranged from open opposition with warnings of a party split, if advocacy of the world court membership was continued, to wholehearted approval and endorsement with a middle ground suggestion of compromise.

Some leaders called at the White House during the day to convey their views to the president in person, others let their reaction to the executive's address be made known in formal public statements, and still others refused to go further than to discuss privately the impression made upon them by Mr. Harding's unequivocable commitment to the world court proposal.

The president, during the day became acquainted with much of this reaction upon party leaders here, and in addition, received a huge number of telegrams from leaders in various parts of the country. Most of these messages were said at the White House to convey an endorsement of the executive's stand.

Administration officials generally appeared to be satisfied with the reception accorded the address but the president, himself, was said by some of those who talked with him today, to be somewhat disturbed by the opposition from to the court plan as expressed in some quarters, and was extremely anxious to avert any schism in the party. This anxiety, some White House visitors said, seemed to be so strongly felt by Mr. Harding as possible to bring about cancellation of plans for his western speaking trip.

SALOONKEEPER'S WIFE TRIED TO ATTACK JUDGE WEBB

New Haven, Conn., April 25.—Cornelius Crowley, a saloon keeper, who was described by State's Attorney Alling as a "persistent violator of the liquor laws" was fined $500 and costs and given a year in jail by Judge Webb today. Ten minutes later Mrs. Crowley attempted to attack Judge Webb in his private office. She was forcibly ejected by several deputies and Sheriff Reilly was ordered by the court to properly guard the office from "maniacal intruders."

No one had seen Mrs. Crowley slip by the officers to reach Judge Webb's room. Hysterical cries attracted their attention.

Crowley had previously been convicted of liquor law violations and given sentences. Today his counsel pleaded for clemency and Judge Webb said that Crowley must be "half-witted" to think he could play with the law when a penalty of $2,000 and two years in jail stood right in the face. Mr. Alling described the numerous raids on Crowley saloons and on one raid Mrs. Crowley poured a jar of cheap whiskey over a new uniform of a police sergeant in order to destroy the evidence.

After being sentenced Crowley walked to the door of the court room and was detected by Mr. Alling who rushed to officers to stop him.

BILL FOR CONDEMNATION OF McCOOK PROPERTY

Hartford, Conn., April 25.—Condemnation of a part of the McCook property in East Lyme for Seaside sanitarium will be provided for in a bill to the present sanatorium property, day by the humane institutions committee, it was stated today by Senator Irwin C. Atchison, chairman of the committee.

The bill was drawn by Attorney General Frank E. Healy, at the request of the committee, through Senator Atchison and provides for the acquisition of a strip of land 200 feet wide, parallel to the present sanatarium property, extending from the water to the railroad track, by purchase if possible, or otherwise by condemnation proceedings to be brought by the attorney general, in event of refusal to sell. The amount to be paid for the land is not stated in the bill which has been prepared but the bill for which the one to be reported is a substitute provided for an appropriation of $1,100,000 to buy the whole McCook property.

According to Senator Irwin C. Atchison, chairman of the humane institutions committee, the offer of the McCook family, made through Executive Secretary Anson T. McCook, of a piece of land sixty by two hundred feet, is not satisfactory and will not be considered.

FIRE DAMAGES SOUTH MERIDEN FIREHOUSE

Meriden, April 25.—Summoned by an alarm of fire early this evening, members of the South Meriden volunteer fire department found themselves unequipped to fight flames which were enveloping the firehouse.

Two lines of hose were laid from a nearby factory, thus holding the fire in check until help arrived from the city fire department. The blaze, which was of unknown origin, destroyed several hundred feet of fire hose, damaged the fire engine to the extent of several hundred dollars, and gutted the interior of the firehouse with a loss to the building estimated at about $700.

A DEFICIT OF $123,688.88 FOR CENTRAL NEW ENGLAND ROAD

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 25.—Receiving a report of a deficit of $123,688.88, stockholders of the Central New England railroad met here today and reelected directors.

President Clinton L. Bardo, in his report for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1922, said the principal causes of the deficit were decreased freight rates ordered by the interstate commerce commission, increased cost of fuel due to the coal strike, increased operating expenses owing to the shop crafts strike and unusually severe winter, intensified by unusual weather conditions.

To Delve Into Financial Wiles of the Morses

Government Charges Charles W. With "Kiting" Checks—All Three Charged With Diverting and Misapplying Funds.

Washington, April 25.—Events today in the Morse trial in the District of Columbia supreme court included the issuing of a second subpoena for John Barton Payne, newly appointed American commissioner to Mexico and former chairman of the shipping board, the conclusion of the opening statement of the government's case, and the beginning of a reply by the defense.

Whether service of the subpoena for Mr. Payne to appear as a witness will delay his departure for Mexico City to confer with Mexican commissioners relative to American recognition of the Obregon government does not now appear. The summons was issued at the request of counsel for the defense, who called attention that Mr. Payne was about to leave the jurisdiction of the court.

The departure of Mr. Payne for Mexico City would in any event await the taking of a date for the beginning of the joint sessions of the United States and Mexican commissions.

At the state department it was suggested that if his appearance in court some time hence would interfere with the carrying out of the mission entrusted to him by President Harding, the court might expedite his examination.

Mr. Payne is listed as a witness for both the government and the defense. Just before his departure from Washington on last March 5 as a guest in Florida of President Harding, a subpoena was issued for him by direction of Justice Stafford, but before service was had an agreement was made not to insist on his appearance at that time.

Concluding his opening statement to the jury, District Attorney Gordon said evidence would be offered tending to show that $1,035,000 advanced by the government to the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation, a Morse concern, on account of ship construction, had been converted to plant and housing construction in violation of the contract. He asserted further that the government would undertake to show that $1,500,000 of a $2,000,000 bond issue which the Emergency Fleet corporation permitted the Virginia concern to issue on its plant had been "misapplied."

The district attorney stated also that evidence would be offered in an effort to prove that in the operation by Morse concerns of the government ships built at the Morse plants at Alexandria, Va., and Groton, Conn., upwards of $1,300,000 of government funds had been "diverted" in violation of trusts entered into by those companies.

Mr. Gordon said the government also would endeavor to establish by evidence that contracts for ship construction were obtained from the fleet corporation by the Groton Iron works, a Morse concern, on the basis of false statements as to the financial condition of that company, and that Charles W. Morse and his sons, Erwin A. and Benjamin W. Morse, officers of the Groton company, knew them to be false at the time.

The government would seek to show, Mr. Gordon continued, that Charles W. Morse had engaged in "check kiting" in an effort to get ship contracts by showing a better financial standing of the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation than actually existed. The district attorney also told the jury that it was the purpose to prove that Mr. Morse's sons had embarked upon similar methods in efforts to hasten payments by the government on account of progress on ships building at the Groton plant.

Opening the statement for the defense, Attorney Nash Rockwood of New York asserted that not a single act set out in the indictments had been consummated and that the case narrowed itself down to the proposition of whether the eight defendants had conspired together at a time of "great national stress" to defraud the government and to delay and hinder its program of ship construction. He declared all of the defendants were men of high character and standing and that Charles W. Morse and his three sons were practical shipbuilding and shipping men.

"The shipping board and the Emergency Fleet corporation have thrown down the gauntlet," said Mr. Rockwood, "and it is accepted by the defense."

He added that the defence proposed to show where the inefficiency in wartime ship construction existed.

TO APPOINT J. A. MACDONALD HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

Hartford, April 25.—Governor Templeton authorized the statement today that he will send in the senate tomorrow an appointment of John A. Macdonald of this city to be state highway commissioner, succeeding Commissioner Charles J. Bennett. Macdonald is now deputy commissioner of motor vehicles and he will take over the highway department at the expiration of Bennett's term on July 1.

The governor said this is not an abandonment by him of his plan for a reorganization of the highway department by adding an advisory board of three members. He pointed out that a highway commissioner would have to be appointed in any event, as that position was provided for in the proposed reorganization plan as well as in the existing law. Confirmation by the senate is required. A salary of $8,000 a year is provided for the position.

Mr. Macdonald was an inspector in the department in 1911.

Highway Commissioner Bennett, when notified tonight of the governor's announcement of his intention to appoint Mr. Macdonald, said that it was a complete surprise to him. "It is an excellent choice," he added, "and I will do everything that I can to help him in the department."

PLAN FLIGHT FROM NEW YORK TO SAN FRANCISCO

Washington, April 25.—Lieutenants John A. Macready and Oakley G. Kelly, army aviators arrived here late today in their monoplane T-2, with which they plan to fly from New York to California early next month. The trip from Dayton was without incident.

The aviators will confer tomorrow, during the proposed cross-continent flight with Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, before leaving for New York.

"Anti-Sabotage" Bill Passed by the House

Measure Carries a Penalty of $5,000 or Ten Years in Prison — Seven Appointments by Governor Templeton.

Hartford, April 25.—Governor Templeton today sent seven appointments to the general assembly leaving but four that require confirmation to be sent before the session is over. They are the appointment of a superior court judge, a highway commissioner to take the place of Commissioner Bennett and two city judges in New Haven.

The appointments made today include those of Senator Ellis and Speaker Nickerson to be superior court judges for a term of eight years, Judge Ernest C. Simpson and Judge John P. Booth to be reappointed to the court of common pleas in New Haven for four years, Harry E. MacKenzie, feder prohibition director to be commissioner of labor and factory inspection, and Sheriff Frank H. Turkington and David S. Day to be re-appointed to the state board of pardons.

Although the failure of the governor to submit his appointments until this late in the session has caused some comment at the capitol, today's list of appointments has cleared the air. The appointments that remain, however, are the center of keen interest.

The house today passed with little opposition an "anti-sabotage" bill providing heavy penalties for its violation. The bill would punish anyone advocating, encouraging or justifying any injury to persons and to public or private property. The penalty for violation would be $5,000 fine or ten years in prison.

The legislation is considered as being the result of the trial of Ernest Schleier at New Haven on a charge of inciting striking shopmen to unlawful acts. Schleifer was discharged when Judge Webb found that his case was not covered by any existing legislation. Another "anti-radical" bill more general in its terms has not been reported by the judiciary committee to which it had been recommended after it had been opposed by members of the Yale law faculty.

Six town and city judgeships brought n by the judciary committee were confirmed under suspension of th rules in both branches. The nomination of Ralph J. Beers for judge and William J. Buckley for deputy judge of Bridgeport, however, were held up in the house and tabled until tomorrow after they had been confirmed by the senate.

Although both branches of the assembly have been wading through a large amount of routine work each day, there still remains much work and it is believed that it will be May 9 before the assembly will be in a position to recess.

The vaccination bills, both starred for action today, were tabled for printing in the journal. The Wilder bill which would permit vaccination of a child to be dispensed with if a physician furnished a certificate that the child's health would be injured, was tabled, although it had been favorably reported, in order to give the senate an opportunity to compare it with a second bill which received an unfavorable majority report and a favorable minority report from the committee on public health and safety. This second bill would make vaccination optional and has been opposed on the ground that it would "take down the bars" against immunization.

MARY PICKFORD'S SALARY WAS $10,000 A WEEK IN 1917

New York, April 25.—Mary Pickford got a salary of $10,000 a week from Adolf Zukor as long ago as 1917, Alexander Lichtman, head of the Allied Lichaman Corporation and Preferred Pictures Corporation testified today at the hearing by the federal trade commission to determine whether the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, six affiliated companies and six individuals constitute a motion picture trust.

He said the Famous Players film failed in 1914 to organize a great distributing company, but later the Paramount Pictures Corporation was formed with W. W. Hodkinson of California as president, and a 25 year distributing contract was made.

In 1916, he said, Zukor became dissatisfied with the arrangement of Paramount, asserting he was not receiving money enough to produce the pictures he wanted and was threatened with the loss of some of his great stars, especially Mary Pickford. Zukor told him, the witness said, that the Mutual had offered Mary Pickford $10,000 a week.

A merger was completed in 1917 he testified, between the Famous Players Corporation, the Edsworth Company, Inc., and the Lasky company when the Paramount was releasing 104 pictures a year and Zukor was paying Mary Pickford a salary of $10,000 a week.

DRY AGENTS FIND MORE THAN 1,000 EMPTY BOTTLES

New York, April 25.—Ten prohibition agents raided Mouquin's restaurant in Sixth avenue aright, arrested Louis Mouquin, Jr., and four waiters and discovered, they said, a secret passage between the cellar of the restaurant and a West 27th street office building in which a prohibition headquarters formerly had offices. Banked around the door to the secret passage, agents said, were heaped more than 1,000 empty bottles.

116 FOREST FIRES IN VARIOUS PARTS OF PENN.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 25.—One hundred and sixteen forest fires in different parts of the state, were reported to the state forestry department for the twenty-four hours ending at 4 o'clock this afternoon. No loss of life was shown by the reports, but a great acreage was burned. Fifty-four fires were reported for the twenty-four hours ending at four o'clock yesterday.

OBITUARY.

AN ASTOUNDING DISPLAY OF LAWLESSNESS IN FLORIDA

Members of Joint Legislative Committee Investigating the Death of Convict Tabert, Alleged "Whipping Post" Victim, Wege Greeted With a Silent Display of Firearms—Former Convict Johnson, Who Was to Pilot the Committee to Tabert's Grave, Was Thus Intimidated: "You Just Tell Them Where You Buried Tabert If You Know What's Good for You".

Tampa, Fla., April 25.—A silent display of firearms greeted the members of the joint legislative committee here today on their arrival with Arthur Johnson, former convict, to exhume the body of Martin Tabert of Munich, North Dakota, who is alleged to have died of injuries received at the hands of a "whipping boss" in a private convict camp near Clara.

The firearms were strapped to the hips of several shirt sleeved men, against whom charges of intimidation will be made, it was announced by Representatives J. Clay Smith and J. S. Kennerly, members of the committee. Johnson, who testified at the legislative committee's hearing that Tabert's body was buried in a spot three miles away from where his grave now stands, appeared to have been the center of interest.

The committee arrived here about 1 o'clock this afternoon. Johnson was riding on the front seat of the automobile with the legislators. Without extending any salutations to the committeemen, "Captain Bill" Fisher walked up to the car and, addressing Johnson, said: "You tell them where you buried Tabert if you know what's good for you."

While he was addressing the former convict, eight men with pistols protruding from their belts stepped behind the spokesman. Johnson did not reply and appeared frightened.

Representative Kennerly ordered the automobile to proceed. Johnson directed the party along a highway but passed the spot where he had previously testified before the committee that he helped to bury Tabert. The car was followed by about ten automobiles filled with natives.

The committee members proceeded about two miles before Johnson recovered his wits sufficiently to tell the members that he had taken them past the spot on purpose. The automobile was turned around and proceeded back towards Clara with the other cars following.

Johnson pointed out a small pine grove about half a mile from the main road. The committee left the automobile and started for the grove, approximately thirty inch following. Representative Kennerly addressed the crowd, saying:

"Gentlemen, this is an outrage. I shall report this to the governor. I will let the newspapers know all about it, too."

There was no response from anyone in the crowd, but several members of the party circulated among the crowd and asked those who had pistols to hide them. They also requested that Johnson be allowed to point out the spot where he contended the first burial took place.

Johnson walked in and out of the palmetto thickets, followed by the committee, but after a half hour search he declared he was unable to locate it.

Meantime, Representatives Smith and Kennerly were shaking hands with members of the informal "reception committee" and there was no further hitch in the proceedings.

The committee then proceeded to the Tabert grave in the Mingo cemetery. It was found just off the road behind a wire fence. Two convicts began digging into the mound. A heavy shower started and the work of exhuming the body was postponed.

Fisher, who spoke to Johnson, was identified as the superintendent of the Putnam Lumber company, at whose plant Tabert died while serving a sentence of three months after being convicted and leased out by Leon county authorities.

PUBLISHERS DISCUSSED SCHOOLS FOR PRINTERS

New York, April 25.—Labor problems, with particular emphasis on the question of maintaining schools for printers, were foremost among subjects taken up this afternoon by the American Newspaper Publishers Association in annual convention here.

Printers' union locals in some cities, said a report on the Macon (Ga.) printing school, which the A. N. P. A. supports, "delight to crush the new operator if it is learned he is from the school." Many union members, the report added, wage "vicious opposition" to it, giving student printers discouraging pictures of conditions in the industry, and warning them that even if they complete the course they will be unable to find jobs until they have gone through a five-year apprenticeship and obtained union cards.

Further support for the Macon school was opposed by some eastern and middle western publishers on the ground that it was too far away to be of service to them. They suggested transference of their support to the school operated by the New York State Publishers Association at Ithaca, or to various smaller regional schools.

A committee finally was appointed, with instructions to report back tomorrow with a program on the school subject.

Other topics taken up in the five-minute discussions included support of the association's bureau of advertising, various questions concerning free publicity and improvement of second class mail service. The latter subject occupied a large part of the forenoon session, which the publishers heard Postmaster General New, M. New explained that most of the trouble was due to failure on the part of publishers to weigh their papers for the mail so that they could be readily distinguished from third and fourth class matter.

TO HEAR BOOTLEGGING CHARGES AGAINST POLICE

New York, April 25.—Charges of bootlegging by the New York police, the subject of an inquiry that resulted in Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, will be given a chance at open court hearing before a supreme court or general sessions court justice, sitting as a committee of the entire court, Deputy Attorney Banton announced today.

The hearing, he said will begin as soon as the district attorney's office obtains the consent of a judge to sit for the hearings. It will be limited to a legal inquiry.

Mr. Banton declared a public inquiry was due the public. If the judges of the supreme court and general sessions court refuse to consent, however, he declared he would have to take all the charges and counter charges to the grand jury.

"We are not going to proceed on any gossip or more hearsay but upon legal evidence only," he said.

NEW SCHOOL FOR SLEUTHS OPENED IN NEW YORK

New York, April 25.—Two hundred plain clothesmen and a hundred patrolmen threw away their correspondence school manuals on the art of detecting and enrolled today in the kindergarten class of Police Commissioner Enright's new school for sleuths.

The first axiom they were asked to write in their little hand-book was: "Detectives are not born; they are made—Enright."

Axiom No 2 was: "Team work is important in everything in modern life, baseball for instance."

Commissioner Enright opened the school in the old Elizabeth street station, with an address in which he propounded axiom No. 1. Other axioms were given in other addresses.

The school will continue until every man on the New York police department has had an opportunity to attend.

RUM-RUNNING CREATES DEMAND FOR FAST BOATS

New York, April 25 (By the A. P.) —It was learned today that inquiries have been made of shipbuilders as to the cost of small craft having a guaranteed speed sufficient to overtake the fact vessels employed by bootleggers in transferring liquor supplies to shore from the rum fleet off Ambrose channel.

It was found that such vessels could be turned out by the shipyards at an expense of from $40,000 to $50,000 each. It developed that a strong demand for motor craft suitable for making fast runs had been created since rum running became a profitable business and that the one great essential of the boats has been speed. Some that have been turned out have been guaranteed to make 20 knots an hour under ideal conditions for perhaps a single trip or a few hours in a week. It was learned that a guaranteed speed of 22 knots, the same to be maintained day and night indefinitely, was an altogether different proposition and was only to be had at the expenditure for power equipment far in excess of anything that had been contemplated. It was said that at least a dozen such craft would be necessary to stop the rum-running off the Atlantic highlands, and inasmuch as no such sum as available for the purpose the prospect of a prohibition fleet adequate for the emergency was considered remote.

WOULD HAVE AMBASSADOR TO BRITAIN RECALLED

Boston, April 25.—The recall of Colonel George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, would be called for under a resolution to President Harding proposed in the legislature today by Representative Coleman E. Kelly, a Boston.

The resolution said:

"Whereas, the Ame. n ambassador to England, George Harvey, boasts more of his English ancestry than of his American, * * * be it Resolved, that it is the sense of the Massachusetts house and senate that George Harvey should be recalled."

HUNGER STRIKER FAILED TO CONTEST DIVORCE SUIT

Switzerland, May, April 25.—Mrs. Bertha Cole Britton, of this city who went on a ten days hunger strike last November with the announced intention of winning back her husband, Louis C. Britton, failed to contest the suit for divorce brought by the latter and heard in the supreme court before Judge C. J. Dunn here today.

The husband alleged cruel and abusive treatment. The evidence was heard and Judge Dunn said he would take the case under advisement. A property settlement had been made previously, it was announced.

SAN FRANCISCO BIDDING FOR POLITICAL CONVENTIONS

Chicago, April 25.—San Francisco is bidding for both the republican and democratic national convention in 1924 and Chicago, Kansas City, Buffalo and Cleveland all are in the race to land the republican gathering, it became known today.

Should the republicans select San Francisco or some other city at the national committee meeting to be held next December, Chicago local political forecasters believe, might get the democratic convention.

FOUR TEAMS HAVE SIGNED UP FOR NORWICH TWILIGHT BASEBALL LEAGUE

Three more teams signed up for the Norwich Twilight league Wednesday, making four teams that are certain of entering the league. The teams to sign up yesterday were the Swan-ee Cubs, a team from Greeneville, the Professional Men's team and Spencer's Stars. The Nuggets entered the league on Tuesday, being the first team to sign up.

Several other teams are considering entering the league but as yet have not definitely decided. It is proposed to make it an eight-team league with games four nights a week. This would make each team play two games during the week and take three weeks to make the circuit.

The Nuggets and Swan-ee Cubs have already started practicing players for the coming season and these two teams will play a practice game next week. M'TIGUE TO FIGHT THREE BOUTS BEFORE TACKLING CARPENTIER

New York, April 25.—Mike McTigue, light heavyweight boxing champion, will engage in three no-decision bouts in the United States and Canada before defending his title against Georges Carpentier on July 4, his manager, Joe Jacobs, announced today.

McTigue, who is expected back shortly from Ireland, where he won the 175-pound crown from Battling Siki, is booked to box Young Bob Fitzsimmons, at Chicago, May 29, in the first bout after his return. His other matches are with Tommy Loughran, at Philadelphia, June 8, and with Roddy McDonald, Canadian boxer, on June 18, at Halifax, N. S., where McTigue won the Canadian middleweight title in 1920 by knocking out Gene Brosseau.

M'TIGUE'S CANADIAN OPPONENT ON WAY TO AUSTRALIA

Halifax, N. S., April 25.—Roddy McDonald, Canadian boxer, who was reported to be matched to meet Mike McTigue, light heavyweight boxing champion, here on June 18, is on his way to Australia, local boxing authorities said tonight. McDonald, it was said, retired from the ring three years ago.

PROFS TAKE FIRST GAME OF 1923 SEASON

New Haven, April 25.—New Haven, champions of the Eastern league last season, started the 1923 campaign auspiciously here this afternoon, defeating Bridgeport, 3 to 1. The locals won the game in the third inning when, with men on second and third, Withrow was purposely passed. Mulrennan hit a double to left center, clearing the bases. Bridgeport had the bases full in the ninth but were unable to score. The fielding of La Motte, who reported here today from Washington, was a feature. After tossing one wildly in the first inning he accepted nine chances faultlessly, his stop and subsequent toss to first of a labeled base hit by Emmerich in the ninth being sensational. Score by innings:

Bridgeport ..... 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1
New Haven ..... 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 x—3

Two base hit, Mulrennan.

WHITE SOX CLUB ENTERS DENIAL IN SLANDER SUIT

Milwaukee, Wis., April 25.—Charges of conspiracy to "throw games of the world series contest of 1919 to the Cincinnati National league team" are made against Oscar (Happy) Felsch and Sharles (Swede) Risberg, in answers filed in circuit court today by the Chicago American League baseball club to the suits of the deposed White Sox players.

The club enters general denial to allegations made in the suit of Joe Jackson, former left fielder, who asks $100,000 for alleged slander and an additional sum for back pay he claims is due.

General demurrers made by the White Sox club to the charges of conspiracy and slander are scheduled for argument before Judge Gregory tomorrow.

MICKEY WALKER RESTORED TO GOOD STANDING

New York, April 25.—Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight champion, has been restored to good standing in both New York and New Jersey.

The New Jersey boxing commission today announced that Walker had been automatically reinstated in that state as a result of the action of the New York State Athletic commission yesterday in lifting the ban imposed some time ago on the titleholder for his alleged unsatisfactory exhibition at Buffalo.

JAP TENNIS CHAMPION WINS AND LOSES AT HONOLULU

Honolulu, April 25.—(By the A. P.)—M. Fukuda, Japanese champion tennis player, and a member of the Japanese Davis cup team, won and lost in exhibition matches here yesterday. Paired with Robert Kinsey, of San Francisco, a nationally ranked player, Fukuda defeated Hoogs and Cooke. Playing with Matsumoto, Fukuda lost to Kinsey and Castle.

Fukuda stopped here one day en route to the United States where he will train for the Davis Cup play.

HILLIES DROP OPENING GAME TO WORCESTER

Pittsfield, Mass., April 25—Worcester defeated Pittsfield 11 to 6 in the opening game of the Eastern league season here this afternoon. The hitting of Wacha featured. He secured a home run with two on bases, also a double and single. The score:

Worcester—200 321 012—11.
Pittsfield—000 002 202—6.

Two base hits—Stapleton, Van Alstyne, Wacha, Bosse. Home runs Wacha 1.

INTERCOLLEGIATE POLO TOURNEY STARTS MAY 4TH

New York, April 25.—The intercollegiate polo championship tournament, under the auspices of the second army corps area at Fort Hamilton, will start May 4, one day later than originally scheduled, it was announced today, because of the Harvard team's inability to arrive earlier. Other tournament dates are May 5, 8, 9, 10, 12, 16.

Eight colleges and other institutions have filed entries. They are: Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Norwich, West Point, and Virginia Military Institute.

ALBANY LOSES OPENER TO BRONKIE'S TEAM

Albany, April 25.—Albany went down to defeat before Waterbury by a six to three score in the opening game of the Eastern league season here today. A record crowd saw the game. Baseball Commissioner Landis, Governor Smith and Daniel O'Neil, president of the Eastern league, took part in the opening ceremonies. Score by innings:

Two-base hits, Weinmaster. Home run, Emmer.

HARTFORD GETS AWAY TO A GOOD START

Hartford, April 25.—Hartford opened with a victory over Springfield here this afternoon, 5 to 4. With three on bases and none out Hauk hit a hard drive to centerfield that bounded over the fence but he failed to complete the journey around the bases stopping after reaching first and losing credit for a home run. The score by innings:

Springfield ..... 0 0 0 0 4 0 0 0 0—4
Hartford ..... 0 0 2 1 0 0 0 0 2—5

YANKS RELEASE PLAYERS TO MINOR CLUBS

New York, April 25.—The New York Americans today announced the release, under optional agreement, of outfielder Oliver Tucker to the New Orleans club of the Southern Association and Pitcher Fred Spates to Albany in the Eastern league.

Tucker played with New Orleans last year, while Spates came to the Yankees from Brown university.

Fourteenth Birthday Party.

On Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Massey, of Baltic, a birthday party was held in honor of their only son, Charles fourteenth birthday. About 40 sat down to the supper of roast pork, boiled ham, potatoes, salad, rolls, fruit, all kinds of cake, tea and coffee. A beautiful birthday cake with 14 pink and white candles adorned the table. After supper ice cream, cookies and punch was served. The party presented Charles with a gold fountain pen and pencil, the presentation being made by his little cousin, Mary Faulkner. Before supper a flash light picture was taken of the group. Those assisting Mrs. Massey were Mrs. Ruoff, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Faulkner, Mrs. Firth and Miss Jennie White.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Grandmother Magpie.

It isn't always easy
To do the things you must.
Some people, if they stay at home
Say they will surely rust.
But you will find the longer
You live from day to day,
That you must do the little things
That daily come your way.

"Oh dear!" sighed Little Jack Rabbit, "I'm tired of polishing this doorknob. Every day and in every way, I wish it would drop off."

"Goodness me!" exclaimed Grandmother Magpie, who just then happened along. "You are a disagreeable bunny boy this morning," and then the old lady magpie looked at him out of her little black eyes as much as to say: "I wish I had that bunny boy to bring up. I'd make him toe the mark."

And perhaps the world and perhaps she wouldn't. Some people bring up other people's children over so nice—I mean, they [illegible] they could. Isn't that strange.

"What are you saying to my little bunny boy?" asked Lady Love, putting her head out of the kitchen window and scowling at Old Grandmother Magpie.

"Oh, nothing much," answered that meddlesome old lady bird.

"Well, you'd better not," said Lady Love. "It's all you can do to gossip about grown-up people's affairs," and the little lady rabbit shook her dusting rag up and down and maybe sideways, and shut the window. So Grandmother Magpie flew away without another word.

"I'm glad she's gone," said the little rabbit to himself, and just then Bobby Redvest began to sing:

"Every day a little work,
Every day a song,
Every day a kindly word
Help us all along."

And after that he flew down to pick up a crumb.

"Good morning, Little Jack Rabbit," he said, "don't forget to feed the canary."

"Gracious me!" said the little rabbit, "I almost forgot," and wouldn't it have been dreadful if he had, for little Miss Canary couldn't get out of her gold cage to look for worms like all the wild birds can, you know.

When Little Jack Rabbit had finished all his work, he hopped out to the Sunny Meadow where Mr. Merry Sun was asking the buttercups to grow more yellow every day and in the next story you shall hear what Timmie Meadowmouse said to the little rabbit.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

President Harding felt called upon to devote his New York address to the world court because of the efforts which had been made to misrepresent his attitude in regard thereto, and his views concerning the league of nations. He took up the different phases of the matter and clearly set forth his position and gave the reasons for it.

Whatever talk there may have been or may be about the entrance into the court of international justice being the first step on the league of nations is clearly set such a view at rest by the fact that the administration does not propose to enter the league by "the side door, the back door or the cellar door."

Justification for the advocacy of adherence to the international court was based upon republican party declarations for the past two decades, which present the belief that international disputes should be dealt with by a world court.

At the same time, the president has made it clear that he doesn't hold this question above all others, and he doesn't hold it to be a menace to party unity and this despite the fact that there have been those who have been doing their best to create that impression.

President Harding showed by his speech that he had not been moved from his position by the efforts which have been brought to bear upon him. He is fully convinced that he has taken a justified position and his purpose during the address was to remove any wrong impressions that had been gained concerning his attitude and the reasons for it. He stands for what has long been advocated and what he gives assurance, doesn't mean becoming involved in any foreign entanglements.

THE GASOLINE TAX.

Out in Michigan the legislature was impressed with the merits of the bill placing a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline in that state as well as in others there has been recognition of the need of levying such a tax for highway work. The care and maintenance of public highways was to be the object of the revenue in that state. Unfortunately the impression seemed to prevail that all users of gasoline were users of the highway. Such of course is not the case. There are those who use it for motor boats, for tractors, for engines of various sizes and used for various other purposes. There are thus many uses for it besides operating automobiles, even though the bulk of it is used for that purpose.

Because of the fact that more than automobile owners would be taxed under the Michigan law for purposes of repairing the roads the governor of that state vetoed the bill and gave that as his reason. He was considerate of the injustice that was being done to the small number of gasoline users who are not highway users. In taking such a view he was of course thoroughly justified for there is no excuse for placing a tax upon gasoline users when they are not highway users. Steps have been taken at the present session of the general assembly to overcome a similar situation in this state by exemption such consumers of gasoline from that tax.

Michigan might easily have applied a similar remedy in that state that would have covered the objection raised by the governor, or it might have provided that the gasoline tax collected from such individuals would be turned into the state treasury for general expenses. The former would have been more reasonable than the latter since any tax on gasoline is levied solely for the purpose of dealing with the problem of maintaining the highways, and gasoline is the commodity because the number of automobiles is small [illegible] depend upon such fuel for motive power. And in the interest of good roads it is a tax that [illegible] sum from those concerned without [illegible] idea.

INTERCHANGEABLE MILEAGE.

There are railroads where mileage books have been obtainable and there are those where they have not. In going from one road to another it was necessary to have a mileage book of each road if mileage advantages were to be obtained.

By the action of congress the interstate commerce commission was directed to have the railroads issue interchangeable mileage books, so that those traveling long distances and over several railroads might use the same mileage from the time he left until he reached his destination. It provides that the rate should be just and reasonable.

When the commission put the law into effect it established a lower rate on the mileage, so that those traveling for a long distance got their transportation at a lower rate than others. They were put in a class by themselves, and it was in protest against such favoritism, such lower rates and such loss of needed revenue that the 50 eastern railroads protested and appealed to the United States district court for an injunction preventing the putting into effect of such a change. The justice of such a petition has been recognized by the court and a permanent injunction issued which must stand unless it is upset through an appeal to the United States supreme court.

Whether the interstate commerce commission acted under the belief that it had been ordered by congress to reduce the rate, or used its own judgment in making such a favorable rate for travel to the few the claim is made that it is unfair to other travelers as well as unfair to the roads.

The idea of mileage books, or the provision for the interchangeable feature are not being opposed. The objection arises over the rate which the commission has fixed, which seems to be not the order of congress though the commission might have acted under the impression that it was the wish of that body. If it was in accord with what it considered to be the desire of congress it is maintained that it was unfair to the roads. The injunction governs the situation until upset.

THE ACADEMY PROPOSITION.

The people of Norwich should carefully bear in mind the importance of the town meeting called for Friday night to hear and act upon the report of the town school board relative to the high school situation.

The school board has been very thorough in its efforts to get at all the facts bearing upon the situation. It has made a careful study of the question from several angles. It has not relied upon its own views but has obtained the views of a large body of councilors.

As the result of its study, statistics bearing upon high schools throughout the state and a comparison of the proposition made by the Academy trustees with the expenditure that would be required to establish a new and separate high school, it is the recommendation of the board that the town approve the Academy plan, whereby the trustees would provide the necessary addition and the town would pay such additional tuition as is required, but not to exceed $100 a pupil.

By this plan Norwich will continue to get the benefit of the excellent educational plant at the Academy and not improbably a better as well as a bigger school. The arrangement is one which has made a widespread appeal from the start. There are good reasons for believing that it will be readily approved but it is of such importance that it should not be neglected.

The school board has recommended wisely and its plan should be endorsed tomorrow night.

FLOWERS FOR SICK AND POOR.

While it cannot be expected that there will be any commuters at this distance from the metropolis, it is nevertheless a praiseworthy effort that is being made by the United Neighborhood Houses of New York when it appeals to commuters to bring to its booths, maintained at the Grand Central and Pennsylvania station, flowers from their gardens.

These flowers are not for sale but for distribution during the summer months to the sick and poor in the tenement districts of New York city. Such flowers would go to those who love them but who know little about them and who are seldom cheered by having them at their bedside or in their homes.

That those who work in New York or go there daily will cooperate in this effort seems promising. Not all commuters have flower gardens, and not all will be impressed by the idea, but many there are who have longed for the opportunity to put their surplus flowers to some good use, and certainly with others ready and willing to do the distributing amongst those who would be benefitted by them there should be a desire to provide the necessary cooperation.

Flowers from the garden the first of May when this work is to be started may be difficult to obtain, but surely as the season progresses a large number out of the many thousands who gather in New York city daily like bees in a hive will gain as much pleasure in providing the flowers as do those who distribute and receive them. The object is an excellent one for flowers mean much more to the tenement districts of a large city than they do, perhaps, to those who are more familiar with them.

PAINFUL PROBLEM

"Ho hum!" yawned the indolent man who lived across the hall. "Well, folks, I suppose I've got to go home—how I dread the trip!"

"That reminds me," said the man who was a pest because of his terrific fund of information. "I've just discovered one more of the trials of the rich and mighty—I read the other day that an English duke lives in a castle so big that if he is in his study adding up the month's bills or disinheriting a son of grasping 'What! Cedric! The papers cannot be missing!" and decides it is bedtime, he has to walk exactly a quarter of a mile before he reaches his bedroom! What do ou think of that for a journey to bye-bye?"

"I think you fail to grasp its possibilities!" remonstrated the youth with the snub nose. "He could have way stations, you know, to break the monotony. After he had sauntered a while, twirling his cane and smoking a last cigar, he could drop in at the walnut bedroom, sacred to the family ghost. Blue lights, ale and cheese, weird music from behind the arras. Slightly amused, he could leave a top for the ghost and be on his way. As he reaches the lower chamber from which Lady Ermentrude in 1445 cast her delicate body into the moat he could pause for a dish of ice cream and a few sad memories. Then—"

"He could carry a flashlight and study some foreign language each night," rudely interrupted the intellectual girl, who thought the snub-nosed youth too silly for anything. He would be quite undisturbed and quiet!

"Much you know about English castles!" scoffed the pestiferous man. "His lordship would get lost!"

"Now,' says the duke to himself as he gingerly treads the dim passageway, yawning his head off, 'how about it? If I take this turn on the right hand, does it lead me straight to the servants' wing or will I find myself in the boudoir of my great aunt? Seems to me if I take the one to the left it splits up in three and blamed if I can remember which of the three leads on! One of them drops off into the family dungeon, I remember, and I believe another leads down under the chapel and out through the tunnel under the rhododendrons that they used in Prince Charlie's time.

"'If I land in either place it will be hours and hours before I can find my way back and reach my bedroom, and darn it all, I'm just dead for sleep! Well, here goes!'

"So he takes one turn and bless me, he finds after walking ten minutes that he has emerged beneath the second laundry tub which is three-quarters of a mile around a curve from the spot where he wants to go. Trying to retrace his footsteps he swings to the left thinking to take a short cut, and the first thing he knows he is right back in his study, from which he originally started.

"Then he has an inspiration and reaches up on his bookshelf for a map of the castle, only to find that the map with the recent additions built in 1700 is not there but down in the library. All that this map shows is the original keep and that is even beyond his bedroom. By this time it is getting on toward daylight so the poor duke rolls up in a rug and sleeps on the floor and the next day he has pneumonia and dies before they can finish the journey to his distant bed, the bed which has eluded him so successfully. I tell you it is enough to make a man think twice before taking on this duke business!"

"He could unroll a ball of string," brightly suggested the indolent man. "One end in his bedroom, the other in his study and then there would be no trouble whatever—"

"No, the housekeeper would find it," the intellectual girl reproved him. "Why doesn't he have his bedroom moved next his study?"

"Oh, the room next the study," explained the youth with the snub nose, "belonged to the sixth wife of the fifth duke and he had it left just as it was and of course nobody to this day will touch it or change it. The duke's best bet is to step from his study window into an airplane and get a comprehensive view of the castle, then head for the landing platform beneath his bedroom window. It would be lots quicker than walking! I'm going to write and tell him about it—"

"Good-by," said the indolent man, heading toward the door, with another yawn. "What that duke fellow ought to do is to wreck the entire building between his study and bedroom and then cover the space in two jumps as I'm going to do! Perfectly simple!"—Exchange.

Wives of Famous Men

Ealswith, Wife of Alfred the Great.

Living in an age when women were regarded as something rather less than household goods it is remarkable that any record of Ealswith, wife of Alfred the Great of England, remains for us to read. The fact that history mentions this woman at all is significant that she was possessed of an unusually strong individuality.

Ealswith was a Mercian maiden of royal blood, and her betrothal to Alfred, which occured in anunusual way, united the houses of Mercia and Wessex. Alfred's counsellors thought that it was time for him to wed, but the young king was not interested in women, and accepted someone's suggestion to give an archery contest and wed the girl who should prove the most apt at that sport. Ealswith entered the contest and, to everyone's satisfaction, won the contest.

Beyond this, little is known about the wife of one of England's greatest kings. However, we have no reason to believe that the couple, so peculiarly brought together, were anything but happy. Her parentage would lead us to believe that Ealswith was quite fitted to be the wife of a king. Her father was a nobleman, and her mother is spoken of as a pattern of virtuous womanhood. If we find nothing favorable written about Ealswith, surely we find nothing unfavorable.

The continuous wars of those days took Alfred away from the court for months at a time, but when a lull allowed him time to remain with his family for a while, he enjoyed being with his wife away from the strife and struggle of war and state troubles.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

General Joseph Haller, who is coming to America at the invitation of American Poles, is the idol of the Polish army and of a large element of the Polish people. In the early period of the great war he directed the recruiting of Polish soldiers in England and afterward was in command in France of the Polish volunteers from America and Great Britain. He led the Polish armies on the northern front when the invasion of the Russian reds was repulsed in 1920. During a considerable period of the war he was with the Iron Brigade of Poles who fought the Germans after the Brest-Litovsky treaty, and although a part of his troops succumbed to the overwhelming masses of Von Echhorn succeeded in extricating the remainder and taking them to the Murman coast, despite countless obstacles and the systematic opposition of the Bolsheviki.

Stories That Recall Others

Why the Druggist Lost His Temper.

When Mrs. X. walked into the drug store with a quarter clenched tightly in her hand and a desire to buy some "white pills" she did so in perfect sincerity. She found, however, that there were 2100 varieties of "white pills."

This, however, did not discourage her, but merely goaded her to greater action, for she went home and after much searching found the cork of the bottle which had contained the "white pills." The next day she went back to the store, taking with her the cork as a positive means of identification.

Scale Made Second Trip.

During a court recess a number of court attaches, lawyers and witnesses gathered for a smoke and a chat. One of them, a stranger in town, had attention focused on him and naturally enough conversation veered to the subject of his avoirdupois. Guessing as to his weight ranged from 200 to 240 pounds and a friendly argument ensued. Finally they asked him to adjourn to a nearby scale and be weighed.

As they approached the scale the stranger, who had been non committal regarding his weight during the argument, glanced at it and made his first remark:

"That scale won't weigh me," he said. "It only registers 275 pounds."

"When I stepped on the scale," he said later in telling the story, "the indicator went all the way around and then started on a second trip. I weigh 283 pounds."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Possibilities of Laurel Hill.

Mr. Editor: What is the best thing to do with the streets and trees of Laurel Hill is a question that should be considered, most carefully by our citizens before any drastic action is taken.

Probably every thinking citizen would agree to the statement that something should be done to improve conditions that now exist in that part of our city where the possibilities for improvement are apparent to all who have considered the matter with any degree of intelligence.

While one of the absolute necessities for the success of any city is that there shall be well arranged and adequately conducted business houses and manufacturing concerns, attractive and adequate residence sections are equally necessary, for if environment for the home life is below par, no matter how up to date the stores and factories are, the people will not enjoy that degree of happiness to which they are justly entitled.

Laurel Hill is pre-eminently a residential section of Norwich, and should always be kept sacred for that purpose; therefore, whatever is calculated to enhance the value of that locality for a place of residence should be done. More than most people think, beautiful shade trees are a very large factor in making what we all think of, when we say, "Home sweet home," therefore to take away this attractive feature of a residential section, is little less than cruel. If this is done, the locality becomes cold, bleak and unattractive in winter, and dull and uncomfortable in the summer months, when the people need the cooling shade of the beautiful trees that abound on Laurel Hill.

Then, too, we must all agree that "first impressions" are lasting, and the possibilities of a well nigh perfect approach to the city by the way of Laurel Hill is too self evident to need argument.

Because of the comparatively limited travel to Laurel Hill on the street cars, it would be a wise move to do away with the trolley cars and tracks, and put the road in first class up to date condition, sparing the shade trees that beautify either side of the street, and for all of the residents of this section who need public transportation, a comfortable auto bus could be run with profit and at the same time give pleasure to those who cared to patronize it. By all means, let us retain the present beauty of Laurel Hill, for a residential locality and let us also develop its possibilities that are there, and in due time we shall be proud to point to that section of our commonwealth as one of the most atractive tha tany city contains, and visitors who chance to visit our city will be most favorably impressed, and Norwich will be worthy indeed of her title, The Rose of New England.

Yours for Laurel Hill avenue.

Recalled by Tibbetts Case.

Mr. Editor: The "Tibbetts" case brings to mind the sudden and mysterious disappearance a few years ago of Hudson P. Lennworth, former principal of Riverside grammar school, Jewett City. The writer was familiar with the once peculiar circumstances leading up to this mystery. Mr. Lennworth was not admitted to the house the previous night, evidence showing that he spent the night in the school building. He did not attend to his duties that day. Towards evening he came home, but soon was seen going towards the depot carrying a suitcase. Mr. Lennworth has not been seen or heard from since. A very peculiar incident in connection with the case is that the matter of investigation was never taken up by the authorities.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Kenya Colony.

Kenya Colony, in Africa, which is none other than erstwhile British East Africa, appears in London dispatches because immigrants from India who settled there wish to retain their full British citizenship rights in their new homeland.

"Though seldom heard from, Kenya is one of the most fascinating regions of the globe, geographically speaking," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"At its southeast corner is Lake Victoria, second largest fresh-water lake in the world. Along its shores dwell a people whose nudity is a symbol of their modesty, and whose men are as beautifully formed specimens of their sex as are the Marquesas women of theirs.

"Just across Kenya's southern border is Kilimanjaro, highest mountain in Africa, and near its center is Kenya peak, also volcanic, which overtops Mount Whitney by some 2,000 feet.

"Cutting across the colony is the famous Rift valley, here from 20 to 40 miles wide, and generally several thousand feet below the plateau's general level.

"However, it is as a zoo and a luxuriant botanical garden that Kenya makes its chief appeal to the nature-loving visitor. Perhaps its most amazing single spectacle is the flamingo colony on the northern shores of Lake Hannington. The banks are dazzling white with the birds' guano, their nests are mounds of mud spread like mole-hills on a flat plain.

"The adult bird has a rose-pink neck and body, the beak is purple and scarlet, the wing feathers are crimson. For a mile or so before one reaches their haunt he can hear these birds—the splash and the swish of a million or so becomes tumultuous as he approaches.

"Hippopotami swim the shallow waters of this bay, antelope and gnu, infest its shores. Its port, Kisuma, is the terminus of the Uganda steamship line, which lands rubber, ivory and hides here for railway shipment to the coast.

"From the time one sees a belle of Mombasa, fully clad, with circles painted on her cheeks, and her hands dyed purple, until he reaches the shores of Victoria, where dwell the Apollo-like Kavirondo men, he is amazed by the variety of human tribes Travel there, says one enthusiast, is 'like walking through miles of living statuary.'

"Though unclothed the Kavirondos are much bedecked, every circumference the human form affords, from chest and stomach to ankle and writs, is wire-wrapped. The women add one other decoration, a tail-like tuft suspended from their waistline in the rear.

"The fierce Masai tribesmen go in for wire jewelry, too, but their specialty is the earring. Soon after a child is born its ear is pierced with a sliver and the aperture is enlarged from year to year until a huge disc may be inserted therein.

"The Masai tribesmen have less pleasant customs. They place their dead outside their settlements for the hyenas to devour, hence that animal is sacred. They bleed cattle to drink hot blood; they kill game with poisoned arrows; they drug their dogs before the chase to make them more ferocious.

"Sparse population of a region where the altitude offsets the equatorial heat and the fertility invites farming is due largely to these warrior Masai whose former livelihood was gained principally by raids on their neighbors. Many of them have settled down to tilling the soil.

"Another native tribe, the Andorabos, formerly lived largely upon the flesh of the colombus monkey. The skin has a market value because of its silky black and white hair and the tail with an immense bushy plume at the end. They, too, turned to the soil as the British imposed restrictions on monkey killing to save the animals from extinction.

"Kenya has a native population of about 4,000,000 entirely negligible so far as the present political problem is concerned. The issue is between about 5,000 Europeans and six times that many Asiatics, Arabs and Indians. The claim of the latter to British citizenship necessarily raises a question about the interests of the European colonists who have been pioneers in developing the country's resources."

He knows not the value of flowers who never botany.

WOMAN'S HEALTH RESTORED

She Claims Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did It After Everything Else Failed

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I feel that I ought to let you know about my case. I was ailing and could barely do my housework and washing I was so run-down, just from having one child. I took a lot of medicines and had doctors. Then I gave them all up and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel wonderfully good now. I do every thing that comes along, and we all take your medicine as a tonic when we don't feel just so. I am thankful for what the Vegetable Compound has done for my health and for my family."—Mrs. MARY SAISCHECK, 944 28th St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Letters like these testify to the value of the Vegetable Compound. These women speak from the fullness of their hearts. They describe as correctly as they can their conditions: First, those symptoms that affected them most conspicuously; and later the disappearance of those symptoms. They are sincere expressions of gratitude. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

DIPHTHERIA FATALITY ON DISEASE IN THIS STATE

Diphtheria toxin-antitoxin will protect anyone for years against infection by diphtheria, says the weekly report of the state department of health. Persons so treated should be tested by the Schick Test to be sure they have been immunized.

It is with uneasiness that we view the increase in the percentage of diphtheria cases in the state that are terminating fatally. In 1921, only 5.2 per cent. of the 3,361 cases of diphtheria were fatal. In 1922, the per cent. of fatal cases increased to 6.3 per cent.

During the past six months, 7.9 per cent. of diphtheria cases in the state have died, compared with 5.2 per cent. for the corresponding period a year ago. If only 5.2 per cent. died during the 1922-23 period, there would have been only 98 deaths instead of the 141 actually occurred. This increase in fatality may be due to an increase in the strength or virulence of the diphtheria germ, but it is felt that, if true, this cause can be successfully coped with by increased watchfulness by parents to call a physician earlier in the course of sore throats, and by spreading the knowledge we have about this increase in diphtheria fatality.

We feel sure that the deaths would not have occurred if: 1—Physicians were called early in the cases of sore throats. 2—If suspected diphtheria cases had been given diphtheria antitoxin immediately, before a report from the laboratory was received. 3—If diphtheria antitoxin had been given in large amounts. 4—If diphtheria antitoxin had been given intravenously (warmed to body temperature) in serious cases.

Parents should know that their children can be protected against diphtheria by having their physician give toxin-antitoxin, which will immunize the child and prevent him from having diphtheria for at least a period of eight years and probably for life. The child can be tested to determine if he can "catch" diphtheria and must be tested after receiving the toxin-antitoxin to be sure he is completely protected. In a small number of cases it is necessary to give a second treatment of toxin-antitoxin.

WILL REPLACE TREES ON LAUREL HILL AVENUE

Mayor Milo R. Waters announced Wednesday that the city had made plans to replace some of the trees that are to be cut down when the new cement road is laid on Laurel Hill avenue. The plan of the city is to place new trees in the park, inside the sidewalk line where the roots cannot spread and break up the cement on the road.

Mayor Waters also stated that owners of property in front of which the trees are to be cut down may secure free trees from the city to replace the old ones, the new trees to be planted on private lawns.

The committee in charge of constructing the new street does not intend to cut down every tree, only doing so whenever it is necessary, and whenever a chance presents itself new trees will replace the old ones, in places where they can do no damage.

WEDDING.
Bauer—Wiese.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Wiese of 54 Yerrington avenue when their daughter, Hannah Tynan Wiese, was united in marriage with Ralph Bauer of 106 School street, by Fev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church.

The bride was attended by Miss Elizabeth Bauer, sister of the groom, and Miss Bertha Wiese, a sister, as bridesmaids, the best man being Hugh J. MacDonald. The little flower girls were Mildred Murray and Gertrude Eckstein.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white canton crepe with veil caught up with lilies of the valley. Her shower bouquet was of white carnations. The bridesmaids were gowned in white organdie and carried shower bouquets of pink carnations. The flower girls were gowned in pink organdie and carried sweet peas.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride and a buffet luncheon served to about 75 guests, many of whom came from out of town. The bride received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silverware, linen and china and household articles.

The groom is the son of Christian J. and Madeline Kirily Bauer and was born in Brooklyn. He is employed as a gas engineer. The bride was born in Middletown, but has made her home in Norwich for many years. The couple have a wide circle of friends who wish them joy in their married life.

PAYS $50 FINE BEFORE JUSTICE IN WATERFORD

John Hoelck of Pawcatuck, whose automobile was in collision at Quaker Hill Tuesday night with the car of Dan S. McDonald of Montville, was before Justice of the Peace T. M. Morton at Jodran, Waterford, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the complaint of State Policeman M. R. Starling who charged him with reckless driving.

He was found guilty and fined $50 and costs, paying $74.23.

Examination of Mr. McDonald's Buick touring car Wednesday, which was sideswiped by Hoelck's car, showed that it had been badly damaged in the rear-end and the gears by the shock of the blow, one estimate making the cost of repairs about $400.

Hoelck's own car was badly damaged at the front end by running into a stonewall.

Will Speak at Baptist Church.

Frank P. Campbell of the West End Community, Boston, Mass., is to be the speaker at the Central Baptist church this (Thursday) evening. Mr. Campbell is nationally known as a speaker and is widely sought after, members of the Central Baptist church feeling that they have been fortunate in securing him for this evening.

Mr. Campbell will relate some of his experiences in the work of making the New America, his story at times being amusing but educational and intensively interesting.

Peter Mouhtouriff.

The funeral of Peter Mouhtouriff was held Wednesday morning from the parlors of Hourigan Bros. with relatives and friends in attendance. At 10 o'clock services were held in the Greek church and burial was in Maplewood cemetery where a committal service was read at the grave.

He was born in Greece 20 years ago and came to this country when a boy, and died in this city last Monday after a long illness with lung trouble. He had lived in New Haven.

ROTARY FAREWELL GIFT TO HARRY M. CLARK

With only four absentees the monthly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club was held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Owing to the absence of President Charles A. Saxton because of illness, Vice President Grosvenor Ely presided at the meeting. E. Howard Baker, Jr., was the song leader. The meeting was much enlivened by several quartette selections, selections by visiting Rotarians and guests and a delightful solo by Henry J. LaFontaine.

Just before the business session Harry M. Clark, a charter member of the club, who leaves Norwich early next month to make his home in Albany, N. Y., where he is to be general manager of the Albany district for the General Life Insurance company, was presented a fountain pen as a farewell gift from the club. Arthur M. Brown made the presentation and fittingly expressed the deep feeling of the club at losing so value da member of the club. Mr. Clark in responding said that he regretted that he was forced to withdraw from the club but he could always count his membership in the local club as one of his fond remembrances of his stay in Norwich.

Among the guests at the the meeting was William L. Davies of New London, who is attending the G. A. R. encampment in this city. Mr. Davies who is 81 years old, enlisted in the 18th Conn. Volunteers under Colonel Ely and later served under Colonel Peale. He served for three years, being wounded twice and taken prisoner twice. In his honor the club sang the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

At the business session there were brief reports from the various club communities. An invitation for a joint meeting of the four Rotary clubs in eastern Connecticut, New London, Norwich, Willimantic and Putnam, to be held at the Connecticut Agricultural college some time before July 28th, was read by Secretary Weymouth and accepted.

Upon the suggestion of Dr. R. R. Agnew the club is to take up the matter of installing a telephone service for the Boy Scout camp at Beach Pond. The camp is located several miles from the nearest telephone and there is no real quick means of summoning aid in case of sudden illness. The matter will be brought up at a later meeting.

Myles E. Standish was elected manager of the Rotary baseball team for the coming season and plans are being formulated to have the club represented by a regular first class team. There is also a possibility that a Rotary baseball league will be started among the four clubs in Eastern Connecticut. Sidney Ailing has offered a cup for the winner of the league.

Russell A. Clapp, Jr., chairman of the programme committee announced that the song leaders for the May meetings would be Lucius Briggs, E. LaRue Bliven, F. Russell Smith, Geo. W. Carroll and C. A. Gager. The next meeting will be in charge of Dr. R. R. Agnew, chairman of the boys' work committee. The meeting is in connection with Boys' Loyalty Week. The meeting of May 23rd will be conducted by the following committee: Frank Welch, chairman; Lincoln Crawford, James J. Madden, Frederick S. Crowell and Myles E. Standish.

TROLLEYS WILL GO ON DAYLIGHT SAVING SCHEDULE

Manager Samuel Anderson of the Connecticut company has announced that beginning Sunday, April 30, in accordance with the desires of the public of this vicinity, the company will advance its running schedules to conform with the daylight time on the Norwich lines, New London lines, New London to Willimantic lines, and the Norwich-Central Village line.

As Willimantic is to remain on standard time the last trolley out of Norwich for Willimantic will be at 9.45 p. m. daylight time or 8.45 o'clock standard time, to leave Willimantic for Norwich at 11.25 p. m. daylight time on 10.25 standard time, the last trip down. In the case of Baltic there will be a car from Franklin square at 11.45 p. m. daylight time or 10.45 p. m. standard time.

Those who are setting their watches one hour ahead will find that the trolley continues to operate on the old schedule, but those keeping standard time watches will remember that the trolley schedule is an hour ahead of their time.

The man who has no get-up about himself will never succeed as a balloonist or a bedcarrier.

G. A. R. MEN GIVE RINGING APPLAUSE FOR PASTOR'S WORDS AT CAMPFIR

Many local citizens and visitors from out of town attended the campfire meeting of the Connecticut department of the Grand Army of the Republic held Wednesday evening at the Community house. The program opened with a group of instrumental selections by Tubbs' Military band which were greatly enjoyed by the veterans and their guests. After America had been sung in unison, the invocation was pronounced by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D.

The next number was by the Park Congregational church quartet, composed of Mrs. A. E. Story, Mrs. E. A. Harris, Eben Learned and William A. Lund, who sang How Sleep the Brave, arranged by Major B. F. Learned, a former member of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R.

Welcome from Mayor Waters.

The address of welcome was given by Mayor Milo R. Waters, who said that over 50 years ago the state department in Connecticut was organized with Post No. 1 in this city. These men, said Mayor Waters, have won our deepest regard and the same spirit goes out from the citizens of Norwich to you, their comrades. The thoughts of the old days, the campfires and forced marches are dear to you and we of Norwich sincerely hope that the memory of this campfire in Norwich will be cherished by the members of the department. I welcome you all to Norwich and hope all your wishes and desires have been gratified.

Department Commander Orrin M. Price, speaking for the Grand Army veterans, said that the state department of the Grand Army of the Republic appreciates the spirit shown by the citizens of Norwich in making what will probably be the last campfire of the Grand Army veterans in Norwich a great success. He expressed the appreciation of the veterans for the many courtesies shown them while in this city, for the wearers of the little bronze button feel the same now that they did in '61, when they faced four years of war that these United States might always be one country and have one flag—that, the red, white and blue.

A beautiful organ selection, American Rhapsody, Yon, was then played by Frederick W. Lester, and the quartet of Park Congregational church sang The Lost Chord, by Sullivan.

Campfire Address.

The address of the evening was by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, was one of the most stirring and patriotic addresses the members of the Grand Army of the Republic had ever heard at any of their campfires.

Rev. Mr. Graham prefaced his remarks with references to Riley's poem on the old soldier and to his own boyhood experiences in the patriotic atmosphere of the town from which General Grant went to the war—Galena, Illinois. He made brief reference to the study character which is native to Connecticut.

Where none kneel, save when to heaven they pray,
Nor even then, except in their own way.

He spoke of the solemn pleasure in addressing the Connecticut department on what is probably their last encampment in Norwich. He chose for the topic of his address "Four Factors in the Slavery Struggle."

He said in part:

We have come together with you in this your annual encampment, not to beat the war drums, not to arouse a jingoist patriotism or to espouse a narrow and hurtful nationalism, but to take account of a great moral struggle which tested the mettle of democracy, and gave to the world some of the best lessons in history. The angel of memory can do for you who were actors in that struggle much that some of us most forego but there is a larger service which your presence in Norwich performs for us. It reminds us again of the cost of liberty and the meaning of citizenship.

Because we have just come out of a World war of such colossal proportions we are in danger of losing our sense of proportion. We may forget the pivotal nature of the struggle of '61, its tenseness and its inspirations. William E. Chandler once said that he could imagine no future—say a thousand years hence—which would not pause to record in its standard histories the Civil war in America, with the decisions it recorded, as among the outstanding peaks in all human experience.

It was a titanic struggle. A few months after the firing on Fort Sumter the Southern Confederacy seemed as firmly established as if it had stood for decades. It had more territory than any state in Europe except Russia. It had fertile soil filling the marts of the world with its products. It had hundreds of miles of waterfront where the fleets of the world could anchor with contraband material. It had mountain ranges and impenetrable fastnesses. It had marshes and bayous that could engulf invading armies. It was peopled by brave conquering Anglo-Saxons. It had leaders of ability and confidence. It had munitions of war in abundance. It had millions of devoted and obedient slaves who had supported it in luxury for a hundred years. It had outspoken friends in every cabinet of Europe. Most important of all, it had a great host of friends in every state in the north. It was the most extended, the most thoroughly organized and most ably officered rebellion in history.

In the time allotted to us for this exercise, I propose to review the struggle under four outstanding factors, namely, The Prophets, The President, The Master and The Man.

The Prophets—

Mr. Graham spoke especially of Harriet Beecher Stowe and John, of their contributions of John Brown's misdeeds but of his terrible earnestness.

The President—Lincoln—

It is now 114 years since the great prophet of our democracy, the son of Nancy Hanks, was born. Heaven came near to earth in the Kentucky wilderness in 1809. No star foretold his coming and all about his cradle was poor and mean but into his origin and into his life men since have looked and wondered. He in what he was has become the chosen interpreter of what we mean by democracy. In wisdom great, but in humility greater; in justice strong, but in compassion stronger. He was a leader of men but ever a follower of the truth. He overcame evil in himself and in the nation. His place is larger with the passing years. He is in himself the richest heritage of the century. He left "an open place against the sky" when he passed from the scene.

The Master—Grant.

General Grant was the man nobody wanted. His letter to the secretary of war tendering his services was not answered. He went to Cincinnati and hung about McClellan's headquarters a few days trying repeatedly but in vain for an interview. So he returned to Springfield and took a clerkship in the governor's office, emerging from this task only when an incorrigible regiment went begging for leadership.

He asked Fremont for permission to take Paducah. Fremont replied: "You can if you feel strong enough." He found the telegram after the battle.

He asked Halleck for permission to take Fort Henry. "Don't be too rash" was the reply, but Grant got Fort Henry before he got the telegram. He asked permission to take Fort Donelson and Halleck telegraphed back: "Spades and shovels are on the way." They arrived after the victory.

It has been said that this Man of Mystery overcame more and greater difficulties in the Vicksburg campaign than Hannibal or Napoleon in crossing the Alps and in the accomplishment he exhausted the resources of military science. Chattanooga eclipses in vigor, courage and mental resource and results anything achieved by Napoleon and the wilderness campaign in several of its single days surpasses all the hammering done by Wellington. It is two or three Waterloos heaped together and pounded out by the enormous ability of this silent soldier.

General Grant fought more battles without losing a single field, took more and better soldier prisoners, vanquished more and mightier armies, subjugated more territory and more natural fastnesses and wore out more opposing forces than the half dozen best fighters of all races and of all centuries before his time. And he did this with an eye single to the noblest of purposes—to secure freedom for a race and success for the experiment of free government.

The man—

But the slavery struggle is not explained by its far-visioned leaders however great their genius. While it is true that democracy needs especially gifted and inspired leadership its chief glory and its chief product is its superior manhood in the ranks. Whatever truth there is in the great man theory of history is somewhat neutralized by the rise of the importance of the lowest man wherever enlightenment and democracy hold sway. It was you, the soldiers in the ranks, who marched from Bull Run to Appomattox—threading every beach and landing, wading every river and marsh sinking gunboats and ironclads, taking cities and hamlets, conquering every army, capturing every officer and soldier, utterly annihilating and wiping out the colossal structure on the Southern Confederacy.

Mr. Graham closed his address with the recitation and interpretation of our anti-slavery poem by Paul Lawrence Dunbar the negro poet.

At the close of the campfire one verse of The Star Spangled Banner was sung while all stood at attention and the veterans and their guests were invited to the church room where refreshments were served by the members of Clara Barton Tent, No. 7, D. of V.

$250 Gift From Relief Corps

A surprise of the evening came when Mrs. Bertha Price, Department President of the Womans Relief corps the largest body of patriotic women in the world, an organization that has always been with the Grand Army veterans, presented Commander Price an envelope containing the gift of $4,000 members of the Woman's Relief Corps of Connecticut. Upon opening the envelope Commander Price read the message which, was in the form of the gift of $250 for the G. A. R. state department.

In thanking Mrs. Morse and the Woman's Relief corps for the splendid gift Commander Price said that it was evident that it was worth while for the Grand Army men to stand by the women. This, however, he said, was not the reason that the Grand Army men stayed by the women, it is because for many years this patriotic body of women, the largest in the world, had done all in their power to make every veteran happy, saw that he was provided for, and cared for tenderly if ill. Therefore on behalf of the Connecticut Department Grand Army of the Republic he wished to thank the Woman's Relief corps for the splendid gift.

The local committee in charge of the plans and preparations for the G. A. R. encampment expressed publicly Wednesday night their thanks to the persons and business concerns for donations and services for the success of the encampment and for the entertainment of the visitors. Their grateful expressions were extended towards those who donated automobiles for the sightseeing tour, to the Boy Scouts, Hawkins the Florist for the stage settings, F. W. Lester, George Madden company for cigars, New London-Norwich Sign company, the quartet of Park church, Reid & Hughes for the stage decorations, trustees of the Community house, Tubbs' Military band, United Metal Mfg. Co. for a Norwich souvenir given to each one of the delegates in the shape of an inkstand, as well as all the merchants and persons who displayed the national colors. There was a very fine spirit of hospitality and co-operation manifest on the part of these and others who contributed so much to the success of this affair.

OFFICERS SEE GLASS DUMPED IN RAID

In a raid on a liquor violation warrant early Wednesday evening at the place at 62 Water street of which Anthony Barbetto, 21, is alleged to be the proprietor, a glass of what alleged to be liquor was dumped into some disinfectant just as soon as the police appeared in the doorway.

Later in the evening Barbetto was arrested at his home at 112 Franklin street by Sergeant Matthews, Officers Fenton and P. Murphy. A relative gave bonds of $300 for his appearance in police court.

GRACE CHURCH GIVES TO SACRED HEART CHURCH

Grace Episcopal church at Yantic has contributed $55.55 to Sacred Heart church at Norwich Town towards the latter's fund for rebuilding the church which was burned on Easter Sunday.

The gift was made and was acknowledged by the following letter:

Grace Church.
April 23, 1923.

Rev. C. W. Brennan,
Norwich Town, Conn.

Dear Father Brennan: The members of our parish sympathize with you and your people in the great loss you have recently sustained by the burning of your beautiful church and at a recent meeting of our vestry it was decided to turn over to you our collection taken on Sunday, April 22. It is therefore with great pleasure that I inclose a check for the amount of this collection and we trust that it will be of some use to you. We hope that you will soon be able to again worship in your own church and that your task of advancing God's kingdom on earth will be prospered.

Yours truly,
E. ALLEN BIDWELL.

Norwich Town, Conn.,
April 24, 1923.

Dear Mr. Bidwell: Allow me to thank you and the good people of Grace church for your kindly sympathy and your generous gift of $55.55 to our little church.

It is only a further manifestation of the same good will we admired in your pastor, Rev. Mr. Day, who, in the spirit of a true Christian was one of the first to sympathize with us and offer us the use of his church.

I shall take the liberty to read your letter to our people Sunday that they may know what you have done for us.

I feel sure this kindly deed will be a pledge of unbroken friendship and good will between us.

Sincerely,
REV. C. W. BRENNAN,
Sacred Heart Church, Norwich Town.

RETAIL MERCHANTS VOTE FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

The Retail Merchants' bureau voted at a largely attended meeting Wednesday morning to recommend that the Norwich stores, beginning Monday, April 30, conform to the daylight saving schedule as adopted by the larger number of the industries of the town and by the town schools.

The vote was taken after a general discussion of the subject in which it was the consensus of opinion that the business hours of the stores should be such as to serve best the convenience of the public and that the merchants would do that by falling in line in adopting the summer time schedule.

The meeting also recommended that the merchants make a display of the national colors during the G. A. R. encampment now here and co-operate in every way to make the delegates feel that the citizens of Norwich have a warm welcome for them.

Secretary of Ministers' Association.

At the Norwich Ministers' meeting held Monday, Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Trinity M. E. church was appointed secretary to succeed Rev. F. T. Williams of St. Andrew's church, who is leaving town for Willimantic.

Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

A group of young men spent an hour in Bible study Wednesday evening at the Y, taking for the subject, "Sympathy or Indifference, Which?" The scripture used was John 9:1-35, the story of Jesus healing the blind man. The following points were developed in the study: We know nothing about the poor beggar except that he was poor and that he was born blind. It is probably true that the people of those days as those of today paid little attention to the poor and unfortunate. The disciples had the attitude toward the blind beggar, that his affliction was a judgement of God because of sin; they felt that it served him right. When they asked Jesus who had sinned, the man or his parents, Jesus at once tried to turn their thought to helping the man, and not to argue about his past or the cause of his affliction. The disciples thought it a good time for a pious argument, while Jesus thought it a good time to lend a helping hand. There are those today who seem to have the desire to follow all the fine points of "red tape" as to the whys and wherefores, while the needy one goes unaided, at least the assistance is needlessly delayed. The sensible thing to do when help is needed is to give it immediately if at all possible. When Jesus said to His disciples that He must work while it was yet day, he meant that we should quickly take advantage of the opportunities before they pass for they pass quickly. The reason Jesus made use of the simple means in the cure was that the poor man might have a ladder on which to climb, and as he went to the pool at the command of Jesus, his faith was strengthened; so with us as we go on to obey our faith grows stronger. We can in many ways to do for others that which will mean as much to them as the help Jesus gave the blind man meant for him.

BILL IS PASSED FOR SILICA RAILWAY CO.
(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, April 25.—A bill passed in the house on the favorable report of the committee on railroads, created the Silica Railway and Transportation Co. of Ledyard. This company is formed for the purpose of taking over from the Norwich and Westerly Traction Co., the spur track leading from the line of that company near Hallville to the Norwich and Worcester railroad at Fort Point and the track from Hallville to Lantern Hill there to connect with the track laid to the silex mine by the Silica Co. This will permit the company to make tide water connection.

The incorporators are Robert W. Perkins of Norwich, Edward M. Day of Hartford and Charles B. Whittlesey of New London. Capital stock is $50,000 in 100 shares, with right to increase to $250,000.

SENDS $25 WITH THANKS TO NORWICH FIREMEN

John P. Corcoran, executor of the estate of John A. Brady, has sent a check for $25 to Chief Howard L. Stanton accompanied by a letter of appreciation of the work done by the department at the recent fire at the American house. The check has been turned over to the city treasurer to go towards the firemen's pension fund, and the gift was greatly appreciated by the department.

The fund is gradually growing and if contributions continue to come in as they have in the past the firemen's pension fund will be large enough to care for the members of the department.

WHIST EVENING GIVEN FOR CHURCH RE-BUILDING

Seventy-five tables of whist were played Tuesday night at A. O. H. hall when the Ladies' Auxiliary, Division No 54, A. O. H., gave a whist for the benefit of the fund to be raised to rebuild Sacred Heart church, at Norwich Town. Among the guests were Revs. Charles W. Brennan and M. H. May and the latter's nephew, Robert May of New London.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Roebuck, pillow; Mrs. Moran, fern; Mrs. Alfred Christman, tray; Mrs. John Shugrue, stockings; Mrs. P. Coughlin, fruit dish; Miss Petrone, candy; Mrs. J. Lyons, cigars; Mrs. Nellie Malone, jar of tobacco; Honor Furlong, silk tie; P. Coughlin, cigars; A. Disco, handkerchief; Mr. Burke, consolation.

The committee in charge comprised Miss Catherine Coughlin, chairman, assisted by Miss Mary Casey, Mrs. Nellie Moore and Miss Anna Connell. The affair was a most enjoyable one and a good sum of money was raised.

Fiery, Itchy Eczema Healed Right Up By Applying Sulphur

Any breaking of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

One lone owl—now gone to a land where he probably can see in daylight — plunged a string of towns along the Quinebaug valley into darkness Tuesday night while he was engaged in his nocturnal plundering.

There were many conjectures as to what had happened to the electric lighting system of Danielson and Central Villages and Moosup and Plainfield and Jewett City Tuesday night when lights went out all along the line. But it was not until nearly midnight that employes of the People's Light and Power company, searching rapidly and diligently for the cause of all the trouble, came upon the solution of the mystery in the woods where the high tension line, carrying 22,000 volts, runs through. Dr. Allen G. Ireland, director of physical education and health of the state department of education, was present at the Killingly and Brooklyn teachers' meeting held on Thursday at 2.30.

Dr. Ireland conducted physical education games, relief drills, and setting up exercises, using pupils of the third and sixth grades of the Danielson school for demonstration purposes. Dr. Ireland then lectured to the teachers explaining the physical education manual which by state regulation has been adopted in the schools.

Supt. Leon M. Farrin gave out miscellaneous announcements and discussed with the teachers plans for closing the schools, such as final examinations, graduation exercises and similar details. Supt. Farrin explained the new state teachers' certification regulation by which a teacher must obtain a state certificate on the basis of three years' experience. There was 100 per cent. attendance at the meeting.

Wilfred L'Heureux was reported Wednesday afternoon as resting quite comfortably, though at that time it was difficult to accurately gauge the extent of the injuries he received when he was struck by an automobile in Main street Tuesday evening and knocked down, his head striking the sidewalk and rendering him unconscious. Eyewitnesses of the accident carried him to the office of Dr. W. H. Judson near by and after a considerable time he was sufficiently revived to allow of removing to his home on Mechanic street in the physician's car.

Alden Martin of Putnam, operating a car owned by his father, August Martin, was the driver of the machine that struck Mr. L'Heureux. The accident happened near the town hall building as Mr. L'Heureux started across the street. It was raining at the time and as Mr. L'Heureux stepped out from the sidewalk he saw a car approaching and in stepping back to avoid it got in the path of the Martin car, was struck on the knee and knocked over, his head striking the sidewalk with a crash. His head bled quite profusely and it was some time before he sufficiently revived in the doctor's office to recognize those who were about him. He is believed to have suffered concussion of the brain and there appeared to be some ground on Wednesday for belief that he may have been internally injured. At 3 o'clock Wednesday morning Mr. L'Heureux's condition was such that a physician was summoned to attend him, but he appeared more comfortable during the day and in the afternoon his condition seemed favorable.

Mr. Martin was greatly distressed over the accident. He was driving very slowly at the time it happened and the machine did not strike Mr. [illegible]

The following is related by Mrs. Bradway:

"Well do I remember as regularly as Sunday came, all the family attended church, my father entering the church by the door reserved for the men, followed by my brothers, all sitting on the side with the men, while my mother entered by a door reserved for the women and the girls, followed by my sister and myself, sitting on the opposite side with the women. The 'tithing' man, too was on the alert, and if any person presumed to walk past the church, he was called to account and had to pay tithes for traveling on Sunday. When my father became too feeble to attend church, the church people would hold meetings at my home for his benefit."

The Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter is looking forward with rare pleasure to visiting and celebrating the 105th birthday of its honored real daughter. Any members who are interested in visiting Mrs. Bradway on her birthday, will please notify Miss Lettie Manning.

The committee in charge of the arrangements are Mrs. S. Nikoloff, Mrs. T. H. De Coudres, Mrs. George Bradley, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. George Sampson.

CONFIDENT HUSBAND'S BODY IS IN ALEXANDER'S LAKE

Putnam, April 25.—Another day of fruitless search for the body of Ben Kershaw was put in at Alexander's lake Wednesday. Dragging of the waters of the lake continued under the direction of Officer Merrill Keith of the state police and a large area of the lake was covered without developing anything that would lead to locating the body. In the meantime much of the territory around the lake has been investigated in the hope of locating Mr. Kershaw, but without avail.

Another bit of evidence to indicate that Mr. Kershaw did go out on the lake along last Sunday was furnished Wednesday by Special Officer Origene Touchette of this city. Officer Touchette knew Mr. Kershaw and while looking out the window of a trolley car running past the lake at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon said that he was scanning the surface of the lake to note whether all the ice had gone from its surface when he observed Mr. Kershaw in what he describes as a boat and about 50 feet from shore at a point on the lake near where the cottage of Harry E. Back once stood. It was near this place that the canoe Mr. Kershaw is supposed to have been out in was found Sunday evening after his disappearance had been discovered.

Mrs. Kershaw is confident that her husband's body is in the lake and that eventually it will be recovered from the body of water.

PACKARD

You have often observed how easily a Single-Six masters a difficult traffic situation.

It responds instantly to a touch of the accelerator. Its get-away is so prompt that jams can readily be avoided.

This is a happy faculty that adds zest to motoring—even on city streets. Moreover, this alertness, combined with the Packard ease of control, is an important factor of safety.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale of North Main Street Block.

Through the agency of William F. Hill, James Graham has sold his 12 tenement brick block, located at 173-183 North Main street, to Jos. Lukaszewics and Antoni Marcinkiewicz. This large block has been known for many years as the Dupuis block. The new owners intend to renovate and improve all these tenements as well as the outside of the block and keep same as an investment.

Whale Auto Makes Novel Advertising

A whale is ashore and today was being carted about the streets by automobile. Many folks were inclined to think that a new fish market had opened up and was making a specialty of whale meat, but it was merely an advertising stunt of Elmer Clifton whose picture, Down to the Sea in Ships, is the attraction at the Breed theatre.

The whale is of papier mache and is about one-eighth the size of a whale which was actually photographed while knocking a boat out of the water in southern seas during the filming of this notable production.

Clergymans Son Has Role in Film.

Thomas White, the four-year-old son of the Rev. Dr. White, Episcopal clergyman of St. Louis, Mo., where the little chap first saw the light of day, is one of the real actors in Elmer Cliftons screen production of "Down to the Sea in Ships," which will be shown at the Breed theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

Shortly after his birth, little Thomas' parents moved to New Bedford, Mass., where the father is one of the leading clergymen of the famous whaling town. The handsome boy was chosen by Mr. Clifton to enact the role of Thomas Allen Dexter, afterwards played as a grownup by Raymond McKee. Aside from his good looks the boy is an exceptionally talented youngster, and a real playmate of little Elizabeth Foley.

There is an unusually effective scene between the two youngsters, in which Elizabeth, by means of a string attached to Tommy's tooth, extracts the bicuspid by means of a healthy jerk, which not only sets her youthful playmate to genuine tears, but also moves her to weep at his misery. The extracted tooth was really loose and there was no "faking" of the scene in the picture.

Reginald Denny, in The New Leather Pushers, and Movie Chats make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theatre

The program of B. F. Keith vaudeville arranged for the last half of this week follows:

The feature attraction is the Harmony Four, a quartette who not only have splendid voices but are comedians.

Walter Gilbert is a contortionist who entertains with songs and stories.

Charles and Marie Marlswith offer a comedy act.

Hodge and Lowell offer an excellent comedy skit called "Object Matrimony."

Wilbur and Lyke close the bill with song sayings and bouncing.

The two greatest thrills known to man have been clearly combined to make "The Kentucky Derby," the film now at the Broadway theatre, a good evening's entertainment. They are the terror of a sudden ship-wreck, and the excitement of a closely contested horse-race.

"The Kentucky Derby," was adapted from that famous stage melodrama, "The Suburban." In order to give it correct atmosphere, Universal sent an entire production company to Kentucky, where racing and stock farm scenes, including the celebrated Kentucky Derby won by Morvich, were filmed at Lexington and Louisville.

Pola Negri Superb in "Bella Donna"

Superbly portrayed and massively produced, "Bella Donna," Pola Negri's first American made Paramount picture, "Bella Donna," was rapturously greeted by capacity audiences at the Strand theatre yesterday. "Bella Donna" is a tremendous story as all who read Robert Hichens' great novel, are aware, and in the portrayal of the title role, Pola Negri proves herself perhaps the greatest dramatic and emotional actress on the screen.

In this picture for the first time, Miss Negri is directed by an American producer, George Fitzmaurice, photographed for the first time by American photographic methods and supported by two stellar leading men—Conway Tearle and Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson, a popular Paramount leading woman. It is a production long to be remembered by the picture-going public, and those who miss seeing it will be deprived of rare entertainment.

Buster Keaton in The Electric House and a news completed the program.

Remember, limited engagement only for this master production. Be sure and see it before it leaves Norwich.

PAWCATUCK MAN DRAWS $50 FINE FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 25.—John Holeck, of Pawcatuck and employed as a baker in Westerly, was arraigned in the town court in Waterford, this afternoon, charged with operating his automobile last night in a reckless manner. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50. That Holeck was not prosecuted for operating his car while under the influence of liquor was due only to the fact that the state or local authorities did not have Holeck examined by a physician to determine this fact.

Holeck and Timothy Grundy, the latter also a resident of Pawcatuck and who was in the Holeck machine, were en route from Norwich to New London. When the car was at a point a short distance north of the curve at the top of Quaker Hill, it collided with a car owned and operated by Donald McDonald of Montville and which was bound from New London to Montville. Both cars were extensively damaged, particularly that of Holeck, which leaped across the highway after striking McDonald's car and crashed against a stone wall.

Harry Grundy, alias Harry Nelson, who is serving a sentence in the jail at Pittsburgh, Pa., and who is wanted here for theft, will shortly have concluded his sentence and it is planned to bring the man back here for trial.

On Aug. 16, 1922, Grundy went to the jewelry store of N. M. Busby on State street and desired to be showed diamond rings. Grundy examined several of the stones taking much time in doing so. He watched his opportunity and when the clerk that waited on him was taken away for a brief time to another part of the store to transact some business, Grundy managed to secret one of the diamonds in his pocket.

When the clerk returned, Grundy made an excuse for not making a selection at that time and departed. A few minutes after Grundy had left the store the discovery of the theft of the diamond was made and the police notified. No trace of the man was obtained until he was arrested in Pittsburgh, but as the local authorities were compelled to await Grundy serving his sentence there, they were powerless to act. A warrant for Grundy's arrest was forwarded to the Pittsburgh police this afternoon and it will be served on him upon the completion of his sentence, at which time an officer will be sent to Pittsburgh with the necessary papers to bring him to New London for trial.

The city management is preparing to oil Montauk avenue, the most travelled highway in the city. The oil will be covered with sand as soon as it is placed on the road. The turbine is alongside the highway on Denison avenue and walks will be laid there in the near future. Burrow street, close by, is to be regraded and have sidewalks as soon as the work can be done. So the Fifth ward is getting its share of attention.

The annual New London County Y. M. C. A. convention is to be held in this city on the evening of the 7th of May. Albert E. Roberts is to deliver the principal address and the work for the coming year will be outlined. It is expected there will be a large attendance.

Two weeks ago the garage used by the occupants of the Gilbert apartments, No. 36 Nathan Hale street, and located in the rear of fashionable place, was broken into and a sport model Buick automobile, owned by Commander L. E. Deerfield, stationed at the submarine base, stolen. All efforts by the police to locate the machine or apprehend the thief since have proved unsuccessful. During the early hours of this morning another attempt was made to steal a machine from the garage.

A woman occupant of the apartment being indisposed is sitting at a window when she observed three men enter the yard and go to the garage, where they tampered with the door. Believing that one of the men was Ensign H. A. Gauthier, attached to the base, the woman raised the window to speak to him and it was then that she realized that the three men were intruders. The woman communicated her information to Ensign Gauthier this morning but Gauthier did not impart it to the police until late this afternoon. As Gauthier's machine was the only car in the garage at the time it is believed the crooks were seeking the theft of his machine. Whether the trio were those that stole Lieutenant Deerfield's car is not known, but it is believed they were the gang or a part of it.

Patrolman William Manice is confined to his home on Starr street as a result of a severe attack of indigestion.

Youths have been of great annoyance to contractors the past few weeks, especially those contractors who are engaged in building operations. Numerous complaints have been received by the police of the theft of building materials and as a result of these complaints this afternoon Patrolman James McKenna took into custody several youths residing in the vicinity of Williams and Main street, charged with the theft of lumber and shingles from the partially constructed building at No. 372 Williams street. As the offenders are minors they will be given a hearing in the juvenile court within a few days.

J. A. St. Germain, who has the contract for the erection of the new Stanton school, corner of Federal and Union streets, is another contractor to suffer from the mischievousness of the youths. St. Germain lodged complaint with the police this afternoon that a tool house on the school premises is being constantly entered by force.

Elsie Beckwith of Broad street, who has registered frequent complaints against the city and to the police complained today that she had broken a spot in front of her home on Broad street.

It is not generally known, probably because of the few copies printed, that anyone desiring a copy of the city charter and ordinances can obtain same by applying at the office of the city clerk. These books are free and only charters are supplied taxpayers and voters and less than fifty of them are left for distribution.

The county and police authorities have been able to locate Albert W. Tyler, the negro who escaped from jail last Saturday, where he was serving a six months' sentence for assault upon a Chinaman. Every avenue of escape from the city has been watched and the surrounding territory combed by county officers, but not the slightest trace of the fugitive has been found.

Elizabeth Dickson Bailey, wife of Ernest A. Bailey of New London, has instituted a suit for divorce and also seeks alimony. Papers in the action were served upon the defendant this week and property of his to the value of $40,000, it is claimed, is involved. The case is returnable before the May term of the superior court. Mrs. Bailey alleges as a basis for her action as adultery.

Bailey had not been at New London for some years until about three years ago, when he returned and since occupied quarters with the family of his mother, Isabelle A. Bailey, defendant in the action being named co-respondent, although there was another, a Frank, but he has not been located in twenty-five years or more.

Harold Bunnerson of Point Comfort and Mrs. Charles A. Pinney have resumed his studies at Harvard, after having spent several weeks with his parents on Howard street.

The state pier is seeking to obtain employment of laborers for the purpose of unloading coal there when miscellaneous cargo. But only one has applied for positions. While there is plenty of work there for several stockmen are not anxious to take because of the low wages and the subsequent loss from Bulk Rate. High school boys have enlisted to perform the heavy work.

The pier allowance is 21 cents a hour and with workmen here receiving only the rate of pay for the same kind of work at the New Yorks, being anywhere from 65 to 71 cents, jobs go begging for want of takers. Steamers are expected to arrive at the pier for some time yet and it is believed that no little amount of trouble will be experienced by the pier officials in obtaining a sufficient number of men and of a calibre physically able to perform the hard work, for much of the cargoes are heavy and more than ordinary bulky.

The Chapman Vocational school has a strong ball team for the opening of the season, the manager being Bolduc. The first game will be played here next Saturday when Plainfield will be the contestant. The league season will open on the 15th of May with the Stonington team as the competitor of the Chapman school team.

The police department in this city is in need of an automobile that will meet requirements, for the patrol auto the department now has is little better than none at all. It has passed its usefulness and is unreliable.

Montauk avenue residents are annoyed by boys during the early evening to an extent that calls are sent into the police station over the telephone at very frequent intervals. The boys are old enough to behave themselves in the street, but they did not seem to have ideas that run in that direction and as a result they make life miserable for the people along the avenue.

Brainard lodge worked the master Mason degree in short form Wednesday evening. The lodge is having a remarkable growth and bids fair to have that happy result continue to the end of the year.

The body of Mrs. Morris Furth, whose death occurred a fortnight ago, and which has since been in the receiving vault at Jordan cemetery, was interred Monday.

The Young Men's Hebrew association, with rooms in the Bacon block on State street and which recently conducted a masquerade, is the victim of a thief for within a few days entrance to their rooms was effected and a quantity of costumes stolen. Joseph Polinsky, a member of the organization, has requested the police to aid him in an endeavor to locate stolen costumes and apprehend the thief.

Mrs. Mary E. Harvey of No. 543 Williams street complained to the police that a bungalow, owned by her and located in the rear of her residence, had been broken into and considerable damage done. The police are investigating the complaint.

The condition of Thomas Foley, of No. 145 Washington street and a resident of Greeneville, in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, who was struck by an automobile driven and operated by Charles Bennett on Boswell avenue, Monday afternoon, while he was [illegible] on the Thames river highway, is somewhat improved at the Backus hospital, it was learned [illegible] Foley, who suffered a fracture of the left leg, a fracture of the right arm, a fracture of the right hip and [illegible] is resting almost easily today.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Day's total sales, 692,300 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 101.36, net gain .38. High 1923, 105.38; low, 96.96.

Twenty railroads averaged 86.76; net gain .09. High 1923, 90.63; low, 84.53.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, April 25.—Prices in today's stock market followed their recent uneven and irregular course with a slightly larger and more diversified turnover. A major of the stocks were moderately higher at the opening, steels particularly responding to the excellent quarterly earnings statement of the U. S. Steel Corporation. Quoted values were shaded somewhat at midday when the selling pressure was most effective, but rallied before the close.

Average prices at the close were somewhat higher than they were at yesterday's close and there was evidence of a good undertone throughout the day, most stocks offered stiff resistance to efforts of bear traders to force prices down. Higher prices for sugar, cotton and coffee undoubtedly had a steadying effect on stock prices.

The steel shares, which showed strength during most of the trading tapered off at the close on profit taking sales but still were above yesterday's closing prices at the end. U. S. Steel common again crossed 103 but failed to maintain the advantage and the final sale was at 105 1-2, where it was up 5-8 on the day. Bethlehem and Republic Steels both closed a point higher.

Profit taking sales also cut down the oils, most of which registered advances in the early trading only to decline on later sales. Pan American, after gaining nearly a point, closed unchanged, while most of the others were off fractionally on the day. American Car advanced a point and American Locomotive was up 3-4. The rails were quiet, Louisville & Nashville, up 1 1-2 points, being the only outstanding strong spot.

There was evident a sustained demand for the food and sugar shares throughout the day, gains of from one to two points being recorded by the Punsodine, American Sugar, Cuban American Sugar, Manati, and [illegible].

The shipping stocks were heavy on report of an dock strike. Marine preferred, Atlantic Gulf, United Fruit and American International declining 1 to 1 3-4 points.

Call money remained unchanged at 4 1-2 per cent. Time money was somewhat easier, being quoted at 5 per cent. bid and 5 1-4 per cent. asked, for the shorter maturities. The commercial paper mark was moderately active, prime names commanding 5 to 5 1-4 per cent, while those less well known were quoted at 5 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling was easier being quoted at $4.62, off 3-4. French francs continued their improvement advancing two points to 6.77 1-2 cents. German marks were firmer advancing two points to .0035 1-2. Cable reports of banking difficulties in Christiania caused a sharp break in Norwegian exchange, crown checks declining 21 points to 17.50 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 25.—There was no tangible heaviness in the dealings in bonds today with the exception of the foreign issues which showed moderate sympathetic on increased demand for the French bonds.

City of Soisson 6's jumped four points at one time and closed up about two points. The demand covered not only the French government issues but those of provincial and municipal governments as well, practically all of which were fractionally higher on the day. Serbian 8's were carried up 1 1-4 points and Czecho-Slovakian 8's also registered a gain of 1 1-4. U. S. government bonds were slightly reactionary, small losses being registered by all of the active issues with the exception of the Victory 4 3-4's which were unchanged.

Heaviness was apparent in both the railroad and industrial groups. New Haven 6's and "Soo" 6 1-2's each declined a point and Donner Steel 7's recorded a similar drop.

Total sales (par value) were $10,463,000.

CHICTGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 25. — Export business totalling more than 1,000,0000 bushels gave a lift today to the price of wheat, and so likewise did talk of direct negotiations between France and Germany. The close was unsettled, 5-8 to 1 1-8c net high with May $1.26 1-8 to $1.26 1-4 and July $1.24 3-8 to $1.14 1-2. Corn finished 5-8 to 1 1-8 up, and oats 1-8 to 1-8@1-4. In provisions the outcome was a setback ranging from 7 to 12c.

Although at first the upward tendency of the wheat market was checked by the fact that Liverpool quotations showed less strength than had been looked for, prices here began soon to climb, signs being manifest the export dealings were of liberal volume In this connetion announcement that Durum wheat at Duluth was commanding the highest price yet reached for the 1922 crop acted as an additional bullish influence. Predictions of unsettled weather likely to cause further delay to seeding in the northwest were also the subject of notice, and there were reports, too, that much winter wheat in Nebraska and Kansas was going backward despite recent rains.

Suggestions that a settlement of issues troubling France and Germany might quickly be brought about were generally construed as bullish in regard to wheat, trading leaning to the view that such a settlement would enable Germany to purchase grain in the United States a good deal more freely than has of late been practicable.

Corn developed independent strength and the July delivery attained a new high record for the season. Virtually no corn was being offered to arrive here. Oats were firmer in sympathy with corn and wheat.

Hogs continuing to arrive in large volume for this time of the year, provision values displayed weakness.

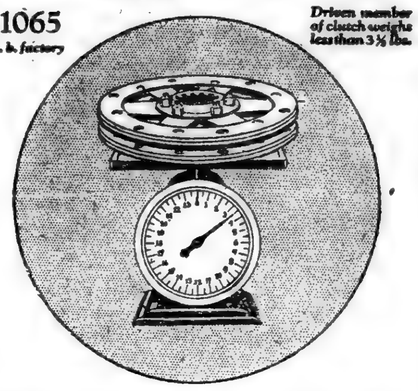
JEWETT SIX
PAIGE BUILT

$1065
f. o. b. factory

Driven member of clutch weighs less than 3½ lbs.



Why Jewett never "stalls," "jerks," nor clashes Gears

YOU can change gears in a Jewett as fast as you can move your hand—or as slowly as you please. No "clash" is heard—and you never "miss." You can even drop from "high" to "second" at 30 miles an hour. Let up the clutch pedal as fast as you can move your foot, and Jewett neither jerks nor kills its motor.

Such superb handling ease comes largely from the new Paige-type Jewett clutch. Its driven member weighs less than 3½ pounds, one-third the usual weight. So it stops spinning instantly—adjusts itself to speed changes quickly—helps you change gears. And the six clutch springs instead of one, and twice the friction surface of the ordinary clutch, give the smooth, gradual engagement which prevents jerking or motor stalling. Please try Jewett's ease yourself.

TAFTVILLE

Taftville will swing over to daylight time next Monday when the manufacturing plants of the village will start to operate on the new time. The majority of the villagers are in favor of it, and the Athletic association will be able to provide twilight baseball games as they did last year, for the sport of the fans of the town. Both the Taftville Congregational church and the Sacred Heart church will hold their services on standard time next Sunday, not taking up daylight time until the following Sunday. Most residents of the town will adjust their clocks Sunday night before retiring.

The Dramatic Club held a rehearsal in the Greeneville Congregational church, Wednesday evening, where they are planning to present the play "Contents Unknown" next week.

The Wequonnoc School baseball team will cross bats with the Elizabeth Street School team on May 2nd. The battery for Wequonnoc will be Kunnel, pitch and Gora, catch. Schwartz will pitch for the Norwich nine, and Hargreaves catch.

Henry Roy of Pawtucket, R. I., a former resident of the village is in town, the guest of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roy and family of Merchants avenue.

Mrs. Thomas Bamber of Plainfield spent a brief time this week as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle of North Third Avenue.

The Camp Fire Girls met Tuesday evening at the Taftville Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gauvin and family of South Fifth Avenue have moved to the property on Merchants avenue, that they acquired some time ago.

Joseph Magnan of Terrace Avenue has resigned his position in the No. 8 Weaving Department of the Ponemah Mills.

The large sign board that stood on the property of Miss Addie Sweet on Norwich avenue, has been removed.

John Keefe of the Ponemah House has resigned his position with the Ponemah Company.

The Spring Clean-Up.

Many communities have been conducting spring clean-up campaigns, says the department of health. The recent warm weather has stirred many householders to action in removing the debris that accumulates during the winter months. The rubbish or garbage pile in the back-yard will prove a veritable haven for fly breeding unless disposed of. Mosquitoes will find the small pools of water in law places in cans, broken bottles, and particularly the leaf-clogged gutters along the eaves of houses; eggs will be laid in these places, hatching out later to bother the household (and neighbors) who will proclaim "how numerous mosquitoes are this year."

Let up the curtains; let the sunshine in. Clean up to prevent maggots or fly breeding. Drain house gutters, and dispose of cans and bottles that are mosquito breeding places. Remove all rubbish and filth that may become a nuisance to sight and smell later on. Keep all garbage or food refuse covered.

500 Dog Licenses So Far.

Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook has issued only about 500 dog licenses so far which means that many more dog owners must attend to this detail in the next few days if they are to avoid the $1 extra after May 1st. There are about 1,300 dogs to be licensed.

MEN WHO WORE THE BLUE IN '61-65 MEET HERE IN 56th ENCAMPMENT

Veterans of the tented field, the weary march and the clash of battle in '61-65 met here Wednesday for the 56th annual encampment of the Department of Connecticut, G. A. R., which opened at 1 o'clock with a business session at the Buckingham Memorial, the home of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, the first to be organized in the state. The Memorial was appropriately decorated in the national colors and many stores in the city expressed a greeting to the veterans with a display of the red, white and blue.

Commander Orrin M. Price of this city opened the business session, at which there was an attendance of about 100 from the 52 posts in the State.

The department officers and staff who attended the gathering were: Department Commander, Orrin M. Price, Norwich; S. V. commander, William F. Sternberg, New Britain; J. V. Commander, Albert C. Clark, Norwalk; medical director, Benjamin

ORRIN M. PRICE
Department Commander

H. Cheney, New Haven; department chaplain, William T. Hilton, Hartford; judge advocate, Samuel B. Horne, Winsted; dept. inspector, L. O. Chittenden, Guilford; dept. patriotic instructor, H. P. Rugg, Bridgeport; chief mustering officer, C. A. Breckinridge, Meriden; chief of staff, Ira R. Wildman, Danbury; asst. adj. and asst. Q. M. general, William F. Smith, New Haven.

Commander Price's Report

The first business was the report for the year in the state department.

Commander Price gave his annual report as follows:

To the officers and comrades of the Department of Connecticut, Grand Army of the Republic:

Comrades:

I extend to you my greeting upon this occasion, the 56th annual encampment, Department of Connecticut, Grand Army of the Republic. One year since you with unusual unanimity, chose me to serve you as your commander. I leave it to you my comrades, to judge whether I have been faithful to the responsibilities imposed upon me and entrusted to my keeping.

To our senior and junior department commanders I wish to extend my hearty thanks for their earnest assistance upon many occasions. The other officers have served faithfully in their various stations and are deserving of the full need of praise also. I call your attention to their reports for proof of work well and faithfully done, and yet I must ask you to take note of the thorough and comprehensive methods of our assistant adjutant general. None throughout our organization can be found superior. Upon his work our success in many respects rests and has received much praise from outside this department.

At the 56th national encampment at Des Moines, Iowa, our department won great distinction and consequently stands high among the different departments of our order.

Soldiers' Home

Our soldiers' home at Noroton, I have visited and to my mind as well as in the judgment of higher authority, there is no more thoroughly comfortable and perfectly managed home and hospital for our comrades in the United States. Too much praise cannot be given to Colonel Seeley and his efficient staff of assistants.

Woman's Relief Corps

Our Woman's Relief Corps cannot be valued too highly, and I believe the corps would fly in closer touch with the Grand Army if they could be informed more particularly of the purposes and intentions of posts and our comrades when help or assistance could be given. Where there is no Woman's Relief corps, there is little good cheer. This band of noble women organized more than 38 years ago, has stood steadfastly by the Grand Army of the Republic, anticipating its needs and ready to supply them.

Cromwell Home

Cromwell Home established and managed by the ladies of the relief corps is a needed institution of its kind and is attracting much favorable comment from other departments. The aim and work are beyond all criticism. I wish to commend the labors of Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, caretakers of the home for their untiring efforts in making those under their care, comfortable and happy, and we should give the undertaking its full credit and support.

Ladies of the G. A. R.

The organization of the ladies of the G. A. R. are surely a band of earnest workers and are striving for the good of our order.

Daughters of Veterans

The Daughters of Veterans have indeed proved themselves to be an earnest patriotic organization. We cannot withhold them from all due encouragement and praise. If we do we demean our own flesh and blood.

Therefore let us give them God speed in following in the footsteps of their mothers—the sweethearts of sixty-one to five—in all their patriotic endeavors.

Sons of Veterans

The Sons of Veterans are fast coming forward to do the work of the fathers. The unanimity and patriotic zeal with which their work was carried on and which I was an honored witness in their recent encampment in Waterbury was exceedingly interesting and impressed me with the fact that I was in the presence of and being honored by the very best citizenship of Connecticut and they, the sons of the very flower of Connecticut in 1861-65 who offered all that mortal man could offer that this land of ours might be preserved. This organization has at all times and all places, public and private, displayed the greatest courtesy to your commander. We must not neglect a single opportunity to give them all due credit and encouragement.

Spanish War Veterans

The United Spanish War Veterans, who so nobly sprung forward for duty in a righteous cause at the call of the lamented McKinley have surely won our respect and admiration for their quiet unostentatious patriotism and perseverance in good work. They with their devoted auxiliary are worthy of our kindest consideration. They too, have many times honored your commander and by so doing have shown their high regard for our order.

Citizens' Corps

The Citizens Corps is indeed a grand organization. I trust by due appreciation on the part of the comrades, that the Citizens' Corps will be encouraged to increase in size and numbers throughout the state.

The smaller posts have great need of encouragement. The many, which I have had the great honor of visiting, I have found in much need of encouragement, the enfeebled comrades dragging themselves as it were for miles to attend their meetings as often as they can and more frequently than otherwise not a word of comfort, except that contributed by each to the other, and then a wearisome return to their homes in many cases five to seven miles distant. The comrades of these small posts have given me in every instance a most gladsome welcome, and they have expressed themselves as greatly encouraged by my visits. Finally all our hearts are filled with joy and gladness the little time we are together and who shall say may be or are bound by the ties that were welded in a fiery strife where our patriotism was put to the test and won the day, preserving our starry banner and liberty to future generations, and as we separate we feel that we belong to the grandest organization of men this world has ever known, the Grand Army of the Republic.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the members of my staff who have faithfully upheld my hands during my administration. Expressed commendation is due to Comrade Wm. F. Smith who has discharged the arduous duties of his double office with that care and zeal which can only be realized by those who know the work involved.

To all my comrades also I owe the assurance of my appreciation of their cordiality and fraternal feeling manifested toward me at all times.

Book of Printed Reports

A booklet of 51 pages contained the printed reports of the officers, which were distributed to the delegates, and turned over to committees, which will report of them at the Thursday morning business session, when officers will be elected.

The membership report by Assistant Adjutant General William F. Smith of New Haven, showed a membership on April 1 as of 1,014. The ranks had been thinned by 141 deaths in the year, there had been one discharge, one transfer, 11 suspensions. General Von Steinweir post of New Haven had been obliged to surrender its charter because all but one member had died.

Total receipts, including balance of $706.66, had been $1,801.98, and total expenses $1,254.60, leaving a balance of $547.38.

Greetings to Encampment

Greeting to the encampment were brought from the Daughters of Veterans by Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury of this city, department president, from the Sons of Veterans by Norman S. Buckingham of Milford, division commander, and from the auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans by Miss Jessie Myers of New Haven, department president, and by Mrs. May C. Bassett of New Haven, a past department president.

Sight Seeing Tour

The business session adjourned about 4 o'clock and at 4.30 the veterans were taken by automobiles on a sight seeing tour about the city. Those who furnished automobiles were: Dr. R. R. Agnew, E. L. Bliven, J. B. Caron, J. W. Curtis, H. M. Lerou, H. F. Parker, C. V. Pendleton, D. T. Shea, C. J. Twist, A. Schwartz.

Norwich Souvenir

A Norwich souvenir in the shape of an ink stand was provided for each of the veterans by the United Metal Mfg. Co., and the convention badges were of red silk with gold lettering. Among the delegates registered were the following:

Wm. L. Davis, New London; Sylvester G. Jerome, New London; A. P. Benner, James Haggerty, Adam Duntz, Timothy Gillen, Willimantic; Charles H. Smitton, New London; Judson A. Potter, Willimantic; John H. Batterson, South Norwalk; John Service, Norwich; W. M. Shaffer, J. M. Shaw, Adrian P. Sloan, Hartford; James R. Young, Charles E. Beeman, Wesley Cushman, Waterbury; Henry Teler, New London; John L. Saxe, Waterbury; Harlan P. Rugg, Bridgeport; John C. Ladd, Portland; Dr. Wm. F. Hinckley, James H. Jennings, Andrew J. Kenneally, Wm. G. Renfree, John White, D. D. Gibbard, Waterbury; A. P. Stark, Bristol; A. T. Hall, Meriden; W. J. Keeney, Wm. Fergusson, Louis Pinney, South Manchester; G. W. Meyer, New London; P. J. Jaeger, Danielson; V. F. McNeil, J. B. Morgan, Henry F. McCollum, New Haven; Thaddeus Pecor, Horace Clift, Groton; George W. Reginir, Stonington; John Crowther, Morgan M. Atwater, Charles Douglas, Thomas E. Beresford, Virgil McNeil, Charles E. Hart; Henry Burrill, Vine R. Franklin.

FUNERAL EXPENSE AWARD BUT NO COMPENSATION

An award of $100 for funeral expenses and for the assumption of hospital and medical bills for the death of George C. Decker of New London has been made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue in the workmen's compensation claim made by Decker's brother, Jacob, who is administrator of the estate.

Decker, who was employed by the state highway department, was at work on March 5, 1923, on an electric pole at the easterly end of the Thames River bridge, when he fell from the pole and fractured his skull. Death followed in a few hours.

It was found there were no dependents so that no compensation could be paid.

Home From Europe.

Among Americans returning home from Europe in the past few days were Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Gernon, of 195 Washington street, this city, who arrived at New York on Tuesday last on the White Star liner Baltic from Queenstown and Liverpool.

FAVORS $125,000 APPROPRIATION FOR MYSTIC ORAL DORMITORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 25.—The appropriations committee favorably reported today a substitute bill to carrying $125,000 for a dormitory for the Mystic Oral school at Mystic. This is a reduction of $10,000 from the amount asked for.

Gasoline Tax Money.

A bill was reported by the finance committee to allocate to the highway department the entire amount received from the gasoline tax. The bill does not change the present tax of one cent a gallon but it does exempt from the tax all gasoline used in motor boats. It is realized that motor boats do not use the highways and it is no more than right that they should not be taxed for their upkeep. The money from the tax will be paid to the state treasurer as at present but instead of going into the general fund will go from the treasurer to the highway department for use for construction of trunk line highways, repairs and reconstruction work.

The chief reason for the change is that the proceedure of using money raised by a tax on automobilists for any other purpose than for the direct benefit of automobilists has been questioned as to its constitutionality. It is estimated that the tax will raise $750,000 the coming year and will make possible a reduction in the specific appropriation for the highway department.

The committee also reported a bill repealing an act passed in 1921 authorizing the state to issue bonds for $3,000,000 to meet an expected deficit. It has not been necessary to issue the bonds as there has been no deficit. The same committee also reported a bill reducing the state tax paid by the towns 25 per cent. The reduction of this tax will result in a slight reduction of rents; also a slight reduction in the cost of living. This reduction is recommended by Tax Commissioner Blodgett.

Reducing Town Taxes.

The reduction will affect every town in the state and means reductions in towns that have paid a tax of more than $10,000 as follows:

Ansonia, $5,031; Bridgeport, $79,071; Bristol, $7,262; Danbury, $6,503; Derby, $2,679; East Hartford, $3,184; Fairfield, $2,712; Greenwich, $12,528; Hamden, $3,155; Hartford, $72,462; Manchester, $5,526; Meriden, $9,995; Middletown, $5,251; Milford, $3,459; Naugatuck, $4,132; New Britain, $19,529; New Haven, $57,078; New London, $10,492; Norwalk, $6,766; Norwich, $7,949; Shelton, $2,566; Stamford, $18,277; Stratford, $3,622; Torrington, $8,397; Vernon, $2,831; Wallingford, $3,837; Waterbury, $41,113; West Hartford, $5,150; West Haven, $4,275; Windham, $3,658.

The decrease will be proportional in all other towns of the state.

A bill passed in the house today will affect such cases as that of Ernest Schleifer, who recently was on trial in New Haven. It is possible that the bill may apply to the case against him which is to come to trial at the May term of the superior court in New London. The bill follows:

Any person who shall, in public or private, either orally or in writing, printing or in any other manner, advocate, encourage, justify, praise, incite, or solicit the unlawful burning, injury to or destruction of any public or private property or advocate, encourage, justify, praise, incite or solicit any assault upon any organization of the army of the United States, the national guard or the police force of this or any other state or of any officer or member thereof, or the killing or injuring of any class or body of persons, or of any individual shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than ten years or both.

The house was called to order at 11.15 with Speaker Nickerson in the chair.

Nominations by Governor

Communications from the governor were presented by the governor's secretary, Anson T. McCook, in which he nominated Richard T. Higgins of Winchester to be a member of the public utilities commission, Leonard J. Nickerson of Cornwall to be a judge of the superior court, E. C. Simpson, and John R. Booth to be judges of the court of common pleas in New Haven county. Under suspension of the rules, all in the judicial nominations were referred to the committee on the judiciary and then transmitted to the senate. From the senate came the nomination of Arthur J. Ells to be judge of the superior court and the same action was taken. The bill, codifying the fish and game laws was made the special order of the day for Thursday at 11.45.

No Bathing in Alexander's Lake.

The bill permitting bathing in Alexander's lake was rejected as it was considered a violation of the sanitary laws of the state.

The bill concerning the planting of shade trees along the highway which had passed the house came back from the senate amended and after a short discussion the whole motion was indefinitely postponed.

The claim of John O'Neil for compensation in removing the old Washington bridge at Stratford was rejected.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on the bills appointing H. C. Hurford, judge and Nestor Light, deputy judge of the town court of Stratford, O. H. Fowler judge of the town court of Wallingford; Thos. Ferguson, deputy judge at Manchester and George J. Smith, deputy judge at Milford.

Under suspension of the rules they were all elected. The same committee reported the names of Ralph T. Beers as judge and W. J. Buckley, deputy judge of the city court of Bridgeport. On motion of Representative Lederer of Bridgeport these nominations were tabled for action on Thursday.

W. F. Fenn was elected judge of the city court of Meriden. A bill was passed permitting the comptroller to purchase immediately the property adjoining the State Library on Capitol avenue. All matters passed upon today were under suspension of the rules transmitted to the senate.

At 1.02 the house adjourned till 11.15 Thursday.

SENATE.

The committee on claims reported unfavorably on the bill to reimburse the Ponemah Mills company for $1,500 paid to the state as a fee for an increase in capital stock, the authorized capital stock having thereafter been reduced by the same amount for which the fee was paid. The bill was rejected.

The committee on banks reported favorably on the bill regulating the making of small loans. The bill provides that those engaged in making small loans must be licensed by the banking commission and must pay an annual fee of $100 for the license, and file a bond to the amount of $1,000 which the bank commission may increase. The commission is empowered to examine the business of the persons making the loan. The bill was tabled.

The committee on finance reported favorably on a bill repealing the law authorizing the state treasurer to issue bonds. Calendar.

Salaries of State Referees.

Senator Wilder called from the table relating to the compensation of state referees. The bill provides that the compensation shall be three-quarters of the salary which the referee received as judge. The compensation at present is one-half the salary. The bill was passed and transmitted to the house.

The committee on cities and boroughs reported unfavorably on the bill creating a borough form of government in East Hartford. The bill was rejected.

More State Police.

The committee on appropriations reported favorably on a substitute bill increasing the state police force to eighty men from which the superintendent shall appoint a captain, lieutenant and inspector-instructor, eight sergeants and a deputy sergeant of weights and measures. The superintendent may appoint an automobile mechanic and clerical help. Calendar.

The committee on cities and boroughs reported unfavorably on the bill increasing the state police force of New Haven relating to the canine bureau; amending the charter of the city of Waterbury, concerning the police department. The bills were rejected.

Calendar.

Passed—That inventories of state property shall be made as of June 30 and transmitted to the comptroller before August 15 for the payment of $4 a day to assistant messengers of the superior court; authorizing the Y. M. C. A. to issue notes to the amount of $1,750,000, appropriating $15,000 to Long Lane farm; concerning the sampling and testing of milk; concerning the manufacture and sale of filled milk; establishing a method by which soldiers, sailors or marines may obtain an exemption of property from taxation; that the chief engineer of the fire department of Willimantic shall hold office during good behavior, etc.; that the examination of the eyes of school children may be performed by a licensed optometrist; extending the time for the organization of the Norwalk Lawyers Title Insurance company; empowering the board of control to abate the taxes of electric street railway companies in receivership; modifying the succession tax laws that the repairing of superstructures over or under railroads shall be done at the expense of the railroad companies, and the cost of improving approaches by the municipalities; empowering the highway commissioner to appeal in cases of the eliminating of dangerous crossings; increasing the tax on advertising signs to one cent.

SUPREME COURT BENCH HEARD THREE APPEALS

Three of the nine cases on the docket of the April term of the supreme court here Tuesday were argued and decision was reserved by the court with Chief Justice George W. Wheeler presiding.

Plaintiff's appeal in the case of Thomas J. Pfeiffer vs. Luella H. Pfeiffer, both of Norwich, was argued by Brown and Jacobs for the plaintiff and G. C. Morgan for the defendant. It is a suit over the custody of the five year old daughter of the couple.

Arguments in the reserved case of Caroline T. Gilman, et al., executors vs. Caroline T. Gilman, et al., took the time of the court from 11 o'clock in the morning until after 4 in the afternoon. This concerns the construction of various clauses in the will of Louisa G. Lane of Norwich Town. The lawyers interested were Judge Gardiner Greene, Wallis S. Allis, John P. Huntington and Bristol & White.

The latest case argued was the plaintiff's appeal in Harriet S. Deveraux, et al. vs. David F. Armstrong, executor, in which a jury sustained the will of Augusta L. Luther, late of New London. Attorney H. A. Hull appeared for the plaintiff, C. B. Waller and G. C. Morgan for the defendant.

Motion to erase defendant's appeal was granted in Frederick A. Barnes vs. Dell J. Bonvouloir. The appellant had failed to provide money for printing the case.

Defendant's appeal in James Dunlop vs. Allen Spool & Wood Turning Co., et al., was withdrawn in open court.

Plaintiff's appeal in Arthur E. Andrews vs. John Olaff, Jr., both of this city, was continued to the May term in Hartford.

Defendant's appeal in Edmund P. Douglass vs. Ewald Brandt, both of Groton, is to be submitted on briefs.

Plaintiff's appeal in Hawthorne Sash and Door Co., of New London vs. Thomas C. West Co., et al. was continued. The case was not printed.

Defendant's appeal in Mildred Avery Arnold of Groton vs. Leslie P. Arnold of New London was continued.

For Criminal Court Business.

Hadlai A. Hull, state's attorney, is to be at the office of Clerk George E. Parsons in Norwich, Friday, April 27, at 10 a. m. to meet the attorneys who are interested in criminal cases for the arrangement of business for the May criminal term which is to open in New London on May 1st, at 10 a. m.

NORWICH ROUND TABLE HELD ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Norwich Round Table was held Tuesday evening in the Sunday school room at St. Andrew's Episcopal church with a full attendance of the members. The menu was an excellent chicken pie supper served under the direction of Mrs. Berkoff and the tables were prettily decorated with pink roses.

Roll call responses were made by funny stories that made an entertaining feature, following which there were admirably rendered readings from James Whitcomb Riley's poems by Mrs. A. N. Foster and a solo by John E. Vaughn. President E. A. Tracy was the toastmaster for the evening.

Snow For Court House Pansies.

The snow that is always expected after the court house pansies are planted came on schedule this year, although few saw it.

Janitor Fred Fratus set out the bed of pansies Tuesday. Late Tuesday night there were a few flakes of snow which saved the record, although in some years there has been enough to cover the plants.

Bradford.—The Mothers' club met in the Community house with a large number present. A report of the convention at Danbury from the president, Mrs. Bush, was heard.

ELIHU ROOT SEES VIRTUE IN THE PROPOSED WORLD COURT

In Addressing the Society of International Law, Mr. Root Declared the Proposal Reaches the Highest Point Yet Reached by Agreement of the Nations—Expressed the Hope That the United States Would Strive to Bring About a Conference of All Nations Entitled to Take Part in the Making of International Law—Would Have All Wars of Aggression Made Criminal Violations of the Laws of Nations.

Washington, April 26.—Supporting President Harding in his contention that the United States should participate in the permanent court of international justice, Elihu Root tonight told the American Society of International Law that the question presented by the president's message to the senate was really only a question of moral support.

"The amount of contribution towards the support of the court to be determined by our own congress would be negligible," asserted Mr. Root. "We undertake to do nothing and to give nobody authority or power to do anything to us. The question is merely whether we shall give our moral approval to the establishment of the same kind of court which our government has been urging for a generation."

Addressing the society, of which he is president, at its seventeenth annual meeting Mr. Root described at length the progress and nature of the world court, has reasons for believing it superior to the old Hague tribunal, the most distinction which he said should be made between it and the league of nations, the novel proposal of international law despite the World war, and what he held to be the fallacy in reasons advanced why this country should not support the court.

Then, in closing his address, he said:

"I wish to express my warm agreement with what Senator Borah has recently said about outlawry of war. To that end I sincerely hope that the approval of the United States may be given to this international court which represents the highest point yet reached by agreement of the nations in affording the same substitute for war by judicial decision of international cases that has been so effective in doing away with private war among individuals.

"I hope also that following upon that approval the influence of the United States will be employed to bring about a new conference of all the nations entitled to take part in the making of international law, to formulate and agree upon the amendments and additions which should now be made, to reconcile divergent views and to extend the law to subjects not now adequately regulated, but as to which the interests of international justice require that rules of law shall be declared and accepted.

"I look forward with confidence to the time when the rules so formulated and accepted as universal law will declare all wars of aggression to be criminal violations of the law of nations. I look forward to the time when the refusal of any nation proposing war to submit to an impartial court the decision of the question whether facts exist to justify it in war upon defensive grounds will be deemed a confession of guilt, and I look forward to the time when the universal opinion of civilization, barring such a clear and certain basis for the formation of judgment, will visit upon the aggressor its swift and heavy condemnation against which no nation may prevail.

"War cannot be outlawed by proclamation, or by resolution, or by mere agreement, or by mere force. War can be outlawed only by arraying the moral force of the civilized world in support of definite rules of conduct which exclude war, and by giving to that moral force institutions through which that force may be applied to specific cases of attempted violation. One of those necessary institutions is a court by whose judgment the great multitude who desire the peace of justice may know what is just.

"The question presented by the president's message is really only a question of moral support. The amount of contribution towards the support of the court to be determined by our own congress would be negligible. We undertake to do nothing and to give nobody authority or power to do anything to us. The question is merely whether we shall give our moral approval to the establishment of the same kind of court which our government has been urging for a generation. It is less than three years since both parties in the United States officially agreed upon the American attitude, expressed by one of those parties in its platform, in these words:

Mr. Root at the outset of his speech described the composition of the court and how it worked.

"This court does not supersede but is in addition to the old so-called permanent court of arbitration at The Hague," he said. "The old court of arbitration was not, properly speaking, a court. It was merely a panel of persons available to act as judges."

Asserting that the proposal that the United States should join the world court was quite different to that providing for membership in the league of nations, Mr. Root said:

"The two different projects approach the great problem of preserving peace from different angles and by different methods. They differ radically in their nature and their effects."

Mr. Root then pointed out that it was the honorable obligation of each individual taking part in the proceedings of the league's council and assembly to serve as a diplomatic agent for his own country with "none of that special personal obligation which constrains the conscience of a judge upon his oath and his self-respect to decide any controversy in accordance with law and the facts, without subordination to political power."

"The court of international justice, on the other hand, completely excludes the essential characteristics of the league organization and procedure," continued Mr. Root.

"No diplomatic agreement is sought or attained. No member of the court represents, or is at liberty to represent, any state whatever.

"Their duty is not to deal with policies or agreements, but to decide questions of fact and law in cases brought before them. Each judge's obligation is not to represent his country, or any country, not to execute the orders of any foreign office, not to reflect the policy of any government, but upon his own conscience to hear and decide upon the evidence and the law in accordance with his own personal judgment.

"The question now presented is whether the United States shall take part with the other civilized nations in supporting the international court of justice, which the United States has so long urged those same nations to join her in creating.

"Manifestly, the presumption is in favor of the United States supporting the court. Both self-respect and self-interest require that the United States should stand by its own policy. We cannot decently urge the creation of such a court as this upon the rest of the world through a long series of years and then repudiate the court when they consent to it, unless we offer some adequate reason."

DOCTOR 15 YEARS BARRED FROM EXAMINATION

Hartford, April 26.—The judiciary committee this afternoon held a hearing on the petition of Dr. Edward H. Moriarity of Rockville that he be given the right to take an examination for a license to practice in this state and that the powers of the Connecticut medical examining board in dealing with applicants for a license to practice be curbed.

Dr. Moriarity, who said that he had been a physician in Michigan for fifteen years, declared that he had been prevented from takin gan examination to practice here by the examining board. He asserted that he had discovered a cure for cancer and said he believed that because this cure had not met with the approval of board doctors his application to take the examination had been blocked.

He described his process for treating cancer to the committee, explaining that it made radium or surgical operations unnecessary.

Dr. J. Rowley, appearing for the board, while admitting that Dr. Moriarity's cancer cure was not looked upon with approval, declared that there were other reasons involving medical ethics that had led his board to consider Dr. Moriarity as disqualified to practice in this state.

MAY SALVAGE NAWSCO LINE FREIGHTER BRUSH

Marshfield, Ore., April 26.—The Nawsco line freighter Brush, which struck on the point of Cape Arago reef, three miles south of Coos bay, early today, was pierced amidships, according to her officers, who, with the crew, were landed this afternoon. The craft hung on the rock and it is believed there is a possibility of salvaging her. Captain C. G. Mitchell and other officers and Captain M. P. Jenson of the life saving crew were of the opinion it was possible to save the Brush, although there was fifteen feet of water in her engine room.

The officer on watch at the time of the accident believed the Brush was twenty miles off shore and could not account for the divergence of direction save that the current had forced her inshore.

The rescue of the crew of thirty-five was accomplished without incident.

The crew was taken off by the tug Oregon, a lifeboat under Captain M. P. Jenson of the coast guard and the tug Leader.

The crew hails principally from Boston and New York.

PLANNING TO IMPROVE AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS

Rye, N. Y., April 26.—Plans to bring bankers, farmers and educators closer together to stimulate and improve agricultural conditions throughout the country were outlined to the executive council of the American Bankers' association by D. H. Otis, director of its agricultural commission.

A banker-farmer conference in each of the federal reserve districts is being considered for the near future, he said.

H. L. Russell, said the farmer "has special [illegible] he disposed no business to asked the banker to do so. [illegible] was all the farmer had a right to ask or even expect," he asserted.

Walter W. Head of Omaha, vice president of the association, said the bankers always were willing to help the farmers, because they realize that what affects the farmers will eventually affect the bankers.

OFFICERS OF FEDERATION OF TEMPLE SISTERHOODS

Waterbury, April 26.—Mrs. Isaac Ullman, of New Haven was re-elected president of the Connecticut State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods assembled here today for its first annual convention. Other officers elected are as follows:

First vice president, Mrs. Seymour Kashman, of Hartford; second vice president, Mrs. Charles J. Mintz, of Bridgeport; third vice president, Mrs. Joseph P. Davis, of Waterbury; fourth vice president, Mrs. William Scoenberger, of New Haven; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Samuel Chase, of Waterbury; recording secretary, Mrs. Maximillian Stein, of Bridgeport; treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Sterne, of Hartford; auditor, Mrs. Frederick Oppel, of Bridgeport.

Welcome to Tourists.

If French expectations that American tourists will spend $400,000,000 in that country this year are realized the question of immediate reparations payments will become more or less academic.—Washington Star.

SECRETS OF LIFE IN THE HOUSE OF DAVID

St. Joseph, Mich., April 26.—Secrets of life in "King" Benjamin Purnell's House of David were revealed to the grand jury investigating alleged immorality in the colony, when Benjamin Hill, 34, and Mrs. Lillian Hanaford, 32, testified today.

The couple were intercepted early today at Stevensville, 12 miles south of St. Joseph, after they had eloped from the colony, leaving William Hanaford, Mrs. Hanaford's elderly husband behind.

They told Judge Harry Dingeman, the one-man grand jury, they had not seen Purnell since Christmas and that members of the cult did not know his whereabouts.

The couple testified they had been childhood sweethearts in the colony, but when the time came to marry the Purnell elders told them their love was forbidden, so Hill's name was placed in a hat at a group marriage lottery and was drawn by Cletta Ward a 15 years old girl. That was sixteen years ago, and Hill married Cletta, while Lillian married Hanaford, old enough to be her father, she said.

In 1913, Mrs. Hill lost faith in Purnell and left the colony, Hill said, and obtained a divorce. He testified that before her departure she told him "King" Benjamin had behaved improperly with her prior to their marriage.

Hill told reporters he continued at the colony and became manager of the band, which has toured the country. In his spare time Hilf worked in the colony print shop, and there he again met his boyhood sweetheart, now a fellow employee. They began to lose faith in Purnell's teachings, Hill said. Six years ago his mother died, edspite Purnell's claim that his followers would live forever.

The testimony of immorality on the part of Benjamin, presented at Grand Rapids in a civil suit last month, was the last straw, according to Hill, and Mrs. Hanaford. They decided to leave, that Hanaford obtain a divorce, and then marry.

The group marriages last week hastened their plans, for Marietta Smith, a 20 years old girl, drew Hill's name. Hill objected so strenuously, he testified that Miss Smith [illegible] getting S. Ray Martin, aged 30. Martin tried to get the license yesterday, but it was refused by order of Attorney General Andrew Daugherty.

Hill's testimony, state officials said, contained a number of important leads. Mrs. Hanaford knew little about the alleged revels in Shiloh, the home of "King" Benjamin and "Queen" Mary Purnell, she said. She told the grand jury that she had never been molested by Purnell.

The frequent reference to Purnell followers as "Israelites" has resulted in a belief by some persons that members of the colony were Jews. It was discovered today when leading Jews protested. There are no Jews in the House of David. The official name of the organization, however, is the "Israelite House of David."

BODY TAKEN FROM WHERE BURIED MORE THAN 300 YEARS

Rome, April 26.—The body of Cardinal Bellarmino was removed today from the Church of the Gesu, where it has been buried for more than 300 years, and taken to the Church of St. Ignatius, according to a wish expressed in his will, for reinterment near to the tomb of his pupil, St. Louis Gonzaga.

The coffin was opened in the presence of a number of a prominent prelates and doctors for the purpose of identifying its contents. The body, which had been embalmed, was found to be in a good state of preservation and the pontifical robes were perfectly preserved. General Bellarmino was a nephew of Pope Marcellus II and was one of the great preachers and writers of his time.

SACRIFICED HER LIFE TO SAVE HER BROTHER

Uniontown, Pa., April 26.—Miss Hazel Perry, aged 13, today sacrificed her life to save that of her 3 year old brother Herbert. An automobile, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Perry and five children, stalled on a crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at Oliver, near here, as a speeding passenger train approached. All leaped from the car except Herbert, too young to realize the impending danger. Glancing back, Hazel saw her brother still in the car. She ran to the machine, grabbed Herbert and threw him to safety just as the train struck the automobile, killing her instantly.

A number of serious brush fires raged throughout the day Thursday in this vicinity. The entire valley on the south side of Coventry Lake was swept by flames which burned for the greater part of the day. Smoke from practically all directions rose on the horizon from brush and small forest fires. As far as could be learned no buildings were damages.

Benedict Twerdy of South Coventry drew a fine of $150 and costs, amounting to $168.37 when he was found guilty of manufacturing liquor and keeping same with intent to sell, at a session of the Coventry town court Wednesday morning with Justice of the Peace William R. Hawkins presiding.

Twerdy asked, gave a number of excuses for his law breaking. Tuesday afternoon state Policemen Fred T. Caron and Raymond B. Kelsey of the Stafford Springs barracks called at the home of the Twerdy family on the back road between Babcock Hill and Hop River in the town of Coventry. The state policemen got their clues through the sale of moonshine in this city and in Stafford Springs. The local party guilty for the transfer of liquor from the Twerdy farm to this city was under suspicion and has been under observation here for some time.

Four men and Mrs. Twerdy were at the farm when the officers arrived, and they were being held in the kitchen when Mrs. Twerdy asked permission to go out and see her baby in another room. She was heard to be fussing about upstairs and Kelsey hurried after her and found her attempting to empty a large keg of moonshine. She had dismantled a twenty gallon still and thrown the coil out of the window. Besides the still and 20 gallons of moonshine the officers destroyed about [illegible] gallons of mash.

Twerdy told the court officials that he had found the still in the woods and had decided to make use of it to make liquor for some of his friends.

When asked how many friends it would take to drink twenty gallons of moonshine he said that he had made that amount to treat the builders of a new barn.

The funeral services for John S. Dean were held Thursday afternoon at three o'clock in the Warrenville cemetery with Rev. R. C. Bugbee officiating. The arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt, successors to Jay M. Shepard.

Mrs. Mary E. Lincoln, wife of Howard Lincoln, formerly of this city, died in the Worcester City hospital in Worcester, Mass., Tuesday afternoon. She leaves her husband. The body is expected to arrive in this city this (Friday) afternoon.

The funeral of Dwight W. Ives was held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the late home on Machine Shop Hill, South Windham. The services were conducted by Elder E. H. Cardey of Hartford and burial took place in the Windham Center cemetery. The bearers were George B. Cook, A. C. Sweet, Fred Clark and Geo. Chamberlain. Arrangements were in charge of the J. C. Lincoln company.

Frank Gallina of Willimantic died Wednesday night at the home of his wife's relatives in Norwich. The deceased had been in ill health for several weeks. He conducted a grocery business in this city for about three years on Church street and later on Jackson street. He leaves a wife and daughter.

Mrs. Sarah J. Grant, widow of Andrew Grant died at her home in Everett, Mass., Tuesday. She was born in Mansfield, August 1, 1832, the daughter of Elisha and Anna (Gaylord) Williams. The deceased is survived by a son, Henry Grant of Detroit, Michigan; three nieces, Mrs. H. T. Whitehall and Miss P. J. Williams of Everett and Mrs. Sarah Atwood of Conantville; and one nephew, Everett G. Barrows of this city.

The funeral services were held at the late home in Everet Thursday afternoon at four o'clock and the remains are expected to arrive in this city Friday morning.

A frightened horse ran away Wednesday afternoon on Jackson street, when a small boy lost control of an automobile tire which he was rolling. It struck a horse. The animal was attached to a milk wagon and was standing near a telephone pole. The horse bolted when the tire bounded against its head and started up Jackson street.

Near Valley street it struck the curbing and several spokes were broken from a wheel of the cart and then smashed into the rear of a Ford delivery truck doing slight damage. The animal continued along the street and the wagon struck a telephone pole. The harness gave way and the cart remained while the horse sped on. It was later caught by Ernest LaFleur who gave chase in an automobile.

Do Willimantic residents want a miniature Coney Island right in a central location of their city? If they do they should express their thoughts to a number of local men who are thinking over a plan whereby a large tract of land on the south bank of the Willimantic river, opposite the dam of the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company, would be utilized for a park and pleasure resort. The place would be known as the Thread City Pleasure Resort and would be equipped with modern chutes, merry-go-round, roller coaster, snap the whip and other devices. The land occupied would comprise a large tract in the rear of the residences between Bridge and Pleasant street in the section known as the Riverside park. The leader of the idea a Pleasant street resident is of the opinion that the project is a good one and an amusement company will be incorporated providing the necessary capital can be raised, which he thinks can be done.

A spark from a bonfire fell on the roof of the shed in the rear of the east section of the Holland Silk company's plant and set the structure on fire about 9.50 o'clock Thursday morning. Engine company No. 1 was called and when they arrived the blaze had been practically extinguished by employees of the mill who had turned a stream of water on the fire from the company's private hydrant.

About 10.15 o'clock Thursday morning the firemen were called out to another blaze in the rear of the Turner block at the corner of Main and Church streets. Sparks from a bonfire had set a pile of planks afire and they were beginning to burn merrily when the firelads arrived. Six gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze.

Late Wednesday afternoon a wagon driven by Mrs. Samuel Greenman of Scotland was struck by an automobile owned and driven by W. A. Mungeol of No. 178 Main street, Danielson. The right rear wheel of the wagon was ripped off and other parts of the vehicle were damaged to some extent. Mrs. Greenman had completed a turn in the street and was headed east up Main street, opposite Recreation park, when the rear of the wagon was struck. The parties implicated came to a mutual agreements for settlement of the damages.

Babe Ruth was a visitor in Willimantic for a few minutes Thursday morning when he passed through the city on the express for Boston which arrives here at 9.35 and leaves at 9.40 o'clock. Ruth's automobile broke down and he and two other of the New York Yankees were forced to make the trip by train.

A nominating committee was appointed to select a general committee to make arrangements for the entertainment of the state convention of Sunday school workers which will be held in this city in November. The appointment was made at a recent meeting of the Sundal school workers of this city held at the Congregational church house.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Stimpson celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at their home on Jordan road Wednesday evening and about forty of their friends were present. The couple were presented a large assortment of gifts including silver pieces. Telegrams of congratulation were received from a number of out of town friends.

Miss Evelyn Simmons was a Norwich visitors Thursday.

John Lutton of Crescent street is confined to his home with appendicitis.

Minot S. Fryer has brought civil suit against Mrs. Grace Haley and the case is to be heard before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean on May 5. Damages of $100 are claimed by the plaintiff and property owned by the defendant to the amount of $200 has been placed under attachment.

Thursday as a busy day for State Policeman Fred T. Caron who was at the town building on his weekly visit to meet applicants for motor vehicle driver's licenses.

Abner Syphers formerly of this city returned to his home in East Haddam Thursday after a few days' visit with local friends.

M. F. Grady who underwent an operation for appendicitis in St. Joseph's hospital last week is improving in health.

Commander A. P. Benner of Summit street attended the state convention of the G. A. R. in Norwich Thursday.

George B. M. Knowlton of Ashford was a local visitor Thursday on business.

State Policeman Raymond B. Kelsey of Stafford Springs was in this city Thursday.

The Ecclesiastical society of the Congregational church in Windham held a meeting Wednesday evening at the church. Charles Larrabee was chairman. The committeemen were reappointed as follows: William F. Maine, George A. Cook and Isaac H. Johnson; clerk and treasurer, H. C. Lathrop; auditor, Harold S. Maine. Five new members were elected. Following the business session a social was enjoyed at the home of Isaac H. Johnson.

THREE BUILDINGS BURN IN MANSFIELD FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, April 26.—Three buildings and their contents on the farm of Timothy Costello on the road between Storrs and Eagleville in the town of Mansfield were totally destroyed by fire about four o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The fire, which is of unknown origin, caused a loss estimated at about $7,000, and insurance to the amount of $1,000 was carried on the property.

Mrs. Costello, who was alone on the farm at the time looked out and saw smoke rising through one of the windows of the barn. She ran out to the structure with the intention of saving the horse but upon opening the door she was met by an onrush of flames. In a few minutes the blaze had reached the roof and soon the entire building was one mass of flames.

Mrs. Costello was greatly handicapped due to the fact that the telephone in the house had been out of order since last Saturday, and she had to run over a third of a mile to the nearest neighbor in order to secure telephone service. She notified the college office at Storrs Agricultural college and, within a short time a body students had arrived after running the mile stretch from the college. By that time the new barn was destroyed and a good sized ice house was nearly consumed, while the sparks had set fire to an unoccupied dwelling on the opposite side of the road. As there was no available water supply nothing could be done but to watch the structures burn. The house was saved by a kindly wind which blew in the opposite direction.

Over thirty tons of hay were consumed in the blaze, beside several hundred dollars worth of farming tools and equipment. One horse and two pigs also perished in the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Costello have occupied the farm for about thirty-two years. Today they are without any equipment of any description. At the time of the fire Mr. Costello was doing work in another part of the town.

PARENTS HELPLESS AS THREE YEAR OLD DAUGHTER DIES IN FLAMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, April 26.—Mildred, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Rood, was burned to death this afternoon about 5.15 in flames which consumed the home of her parents. The child had gone into a one story ell in the rear of the house and had been there for a short while when Mrs. Rood suddenly saw smoke issuing from the door leading into the ell and heard the child's screams. The mother went to the door but the flames held her back and she then ran into the yard where Mr. Rood was engaged in working.

The parents worked frantically to get into the room, but to no avail. Another unsuccessful attempt was made to get into the ell through a window and both mother and father were severely cut about the hands and arms in the result of their effort. The South Windham fire company and Engine company No. 1 of this city, were called to the scene but nothing could be done to save the child or the house. When the firemen arrived the ell was completely enveloped in a mass of flames and the house proper a large three story of pretentious appearance was ablaze.

Spectators worked hard and considerable of the furniture was saved. While the flames spurted out in all directions George Potter of Windham made another attempt to rescue the child but he in turn was driven back by smoke and flames.

About 6.30 o'clock the fire in the ell had subsided to some extent and the firemen recovered the child's body. The remains were turned over to a local undertaker. Mrs. Rood is reported as being in a serious condition as the result of the terrible grief cast through the loss of her child. She fell unconscious several times before friends were able to induce her to leave the scene of the fire.

The destroyed residence was known as the old Moulton place and was situated a short distance from the village Windham Center on the highway leading to Scotland. The structure was a large three story one and set in back of a cluster of trees. The Rood family have occupied the place about five years. Mr. Rood is a farmer by occupation. Some three years ago a large barn which stood in the rear of the house was destroyed by fire when it was struck by lightning. Seven other children were in and about the house when the fire started but fortunately they were all led to safety.

Mr. Rood estimated his loss at $15,000 with the amount of insurance only $600. Engine Co. No. 1 used about 70 gallons of chemical on the blaze. There was no available supply of water. Mildred Rood was born three years ago in Windham, the daughter of George J. and Mary Cooper Rood, and besides her parents she is survived by four brothers, Howard, George, Berton and Francis and three sisters, Evelyn, Edith and Doris, all of Windham.

COLUMBIA

On Monday six two-horse trucks, heavily loaded with machinery and tools for work on state roads, also campers equipment for the workmen, passed through the town on their way to Natchaug in the vicinity of which they are engaged in work on the roads. They stopped at the Center for supplies, and stated that they had left Fall River, Mass., on Saturday morning, traveling nights and camping days, thereby avoiding automobile traffic. They expected to reach their destination by Wednesday, their horses traveling only about 25 miles a day.

Fred A. Abel has recovered from the operation he recently underwent and returned home from the hospital on Saturday.

Funeral services for Marie Antoinette Kneeland, wife of William H. Kneeland, were held at the Columbia Congregational church on Tuesday at 3 p. m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. Newton Green. Until recently Mr. and Mrs. Kneeland lived on their farm on Pine street, when Mrs. Kneeland became feeble, and they went to live with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bosworth, in Hartford. Many relatives and friends of the family were present from Hartford, Lebanon and Columbia. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful. Dorcas Chapter, O. E. S., Philip Shaw sang with much feeling the sacred solos, Face to Face, by Herbert Johnson, accompanied by Mrs. Clayton Hunt, also the hymn One Sweetly Solemn Thought, by Cary-Ambrose. The interment was in a plot recently purchased on the main avenue of the new portion of Columbia cemetery.

WESTMINSTER

In this fire prevention week, Fred Lachapelle, fire warden for the town, wishes to call the attention of all in the town to the necessity of great care in handling bonfires especially at this season of the year; and also to the fact that all permits must be secured from him according to the order of A. F. Hawes of Hartford, state fire warden. In case of a fire notify the warden or one of his deputies: Fred Greene, James Towne, or Bert Tracy, according to its location, without loss of time. Let everyone use such care that last year's experiences in that line may not be repeated by our town this year, said the warden.

Those attending the speaking and spelling contests of the town, officially representing the Westminster Hill school, last Thursday evening, were Miss Lucy Lester, teacher, Mrs. Frank S. Linnell, chairman of the judges in the local contest; Viola Bennett, contestant in speaking; Earl MacLeod, in spelling, also Annie Hagopian, one of the non-contestant speakerss. A number of other pupils and several parents and friends of the school were also present.

Friends in Westminster learn with regret of the impending change of the pastor at the Green, resulting from the resignation of Rev. Mr. Humphrey.

WOODSTOCK

On Friday evening the speaking at Woodstock academy in competition for the Hardy prizes took place. There were six contestants. The first prize of $15 in gold was awarded to Elizabeth Rollins; the second prize, $7, was awarded to Burton Harrison; the third prize, $3 to Doris H. Lindeman.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Williamson of Worcester were week end guests of Mrs. William M. Gallup.

The senior class at the academy gave an entertainment Saturday evening which consisted mainly of moving pictures. Dancing followed.

Luke E. White was in Hartford four days last week, taking examinations for entrance to the naval academy at Annapolis.

Walter Lindeman is at the Day Kimball hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Margaret Fogg of Portland has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. George P. Perley.

A new cement watering trough has been built by the roadside on Woodstock Hill.

The Ladies' Benevolent society held a sewing meeting with Mrs. E. R. Rollins Tuesday afternoon.

A Good Corn Planter Is One of Your Best Friends

HERE is a point we want you to think over: If a planter misses only fifteen kernels in every 100 hills, there is a loss of five bushels per acre in the yield.

The accurate planter prevents that loss—it proves to be one of your best friends because it does faithful work in producing bigger yields.

We want to show you the John Deere No. 999 Corn Planter—a planter that has built a first-class reputation because of its accuracy. It plants just as accurately as the human hand.

You can plant two, three or four kernels without changing seed plates or stopping the team. You can change from hilling to drilling instantly. You get nine different drilling distances without changing the plates.

We will be glad to have you call and see why this planter has been termed "the accurate planter."

MICHAELS KNOCKS OUT MARSHALL IN SIXTH ROUND AT DANIELSON

Danielson, April 26—Seven hundred boxing fans were on their feet cheering and wildly enthusiastic in the Town Hall Thursday evening while Referee Billy Moran of New London counted out Ted Marshall, lightheavyweight champion of R. I., in the sixth round of his sensational bout with Sailor Michaels of the Submarine Base.

Marshall put up one of the gamest fights ever seen in a ring in Eastern Connecticut, but the sailor was too classy for him and apparently in better physical condition. Marshall appeared fat. Commissioner Frank Murphy of Hartford, acting as announcer gave the weights as Marshall 171, Michaels 161. The first two rounds were fast but the fighters were cautious and apparently feeling each other out. A right to the jaw dropped Marshall the first time for a count of nine in the third round but he came back like a whirlwind and was going strong at the bell. The fourth round was a riot of action and there were periods of it when one punch would have put either one of the boxers away, as each took a lot if punishment and had their turns at being groggy.

The fifth round marked the beginning of the end. In this period Marshall went down four times for the count of nine but in each instance came back with extraordinary courage for which he is noted. He did not recover fully by the opening of the sixth round and after a minute of milling went down for the final count although he was not knocked out. The bout outclassed anything seen in Danielson during the present boxing revival.

The semi-final scheduled to go eight rounds came to an abrupt ending in the third when Johnny Brown of Pawtucket, a remarkably fast worker, put away Sailor Mickey Welch of the Submarine Base. Each fighter weighed in at 130 pounds. This bout looked like a million dollars at the start. It was so fast and clever, but Welch was out of condition as shown by the fact that he started vomiting after the first round and did not have a chance thereafter and Brown easily wound up the bout early in the third round.

In a way the bout between Red Rankin of Norwich and Young Bernier of Danielson was the most interesting of the evening. It went the full six rounds, the bell saving Bernier from a knockout in the final frame. Rankin weighed 122, Bernier 126. The referee gave the decision to Rankin. This was a fast, clean bout all the way and had the fans yelling their heads off. Rankin had the advantage both in reach and ring experience but Bernier gave him a great battle and was loudly applauded when he left the ring.

The first preliminary between Irish Billy Glynn of Norwich and Young Choquette of Danielson was the slowest of the evening. It went the full six rounds. Without it furnished a lot of entertainment for the crowd and both boxers were applauded. The referee called it a draw. Glynn weighed 116 and Choquette 124.

DODGERS CUT LOOSE AND POUND PHILLY PITCHERS

Philadelphia, April 26—Brooklyn spoiled the National League opener for today by beating Philadelphia 14 to 4 in a hard hitting contest. In the opening innings Williams hit a home run scoring Holke ahead of him and putting the Phillies in the lead for a short time. Ring was taken from the mound in the third and Behan suffered a similar fate in the sixth. In this inning High hit a circuit drive for Brooklyn. Score:

BROWNS HUMBLE TIGERS ON COBB'S HOME GROUND

Detroit, April 26.—Thirty-six thousand persons moved down to Navin field today and saw Detroit vanquished by the Sisler-less Browns, 4 to 3. The enlarged grandstands, pavilions and bleachers were jammed to capacity with hundreds sitting or standing around the field. The attendance was 6,000 greater than the previous record opening crowd.

The Tigers were off to a three-run lead in the third on consecutive hits by Haney, Cobb, Veach and Heilmann, coupled with a poor throw by Gerber to the plate. St. Louis went hitless until the fifth when doubles by Severeid and Gerber and a batter hit by a pitched ball gave them two runs. Ken Williams' third home run of the season added another marker in the sixth, while Gerber's second double of the day, followed by Robertson's single brought in the deciding run in the ninth.

COVELESKIE HOLDS WHITE SOX AND INDIANS WIN, 3 TO 0

Chicago, April 26—Stanley Coveleskie pitched airtight ball in the pinches today, while Cleveland hit Faber opportunely and shut out Chicago 3 to 0, before an opening day crowd of approximately 30,000.

Faber was unsteady in the first inning when the Indians bunched three hits with a base on balls and jumped into a two run lead. Wamby's double, a sacrifice and a single netted them the other run. A basket of flowers was presented to Umpire Rowland, the former White Sox manager. The score:

RED SOX DEFEAT YANKS IN OPENER AT BOSTON

Boston, April 26—Boston opened its home season today by defeating New York 6 to 4, the winning run coming in the ninnth on a double by Harris and a single by Burns after New York had tied the score in the final inning. More than 20,000 fans, the largest opening day crowd in ten years, watched Frank Chance make his debut as manager of the Red Sox. Marine from the Charlestown Navy yard drilled before the game and acted as escort to the players of both teams in the march to the flagpole. Governor Cox threw out the first ball and then acted as catchers for Mayor Curley as pitcher in forming the battery that retires Manager Chance on one pitched ball.

Ehmke weakened in the ninth when Scott, Witt and Dugan singled and was succeeded by O'Doul. Two double plays started by Fewster and one by Ward helped to keep the score down. Score:

HARTFORD NOSES OUT PONIES IN SLUGFEST

Hartford, April 26.—Hartford defeated Springfield again here this afternoon, 10 to 9, the game being called after Springfield had batted in the eighth on account of darkness. Twelve extra base hits, half the total number of safeties, were made, including four doubles, six triplets and two home runs.

The score by innings:

Springfield	0	0	0	3	0	6	0	0	—9
Hartford	1	6	0	1	2	0	0	x	—10

Two base hits, Conway, Bernard, Wiley, Dumeau; three base hits, Attreau, Cosgrove (2), Duffy, Demos, Simpson. Home runs, Simpson, Kerr.

MURPHY WINS RAISIN DAY AUTOMOBILE RACE

Fresno, Calif., April 26.—Jimmie Murphy won the 150-mile Raisin Day automobile race here today. His time was one hour, twenty-six minutes and fifty-five seconds. Eddie Hearne finished second, Benny Hill third; Cooper, fourth; Elliott, fifth, and Thomas sixth.

Murphy smashed the track record by averaging 103.61 miles an hour and set new world's records for all distances between one and 150 miles for a one-mile track.

GIANTS OPEN SEASON AT POLO GROUNDS WITH VICTORY OVER THE BOSTON BRAVES

New York, April 26—The New York Nationals opened their home season here today with a hard fought 7 to 3 victory over the Boston club. The game was a freakish affair and full of unusual incidents, Boston made only one fluke hit off Nehf and Ryan, a bounder by Boeckel through Groh's legs in the fourth inning. All three of Boston's runs resulted from errors.

Marquard was backed with remarkable support, five double plays being made behind him. His club led until two were out in the eighth, when New York started a rally in which the Giants bunched six hits for ten bases and scored six runs. First baseman Kelly of New York handled 21 putouts.

Mayor John F. Hylan threw out the first ball, which the game was preceded by the usual parade and flag raising. Before the game Commissioner of Baseball, Landis, presented diamond rings to all the New York players, trophies of their world championship victory of last October. Umpire Barry McCormicken one of the officials of the last world's series, was presented with a diamond studded watch fob, a world's series souvenir.

Before the flag raising the crowd called on Landis to bring Mathewson, the new Boston president, to the plate. Landis escorted Mathewson from his box near the Boston dugout and the former New York idol was tendered one of the greatest ovations ever given a New York player.

Other guests of honor were Governor George Silzer of New Jersey, Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, John Heydler, president of the National League, John K. Tener, former president of the National League and Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Americans.

TO RESUME NEGOTIATIONS IN DEMPSEY-GIBBONS MATCH

Chicago, April 26—Negotiations for a championship match between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul challenger, at Shelby, Mont., July 4, will be resumed here tomorrow with the expected arrival of Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion.

Kearns will meet L. J. Molumby, representing American legion posts of Montana, and Mike Collins of Minneapolis, who is associated with Molumby in promoting the proposed contest. Molumby and Collins were due to arrive here tonight by airplane from Minneapolis. Molumby started in his plane from Shelby Wednesday morning, stopping at Minneapolis to pick up Collins.

The Shelby promoter has a certified check for $100,000 to post as a guarantee that the contest will be held.

BOXING GETTING FOREIGN HOLD

Boxing still is spreading, particularly in the Latin countries. Luis Firpo's success has made the sport popular in South America for the first time. Now that the senorita enthusiasm have become interested they are the most rabid fans in the world. Mexico is the latest country to take to boxing. Recently a battle between the ancient Sim Langdon and Kid Savage for the heavyweight championship of Mexico was staged in the bull ring at Mexico City, and the once famous Boston "Tar Baby" knocked out Savage in the first round. A bout between two obscure lightweights that went 51 rounds a few weeks ago started the craze for boxing in Mexico.

WEBB PITCHES HILLIES TO VICTORY OVER WORCESTER

Pittsfield, Mass., April 26.—Earl Webb, former Memphis twirler, turned over to Pittsfield by the New York Nationals under optional agreement, reported today and pitched the home club to a 10 to 2 victory over Worcester here this afternoon. The visitors threatened only once, that being in the second inning when they filled the bases with one out. Webb fanned the next two batters. Umpire Dreslin banished Shay and Kennedy from the game for disputing decisions. The hitting of Bosse featured. The score by innings:

Pittsfield	1	2	1	0	0	3	2	0	x—10

Two base hits, Bosse, Anderson, Stapleton; three base hits, Leathers, Bosse.

ONE MORE TEAM SIGNS FOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE

On Thursday night one more team was enrolled in the proposed Twilight league. This team was the East Ends, a fast bunch of the younger players of the Preston section of the city. The East Ends are very enthusiastic over the league and are planning to put a fast team in the field.

Some of the teams that are considering entering the league are the Connecticut company team and Harry Weisner's Norwich A. A. The Norwich A. will definitely decide today whether they will enter the league. There has been some talk that the Colonials would enter the league, or a team from the American Woolen plant at Thamesville.

OVER 3,000 ATHLETES ON WAY TO PHILLY

Philadelphia, April 26.—More than 3,000 college and high school athletes for all sections of the country either were here tonight or on their way to compete in the Pennsylvania relay carnival tomorrow and Saturday.

Franklin field was crowded today with athletes taking their final workouts. The Oxford university runners, who have been here since Sunday, held the attention of most of the onlookers.

The youngsters from Hamilton Collegiate Institute, Canada, Cedar Rapids, Chicago, Buffalo and Virginia high or preparatory schools, most of whom are entered in tomorrow's events, also had their final practice today.

WATERBURY TRIMS ALBANY FOR THE SECOND TIME

Albany, April 26—Waterbury made it two straight over Albany today, winning by a score of 5 to 1. Waterbury fielded sharply behind Thompson, while Albany gave Thoomahlen poor support.

Score by innings:

Waterbury	2	0	1	0	0	2	0	0	—5
Albany	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—1

Two base hits, McCorry, Long.

PROFS TAKE ANOTHER FROM BRIGEPORT

New Haven, April 26—The champions made it two straight over Bridgeport here today, winning 6 to 3. Seven bunched hits in the second and third innings gave New Haven all its runs. The fielding of Osborn and Mathog was a feature. The score:

New Haven ..... 0 3 3 0 0 0 0 0 x—6

Two base hits: Mathog, Hyman. Three base hits: Rodriguez, Bowman Wilson. Cleary and Smith, Hyman and Withrow.

AUGUST LOSES ON FOUL TO FRANCE

Bridgeport, April 26—Pete August, of Bridgeport, state lightweight champion, lost the decision on a foul in the third round of a scheduled 12-round bout with Earl France, of San Francisco, here tonight.

In the semi-final, Jim Bones, of Bridgeport, defeated Spike Marino, of New Haven in a fast 8- round bout. They are bantams.

FOURNIER FIRM IN HIS REFUSAL TO JOIN DODGERS

St. Louis, April 26—Jacques Fournier, first baseman tonight reiterated his refusal to report to the Brooklyn Nationals where he was traded by the St. Louis club, following a conference with Larry Sutton, Brooklyn scout, who asked him to reconsider. Fournier said the only reason for his refusal was that playing ball here would interfere with his private business in St. Louis.

M'KNIGHT'S ALL COLLEGIANS AT ACADEMY TODAY

Bill McKnight's All-Collegians will clash in a practice game at the campus today with the Academy team. McKnight has gathered a likely bunch of ball tossers that will give the schoolboys a busy afternoon. McKnight will probably do the pitching, but the rest of the lineup has been kept a secret.

THE SUMMER TIME SCHEDULE.

The action of the industries, stores, banks and other institutions in deciding to adopt daylight saving time for the summer is a step that will keep the community in harmony with railroad time, the mails and other cities. States that surround Connecticut are for the most part on daylight saving time and it is the sensible thing for Connecticut cities to join with them in order to keep on the same basis [illegible] avoidable confusion.

Just now [illegible] to step with the legislature in going on a summer schedule for such time as it will control, that session next month.

With the putting into effect of daylight saving time in New York and in the Massachusetts communities [illegible] like Norwich. There are those who will not change their clocks, but the number there are [illegible] which will make little difference whether the city is observing daylight saving or not.

Where the new schedule will be effective there will be a decided advantage in the business districts. This additional hour of daylight will simply make it possible for many to change daily custom which prevails throughout the remainder of the year, although an hour of the day is being saved by the operation, it does away with the confusion that comes from pursuing the routine an hour ahead instead of accomplishing the same thing by a simple change which serves that time comes to return to the winter schedule.

It is therefore well to remember that the time change becomes effective April 29. Norwich is keeping with most of the Connecticut cities and joins the procession [illegible] with a sentiment which has been repeatedly expressed by the townspeople. Push your clocks ahead an hour and forget it until the last of September.

BRAZIL AND NEW ENGLAND.

In connection with the development of a bigger trade between this country and South American countries it was an important message which W. I. Bullard of Boston, a former eastern Connecticut man brought to the attention of the cotton manufacturers this week at Providence when he discussed the possibilities of Brazil as a source of long staple cotton and a field for the sale of cotton mill machinery.

Mr. Bullard has recently returned from a study of that country, where he declares there are millions of acres of land available for the production of cotton and where cotton manufacture is poorly developed. Brazil produces a quality of cotton that is always in demand. The demand for the long staple quality is always greater than the supply and even with such a development as is possible in Brazil he sees no reason why it should affect [illegible] out a similar production as in this country.

When he brings home the statement that there [illegible] Brazil for a [illegible] between that country and New England he directs attention to opportunities which [illegible] for the output of New England cotton machinery producers. [illegible] has made [illegible] manufacturers [illegible] many [illegible] out a similar [illegible] country.

Brazil [illegible] develop [illegible] it is one [illegible] the United States [illegible] trade relations. [illegible] awakening in that direction among the last few years [illegible] existed before [illegible] cotton it is probable that Mr. Bullard has stressed some points. His statement adds a new [illegible] of a new market for our goods as well as the source of much desired raw material. All depends of course on development in Brazil and our readiness to make [illegible]

GARY'S IMMIGRATION IDEAS.

When the statement was recently made by Judge Gary of the steel corporation concerning immigration the impression was gained in some directions that he was opposed to all immigration restriction and that he was for pulling down the barriers to the unrestricted entrance of foreigners.

Because of this impression Judge Gary has found it necessary to take exceptions to any such interpretation of his statements. Instead of being for unrestricted immigration he believes that there should be restrictions. He deplored the immigration law "as passed" because he believes that the restrictions are too severe. He believes that the restrictions should apply to quality rather than to the number of immigrants coming here and says "Measures for limiting the numbers of immigrants to those who are clearly shown to be healthy, morally, physically and politically, ought to be clear, strict and enforceable, but the number allowed to come here should be equal to the necessities of our industries."

That differs from interpretations placed upon his previous statement. He indicates a preference for actually keeping out the undesirables but for an elastic immigration law that will restrict the incoming number in accord with the industrial requirements. This might mean the putting up of the bars when there was unemployment and dropping them as the demands for labor increased. His aim is to avoid shutting off the big source of common labor, but such a plan would also awaken opposition from those who are fearful of the effects of any scheme to encourage immigration. There are without question many who take much the same view that Judge Gary does because of the known difficulties connected with the obtaining of labor for industrial activities.

FOR HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER.

By the submission of the name of John A. Macdonald to the legislature for confirmation as highway commissioner as successor to Commissioner Bennett, Governor Templeton has picked a man with engineering qualifications for the job. He has from all indications picked a man of similar type to the commissioner he will succeed and the loss of whose services the state regrets.

Macdonald is a name that is closely identified with roadbuilding in the state of Connecticut, although it doesn't happen that the former commissioner and the appointee are in any way related. Nevertheless valued experience was gained by the latter during the commissionership days of the former in roadbuilding work.

Governor Templeton fully understands the requirements of the office. He realizes that the job involves the handling of a large sum of money and the investing of it in good roads on which the whole state is bound to pass judgment. The demand is of course for an efficient commissioner whose object will be giving the state the best possible results in the way of new and maintained roads.

It may be that Mr. Macdonald has yet to demonstrate just what he can do as a road builder but there is nevertheless confidence in the attitude of the governor in filling the office and in the ability of the appointee. It was believed that Connecticut had sufficient material for filling the job from within the state and the governor's selection gives assurance of it.

Having been selected on merit, this end of state where he was born and which has watched his progress with interest will be as confident of his success as it is that the appointment will be approved by the legislature.

GUN RANGE DECISION.

The outcome of the effort to enlarge the gun ranges on the 12 battleships of our navy is that nothing is to be done until congress has a chance to reconsider the matter under the existing facts.

When congress acted and authorized the money for the change it had before it information which was considered to be correct, but which has subsequently been found to be wrong. Though efforts to have verified what was supposed to be correct were not successful in advance of congressional action, it has since been pointed out by the British government. That correction has been accepted and now the decision of the government as announced by Secretary Denby of the navy department is to refuse to take advantage of funds which were obtained through, or by the use of, unintentionally false information.

The country realizes that it is setting an example whatever action it takes. It is better to refrain from proceeding to change the gun ranges, even though it might not technically conflict with the treaty, than to give the opportunity for others to claim that we were using false facts in order to circumvent the naval agreement.

The decision will delay any work on the ships but we will have the satisfaction of knowing that we are not encouraging others to go behind the treaty. Such an example may prove better than the alteration of the ranges.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Remember the special town meeting tonight. It is too important to overlook.

The big question of the next two weeks is whether last season's straw hat is still serviceable.

James J. Larkin says he is going back to Ireland. He never could stay away from trouble.

The man on the corner says: One of the surprises of the day is that spuds don't acquire an airplane.

Just as soon as the government attempts to keep out of business there are those who persist in forcing it to return to it.

Although construction prices are high, about the best the shipping board can do with some of its vessels is to give them away.

The little white schoolhouses that are not being reoccupied are in some instances reflecting the trend of the times by being converted into use as garages.

There was a time when a driver could get 40 winks and the horse would guide himself. Let the auto driver attempt it and he must expect to get hurt.

The loss from strikes in this country last year totalled $2,500,000,000. How much better it would have been for everyone to have come to an amicable understanding?

Those coal producers who declared they resisted the opportunities to profiteer would have made a better impression had it not been necessary to name fuel administrators and to restrict prices.

When it is shown that the liquor drawn from bonded warehouses for medicinal purposes (?) was millions of gallons less than the previous year does it mean that booch and smuggled goods are taking its place?

USUAL REBELLION

"Well," beamed the energetic housewife, as the hard-working husband came home from his day's toil, "our house is totally cleaned from top to bottom! I'm all through! Everything is in its place and now we can settle down and be happy!"

"Don't jest about impossibilities," protested the hard-working husband, glancing about suspiciously. "Say! Where are my canes that always stood in this corner of the hall?"

"Now, see here, Gubbage Evermore!" cried the energetic housewife tartly, "don't you begin that! Those canes have stood there since the year one and you haven't used one of them since before that! You would be just as awkward with a can on the boulevard as you would with a coat of mail and sword!"

"That's all you know about it," the hard-working husband said aggrievedly. "Just lately I've been thinking about carrying a cane like other men and now you've spoiled it. Say, where's the hall tree for my hat and coat?"

"Nobody has used those things for centuries," she informed him. "I've humored you long enough and it won't hurt you to walk around back of the stairs and put your things in that closet!"

"I can't see in there!" indignantly declared the hard-working husband. "I couldn't tell my coat from the side of the house. When I come home tired I don't want to walk half a mile so I'll just lay them on this hall table."

"You can't," explained the energetic housewife. "Why don't you bring down your collars and toothbrush and hat brush and put them there, too, so they'll be nice and handy? I declare."

"What the mischief has happened to the reading table?" excitedly demanded the hard-working husband, progressing onward through his domain. "It looks skinned. Three thin magazines, a vase with one flower in it and a china box. Where's my dictionary, the third volume of that history and my tobacco and—"

"That table has driven me crazy for months," declared the energetic housewife firmly. "It looked like a dump heap of some sort that had been forgotten. It was the sort of thing you wanted to forget, too. Horrid old ashes and crumpled tobacco and lop-eared books and everything. I wouldn't be ashamed to have anyone see that table now."

"What have you done with my clothes? Where's my old coat and—"

"Now, Gubbage," patiently began the energetic housewife, who was following around after him, "those things simply couldn't clutter up your closet until they dropped in pieces from their hangers! I never saw such looking things as that old coat and several pairs of trousers and a lot of stuff that you have always insisted you wanted and which you never wore—"

"Never wore?" cried her indignant husband. "Just because I didn't put them on every day is no sign I couldn't use 'em! Suppose I wanted to do some repair work around the place—"

"You haven't even driven a tack since we moved in here," pointed out the energetic housewife. "We have a man to take care of the furnace."

"This closet looks bare. I am sure I had more clothes than this. Where's all the boxes that were on the shelves with my good hats and things like that—"

"There were seven boxes in there," admitted his wife, "and when I opened them the latest hat in them was five years old. Every season you make me put away your hat, saying it can just as well as not be cleaned up next year and do to start out in, and every year you come home wearing a brand-new straw or felt and you look vague and dazed when I remind you of the one you had stowed away for use the year before. I gave them all away. Every one. I tell you I've been housecleaning!"

"Well, I don't see any sense in it," grumbled the hard-working husband, getting ready for dinner. "It doesn't seem like home and I can't find anything and you haven't left much of anything to find. I can't see that it looks any cleaner than it did all the time. There's no use in it at all."

"That's what every living husband always says" soothed the energetic housewife, finding a towel for him the glass her having been moved also. "You'll get used to it, Gubbage!"—Exchange.

Wives of Famous Men

Elizabeth Checkley, Wife of Samuel Adams.

A woman who serves as a marked contrast to the weakness and helplessness of Lady Cornwallis was Elizabeth Checkley, wife of the great statesman and economist of early colonial days, Samuel Adams. During those years of America's childhood women as well as men had all too frequent opportunities to show their mettle, and Elizabeth Adams, according to her husband and daughter, revealed herself nobly.

Mrs. Adams was the daughter of a clergyman who owed his position to the father of Samuel Adams, and the friends rejoiced when their children united the two families. Elizabeth, although accomplished in all those housewifely virtues that so delighted the women of colonial days, was more than merely a housekeeper. She was a gracious hostess, a perfectly poised gentlewoman. Her fortitude and wisdom in distress bore witness to her thoroughbred training. She was universally loved and adored by her husband and children, to whom she was extremely devoted.

For all her elegance and charm she was a quiet, pious woman of a retiring disposition, to a brief comment of her daughters we learn much about the mother.

"A rare example of virtue and piety, blended with a retiring and modest demeanor of the charms of elegant womanhood."

An ideal clergyman's daughter, Elizabeth Adams became an ideal patriot's wife. She was a wife in the true sense of the homemaker, counselor, adviser. She was spurred, unbeknown, by the eight years after her marriage. At the pathetically early age of 32 she succumbed to a fever raging in the colonies.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Remonstrates at Spoiling Thoroughfare.

Mr. Editor: In regard to the "so-called improvements" of Laurel Hill, I feel that I must remonstrate at the intended destruction of this delightful thoroughfare.

Everyone knows that trees beautify any locality and many places which are ordinary are brought into prominence on account of the beauty of their trees. At one time Laurel Hill compared favorably with Broadway and Washington street, visitors to town always drove over this section, and one and all acclaimed it—with its graceful hills, beautiful trees and fields of laurel—the choice section of the Rose of New England. To remove the trees will be the death knell of this place—then all we will have left "to remove" will be the disfiguring signs which announce "You are now entering the Rose of New England."

The people of the Hill are law-abiding, industrious, highly respectable, and last but not least, heavy tax payers. Why then can't we have a little consideration shown us? The people of this section desire neither the new cement road or the trolley line—but the macadam road kept in good repair—and might we also suggest that a comfortable bus run at convenient intervals from Franklin square to the state hospital would be most acceptable and also a money-making proposition.

A TAX PAYER OF THE HILL.
Norwich, April 26, 1923.

Surprised at No Hearing on Laurel Hill Trees.

Mr. Editor: I want to add my protest to the wanton destruction of the trees that is planned in connection with the proposed improvement of Laurel Hill avenue.

The improvement of the highway is needed, but there doesn't appear the necessity for moving the trolley tracks or of removing the trees.

I am greatly surprised that the city government should undertake such a change, contemplating the cutting down of so many fine trees, and as I understand certain changes in the grade, without having a hearing on the matter.

Why hasn't there been a hearing called on the removal of the trees and some consideration given to the modification of the plan which seems to have been agreed upon?

The idea of offering free trees for those removed is apparently an afterthought and no more or less than a joke.

LAUREL HILL TAXPAYER.

Taught School for 56 Cents a Week.

Mr. Editor: In Lloyd P. Ayer's letter, lately published in The Bulletin, giving the wages of school teachers in gone-by days, I notice one Mrs. Laura Hazen employed at $2 per week. The said Laura Hazen was the wife of William Hazen—my father's brother. But I can go him one better than that. My father's sister, Nabby Emeline Hazen, taught the school on Portipaug Hill, then in Franklin—now Sprague—for fifty-six cents per week and boarded at home. Her father was Simeon Hazen, who lived under three forms of government, in three different townships, and always resided on the farm where he was born.

Yours,
C. L. HAZEN.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Founded 21 years ago in a little log cabin by Miss Martha Berry in a grove near her home at Rome, Ga., the Berry schools at the annual commencement exercises beginning today will graduate the largest senior class in their history. The graduates will join the ranks of the other hundreds of mountain boys and girls who were educated in the Berry schools and have gone back to the home communities to carry on the cause of education among their own people. A native of Georgia, Miss Berry, the founder of this unique philanthropy, received her education in a private school at Baltimore, supplemented by extensive European travel. In 1902 she founded the industrial school for poor white boys and six years later established a similar school for girls. From the log cabin, the Berry schools have grown in 21 years to an institution whose enrollment this year is more than 500 boys and girls, who come largely from the mountains and foothills of Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama and the Carolinas.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The Lapps.

A Lapp "ambassador" from the Swedish north country who recently visited the king of Sweden to complain that Swedish frontiersmen threaten the existence of his people by interfering with pasturage for their reindeer, reintroduces these rovers of the Arctic to a world that had almost forgotten them. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society tells something of what it terms "these queer little folk who live under the rays of the midnight sun—and the darkness of the winter midday."

"The Lapps are bred-in-the-bone internationalists," says the bulletin. "Like Papago Indians of Arizona and Mexico and the forest dwellers along the Brazilian-Peruvian line, they have a lofty disregard for political boundaries: they not only cross as they see fit, but take great herds of reindeer with them, pasturing them today in Sweden and tomorrow in Norway with scant ceremony.

"The Lappland of the maps spreads into four distinct countries: Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia. Once the Lapps paid no attention whatever to any of the boundary lines in their region. But Russian and Finnish boundaries were eventually closed officially against Norway and Sweden; and while some straggling still takes place, the larger movements were stopped. Norway and Sweden, however, take official cognizance of the needs of their nomadic joint-citizens, and have a treaty agreement whereby Lapps may cross from Sweden in summer and move to Norway's northwest coast, and in the winter may cross from Norway to inland Sweden.

"Aside from the real dwarf peoples, such as pygmies of central Africa, the Lapps are the smallest people in the eastern hemisphere. Their average height is in the neighborhood of four feet, seven inches—a physical condition ascribed to the age-long wanderings of their ancestors in the frozen, cheerless regions of the north. It even been suggested that the Lapps were the first inhabitants of the frozen zone after the great glacial sheet of the ice age receded and made northern Europe habitable. Many centuries ago they are supposed to have lived throughout the Scandinavian peninsula, but with the arrival of other peoples they were forced farther north.

"The reindeer is the typical animal of Lapland, and about it their life has centered for ages. It carries them upon its back and draws their loads, gives them milk and cheese and meat for food, clothes them with its skins, and furnishes materials for implements and utensils from its bones. The typical life of a Lapplander has ever been that of a nomadic herder, living in tents and following his herds to new locations when seasonal changes and pasturage necessities dictated.

"The Lapps have been decreasing in numbers in late years, and 'Lappland' is now far from being a land peopled predominantly by Lapps, and still less by Lapp nomads. In Swedish Lappland, for example, only about seven per cent. of the inhabitants are Lapps. It is the pushing in of a more settled life that has made life so hard for the roving aborigines. And there has been a desertion of nomadism by some Lapps. Where once 'Lapp' and 'reindeer herdsmen' were synonymous, there are now numerous settled, agricultural Lapps; and others who fish for a living. Some have turned miner in the rich iron fields of Swedish Lappland.

"Christianity was taken to the Lapps only in the last few centuries, and there are observers who still question whether their somewhat confused religious ideas are more strongly marked by Christian or pagan practices. The Russian Lapps especially seem to insist on thoroughgoing pragmatism in their religion. It is told of those along the Arctic coast that they make offerings at the shrine of Boris Glob when starting on a fishing expedition, and that if they are unsuccessful they straightway retrieve their offerings! These same Russian Lapps, up to a few decades ago, preferred to steal their brides from an enemy or a stranger rather than to obtain her by purchase or persuasion.

"The United States is largely indebted to Lapps for an important and rapidly growing industry. The first efforts to introduce reindeer into Alaska were not very successful because of a lack of expert knowledge in breeding, and her management. Several score Lapps were induced to go to Alaska to take charge of the enterprise in 1898, and their skill gave reindeer raising there a great boost. The natives learned from the Lapps, and now hundreds of thousands of reindeer in A'aska are turning otherwise useless moss into food and clothing materials for the territory and 'the states' as well."

FRECKLES

Now Is The Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine — double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Stories That Recall Others

Worldly Wise.

A girl of high school age walked into a grocery recently, chewing gum with an apparent relish, and tossing her head saucily.

"What will it be for you?" asked the clerk.

"Well, gimme a can of beans, 'n a coupla pounds o' potatoes, 'n a head o' cabbage, 'n I guess that's all," was her order.

"How in the world did you remember all that?" a bystander asked.

Oh, I don't live very far from here. I keep it in my noodle."

Enterprise.

This six-year-old had made where he wanted to make mud pies. Nothing else would do. He went his mother and asked for some water to do the mixing.

She didn't like the idea of having him get all daubed up with the mud so she refused to give him any.

Not to be balked in his ambition he proceeded to get a bottle and went to the church, got some holy water and made his mud pies.

HARRY RICHARDS, prominent Philadelphia business man, says he will no longer be cheated out of meals by stomach trouble, for tanlac has put him back in fine condition.

"No more will I be cheated out of the good things to eat, for the Tanlac treatment has overcome my stomach trouble completely and I have also gained eight pounds," declared Harry Richards, 10 S Fifth St., Philadelphia, well known sporting goods dealer and member of the Loyal Order of Moose and the Ocean City Beach members.

"I was in such awful shape with indigestion that I had to lay off three and four days a week, unable to do any work. After eating my stomach would pain me till I was in agony, my head would feel like it was in a press and my heart would flutter till I'd have to gasp for breath, and I was generally annoyed by fearful dizzy spells.

"Mr. W. H. Williams put me on Tanlac and now I never suffer from any of my old troubles. I attend to business every day, and am bursting with new energy. Tanlac helped me when all else failed, and I'm glad to endorse it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

DIME SAVINGS BANK CELEBRATED $4,000,000 MARK

On Saturday the directors of the Dime Savings Bank of Norwich, including the president and treasurer, and also the assistant treasurer and secretary, enjoyed a delightful luncheon at the Wauregan house in celebration of the passage of the deposits of the savings bank above the $4,000,000 limit. It was also in honor of the birthday of F. L. Woodard, the treasurer of the bank, which happened at almost the same time. Mr. Woodard was presented a large basket of roses and received the congratulations and best wishes of all the officers of the bank as well as their commendation for his long and efficient services. It was noted that he has been in the services of the bank since 1878. The president, Judge Gardiner Greene, also has been a director since 1883.

The Dime Savings bank passed the $3,000,000 limit in 1912 and is one of the most prosperous as well as the most conservatively managed savings banks in the state.

Dinner by Relief Corps.

The dinner of the Community house preceding the convention to a delightful close for the comrades. The tables were attractively decorated with flowers and pink carnation boutonnieres were provided. Geer's orchestra rendered a snappy musical programme and the women of Sedgwick Relief Corps, who served the dinner, saw that every want of the inner man was provided for with the following menu:

Grapefruit
Celery	Radishes Rolls
Meat Pie
Mashed Potatoes	Mashed Turnips
Pumpkin Pie	Cheese
Coffee	Cigars

About 300 were seated at the tables, of whom about 100 were the G. A. R. comrades and the remainder the members of Clara Barton tent, Daughters of Veterans, and the members of the relief corps.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts said grace and after the last course Comrade James Haggerty made one of his characteristic, bright, graceful and humorous speeches in expressing thanks to the ladies. Comrade Morgan Atwater of New Haven was called on for a recitation on "The G. A. R. Never Dies," which he gave to great applause.

The dinner was served under direction of the executive committee of Sedgwick W. R. C., which also served the refreshments at the reception given Tuesday evening.

As the comrades departed for their homes they were unanimous in declaring that they should long remember the Norwich encampment and cherish delightful memories of the cordial welcome that had been given them in this city.

The roster of posts in the state shows that Admiral Foote post of New Haven with 144 members is the largest and Henry C. Merwin post of New Haven, with two members is the smallest. The following is the roster and membership:

BOSTON MISSION WORKER CENTRAL BAPTIST SPEAKER

Several new members were welcomed into the Central Baptist church Thursday evening at the weekly prayer service. The members of the church with guests from the First Baptist church enjoyed a rare treat at the close of the meeting when Mrs. Frances Campbell of Boston told of some of the experiences she had passed through in her 15 years as a City Mission worker among the foreign born residents in the poor section of that city.

The wide story of her work showed the difficulties under which the mission was conducted, how religious prejudice, racial prejudice, and the distrust of the parents many times caused the children to forsake the mission, many times against their will, for fear of beatings they would receive and did receive at the hands of their parents.

As told by Mrs. Campbell the truth was brought home stronger than ever before and the congregation realized as never before what just a little bit of sunshine, a touch of religion, or the loving care of the missionary at home, can mean to the life of these love-starved children of Boston.

At the close of her talk Mrs. Campbell was given a rising vote of thanks and later met with the deacons of the church to discuss local problems similar to those with which she has so successfully contended with in her home city.

NORWICH SAILOR DIES IN BOSTON HOSPITAL

Anthony J. Medico, 19, first class seaman on the U. S. S. Florida, died late Thursday morning in the hospital at Boston from injuries received in a fall down a hatchway on the ship last Monday. He was the son of Anthony and Amelia Medico of 13 Cove street, this city.

Seaman Medico received a fractured skull and other severe injuries and was taken to the hospital where he was operated on but his injuries were too severe for recovery. He had been in the navy since 1920 and would have received his discharge next June. He had made a fine record and had a creditable rating for his service.

He was born in this city and besides his parents is survived by three sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Victoria Mazaynsk, of Manistte, Mich., and Amelia, Gertrude, George, Bronco and Felix all of this city.

SLIPPED OUT OF WINDOW WHEN THOUGHT ASLEEP

Michael Chingo, 17, who has been living with his uncle's family at 72 Division street, was reported to the police Thursday night to be missing from home with a suit case and most of his clothes. Members of the family said that he got out of a window while they supposed he was in bed and they believed he had headed for New London and might make for Albany, N. Y. He has a father in Westerly.

The police were asked to look for him and a warning was sent out to New London and Westerly.

Memorial Mass For Lucien Cormier.

A memorial mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Memorial church Thursday morning at 7.30 o'clock for Lucien Cormier who died one year ago. Miss Sadie Driscoll sang during the mass. In attendance were Sisters of the parish and members of the family of the deceased.

PAID ELOQUENT TRIBUTE ON MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM

An eloquent address by Max Hanover was a feature of the Mother's Day programme conducted Thursday evening at the Buckingham Memorial by Rose of New England lodge, No. 393, B'Nai Brith, in joint meeting with Auxiliary No. 40.

Mr. Hanover spoke upon a mother's hope and her work in life, referring with deep feeling to the debt which men owe to their mothers and declared that the character of a man may be truly judged by his feeling towards his own mother, and towards the mothers of other men—of all men. In conclusion he called upon all to order their lives to be worthy of their mothers; to aspire to give them the greatest measure of human happiness by living the pure moral lives they would have us live and to emulate their example of kindness, unselfishness and love in relations with the rest of mankind.

The programme opened with America, which was followed by the ritual exercises for Mother's Day, conducted by President Harry Salomon and the officers.

The following completed the programme: Music, Wonderful Pal, Mrs. A. H. Manes; an acrostic, by six children, directed by Miss Augusta Shereshevsky; address, Max Hanover, recitation, Somebody's Mother, Miss Miriam Goldberg; recitation, When Mother Rubs It In, Miss Dorothy Pasnik; music, The Star Spangled Banner.

Refreshments were served. Flowers from the meeting were sent to the tuberculosis sanatorium and ice cream to the Backus hospital.

The committee in charge consisted of A. Levine, H. Sears, H. Salomon, M. Thune, J. Greenstein, M. Hanover, and G. Greenberger, assisted by Mrs. I. Rabinovitch, Mrs. A. H. Manes, Mrs. A. Pasnik, Miss Ethel Goldberg and Miss L. Shereshevsky.

THREAT OF INJUNCTION AGAINST SCHOOL BOARD

A petition against daylight saving time for the schools of the town is being circulated for signatures and has the backing of G. Warren Davis, and others of the die-hards on the anti-daylight savings.

The petition is directed to the town school board and it is understood that the purpose is to get 1,000 signatures with which to make a possible appearance before the superior court to get an injunction restraining the Norwich school board from putting a daylight saving schedule into effect.

The petition is as follows:

Gentlemen:

We, the undersigned citizens of the Town of Norwich, hereby protest the proposed observance in our public schools of so-called daylight saving time as arranged by the town school committee. We protest for the following reasons:

First—That the proposed time schedule is contrary to both state and national laws.

Second—That the health of children is injured from being required to follow such a time schedule.

Third—That there is absolutely no justification for inculcating lawlessness and confusion as inevitable springs from such leadership.

Fourth—That because of lawlessness and confusion thus induced the morale of all citizens suffers a degeneration that is portentious.

Police Court Case

Anthony Barbetto, whose place at 82 Water street, was raided by the police Wednesday night on a liquor violation warrant, was before the police court Thursday morning and had his case nolled, making the promise to the court to get out of the business in a week. In the raid a glass containing what was believed to be liquor was dumped before the police could seize it as evidence.

SHERMAN TAKES FIRST IN COLONIAL CLUB PINOCHLE

High scores were the rule rather than the exception in Tuesday evening's play in the Colonial club pinochle tournament, and as a result Sherman takes first prize, Pierson second prize and Higgins third prize. Sherman was high man for the evening with a score of 8,875 and R. B. S. Washburn was low with score of 5,665.

Scores for the evening: Sherman 8,875; Kenefick 8,550; Tracy 8,550; Harwood 8,465; Huntington 8,005; Oat playing for Davis 8,005; Lamb playing for T. G. Washburn 7,545; Higgins 7,345; Willis 7,210; Royce, 6,850; Pierson 6,580; Church 6,495; Amburn 6,455; Allen 6,385, McNaught 5,670; 5,665.

Final scores: Sherman 65,075, Pierson 65,190; Higgins 65,175; Harwood 65,065; Huntington 65,035; Tracy 64,905; Kenefick 64,700; Amburn 63,275; R. B. S. Washburn 63,035; Allen 62,500; McNaught 62,155; Church 61,820; T. G. Washburn 61,050; Willis 61,040; Davis, 59,425; Royce 59,220.

Tuesday evening's play completed the tournament of a series of nine evenings, and beginning with next Monday evening and for three successive Monday evenings the twelve members of the West Side Pinochle club will play a series of games with twelve players of The Colonial club. There is a lively interest among the members of the two clubs as to the outcome of such a contest, and a general good time will, no doubt, result.

TO DEFER MODERNIZATION OF THE OLDER NAVAL SHIPS

Washington, April 26.—Modernization of the older ships of the American fleet will await specific authority of congress, Secretary Denby announced today, and the navy department will abandon for the time being the programme which it considers may have been approved under a misapprehension of the situation.

The secretary's decision, which was said to have the approval of President Harding, was regarded as closing the incident created through the protest of the British embassy against statements made before congressional committees when the department was seeking appropriations for installing post-war improvements in the battleships. Navy officials then asserted that no criticism of the work could be made as contravening the five power naval treaty since Great Britain had completed similar alterations. This was denied by the embassy.

As a result of today's decision the $6,500,000 appropriated by the last congress for gun elevation will be left in the treasury and refunded at the end of the fiscal year as "unexpended money."

RUM-RUNNERS HAVE EASY TIME ON LONG ISLAND

Mineola, N. Y., April 26.—Municipal officials in towns along Great South Bay and bordering on the various creeks in Nassau county tonight disclaimed knowledge of rum-runners in their midst, although H. C. Starr, assistant collector of customs in New York, today advised county officials that the runners had transferred their base of operations from Highlands, N. J. to Freeport, Baldwin and other Long Island points.

Sheriff Kelsey who was advised to keep a close watch for the liquor smugglers said, however, that his force was inadequate to cope with the situation.

Men who said they were "friends of the bootleggers" also intimated that the runners were having an easy time of it along the Long Island coast and that their base of ... had successfully fooled authorities in the towns.

MAKES REGULATIONS FOR HANDLING FINANCES IN SCHOOL DISTRICTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 26.—A bill on the calendar passed today in the house makes it definite the way in which school monies shall be expended. It determines the form in which estimates must be made, allows of transfers from one department to another and the form of the report of the expenditures. The act applies to every town in the state and takes effect upon its passage. This will compel the estimates submitted to the annual town meeting, to be held this fall, to follow this form:

Section 1. The board of school visitors, town school committee or board of education in each city, town or school district, as the case may be, shall prepare an itemized estimate of the cost of maintenance of public schools for the ensuing year and shall submit such estimate to the board of finance in each town having a board of finance and to the board of selectmen in each town having no board of finance, and in any city having no board of finance then to the authority making appropriations therein, at least one month before the annual meeting at which appropriations are made.

Sec. 2. The money appropriated by any city, town or school district for the maintenance of public schools shall be expended by and in the discretion of the board of school visitors, town school committee or board of education. Any such board or committee may transfer any item of any appropriation for school purposes, or any part thereof, to any other item of such itemized estimate.

Sec. 3. Expenditures by the board of school visitors, town school committee or board of education in each city, town or school district, as the case may be, shall not exceed the appropriation made by the city, town or school district, with such money as may be received from other sources for school purposes.

Sec. 4. The annual report of the board of school visitors, town school committee or board of education shall include a summary showing (a) the total cost of the maintenance of schools; (b) the amount received from the state and other sources for the maintenance of schools and (c) the net cost to the town, city or school district of the maintenance of schools.

The bill concerning the giving of bonds in the sale of real estate was amended by the exclusion of national banks as they were not amendable to Connecticut law.

The bill as reported by the appropriation committee for the board of fisheries and game, was passed without dissent. It provides for the purchase of a boat for use in the protection of the lobster industry.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 11.15 by Speaker Nickerson.

Favorable reports were received on reimbursing Doctor Walter M. Hawkes for services rendered to the U. S. N.

Judgeship Appointments

Communications from the governor nominated Elliot Watrous to be judge and Arthur W. Chambers deputy judge of the city court of New Haven. All bills passed by the senate were placed upon the calendar. A favorable report was made on the claim of Col. Henry A. Dorsey of New London.

Fish and Game Laws

At 11.15 the order of the day, the bill codifying the fish and game laws was taken up. Amendments correcting typographical and clerical errors were offered by Chair House of the fish and game committee and were adopted. Mr. Sisskey of Enfield offered an amendment striking out that part that prohibits aliens from obtaining a Hunter's license or the use of fire arms. He claimed that the section was unconstitutional in that it deprived aliens of their rights under the constitution. House Leader Buckley had not learned that any alien had such rights. He has not and is not entitled to them. Wheeler of Stratford and Andrews of Danbury opposed the amendment. Darbie of Killingly said that he had spent an entire afternoon in a study of the bill and he failed to see where anyone was deprived of any rights under the constitution. The amendment was rejected by a large viva voce vote. Under the previous question the entire bill as reported was adopted with only two opposing votes. Under suspension of the rules the bill was transmitted to the senate.

After discussion participated in by Holbrook of Thomaston, Buckley of Union, Sturgess of Woodbury and Fenton of Windham the bill relating to expenditures of school committees was passed.

The reports of the judiciary committee on the Bridgeport judgeships were taken from the table and Ralph T. Beers was appointed judge and William J. Buckly, deputy judge of the city court of Bridgeport. The appointments are for the short term ending June 30, 1923 and for the long term ending June 30, 1925.

Jonathan Trumbull Highway.

A substitute bill for House Bill 188, was favorably reported creating the Jonathan Trumbull Memorial Highway. This bill extends the length stated in the original bill. The new bill route begins at the New York state line in the town of Salisbury, extending through the towns of North Canaan, Norfolk, Winchester, New Hartford and Canton to Hartford, thence following the lines already constructed through the towns of East Hartford, Manchester, Bolton and Andover, thence through Columbia and Lebanon to the present highway from Willimantic to Norwich at or near Yantic, thence over the Norwich-Westerly trunk line to its intersection with the Westerly-New London trunk line to the Rhode Island state line near Westerly. It shall be known as the "Jonathan Trumbull Memorial Highway" in memory of Jonathan Trumbull, Connecticut's Revolutionary war governor. Needed portions are to be improved with the as possible in accordance with the most improved methods of highway construction. The federal government is to be requested through congress to co-operate in the building of all sections now completed.

Few Unreported Bills.

Upon the call of committees very few bills were unreported. The committee on agriculture has two bills, cities and boroughs six, claims eight, constitutional amendments, one, federal resolutions, one, humane institutions three, judiciary, seven, new towns and probate districts, one, public health and safety, two, railroads, one, roads, rivers and bridges, three. All of the committees had finished all business assigned to them. House Leader Buckley gave notice that there would be a Friday session next week.

SENATE.

Senator Trumbull explained the unfavorable report of the committee on finance on the bill reducing by one-half of one per cent. the tax on the income of mutual insurance companies. The present tax is 3 1-2 per cent. The report was accepted and the bill rejected.

Resolutions were passed under suspension of rules appointing Charles B. Barnes, judge, and Harry A. Adams, deputy judge of the town court of Sprague. The resolutions were transmitted to the house.

To Acquire McCook Land.

Senator Atchison the senate chairman of the committee on humane institutions, said in conversation today that the bill to authorize the state to secure by condemnation proceedings a part of the McCook property at Crescent Beach to be added to the Seaside sanatorium property at that place will not be reported until next Tuesday. Attorney General Healy has prepared the draft of the bill, and the committee will give it final consideration this afternoon. Senator Atchison said it was proposed to acquire a lot having a short front of 200 feet from the McCooks. This lot joins the land on which the institution stands and will give the state a short front of 297 feet.

Senator Pierson was appointed on the committee of conference on the part of the senate on the disagreement between the senate and house on the bill relating to the care of trees and highways.

Calendar.

Passed: That the chiropractic commission shall consist of three members one of whom shall be appointed each year by the governor and providing that candidates for certificates shall have had at least a high school education or its equivalent; appropriating $12,000 for the state pier at New London; apportioning expense of constructing and maintaining highways between trucks; appropriating $336,000 for the increase in accommodations at the Mansfield Training school; appropriating $3,000 for the commission on the re-arrangement and simplification of school laws; concerning the commitment to county homes; concerning filing descriptions of devices on bottles and other receptacles; relating to the obligation of parents for the support of their children in state institutions.

The committee on education reported favorably on the following bill relating to state aid to schools: "The grand list of any town as certified under date of November 11, 1921 for the year 1920 by the state board of equalization to the state board of education shall be the basis for the payment of such grants as may be provided in chapter 339 of the public acts of 1919 and in chapter 305 of the public acts of 1921 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923 and also for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925." Tabled for calendar.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on a substitute bill concerning the operation of municipal gas and electric plants. It empowers the local municipal authorities. Calendar.

GALES FERRY

The regular business meeting of the Village Improvement association was held in the Country club house Monday evening. The president, D. R. Povey, presided. In the absence of the secretary, Nelson Parker, Walter M. Buckingham, the treasurer, acted as secretary pro tem. The president announced the chairmen of the several departments as follows: Law, Earl Mathewson of Norwich; education, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham; entertainment, Miss Grace E. Povey; landscape gardening, Mrs. Allen S. Bush; highway, J. Edmund Norman; junior, Miss Carol B. Freeman. The sum of $10 was voted to purchase shrubbery for the memorial plot given by the late Henry W. Hurlbutt at the junction of Military highway and the main street of the village.

On motion of Rev. Allen S. Bush, the naming of the village streets was postponed until the next meeting in order that residents of the place might be consulted. A committee of four was named for this purpose: Miss Laura A. Perkins, Miss Caroline B. Freeman, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop and the president, D. R. Povey. It was also voted the association join the American Planting society, Connecticut laws, relating to bonfires, brush, grass and rubbish fires, with the directions for sounding the new village improvement alarms, in case of fire, were read by Rev. Mr. Bush.

A check for $50 was received last week by Noyes B. Allyn, organizer and collector of the permanent fund of the Methodist Episcopal church of the Ferry, from an interested friend, who also gave another check of the same amount for the new M. E. parsonage fund.

Harold J. Peckham of Waterford and four of the boys from the Seven Day Adventist church school of that place took a hike to the home of Mr. Peckham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Justin A. Peckham, at Long Cove Sunday. They took up four pine trees from the Peckham woods to be planted in the church school yard in Waterford. The party enjoyed the trip much, eating their lunch on the lawn at the Peckham home. At evening they were taken home by Mr. Peckham in his automobile.

Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Woodward attended the illustrated Epic Story given by Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell at Connecticut college, New London, Monday evening. The lecture topic was Midst Ice and Snow in Labrador.

New Swanson Picture

Mr. American Wife, Gloria Swanson's latest Paramount star picture, produced by Sam Wood, in which Antonio Moreno makes his Paramount debut as leading man, will be the feature at the Strand theatre for three days beginning Monday next. The story is said to be quite dramatic and the views of Argentine where the scenes are laid are heralded as most colorful. The love interest is said to be unusually strong and appealing.

Manufacturing Property Changes Hands

Miles L. Case has sold for the Estate of J. A. Q. Whittemore, the land and buildings formerly occupied by the McKay Copper Process Company at Laurel Hill avenue, to the American Thermos Bottle Company.

The property consists of a tract of land with two large buildings thereon, and which were built about 10 years ago by the McKay company. They have been used for storage purposes during recent years, and the Thermos Company will now add this additional space to its present plant facilities.

SCREEN SENSATION AT THE BREED THEATRE

One of the biggest and most sensational thrills ever recorded by a motion picture camera can be found in Clifton's "Down to the Sea in Ships" the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow.

This scene shows where Raymond McKee, who plays the leading male role in this production, harpoons a whale, and later the wounded and angry monster of the deep turns upon the small boat and catapults the occupants into the water, smashing it to kindling.

Mr. Clifton decided on paying a tribute to the now almost-forgotten whaling industry, by filming the actual harpooning of a whale, he planned to photograph the real stuff. As a result Mr. McKee was forced to sign ship's paperrs and embark upon a regular whaler.

This particular scene, it is said, shows the small boat being towed at express train speed through the water by the angry whale. It then shows the whale make a turn and charge the boat. Critics and experts have said, wherever this production has been shown, that this is one of the biggest sensations ever seen upon the screen. It plainly shows Raymond McKee risking life and limb in the filming of these realistic scenes.

The management of the Breed theatre feels confident that the motion picture public will find this picture full in every detail, and recommends "Down to the Sea in Ships" as one of the best and most interesting displays of the year.

Edith Roland will also be seen in "The Timber Queen" and the Pathe News completes the bill.

Raisin Week—April 23 to 29

Raisin Week looms larger than ever on the spring calendar. A large exhibit from Raisinland has made preliminary arrangements, set for a pageant, and all the fun that is to go with the celebration. The queen who is to honor Raisin Week comes from Delano. She is Miss Mae Girard. Bert Lytell, famous motion picture actor, will be King. Delano has chosen a charming retinue for the Queen. Fresno is planning a week of hospitality, far exceeding anything in recent years. The pageant itself has been written by George Fitch of Fresno. It depicts the marriages of the five sons of King Ahmed Princess Muscat, Sultana, Queen Mahaza and Feherzago, all of whom eventually unite to build the Garden of the Sun an empire that will boom for men rivaling the empires of the Golden Age in the Garden of Eden.

Raisin Week was originated to induce raisins more widely into use in America. Great progress has come about by year. This year's Raisin week promises to outshine anything ever attempted and will be attended by tens of thousands of growers and residents of the towns and cities.

There is a session of thanksgiving in that part of California which produces our raisins, for there was a big boom in the year 1912, when the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers Association was formed, that conditions looked extremely black, and the valley was in anything but a prosperous condition. However, in the year 1912 the [illegible] growers of raisins formed a co-operative association and from year to year by cooperating among themselves have become one of the most successful organization of its kind in the world and their valley which formerly was like unto the desert has grown in richness and is compared favorably with the Garden of Eden.

Raisin Week will be observed by the grocers and the bakers throughout the United States and Canada.

Savings deposits in the United States have shown a steady increase over 20 years, totaling $13,181,661,000 for year ended June 30, 1922, against $2,965,204,000 in 1903. Only in 1920 was there a decrease from [illegible]

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

J. Arthur Atwood of the Wauregan, Quinebaug and Ponemah Mills and W. Irving Bullard of Boston and Danielson, have been conspicuous this week at the annual convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers in Providence. Mr. Atwood was named a member of the board of directors of the organization for three years and W. I. Bullard, who is the treasurer, attracted the attention of the convention with his address on Brazil and Its Cotton Industry.

Commenting editorially on Mr. Bullard's address a Boston paper had the following:

Where will the world turn to avoid a cotton famine? Mr. W. Irving Bullard finds the answer to the question in the possibilities of cotton culture in Brazil. Speaking in Providence, at the convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, of which he is the treasurer, Mr. Bullard described Brazil not only as a valuable source from which the cotton factories of other countries might draw part of their raw material, but also as a land in which cotton manufacture promised to undergo great expansion. What Mr. Bullard said embodied a great deal of valuable information obtained during his recent visit in Brazil, when he served as one of the representatives of this country at the international exposition. He was dealing with a subject of great interest to New England, both as it relates to the sources of the material used in New England cotton mills and to the opportunity that awaits New England manufacturers of mill machinery, for the day is foreseen when Brazil, with the multiplication of its own mills, will be in the market for modern machinery in great quantities.

The present is a time when the world's need of cotton continues to expand, while the old sources of supply are shrinking. Short crops have recently been the rule in the United States. There have been in the same period fluctuations in the Egyptian crop. Efforts to raise a cotton elsewhere in the British Empire have had but moderate success. It is a situation which to Mr. Bullard indicates that the hope of relief lies in great measure on the expansion of cotton growing in Brazil, to which nature has given the capacity to produce high grade cotton and more than 75,000,000 acres of uncultivated land adapted to its culture.

To an extent small in comparison with the possibilities of the future Brazil already has a cotton manufacturing industry, with about 250 mills operating some 1,850,000 spindles and 60,000 looms and giving employment to 75,000 operatives. But methods are primitive, and much of the machinery is antiquated although there are mills which are far above the prevailing level of efficiency. The day is coming, however, when, in all probability, there will be a great many more cotton mills in Brazil, and they will be equipped and operated in accordance with the latest methods. Some of the world's best mill machinery is made in this part of the United States. Mr. Bullard foresees a big volume of trade flowing between Brazil and New England, comprising raw cotton headed in this direction and a wide variety of equipment bound the other way. He points to that condition as the fact that Boston is by considerable margin the nearest major Atlantic port to Rio de Janeiro, and that four vessels a month are now plying between Boston and Brazilian ports.

Here is evidently chance for the display of the traditional New England spirit of enterprise. New England is of all the manufacturing regions of the United States the nearest to this rich market, and it has the means to supply some of the capital of which Brazil is in need. In its turn, it affords a great market for the products of the South American country. It were the part of wisdom to give increased attention to this opportunity for trade with a country, which, territorily is about as large as continental United States with the exception of Alaska, and which, on its high plateaus, contains great expanses of fertile country with temperate climate that belies the somewhat prevalent idea of Brazil as a land of tropical swamps and torrid heat.

PUTNAM

In this, his home city, a great many who have known him since boyhood read with pleasure Thursday morning that Governor Templeton had decided to nominate John A. Macdonald, son of Postmaster and Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, for state highway commissioner, a nomination that without doubt will be confirmed by the senate, Mr. Macdonald taking up the duties of his new office on July 1.

At the present time Mr. Macdonald is deputy commissioner of motor vehicles, and to him is given much of the credit for innovations that have been applied and successfully worked out, making the Connecticut motor vehicle department a model for similar departments in many other states. Included in legislation of which Mr. Macdonald was an inspiring force are the measures fixing the assessment basis for motor vehicles on the number of cubic inches of displacement in motors and also for the schedule fixing the loads that trucks of various types are allowed to carry over the state highways of Connecticut.

In addition Mr. Macdonald is a civil engineer and a decade ago was one of the inspectors for the state highway department, to which he will come as commissioner with a broad knowledge of the important duties attendant upon administration of this very important state office, charged with the expenditure of millions of dollars each year. Mr. Macdonald has been in the motor vehicle department since 1917.

Mr. Macdonald's early education was received at the Israel Putnam school in this city and he afterwards was graduated from Putnam High school. His course in engineering was obtained at Valparaiso university. In following his profession he has in the past been connected not only with the Connecticut highway department, but also with large contracting firms, with the engineering department of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co., and in various other capacities affording him much practical experience that will be highly valuable to him in his position is highway commissioner.

Mr. Macdonald is an enthusiastic and indefatigable worker, has a faculty of making and keeping friends and is very popular throughout the state. He has made a splendid record in the present position and the present [illegible] commissioner, Charles J. Bennett, regards the selection of Mr. Macdonald to be his successor as a fine one.

For several years past Mr. Macdonald has made his home in Hartford. He is married, his wife being before her marriage Miss Ethel M. Johnson, daughter of William S. Johnson of this city. They have three children.

Mr. Macdonald is the youngest man ever to hold the state highway commissionership in this state. He was born Sept. 15, 1890, so is not yet 33 years of age.

H. H. Ellis, director of the State [illegible] school in this city, has made announcement relative to summer courses in household arts to be given at the institution this year after the close of the regular school year in June. The work is to be carried on under the direction of Miss Hannah Pease and Miss [illegible]

A general outline of the courses is as follows: [illegible] There will be a sewing class in which fundamental processes in sewing and the making of simple garments will be taught. There is to be an advanced course for high school girls in which hand [illegible] and cooking [illegible] the making [illegible] and millinery [illegible]

In the domestic science course those [illegible] will be taught about canning and preserving, the canning [illegible] canning [illegible] fruits and vegetables [illegible] preserving, jelly [illegible] jam making [illegible] successful [illegible] There will be a course in the fundamentals of cooking and instruction in dietetics.

The courses will include instruction [illegible] making salads and dressings, pies [illegible] and bread, paper making and [illegible] of dishes and substances.

[illegible] interested in any of the courses should get in touch with Miss Pease [illegible] or call at the school office [illegible] on [illegible] It is hoped that many from surrounding towns will enter.

Secretary J. H. Corbett of the County Y. M. C. A. said Thursday that the annual convention of the organization is to be held in Danielson on Tuesday evening, May 8, in the new parish house of the Westfield Congregational church, and there will be an attendance of men and women from all the towns of the county. A supper is to be served and there will be music by the Killingly High school orchestra.

The principal address of the evening is to be made by Albert E. Roberts of New York, general secretary of the town and country department of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. Annual reports showing the activities of the county organization, which has its headquarters in this city will be presented at this meeting.

There is special local interest in the fact that Thomas Dobson of this city has leased what is known as the Stanley Kelly summer school for boys at Lake Eastford and will conduct the school during the coming summer. Associated with him is Eugene Ellis, formerly sub master at Putnam High school, and Mr. Kelley who has been in New York during the winter, will also give some time to instruction.

Mr. Dobson has been spending some days in New York this week conferring with Mr. Kelley relative to plans for the season.

Members of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows will assemble at their hall here Sunday morning and march in a body to the Methodist church for services in observance of the 104th anniversary of the founding of their order. Rev. N. B. Burton, the pastor will preach a special sermon. Members of the Rebekah lodge also will attend in a body.

Thursday was much like other days since his disappearance insofar as any light being thrown on the mystery of Beem Kershaw's disappearing at Alexander lake. Not discouraged by the fruitless efforts of the earlier days of the week search for his body was continued on the lake Thursday and others who have become interested in the case search all through the territory about the lake in the hope of finding him.

An agreement of sale has been entered into under which William Dragon will come into possession of a four-tenement dwelling owned by William E. St. Onge in Bullock street.

The following are the newly elected officers of the Drop-In class of the Congregational church for the next six months: President, Mrs. C. S. Andem; vice president, Mrs. Genevieve Letters; secretary, Mrs. E. L. Kelley; treasurer, Mrs. George Harrington.

Attorney E. C. Morse, tax collector for the town of Putnam, was engaged at his office Thursday in receiving from taxpayers sums they owe the town, and will be on the job again today. Town taxes are due and must be paid on or before May 1.

Several attorneys from this city will be in Willimantic today, when there will be a short calendar session for the assignment of cases for the May term of court.

This year the field day of the County Y. M. C. A. will be held in Brooklyn, on some date in May, and high school athletes will engage in the competition.

C. R. Cotton, Henry Hurdman and Peter Gardner will be in Naugatuck on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week attending the great council of Red Men of Connecticut.

The third degree was conferred upon candidates at a special communication of Quinebaug lodge, A. F. and A. M., at Masonic temple Thursday evening.

Clean-up week in Putnam begins next Monday and the event is being boosted in the hope that every citizen may be interested in the work of tidying up his property.

The Nightingale-Morse and the Putnam Manufacturing company baseball teams are mentioned as being wanted to join a six-team mill league that would include teams in the towns of Killingly and Plainfield.

A window display by George E. Dresser Thursday included some fine examples of fine pewter, including porringers of various styles, lamps, drinking cups, a canteen, etc., all of historical interest and of special value as antiques.

Out of Eastford comes a story about a deer that came up to a mail wagon covering a rural section, smelled of the team, then of the driver, who seized the animal around the neck in the hope of holding it, but was thrown for his ambition—while the deer ambled off for ventures in other fields.

It Will Begin Saturday, April 28th

The fourth and last week of our 50th Anniversary Celebration will be featured as "Department Managers' Week." This Department Managers' Sale will begin Saturday, April 28th and continue during the week following. On this occasion the various department managers, co-operating as a general committee will have charge of this sale.

Every Department Manager, prepared for this event months in advance, in order to make the best possible showing for his or her particular department. The result of this friendly rivalry amongst the department managers is, that some of the greatest values of our Golden Jubilee Celebration will be offered during this Department Managers' Sale. Read carefully this two-page advertisement—then make it a point to attend this sale on Saturday.

LAUGH AND BE MERRY

Laugh and be merry, remember, better the world with a song
Better the world with a blow in the teeth of a wrong.
Laugh, for the time is brief, a thread the length of a span
Laugh and be proud to belong to the old proud pageant of man.

Laugh and be merry: Remember, in olden time.
God made Heaven and Earth for joy He took in a rhyme.
Made them, and filled them full with the strong red wine of His mirth,
The splendid joy of the stars: the joy of the earth.

So we must laugh and drink from the deep blue cup of the sky,
Join the jubilant song of the great stars sweeping by,
Laugh, and battle, and work, and drink of the wine outpoured
In the dear green earth, the sign of the joy of the Lord.

Laugh and be merry together, like brothers akin,
Guesting a while in the rooms of a beautiful inn,
Glad till the dancing stops and the list of the music ends.
Laugh till the game is played: and be you merry, my friends.

—JOHN MASEFIELD.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Fix—Two wrongs don't make a right and to that rule there's no exception.

Dix—Oh, I don't know. If your clock is an hour fast it is wrong, and if you set it forward eleven hours more, you of course make it wronger, but at the same time you make it right.—Boston Transcript.

Longsuffer — We're going to have company this evening. Will you lend me your phonograph?

His Neighbor — Certainly. Want some snappy jazz records?

Longsuffer—No. I just wanted to make sure you'll not disturb my party with it.—Atlanta Journal.

Father—Yes, my son, I wish I could be young again. Wouldn't it be funny if I should once more become a little boy?

Tommy—Maybe it wouldn't be so awfully funny for you, pa. If you got to be littler than me I think I'd square up a few things. — Boston Transcript.

"I wish you'd stop talking about mums."

"Why?"

"If you mean chrysanthemums, say chrysanthemums. Don't keep making me think you've got something in the cellar."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A man who went to his grocer's to order something for dinner was asked if he would have a saddle of mutton.

"Why," said he, "wouldn't it be better to have a bridle? Then I'd stand a better chance of getting a bit in my mouth."—The Progressive Grocer.

THE WAR BETWEEN TOWN AND COUNTRY IN THE LABOR FIELD

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

When you were a small boy and went to the district school and had to "speak a piece" every other Saturday, you were sure, sooner or later, to deliver the famous oration of Patrick Henry. You'll remember how it went: "Gentlemen may cry Peace, Peace, but there is no peace. War has already begun," etc., etc.

Mr. Henry went on to assert in highly emotional phrases that there wasn't any use denying that war was war, and that calling it peace, or even keeping one's mouth shut about it didn't make it peace. His idea was that the sensible procedure was to recognize facts and govern oneself accordingly, rather than steer a wibbly-wobbly course suggested by uncertain dreams of make-believe.

In this he showed himself not only eloquent but, what is vastly more important, level-headed.

He has few imitators either in eloquence or common sense among the publicists of this generation. Whenever a dispute which threatens to develope into a fraction starts, nowadays, our leaders, whether in politics or society or business, promptly begin gum-shoeing away from it.

They seem to act on the principle that refusing to admit the existence of a thunderstorm is ample protection against lightning.

That turning their backs on a charging mad bull will stop the bull.

That shutting their eyes to an approaching cyclone will calm the wind.

That denying their feet are wet is sufficient to dam the on-rush of a Johnstown flood.

That persistently crying Peace, Peace, in the sacro-sanct safety of a bomb-proof beneath general headquarters far at the rear is full demonstration that there is no war on.

Now, if any of you who start to read this belong to that order of invertebrates, please stop right now and turn to the market news page. For this talk is going to be about War, and you won't like it. You'll find the ball news or the account of the Duke of York's wedding trousseau much more to your taste.

Moreover, the war I'm going to talk about is one the existence of which some people consider it insanely provocative even to mention. It is one which, if you casually allude to it in some circles, sets all the old maids of both sexes to "S-s-s-h"-ing, and laying their fingers across their lips. They act about it as if admitting the presence of an egg and mentioning it out loud was enough to hatch it instanter into a veritable basilisk and rattlesnake of a varmint.

The war I mean is that between town and country, especially virulent just now in the so-called "labor" field.

For one I fail to see any likelihood of stopping that war or even of mitigating its disastrous destructiveness by pusillanimously pretending that it doesn't exist. They used to say that the ostrich imagined it could evade the hunter by sticking its own head into the sand so it couldn't see him. A great many plumes of ostrich tail-feathers on milady's hats have resulted from that admittedly absurd idea of the bird.

My own idea is that what is dumb cattle, as a two-legged bird with feathers, put first-class sense in another [illegible] critter wearing clothes.

[illegible] no longer alone in this belief. In the last Farm Journal the [illegible] give up considerable space to the argument of a self-styled "radical" for a wedding of farm labor and city labor into one huge, country-mastering union for mutual aggrandizement and combined attack on capitalism. I was not interested in this man's self-styled "arguments," which to my mind are not arguments at all, but merely the vain imaginings of a distorted and one-sided brain. But I was interested in The Farm Journal's accompanying comment, the final paragraph of which I quote herewith:

"The basic interests of farmers and workmen are so antagonistic that only the most far-sighted and broad-minded dealing on both sides could keep the peace. It would take great patience, tact, a willingness to study and understand the viewpoint of the other side, and courage to make mutual consessions. And we are regretfully obliged to say that many years of observation of farmer and labor organizations and leaders have not disclosed the above qualities, on either side, in any striking degree."

The very first two lines of that comment are a complete admission of the existence of the state of economic war which I have spoken of. "The basic interests of farmers and city workmen are so antagonistic," etc. Everybody knows this. Everybody with an ounce of brains has known it for years. Yet this is about the first time I've ever seen a frank admission of the blistering and blasting fact in black and white print.

I know that every time I've been inclined to allude to it I've been greeted with a chorus of hushings, and every time I've persisted in lugging it in my interlocutors have dodged as if it was a small-pox germ.

The truth is that what The Farm Journal calls "the basic interests" of country and city workmen are not only "antagonistic," they are mutually incompatible. They can no more mix than oil and water; they can no more help fighting than cats and dogs. When I say workmen, in this case, I mean practically all the dwellers in town and country; not merely those who work for wages, but those who work for themselves or for their wives. I mean not only the men with hoes and hammers but the men with pens and adding machines.

By the very reason of his environment, the farmer is compelled to a day-long, life-long struggle against the forces of nature. He has to wring his living and his savings, if he can secure any, from the reluctant maw of things. To stand even the ghost of a chance against the laws of nature, he has to accept those laws and obey them whether he likes them or not, till some fortunate slant gives him a hold on some uncertain reward for his bull-dog persistence.

On the other hand, by the very reason of his environment, the city man, whether worker with hand or eye or brain, is removed from this rural arena and launched upon a life which is not intended to wring a living from reluctant nature but to cozen one from grudging fellow men.

The country worker exploits the soil for his hoped-for wealth; the city worker exploits his neighbors.

The one bucks against things; the other lives by getting the better of people.

The one gets potatoes and cabbages and wheat by a strenuous combined attack on the dirt which otherwise would simply muddy up somebody's boots; the other gets wages or wealth by using superior strength or cunning to divert to himself the wages or wealth of others.

Their whole attitude towards life is not only unlike but antagonistic and mutually repellent.

Mind you, I am not attempting any assertion that the country worker, the farmer, is one whit better than the city worker. Either physically or mentally or morally. For I do not believe there is any great difference between them in these respects. I mean simply to maintain that they approach the problem of conquering a living from diametrically opposite sides. And that, when they meet coming this in opposite directions they're cocksure to fight for the right of way—unless one gives up and lets the other have a clear track.

Any attempt to unite in a common effort for common ends two such antagonists is foredoomed to eventual failure. Some sort of a superficial and temporary alliance may be patched up, as seems to have been done in a few mid-western states, last fall, in politics. But it won't last. It can't.

With the use of sufficient skill and exertion it is sometimes possible to churn oil and water into a sort of viscid jelly. But they won't stay mixed. And they're both spoiled utterly, when they eventually separate, as they always do.

A New York state farmer's wife, writing to a New York city paper, recently, gave a rather clear-cut picture of the rural situation in the following paragraph:

"Thousands of us are leaving our farms with the plow broken down in a fence corner and are hot-footing it to the nearest city to see if some of the rubes can't get in on the firemen's $75 a week, the bricklayer's $15 a day, the carpenter's $1 an hour up. And the rest of us? Oh, we are doing just what we have always done—borrowing more money on which to pay heavy interest with which to plant more crops to give away next fall."

Just at present it must be frankly admitted the city workers are not only making the most noise but getting the most pudding. Moreover, they seem to have got hold of the butt of the whip and to be laying about them recklessly with the lash. It does not specially matter whether they deliberately intend to whip farmers across the face or not; that's what they're doing, among other things.

Now, no one likes to be horsewhipped, either by accident or on purpose. And it seems a little illogical to suppose that the country worker, whose face is marked by the whip and on whose back the welts are rising red, should be eager to enter into an offensive and defensive alliance with the whip-wielder. It's asking too much of human nature.

There may be cowards who'll kiss the hand which beats them, in the hope of staying the blows or of effecting an escape. But not even a professional pacifist is likely to expose himself willingly to a continuous performance of the whip for the privilege of kissing the whipper's hand.

I'm perfectly well aware that there are some people who will pooh-pooh this sort of talk as baseless. And that there are others who will reprehend it as being an injudicious shaking of a red rag at an ugly bull. And that there are others who will feel moved to denounce it as an actually wicked attempt to create "class prejudice."

Well, it takes all kinds to make a world. And it's a blessed dispensation of Providence that we don't all think alike.

But I can't believe that the seeing a mudhole in the road, the pointing it out, and the attempt to dodge it makes the driver either responsible for or blameable for the mudhole itself. The seeing and admitting an unpleasant truth doesn't make the one who sees it accountable for its existence or its unpleasantness. Nobody is ever going to escape a danger merely by shutting his eyes to it and denying its presence.

Of course, a miracle may yet happen. Some superman may arise with ability to combine farm and city workmen, rural and urban interests, oil and water, into one homogeneous solution. But, as the editor of The Farm Journal is regretfully compelled to admit, the qualities of such leadership have not thus far been disclosed on either side in any striking degree.

Until the miracle happens and the superman appears it is just as futile for us to cry Peace, Peace when there is no peace, as it was for the slinking Tories in the Virginia House of Burgesses, whom Patrick Henry excoriated in his famous speech.

Realize what Kellogg's Bran means to your family's health?

Eaten regularly each day, Kellogg's Bran will permanently relieve constipation; it will free you from dangerous toxic poisons that lead to 90% of all human illness; it will remove the cause and sweeten a bad breath; it will clear a pimply complexion through its work on the bowels. In fact, Kellogg's Bran, through its natural action as a bulk, indigestible agent, will tone-up the whole system!

If you knew exactly what constipation means from a medical view-point you would lose no time eating Kellogg's Bran yourself and serving it daily to your family. And, Kellogg's is actually delicious, its nut-like flavor adding greatly to the enjoyment of eating cereals. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; in chronic cases, with each meal.

There are many attractive ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it in winter with hot milk as a cereal. Or, mix it with cereals before serving. Many housewives cook it with cereals, in each case adding two tablespoonfuls for each person. You will also enjoy the nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran when it has been sprinkled over hot or cold cereals.

You have missed some of the joys of life if you have not eaten raisin bread, muffins, griddle-cakes, etc., made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each box.

Don't delay your fight against constipation; don't lose a minute in the great battle against illness! You can buy Kellogg's Bran from all grocers and you can have it served in individual packages at first-class hotels, restaurants and clubs.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

COPPER SPRAYS INCREASE FOOD VALUE OF POTATOES

Spraying potatoes with such copper sprays as Bordeaux, Pickering sprays, and barium water sprays not only has the effect of controling the diseases for which they are applied but, according to the United States department of agriculture, thorough and timely spraying usually greatly increases the yield, influences the composition of the tubers, and increases their keeping qualities in storage.

For many years observers have reported also a stimulating effect of Bordeaux mixture on potato foliage and a gain in yield even when no diseases were present. The why and how of this effect of copper have been much discussed by scientists and many experiments made. An interesting contribution to this subject has lately been made by F. C. Cook of the bureau of chemistry in department bulletin 1146, where evidence is presented to show that Bordeaux and other copper sprays increased the starch and nitrogen constituents of the potato tubers and consequently made them more valuable for food and industrial uses.

The bulletin contains considerable data collected from a number of stations doing experimental work with copper sprays on potatoes and should be of interest to the plant physiologists and others doing investigational work of this nature. Results obtained in seven states (Virginia, Maine, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, and New Jersey) showed an average of 2,591 pounds of solids of the tubers per acre for the non-copper sprayed plants and 3,430 for the copper-sprayed plants, an average increase of 22.4 per cent. or 35 bushels, due apparently to the use of copper sprays. The results should furnish additional support to the practice of spraying potatoes.

GIVE ADEQUATE SPACE TO INDIVIDUAL PLANTS

Give individual plants in your garden abundant space. When plants come up thickly and are allowed to crowd each other in the rows, there is excessive competition above and below ground for food space and moisture and this condition quickly causes a dwarfing of the plants and increases susceptibility to insects and diseases.

This crowding of plants is nowhere more in evidence than in our town and city gardens where space is limited and the owners' ambition to produce the most in everything runs high.

Good seed properly planted will almost always produce too many plants at first in the rows. When garden plants are one and two inches high they are ready to be thinned out or to be transplanted to other locations. Carrots, beets, parsnips and onions should be thinned out to one or two inches apart in the rows. When head lettuce is desired, plants should not be closer than eight inches. Plants of bush snap beans, or snell beans need not stand closer than three inches, and bush Lima beans not closer than eight to 10 inches. In the vine fruits, one does not need to have many plants in order to have enough for home use, providing they have full chance for development. One gardener last season reported 295 pounds of Hubbard squash from two seeds.

Some flowering plants like nasturtium, balsam, snapdragon and petunia, are nearly always too closely planted for best results. The point is that one should try to form a correct mental picture of how much space well grown matured plants of each kind require and when most danger from cut worms is passed, these plants should be thinned so they can attain their ultimate size without crowding. Better vegetables, finer flowers and healthier plants will result if these rules are followed.

NEW SPRAY BULLETIN.

A new bulletin on "Spraying" is now available. This is published as Bulletin No. 61 of the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college and is a revised edition of Bulletin No. 49 published in February of last year. The new bulletin has been prepared by W. H. Darrow, the fruit specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college and includes spraying directions for apples, pears, peaches, cherries, plums, grapes and small fruits as well as directions for dusting peaches.

Directions are also given for making a new spray material for peaches and other fruits on which the summer strength lime sulphur is not safe. The new material, called "Wettable" sulphur or "dry mix sulphur lime," is an excellent substitute for self-boiled lime-sulphur and is much more easily prepared.

POULTRY SHORT COURSE.

Last summer Connecticut Agricultural college conducted a three weeks' intensive practical course in poultry management for experienced poultrymen and women as an experiment, and the experiment proved itself beyond expectation. Men and women came for one week and stayed three. Business poultrymen came from four states, to see, to learn and to take part in the discussions, drawn by the fact that the poultry work at Storrs has an international reputation. This year a similar three-weeks' course will be given by the poultry and college staff, assisted by successful commercial poultrymen.

This is not a college course; there are no entrance requirements, or examinations. It is a get-together opportunity for men and women in business who desire to keep up to date in their methods of management. Every topic from incubation to table eggs will be presented and discussed in round table. The class work will be supplemented by work each afternoon with the equipment and with the birds.

A descriptive circular giving the distribution of topics by weeks, the fees and other information will be sent on request. The course opens July 9 and closes July 27. Each week may be taken separately.

TIME FOR DELAYED DORMANT SPRAY NOW

With the opening of warm days this week, opens the busy season for orchardists. One horticultural agent declares that toward the latter part of this week, the first of a series of sprays must be applied to the trees. This first spray is called "delayed dormant," and is applied to the trees when leaves of blossom cluster buds are from one-quarter to one-half inch expanded. This spray is composed of five and one-half gallons of liquid lime sulphur, two pounds of dry arsenic of lead and three-eighths of a pound of nicotine sulphur to 50 gallons of water.

This spray which provides necessary protection to the tender blossom clusters is the orchardists first attack on the many diseases he has to contend with, is followed just as soon as flower buds have grown out of the closed clusters and separated slightly by the "pre-pink" spray. This spray is composed of one gallon of liquid lime sulphur or four pounds of dry lime sulphur to one and three-quarters pounds of dry lead arsenic to fifty gallons of water.

CABBAGES FROM JULY TO THANKSGIVING

Young cabbage may be harvested in the garden from July until hard freezing, given a little care and planning in sowing seed and transplanting.

The selection of proper varieties has much to do with success and the best quality of early cabbage seed should be secured from a seedsman of known standing and reputation. The cabbage needs plenty of room and the richest soil available. It needs plenty of moisture and also good drainage.

The seedlings should be transplanted as soon as they have made two true leaves. If the ground is ready for them transplant them into a box or frame. They will be stockier for the second transplanting. When they are to be set into the ground, set the plants almost up to the true leaves. Long-legged cabbages seldom make good heads. It is the squat, close to the ground growers that give the solid heads and proper setting when the plants are transplanted has much to do with this feature.

The plants of early cabbage may be set out by April 15, over a large section of the country as they will stand quite a little frost without damage. The smaller growing, extra early sorts should be set two feet apart, in rows from 2 1-2 to 3 feet apart for best results. The Wakefield types are standard early cabbage. Nitrate of soda in ampoulful quantities when the plants are set out, making the nitrate fine and not applying it too close to the plant and at from two to three weeks intervals during the growing season is a fine stimulant for firm vigorous heads.

The cabbage worm is always present. Various insecticides will control this pest and any dealer can recommend and effective one. Those which are nonpoisonous are best in the home garden. They should be applied frequently to keep down the green worms. Arsenical poisons are more effective and may be used without fear in the early stages of growth as the poison cannot get into the head then.

Polish Premier Condemns Action Of Soviet Court

Premier Sikorski, of Poland, who upon learning that Archbishop Zepilack, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Russia, and the sixteen priests tried with him had been found guilty by the Moscow Court, sent for Leonid Obolenski, Soviet Minister to Poland, and informed him of the responsibility his government was assuming by execution of the sentence.

MARKET WAS NARROW.

New York, April 26.—Price movements in today's stock market for all practical purposes, consistently followed their narrow and uncertain trend of recent days. Dealings were moderately larger but the trading was almost entirely in the hands of professionals. Holders of securities showed no inclination to become alarmed and bear efforts to push down prices were for the most part ineffective. However, there was no noticeable effort to force prices up rapidly.

Of chief interest was the first increase in call money rates this week, the rate rising gradually from 4 1-2 per cent. in the first hour to 6 per cent. shortly before the close. Speculators for the decline sought on each successive increase in the rate to force prices down by concentrating on a few shares but their efforts failed to shake the general list.

Most of the usual market leaders fluctuated within fractional limits, reflecting the varying operations of the trading element. Several of the food and tobacco specialties scored substantial gains and public utilities were consistently strong, on reports from Albany that the legislature had defeated a number of bills considered antagonistic to such companies.

Despite further increases in the price of sugar, which moved to new high records again, shares of the sugar companies sold off, recessions being influenced by word from Washington that the government intends to put its prosecution against speculation in futures at the head of the calendar. American Sugar closed 1 5-8 off. Punta Alegre 1 1-4 and Cuban American Sugar 1 point. American Beet Sugar was an exception advancing 2 3-4.

American Waterworks common and the 6 per cent preferred, up 1 3-4 and 2 1-4 respectively, reflected speculative anticipation of increased earnings.

Dupont was in heavy demand, advancing 2 7-8 and Colorado Fuel continued its gain, closing at 34 7-8, up 1 3-8 on the day. Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Edison and so of the other public utilities gained 1 to 1 3-8 points. Market Street railways prior preferred declined a point and the preferred 2.

Gains of one to two points were recorded by Atlantic Refining, Barnet Leather, Corn Products, Goodyear preferred, Kresge, International Harvester, and Orphum Circuit preferred Kresge and Fisher Body, each gained 3 1-2 points. Otis Elevator was off nearly five points.

The railroad shares were on the whole rather indifferent to the course of the market. Chicago & Northwestern declined 1 3-8 and Atlantic Coast Line one.

The call money rate opened at 4 1-2 per cent. Two increases were hailed up during the noon hour and just before the close bankers advanced the rate to six per cent. Time funds also stiffened slightly on increased mercantile demand. Commercial paper was moderately active with prime names discounting at 5 to 5 1-4 per cent.

Another sharp break in Norwegian exchange featured today's foreign exchange market. The crown sold off 80 points at 17.20. Yesterday's decline was 31 points. The break resulted from cable reports that another bank at Christiania was in difficulties. Demand sterling eased off 7-8 to $4.63 1-8. French francs were slightly improved, at 6.78 1-2 cents, up one point.

BOND MARKET.

New York April 26 Continued strength of foreign government issues and selling of the U. S. government bonds featured today's trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Market observers were undecided as to whether the offering of the U. S. government bonds is influenced by expectation of higher rates for the governments May financing or by theirs commercial needs on the part of bond holders. The declines ranged from 1-32 to 7-32 of a point and affected all the active issues with the exception of the second Liberty 4 1-2's and the Victory 4 3-4's, the former advancing 1-32 of a point and the latter being unchanged.

Demand for foreign bonds continued but gains were confined to issues. French issues continued strong. Belgian 8's were off 1-8 and the Mexican 5's gave way slightly.

A gain of 2 points by Reading general 4's featured the trading in the railroad mortgages. New York railways refunding 4's certificates were also in good demand, advancing 2 3-8 points.

A gain of one point by Chile Copper 7's and a drop of the same size by Punta Alegre Sugar 7's were the only important changes among the industrials.

Total sales (par value) were $10,572,000.

Public offerings will be made tomorrow of an issue of $15,000,000 five to fifteen year per cent Equipment Trust certificates, series "J" of the Illinois Central Railroad Company at 5.14 1-2 to 5.34 1-2 per cent according to maturity.

An offering of $5,550,000 Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Co. 5 per cent. equipment trust certificates is to be made at a early date.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 26.—High price records for the season were broken today both by wheat and corn but profit-taking led to a reaction in which gains were wiped out. A sharp advance in wheat quotations at Liverpool together with reports of good demand from European continental countries preceded the advance here. Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4c lower, May $1.26 to $1.26 1-8, and July $1.24 3-8 to $1.24 1-2. Corn finished at 1-8@1-4c decline to 1-4@3-8 advance, oats at a shade off to 1-8c up and provisions unchanged to 5c higher. In connection with the rise in wheat values at Liverpool, it was current gossip that Liverpool was taking all the wheat offered, and was advancing bid six cents a bushel in some cases. One of the reasons given was an unexpected falling off in the volume of shipments from Argentina to Europe. Generally accepted estimates put the amount of new export business today at 1,000,000 bushels in addition to as much more done yesterday, with the new business including both Durum and hard winter grades.

Rains which were falling in the southwest and west did a good deal to induce profit-taking sales on the part of holders of wheat. Reports in particular that western Kansas was being drenched more thoroughly than for months past attracted notice, although the greater portion of crop damage there has been talked of as irreparable. Rain reports from Nebraska were also effective in turning the wheat market right about face before the day came to an end.

Dr. Hugh B Campbell will hold the clinic at 11 o'clock today in the Red Cross room.

The Men's class of the M. E. church met Tuesday evening at the home of Alexander McCluggage in Sylvandale. Owing to the absence of the president of the class, J. F. Gardner, Vice President Edward Thornton presided.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were approved as read. The report of the latter showed the class to be in good financial condition. The class voted a sum of money to be paid to the church treasurer.

After the business session the meeting was turned over to the host, who, having a severe cold, had arranged with R. W. Robertson to act as toastmaster. The topic which was discussed was not announced until the meeting, it being The Condition of World Affairs as I View Them. Each speaker when called upon gave interesting remarks.

Two pleasing piano solos were rendered by Miss Elizabeth McCluggage.

Refreshments of chicken pie, sandwiches, pickles, olives, jelly, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. McCluggage assisted by Mrs. Fred Wilcox and the Misses Elizabeth McBrid, Hazel and Lucille McCluggage. After the refreshments the program of the evening was closed by the recitation of an original poem by the host. During the course of the evening, the host delighted the gathering with a selection of Sir Harry Lauder's, entitled Grannie's Laddie.

Upon leaving the class gave a rising vote of thanks to the host and hostess for the very enjoyable evening. The class accepted the invitation of E. E. Gilbert to meet with him in May.

NOANK

Thursday afternoon the people of Noank and vicinity had an opportunity to witness another boat launching for at 5 o'clock the menhaden steamer slid off the ways, at the appointed time with Miss Elizabeth W. Thorp, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thorp of Mystic, broke a bottle as the boat was christened Elizabeth. It was named in honor of Mr. Wilcox's niece. The vessel is of neat design, 150 feet long, beam 44 feet and depth 11 feet. There were 200 invitations issued. An inspection of the boat was made. When fully completed it will be put in commission about the last of May. At present it is about 70 per cent. completed.

Captain Wilcox of the Wilcox Fertilizer Company, for whom the boat was built, has supervised the work and this boat will be added to their present fleet. The boat was only started at the Noank shipyard late in the winter and the work has been pushed rapidly. A supper was served the guests at the close of the launching.

Mrs. W. C. Martin of New York is the guest of Capt. Daniel Chesbro and family.

Howard Durfee of Prospect hill has disposed of his property to a New London man. Albert Warren Mr. and Mrs. Durfee will occupy the Watrous tenement on Spicer avenue.

Rodney K. Clarke and William Otis, who have been at Asheville, N. C., have returned home.

Mrs. Inez King is a caller in Mystic this week.

Misses Charlotte Smith and Merle Thompson have returned from a brief visit to New York.

STONINGTON

The death of Mrs. Charles Cowan, Sr., has removed a loving, generous and thoughtful woman. She was willing at all times to assist her neighbors and friends and everyone who sought her aid. She left a note for her family that it was her wish to have the floral tributes which were received at her funeral distributed among the sick and sent to the hospital. This was done and many a shut-in were thus made happy, by this last kindly remembrance.

The Y. M. C. A. group met with Fred Buck at his home on Orchard street Thursday evening. Rev. D. C. Stone was in charge. Plans were talked over for entertaining the young men who will be present from Yale on Saturday and Sunday. A social will be held Saturday evening at the Congregational church chapel and they, together with the members of the Young People's Society will assist with the program.

The Daughters of the Covenant met with Mrs. D. C. Stone at the parsonage-by-the-Sea Thursday evening.

Secor Sylvia returned from the Lawrence hospital Wednesday afternoon.

YANTIC

Local friends received word on Thursday of the death of Miss Elizabeth Harvey of Westerly. For many years Miss Harvey was a resident of the village but moved to Westerly about fifteen years ago. She is survived by a sister, Miss Katherine Harvey.

Mrs. Timothy Leary and daughter Barbara of New London were in town Monday attending the Driscoll-Smith wedding.

James F. Lyons of Worcester was a recent guest of his sister, Mrs. F. H. Tracy.

A. Bonim of Kew Gardens, Long Island, is spending some time in town with his daughter, Mrs. Elkin Smith.

Miss Rose Wathley has returned to Danbury after spending a few days in town the guest of Miss J. M. Pendleton.

Miss Irene Murphy has returned to Winchester after spending the week in town the guest of Mrs. Allyn Brand of Rockwell street and Miss G. L. Pendleton of West Main street.

Miss Elizabeth Shea has returned to Hartford and Miss Helen Tuit to Westerly after being in town to attend the Driscoll-Smith wedding.

Miss Jane Mahoney has returned to Hartford after a few days' stay in town, having attended the Driscoll-Smith wedding.

Miss J. M. Pendleton is spending the week in Danbury the guest of Miss Rose Worthley.

WESTERLY

Courtland P. Chapman, a well known resident of Westerly, died at his home in the village of Avondale Wednesday night at the age of 83 years. Mr. Chapman had been in ill health for the past few weeks and a short time ago he fell to the ground on his premises and caught a severe cold from which complications developed. He was the son of John and Rhoda Ann Chapman, and was born in Westerly. In 1856 Mr. Chapman made a trip to Nevada with several other young men of his acquaintance and for a time was engaged in mining there.

His stay was a short one and he returned to Westerly where he had conducted prosperous farms ever since. Mr. Chapman was active in farm life and was one of the first masters of the state grange. He was also interested in town affairs and was at one time a member of the Westerly town council. On November 19, 1886 he was married to Martha A. Chapman. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Dr. J. Hobart Chapman and C. Palmer Chapman of Westerly and a daughter, Mrs. Carrie L. Holbrook of Decatur, Ill.

Willard H. Bacon, superintendent of the Westerly public schools has been chosen as one of the vice presidents of the Rhode Island Humane Education society.

Frederick S. Stiles has returned from New York city where he has been attending a photographers' convention.

Crippled by Corns? Use "Gets-It"

The only good corn is a dead corn. A few drops of "Gets-It" will quickly start any corn or callous on the way to "the happy hunting ground." "Gets-It" brings instant relief from all pain and hurting. One bottle contains enough "Gets-It" to remove a dozen corns, hard or soft, old or new. Costs you nothing if it fails—but it doesn't fail. Let your druggist tell you why millions demand it. E. GROWTH OF OUR TRADE WITH THE ORIENT COUNTRIES

The Oriental taste for American manufactures continues to grow as does also the American taste for Oriental raw material. Trade between the United States and Asia as a whole formed a larger share of our total foreign trade in 1922 than in any earlier year. Whether this is due in any considerable degree to the opening of the Panama canal which brings the great manufacturing and consuming centers of the country in close touch with the Orient cannot be statistically determined, but it is a fact that trade with the Orient has formed a steadily increasing share of our total foreign commerce since the opening of that gateway which gives direct passage between the Atlantic frontage of the United States and the Pacific frontage of Asia and Oceania. The Trade Record issued by the National City Bank of New York estimates that American merchandise sent to Asia formed less than 5 per cent. of our total exports in 1913, the year preceding the opening of the canal, 8 per cent. in 1920, 11 per cent in 1921, and 12 per cent. in 1922. Imports from Asia which formed 15 per cent. of the merchandise entering the country in 1913 were 20 per cent in 1916, and 26 1-2 per cent. in the 10 months ending with October, 1922, and for the single month of October, 28 per cent.

These Strenuous Times.

The philosopher who thought that life would be endurable were it not for its pleasures would have felt more right than ever if he had lived to hear of the four young persons who danced jazz steps for twenty-one hours and eighteen minutes in Scotland, and the girl who swam in the Panama river for twenty-two hours and forty-seven minutes.—New York Herald.

Or Spring Fever.

New York's public health department is making a determined effort to find the microbe which causes the sleeping sickness. If discovered, it might be used for the relief of those suffering with insomnia. — Columbus Dispatch.

A Consolation.

Among the American suicides in 1922 were seventy-nine millionaires, eighty-eight bankers and forty-six wealthy women. This is one proof that much money does not insure happiness. Money can bring more trouble than poverty.—Mail and Empire.

The Soft Pedal.

The pacifists can do a real service in their own line by giving the world a little peace on the war question.—Boston Transcript.

TAFTVILLE

Taftville music lovers enjoyed a great Thursday evening, the concert given under the auspices of the Sacred Heart church for the benefit of the church. The program was opened with two organ numbers by Professor Adolphe Tomas, who played with his usual skill and smoothness. The other artists on the program were Alfred Cartier, pianist, Roland Poisson, violinist, and Paul Durault, tenor. Mr. Durault is one of the most accomplished singers who has appeared here in some time. He possesses a voice of remarkable clearness, and his tones are so mellow, and his range so extraordinary that even those not familiar with music could not help delighted his singing of the aria from the Prodical Son entitled Sullivan was perfect, and the group of simple little songs, Dear Mother of Mine, Four Leaf Clover and Thank God for a Garden, created pleased the large audience. Mr. Durault was in fine voice throughout the evening, and he sang with [illegible] as [illegible] he showed with amazing [illegible] was made up [illegible] Mr. Cartier and Mr. [illegible] Mr. Cartier is a pianist [illegible] played some [illegible] Valse Brillante [illegible] Miss Forest selection, although [illegible] opus 28, Chopin) [illegible] commend [illegible] proved himself a master [illegible] Among the difficult [illegible] rendered were Adagio (Vieuxtemps) [illegible] Berioti). Peterson's Ointment Co., Buffalo, N. Y. I want to tell you how much I do love Peterson's Ointment for the good it has done me. My sore was on my left leg, was 4 1-2 inches by 2 1-4 inches wide and all healed up beautifully now, and the last two weeks nothing on such a raw sore. I can't say enough praise for the good it has done me and will say a good word in your favor." Very truly yours, Miss Kate Kuhl, Sigel, Ill.

"I'd rather get a letter like that," says Peterson of Buffalo, "than have John D. Rockefeller give me a thousand dollars. It does me a lot of good to be able to be of use to my fellow man.

"For years I have been selling through druggists a large box of PETERSON'S OINTMENT for 35 cents. The healing power in this ointment is marvelous. Eczema goes in a few days. Old sores heal up like magic; piles that other remedies do not seem to even relieve are speedily conquered."

It stops chafing in five minutes and for scalds and burns it is simply wonderful.

SUES RAILROAD FOR $7,500 FOR FIRE THAT BURNED OVER 90 ACRES

New suits for the superior court in this county, returnable in May, were filed Thursday at the office of Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the court, as follows:

Damages of $7,500 are sought from the New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. Co., by Jacob Bohun of East Lyme, because of a fire on April 25, 1922, which burned over 90 acres of the defendant's property. It is claimed that the fire was started from one of the railroad's locomotives.

Three Foreclosures

John K. Foran and others, executors of the will of the late Thomas K. Foran of New London, have brought suit against Vincenzo Caracausa and others for foreclosure of a $5,000 mortgage on two tracts of land on Bank street and Hobron street, New London.

Another foreclosure suit by the same plaintiffs is against Walter W. Philbrick and others on a $2,500 mortgage on real estate at Broad and Raymond streets.

A third foreclosure suit by the same plaintiffs is against Louis J. Webb of Groton and others on a $3,300 mortgage on property on Front street, Noank.

$10,000 For Husband's Death

Susie L. Partelo of Groton, widow and administrator of the estate of Eugene H. Partelo, has brought suit for $10,000 damages against Dr. John Dimon of New London for the death of her husband. On March 3, 1923, Mr. Partelo was struck and crushed against a building at the corner of Bank and Golden streets, New London, by an automobile driven by Dr. Dimon who a few minutes later attempted suicide by slashing his throat with a penknife. The doctor recovered from his injuries but Mr. Partelo died in the hospital six days after he was injured.

TROLLEY EMPLOYES ENJOY BANQUET AND PROGRAMME

About 150 employes of the Connecticut company, including men on the Putnam, Danielson, Norwich, and New London trolleys enjoyed an evening of pleasure Thursday at Triple Link hall. The attraction began when members of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., served the following delicious menu:

Meat Pie
Mashed Potatoes Peas
Pickles Rolls
Squash Pie
Coffee Cigars

After the banquet the members were royally entertained by groups of instrumental selections rendered by the Hawaiian String Quartet of the U. S. Submarine Base at New London. These selections were followed by instrumental and vocal song hits by the New London employes who had the entertainment features in charge. The remainder of the entertainment comprised fancy dancing and bits of humor by local talent.

The affair was the third of the monthly social times now being held by the members of the New London division of the Connecticut Company and proved to be the best yet held.

SET DATES FOR BOY SCOUTS' SUMMER CAMP

The camp committee of Norwich council, Boy Scouts of America, Harry E. Prentice chairman, met Wednesday night at scout headquarters and made arrangements for the summer camp. New members of the committee are Rev. William C. Prentiss, Plainfield, and George H. Young, Taftville, Joseph N. Weymouth. Camp Tippecan will begin July 9th and extend to Aug. 6th. Registrations may be made now at scout headquarters, Shannon building. New features and equipment will be added and a better camp program than ever will be provided. A booklet will be sent to all scouts soon.

The scout executive expresses thanks to the scouts of Troop No. 5 and Troop No. 10, St. Patrick's church, for their prompt response and report for duty as orderlies and ushers during the G. A. R. state encampment Wednesday. The new uniforms presented a fine appearance. Representatives of Troops 1, 6, 9, and 12 were also on hand for duty.

members of the troop, sent a telephone call to the home of their scout master. Frederic H. Wyant, who in turn sent in a hurry call and within twelve minutes had fifteen boys under the leadership of Senior Patrol Leader John C. Hinrichs, Jr., on the run to render what service they could. Upon arriving at the scene it was apparent that a back fire was advisable and soon was set in action, putting a check to the fire for over a stretch of a half mile.

Other services were rendered by the scouts until Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton arrived on the scene, having responded to the general call sent out by Scoutmaster Wyant.

The boys worked faithfully at the scene of action from 1.25 p. m., until 5.30, some of them much the worse for their efforts.

The fire was still burning well into the evening.

GIVEN APPOINTMENTS FOR SUPERIOR COURT JUDGESHIPS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, April 26.—Senator Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury, who has been nominated by Governor Templeton for a superior court judgeship, is prosecuting attorney of the district court of Waterbury and a member of the law firm of Thomas & Ells. He has been chairman of the republican town committee and first vice president of the Republican club of Waterbury.

At the republican state convention he made a masterly speech nominating Mr. Templeton for governor.

He is a graduate of Amherst college and Harvard law school, and has held office in Waterbury as city tax collector and judge of the probate court. He is judge advocate general on the staff of Governor Templeton with the rank of colonel. He is married and has four children.

Speaker Leonard J. Nickerson of Cornwall who was Governor Templeton's other appointment for the superior court was born in Cornwall and educated in the public schools and at Alger Institute there. After being graduated, he taught school for five years and then studied law with Arthur D. Warner, afterwards judge of the common pleas court. He has been judge of probate in Cornwall for a number of years and has been president of the Litchfield County Bar association for the last two years.

He served in the house in 1883 and again in 1921, being a member of the judiciary committee in the last session, and at present is speaker of the house.

Judge Nickerson is a member of Lafayette Consistory, Hamilton Commandery and Pyramid Temple, all of Bridgeport. He is also an Elk and a member of the Cornwall grange. He is a director of the Robbins Burral Trust Co. of Lakeville and the Bantam Ball Bearing Co., and is president of the West Cornwall Water Co. and the Masonic Hall Corporation of Cornwall.

These appointments are for the additional judges created this session. There yet remains an appointment to replace the retirement of Judge Webb under the age limit.

K. OF C. MEN ARE TO LISTEN IN ON SPEECHES

Francis T. Diggins, faithful navigator of Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, fourth degree section, Knights of Columbus, is in receipt of a communication from James J. Nolan, master of the fourth degree for the Third New York district, that will be of general interest to all members of the Knights of Columbus in this section, and in particular to all fourth degree members. The communication is as follows:

"There will be an exemplification of the fourth degree for the Third New York district at Albany on Sunday, April 29th. The banquet which will be tendered the candidates will take place at the Ten Eyck hotel at the conclusion of the degree, and for the first time in the history of the fourth degree the addresses at the banquet will be broadcasted by the General Electric company of Schenectady from the station known as WGY. The broadcasting of speeches will commence about 9 o'clock p. m., daylight saving time. The speakers will be former Governor Martin H. Glynn, Rear Admiral William S. Benson, United States navy, Hon. William F. X. Geoghan, assistant district attorney of Kings county, and Rev. Thomas J. Curley of Troy."

As a result of the communication from Master Nolan, a number of parties have been made up among K. of C. members to assemble at different places where there is a radio outfit installed, for the purpose of listening in on the program of exercises, which on account of the prominence of the speakers should be of unusual excellence.

APRIL AUTO FATALITIES ONE EVERY OTHER DAY

One death every other day as a result of automobiles is the record that has been set so far this month by Connecticut motor vehicle operators, according to a report just issued by the statistical bureau of the department of motor vehicles.

Thus far this year the fatal accident situation in Connecticut has been good. Each month of 1923 has seen a decrease in fatal accidents over the same month of 1922 and other previous years, but the month of April threatens to spoil that record.

Enormous increases are being made in the Connecticut registration lists this spring and already the city streets and country highways are beginning to become crowded with pleasure cars. With the population, automobile registration and traffic congestion all increasing, the general accidents in the state are also showing a natural increase, according to the periodic statistical reports given out by the department of motor vehicles.

Fatal accidents, however, have not yet shown a proportional increase, and every means available to the state officials is being used to keep the death toll in Connecticut down as low as possible. This month has already witnessed 13 deaths. The motor vehicle department reports that of these 13 fatalities, five had as their victims children under 10 years of age. Three deaths are chalked up against Hartford, two against New Haven, and one each against Derby, Willimantic, Middletown, Glenbrook, New Britain, Groton, Milford and Manchester. The reports of three coroners have already been filed and show one driver guilty of manslaughter and the other two not criminally liable.

46 Measles Cases in New London.

According to the report of the state department of health for the week ending April 21st, the following cases of communicable diseases were reported from eastern Connecticut:

Diphtheria, Groton (T) 1, New London 2, Norwich (C) 1, Stonington 1; whooping cough, Groton (B) 1, Groton (T) 1, New London 2; scarlet fever, Somers 1, Woodstock 1; measles, Groton (B) 1, Groton (T) 2, New London 46, North Stonington 1, Norwich (C) 4, Old Lyme 2, Stonington 2, Brooklyn 4, Eastford 1, Danielson 5, Plainfield 1, Sterling 3, and Woodstock 3.

State totals for various diseases for the week ending April 21st as compared with the previous week are as follows: Diphtheria, 34 to 43; whooping cough, 52 to 76; scarlet fever, 74 to 87; measles, 203 to 246; smallpox, 1 to 2; typhoid fever, Meriden (C) 1, last week none.

There were 23 cases of chickenpox reported in the state, 4 of influenza and 26 of labor pneumonia. Measles was reported as epidemic in Plainville.

Town Meeting On High School.

Citizens of the town will attend the special town meeting at the court house this (Friday) evening, when they will vote upon the recommendations of the town school board regarding the high school situation and the acceptance of an offer from the Norwich Free Academy in relation thereto.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Daddy Bullfrog and Daylight Saving

Little Timmie Meadowmouse
Has a round ball for a house.
It's made of nicely woven grass.
But it hasn't a window pane of glass.

"Hello, little Jack Rabbit!" said the tiny meadowmouse, as the little rabbit stopped to look at a daisy. "How are you this lovely day?"

"I'm going down to the Old Duck Pond to ask Grand daddy Bullfrog something," answered the little rabbit.

"What are you going to ask him?" inquired Timmie Meadowmouse.

"Never mind. Maybe I'll tell you some day," and the little rabbit hopped away and by and by, pretty soon, not so very long, he came to the Old Duck Pond, and sure enough there sat Granddaddy Bullfrog on his log, winking and blinking in the sun.

"Good morning! Have you had your breakfast?"

"Had my breakfast!" almost shouted the old gentleman frog. "Why it's almost time for lunch. I guess you've forgot to set your watch ahead."

"Oh, dear me!" said the little rabbit, "I have."

Pulling out his gold watch and chain—the one that dear Uncle Lucky had given him, oh, some 'leven stories ago, you remember, he set it an hour fast and after he looked up at Mr. Merry Sun and laughed."

"Now, don't get mad, Mr. Merry Sun."

"Well, I won't get mad," said that jolly old fellow, "but I'll tell you one thing—I shan't get up any earlier. You people can do what you wish, but I've been on time since the world began and I won't be hurried by any man!"

Then he rolled behind a cloud just to show the little rabbit that he meant what he said.

"Do you think he's angry?" asked Little Jack Rabbit.

"Not a bit of it," answered Granddaddy Bullfrog. "What does he care if the factory whistle blows an hour earlier? He doesn't have to hurry. He gets up in the purple east every day at the same time."

"No he doesn't," said a voice and there stood Professor Crow with his little wisdom book. "Let me read you something," and that wise old bird turned to page 3 and read:

"The sun in the winter time rises late,
Sometimes it's sixty minutes to eight;
But when the summer time comes once more
He often gets up at half-past four."

"Dear me," said Granddaddy Bullfrog, dreadfully angry, "you don't know what I mean," and in the next story you shall hear what the old gentleman frog really meant to say.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL ADVANCE TIME SCHEDULE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, April 26.—The general assembly, scene of many contests over daylight saving today submitted to an advanced time schedule. At the close of today's session, on motion of Senator Ells the senate adjourned to Tuesday next at 10.15 standard time. The senate meets at 11.15 on session days. As train schedules will be advanced an hour, Connecticut legislators will be brought to the capitol one hour earlier. The house took similar action.

Rubbish Ablaze in Greeneville

The fire department was called out at 11.51 o'clock Thursday night for a fire in the rear of the Davis-Warper Arms Co. on North Main street. A pile of rubbish was found to be ablaze and was quickly extinguished. Before the firemen arrived a stream had been connected from the Dupont de Nemours company plant and men were holding back the blaze. The damage was slight.

ARE WOMEN OVERWORKED?

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the housewife and mother who struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father or mother to support, therefore do housework beside. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Nine-tenths of every 100 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for woman's ills. For nearly 50 years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.

Former Maharanee To Wed Stepson

Anita Delgado, one time Spanish dancer, and former Maharanee of Kapurthala, who will again hold that position, it is reported. As soon as her divorce from the Maharajah is made absolute, she will marry her stepson and the Maharaja's heir. After her ten years in the exotic luxury of the Indian States, Anita pined for white civilization despite occasional visits to Europe permitted by her lord. Finally she left him and started divorce proceedings. She is now enjoying herself in Paris where she is seen constantly in the company of her stepson.

IRISH REPUBLICAN LEADERS HAVE MADE CONDITIONAL OVERTURES FOR PEACE

Proclamation Issued by Eamon de Valera and Chief of Staff E. F. Aitken Orders a Cessation of Hostilities of the Reb- Army From Noon Monday Pending Negotiations, Should the Offer Prove Acceptable to the Free State Authorities—Troops Have Been Cautioned to Maintain Their Defense and Protect Their Munitions.

Dublin, April 27.—(By the A. P.)—A suspension of hostilities by the Irish republican army against the forces of the republican government, and an offer Free State government, and an offer to negotiate peace with the Free State on certain conditions were proclaimed tonight by Eamon De Valera, the republican leader, and his chief of staff, E. F. Aitken.

De Valera's proclamation sets forth the principal points of the republican claim that the ultimate court of appeal for settling disputed questions is a majority vote of the people of Ireland. But resistance by violence should not be decided, but that adequate machinery should be afforded the people for a proper presentation of the issues involved.

The proclamation adds that nobody holding republican principles should be excluded from parliament and the council of the nation. It says the military forces are servants of the nation and answerable to a freely elected national assembly.

De Valera expresses the belief that his offer affords a basis for peace, and that advance will be met in the spirit which we make it, and that it will be supported by all who love country and desire a speedy end to the present national trouble.

"As evidence of our own good will the army command is issuing herewith an order to suspend aggressive action, to take effect as soon as may be, but not later than noon of Monday."

The effect of this proclamation is still [illegible] De Valera all depends on the willingness to allow the free will of the people to decide the question that the republicans must not interfere with the people decision.

Under this order for a defensive operation troops to [illegible] and protect the [illegible] that there is no surrender on the part of the republican government [illegible] surrender of all arms.

The following order signed by the chief of staff, A. Aiken, was issued from [illegible] army headquarters:

"Owing to the commands and independent action of [illegible] offers very [illegible] in order to put a stop to the [illegible] of the government [illegible] embodied in the proclamation you will suspend all offensive operations from noon on Monday.

"Be prepared to protect [illegible] that whilst republican principles should be excluded from parliament and the council of the nation, the military forces are servants of the nation and answerable to a freely elected national assembly.

"De Valera expresses the belief that his offer affords a basis for peace, and that advance will be met in the spirit which we make it, and that it will be supported by all who love our country and desire a speedy end to the present national trouble.

"As evidence of our own good will the army command is issuing herewith an order to suspend aggressive action, to take effect as soon as may be, but not later than noon of Monday."

DE VALERA RETAINS POINTS OF HIS OLD POSITION

Dublin, April 27 (By the A. P.).—In [illegible] it was asserted today [illegible] De Valera's proclamation [illegible] considered as having [illegible] change in the political complexion [illegible] that the document [illegible] all the points of his old position and left him free to interpret the proclamation in accordance with them.

It was added that if the government accepted the proclamation at its apparent value it would be asked to procure guarantees from the British government against interference in the event of a republican success in elections.

The fourth article of the proclamation was taken by some of the officials as possibly meaning that persons elected to parliament might hold their seats without taking the oath of allegiance, which is an essential condition of the treaty between Great Britain and Ireland.

Kevin O'Higgins, minister of home affairs, promises to deal with the proclamation at the usual Saturday conference with the newspapermen.

De Valera's terms have been known for some days to Monsignor Luzio of the sacred congregation in Rome, who is in Ireland investigating the situation for Pope Pius. They are said to have encouraged his belief that the chances for peace are good, his idea being that once arms are laid down they will never be taken up again. Monsignor Luzio is at present confined to his hotel by a slight attack of bronchitis.

NO SPECIAL EXAMINATION FOR DR. MORIARITY

Hartford, April 27.—The state medical examining board will not give a special examination to Dr. Edward H. Moriarity of Rockville, Dr. John C. Rowley of Hartford, a member of the board, told Francis E. Jones, lawyer for Dr. Moriarity, at a conference here tonight. Dr. Moriarity has a petition before the legislature for an act requiring the examining board to give him an examination to determine his fitness to practice medicine in Connecticut. He claims to have a cure for cancer. A hearing was held on the petition by the legislative judiciary committee Thursday and it was adjourned pending the outcome of the conference.

Mr. Jones said tonight that he would report the result of the conference to the judiciary committee next Tuesday, but could not say what further action he would take until he had consulted his client. Dr. Rowley said that the board had refused to grant the request for a special examination because Dr. Moriarity would not be likely to receive an impartial judgment in a special examination. In the regular examinations there are a number of candidates and each paper is marked only with a number, so that those giving the examination do not know whose paper they are correcting. This situation would not obtain in a special examination for one man. He said there would be no objection to Dr. Moriarity taking the regular examination in July.

Commenting on the charges that Dr. Moriarity had been discriminated against and prevented from taking previous examinations, Dr. Rowley said that most of the arrangements for Dr. Moriarity taking the examination had been verbal between Dr. Moriarity and Dr. Robert L. Rowley, another member of the examining board, who is now out of town. "If Dr. Robert L. Rowley was here," he said, "I am not sure but that things would appear differently."

ON GUARD ALL WINTER FOR MISSING FELLOW WARDENS

Greenville, Me., April 27 (By the A. P.).—Eight wardens in the service of the inland fisheries and game commission of Maine, operating from four permanent camps established last fall, have stood guard all winter in the woods at the head waters of the Penobscot and St. John rivers, where two of their fellow wardens disappeared last November, while seeking alleged Canadian game poachers.

This long vigil became known today when Deputy Sheriff Adelbert G. Rogers of Greenville, who has been engaged in hunting for the bodies of the men, David F. Brown of this town, chief game warden for northern Aroostook county, and Mertly E Johnson of Patten, his companion, revealed the efforts made to find them.

Deputy Rogers said the activities were not so much to prosecute anyone, although the authorities believe they were murdered, as to recover the bodies for their famihes.

A large searching party will enter the woods in about ten days, after the snow will have melted, under the immediate direction of Willis E. Parsons, state commissioner of inland fisheries and game.

Rewards totalling $500 have been offered for the recovery of the bodies and for evidence leading to the conviction of those held responsible for the wardens' deaths.

GREEK SLASHED BY AN ITALIAN IN GREENWICH

Greenwich, April 27.—John Maharis, a Greek who cobbles shoes here was slashed across the face with a razor in the hands of G. Grinaldi, an Italian, while he was leaving a leather store in Stamford, last night, according to a police report today. Maharis in the Stamford hospital in serious condition from loss of blood. The police inquiry tended to show that Grinaldi was mad because the landlord raised the rend of the shop which Maharis took after Grinaldi vacated it, the latter for some unexplained reason having enmity against Maharis. Grinaldi has disappeared.

COUNSEL FOR MORSE CONCLUDE STATEMENTS

Washington, April 27—The question of the eligibility of one of the jurors sitting in the Morse case in the District of Columbia supreme court was eliminated today and the trial of the issue on its merits went forward. Counsel for the defense concluded their opening statements to the jury and it was announced that the introduction of evidence by the government would begin Monday. The court will not sit on Saturdays.

Decision to go ahead with the case with the jury as originally constituted was reached at a continuation of conferences between counsel and Justice Stafford, which began yesterday after the question of the qualifications of one of the jurors first was raised. While held in open court, but with the jury absent, the discussions were private and there was no announcement of the result other than an order by Justice Stafford that the jury be brought into the room and the trial proceed.

Whether counsel for the defense offered a formal motion for a mistrial was not made known, nor was there any intimation as to the matter in which the question had been disposed of.

In concluding his statement to the jury, Attorney Rockwood, of New York, of defense counsel, declared the government "should not try to wreak any vengeance, or present ideas that are beyond the pale of an honest administration of the criminal law."

"We shall undertake to show," he said, "that this is one of the greatest tragedies of the persecution of an individual ever presented to an American jury. We will endeavor to show systematic and fraudulent efforts on the part of government officials to bring about the persecution of these gentlemen."

Mr. Rockwood declared that the defense, in refuting the dealings between Morse and his sons with the emergency fleet corporation concerning ship contracts would show a "systematic mass of obstruction and red tape"; an "absence of cooperation in forwarding the shipbuilding programs and "and accumulated mass of progressive inefficiency in the departments of the fleet corporation, such as in my judgment were never disclosed before." Counsel asserted also that the defense would offer evidence that "accounts were juggled by such officials" to prevent progress payments to the Morse shipyards.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR MURDER IN BRISTOL

Bristol, April 27.—Jerome Green, a negro, was arrested here late today on a charge of murder shortly after the death of James Barberm, 23, also a negro, who died fifteen minutes after he had been shot with a revolver in a local rooming house. Police declared that the shooting took place while Green was under the influence of liquor. Both men came here from Stevensville, Md.

According to the police Green had been drinking during the afternoon and on entering the boarding house had pointed a revolver at Barber, who attempted to disarm him. In the struggle the revolver was discharged and Barber wounded. Three other lodgers took the police that Green fired a shot at them when he met them in the woods near here.

Green and Barber had been friendly until recently when they appeared as witnesses on opposite sides of a police court case. Green will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

REFUSED TO GIVE NAMES OF GIRLS IMPLICATED

St. Joseph, Mich., April 27.—Walter Nelson, attorney, who is suing and being sued by the House of David, refused today to furnish to the grand jury investigating the cult the names and addresses of girls who are said to claim they were criminally assaulted by "King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the society.

Nelson, who represents Mr. and Mrs. John Hansell in their $80,000 suit against the cult in federal court at Grand Rapids last week, is attorney for the Butsford sisters, who are suing Purnell for $100,000 each for alleged improper relations, and is also defendant in a $30,000 slander suit brought by the House of David.

Judge Harry Dingeman of Detroit, presiding judge of the Michigan circuit bench, who is sitting as a one-man grand jury in the state's investigation of the Purnell colony, gave Nelson a week to cite legal opinions in support of his stand that the information in his possession is privileged.

DEMOCRATIC FILIBUSTER IN R. I. SENATE SUCCESSFUL

Providence, R. I., April 27.—The ten week filibuster of the democratic minority in the Rhode Island senate came to a dramatic end this afternoon, when the twenty republicans members of the body, rising at their seats in the senate chamber pledged themselves to permit all three of the democratic platform measures, for which the minority has been fighting, to come to a vote on their merits in the senate before the close of the session.

HELD FOR KILLING FIVE MEMBERS OF A FAMILY

Haworth, Okla., April 27.—Ira Gardner, and A. B. Miller, farmers, were arrested today by a posse and placed in the city jail here in connection with the killing of five members of the family of Tom Hansell at the Hansell home near here late last night. Officers declined to discuss the arrests of the two men, other than to say they were taken into custody because of letters received by Hansell and members of his family.

ACCIDENTALLY STRUCK ON HEAD WITH AXE BY PLAYMATE

Torrington, April 27.—Accidentally struck on the head with an axe by one of his playmates, four year old Robert Arnold was taken to the Charlotte Hungerford hospital late today in a serious condition with a possible skull fracture. According to the story pieced together by his parents, Robert was playing with a group of boys slightly older than himself when one of the boys waved an axe in the air, in fun, striking him on the head. The name of the boy is not known

May Use the Navy to Cope With Rum Fleet

A Plan Has Been Worked Out by the Administration—Awaits Approval of Department of Justice.

Washington, April 27.—A plan to use the navy against the rum smuggling fleet off the Atlantic coast has been worked out by the administration, it was said at the White House today, and will be put into effect if the president is found to have the necessary legal authority.

The department of justice has been asked for an opinion as to whether the president has power to declare an "emergency" and use the armed forces of the government to curtail the operations of rum-smugglers.

Announcement of the decision to utilitize naval craft in curbing the activities of rum smugglers, in the event there is no legal barrier, was made after it became known that the state department again had requested the co-operation of Great Britain in checking hum running.

New representations made to the London government seek its assistance in preventing ships, flying the British flag, from engaging in the liquor traffic between foreign ports and the United States. The co-operation of the Canadian authorities also has been requested.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes for some time has been urging that the navy be utilized to stop the operations of the rum fleet.

It was emphasized at the White House that in the enforcement of the law the president desired to proceed with strict legal circumspection and not use any extra legal powers. There was doubt whether the president had the power to proclaim the smuggling an emergency warranting the use of naval vessels to enforce search and seizure laws. Another legal question was said to be whether the president had the authority to divert appropriations made by congress for the recognized activities of the navy to use in enforcing prohibition.

TO CONFISCATE ALL COKE IN THE RHUR

Essen, April 27 (By the A. P.).—A sweeping order, providing for the confiscation of all coke in the Ruhr, was issued today by General Degoutte, head of the occupation forces.

All coke by-products are included in the order, which explains the action is taken because Germany refused to fulfill the clauses of the treaty of Versailles providing for deliveries of coal and coke and because there are indications that the available coke supply is diminishing.

In consequence of this order, it was announced this evening, all public bath houses in Essen, Bochum, Dortmund and other industrial cities in the Ruhr will be closed. About 500 furnaces already have been shut down, and the Germans say it is only a question of time when others, along with big manufacturing plants, will also close.

General Degoutte's order prohibits the use of coke for domestic purposes and fixes penalties for infractions at from ten million to one hundred million marks fine, with five years' imprisonment.

The Germans say they do not intend to comply with the order.

CHIEF DIFFICULTY OF BOYS DROPPED FROM YALE

New Haven, April 27.—Bridging up the gap between the restrictions of the preparatory school and the liberty of the university is the chief difficulty of boys who are dropped from Yale, Joseph R. Ellis, registrar of the Yale freshman year told New England college registrars meeting at Clark university

Boys with "low geared minds," boys who have been coddled at prep schools, boys who engage too heavily in extra-curriculum activities and those who come to have a good time are in the groups which are most likely to be dropped quickly. To meet these conditions, Mr. Ellis said, Yale had introduced a faculty councillor system, had kept classes small and made good teaching the aim of the freshman faculty.

INCREASE OF DEPOSITS IN SAVINGS BANKS

Hartford, April 27.—Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne has compiled figures showing the condition of savings banks in the state for the quarter ending March 31. The total amount of deposits in the banks at the close of the perior was $443,865,607.46. This was an increase of $13,005,428.87 over that at the close of the previous quarter December 31, 1922, when the deposits totalled $430,860,178.58. The increase for the last quarter ending March 31 was the largest for any quarter in the history of the banking department or in the history of the savings banks in this state.

British Premier to Take a Sea Voyage

Parliamentary Authorities Attach Political Significance of the Departure of Bonar Law.

London, April 27—(By the A. P.)—The announcement that Premier Bonar Law is about to start on a sea voyage for at least a month, to regain his voice and health, was issued after the House of Commons made its customary early adjournment this afternoon. If not a surprise to the members of the house, it certainly is looked upon as a surprise to the country after the optimistic statements made by Marquis Curzon and other cabinet ministers concerning the premier's health.

Parliamentary authorities declare it possesses significance beyond the mere question of the premier's physical condition, pointing out that the administration, "notably deficient in debating strength, is faced by tireless determined and extremely vocal opposition in a commons well ammunitioned with questions like housing and unemployment to harrass the ministers.

In addition, they say, the government party is torn by internal dissension and rivalry for the expected succession to the premiership, since the belief is almost universal that Mr Bonar Law's health, even under most favorable conditions, can hardly stand the strain of a prolonged term of office.

The premier had already deputed Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, to take his place in all speaking parts, but while he remained on the scene of action he could not protect himself from the worries of the internal conflicts, hence, parliamentary commentators say, it may safely be assumed has journey is to be undertaken as much to escape the anxieties for a few weeks as any immediate cause of the actual condition of his throat, although it is known that it has proved less amenable to treatment than was expected and that his medical advisers feared the effect on his health of constant work.

In the prime minister's absence Mr. Baldwin will act as leader in the House of Commons and virtually as premier.

AMERICAN DECLARATION AT LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Lausanne, April 27.—(By the A. P.)—The feature of today's session of the political committee of the near east conference was the reading by Joseph C. Grew, head of the American delegation, of a statement declaring that the United States cannot recognize the stability of Turkey's abolition of the capitulations in 1914 and that insistence would be made upon the retention of all rights to which American citizens are entitled under the treaties. Great Britain took issue on this, Sir Horace Rumbold declaring that it was quite impossible to admit the Turkish pretension that the abolition of the capitulations was effective in September 1914, when Turkey declared them abrogated.

Sir Horace pointed out that acceptance would mean that Turkey could collect arrears on taxes levied on foreigners, and that the proceedings of the consular courts since 1914 would be brought into question. Mr. Grew said the subject was one of particular interest to the United States and that the American government was firmly of opinion that the rights assured to American citizens and other foreigners by virtue of the treaties could not lawfully be terminated by an act of one of the parties thereto.

The allies agreed to an alternative, effective when the treaty of Lausanne is signed, and the Turks no longer insisted on their viewpoint.

Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, asked the conference to provide for a joint Greco-Turk commission of control of the Orient railroad in territory occupied by the Greeks. M. Venizelos, Greece, proposed that the league of nations be asked to name a neutral controller.

FIVE BIG OIL COMPANIES CUT PRICE OF GASOLINE

New York, April 27.—Five big oil companies today announced a cut of one cent a gallon in the tank?wagon price of gasoline in their territories, effective at once. Surplus production of crude and a consequent lowering of costs was said to have led to the cut.

The Standard Oil company of New Jersey and the Standard Oil company of New York, whose distribution covers New England, New England and most of the eastern seaboard, made the second cut of a cent a gallon in their tank-wagon prices for gasoline within the week. The new price will be 21 1-2 cents for the New Jersey company and 22 1-2 cents for the New York company, with the exception of a few places where varying adjustments will be made.

WORLD COURT INDISPENSABLE FOR THE PREVENTION OF WAR, IS OPINION OF SEC'Y HUGHES

Advocates Participation by the United States in a Permanent Court of International Justice—Asserts That No Plan to Promote Peace Can Dispense With It—Mr. Hughes Replied to Several Objections Which Have Been Publicly Voiced—Has No Semblance to the League of Nations.

Washington, Apr. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Participation by the United States in a permanent court of international justice was advocated tonight by Secretary Hughes in an address before the American Society of International Law as indispensable to any plan for the prevention of war and the promotion of peace.

"Whatever else we should have," Mr. Hughes declared, "we need at once a permanent court of international justice. No plan to promote peace can dispense with it. We shall make no progress toward the prevention of war if we adopt a perfectionist policy."

Among the "actual needs" for a world court the secretary cited the acceptance of the court for such questions as a basis of "fact or of interpretation" and judicially adjudging international disputes. Existing methods of arbitration, he said "have failed to be adequate." He declared the time to establish and separate from the league of nations, having a distinct legal status created by an independent organic act."

Without mentioning by name any critic in opposition to President Harding's plan for membership in the tribunal, Mr. Hughes replied to several of the objections publicly voiced. The establishment of a world court for peaceful determination of disputes between nations, he said, had long been an American policy.

"If you are to treat participation in a permanent court of international justice as an entanglement foreign to our institutions," he added, "you must rewrite American history."

"In making this proposal," Mr. Hughes said, "the president has been animated by the desire to promote world peace an distribution; he has sought to give effect to a long cherished American aspiration and to pursue in the projected course the clear line of our traditional policy. With full appreciation of the intensity of feeling aroused by the controversy of recent years we can not fail to realize the importance of having the subject considered upon its merits and the supreme need is an understanding of the facts which should remove uncertainty and quiet apprehension.

"As the president has explicitly stated, it is proposed to support the permanent court of international justice; it is not proposed to enter the league of nations. Those who desire that by this method the United States shall become a member of the league are indulging in vain hopes, and those who are alarmed at such a possibility are entertaining vain fears. The test is a clear one. If the senate should approve the president's recommendation, the United States would still be outside the league. Acceptance of the president's proposal as to the international court will not obtain for the United States a single right or subject it to a single obligation under the covenant of the league.

Questions of Interest

"These are the questions in which I assume the citizens of the United States are interested:

"Is it a good thing to have an international court?

"Why should we have a permanent court instead of temporary arbitral tribunals?

"Is the permanent court of international justice established on a sound basis?

"Is there any good reason why the United States should not support it?

"First, Why should there be an international court? The manifest answer is that there are controversies between nations which should be decided by a court. Recognizing the distinction between questions of a legal nature and questions of policy, there has emerged from the discussions of jurists an agreement defining justiciable disputes as those which relate to the interpretation of a treaty, to any question of international law, to the existence of facts which would constitute a breach of an international obligation or to the reparation to be made for such breaches.

"It is to the direct interest of the United States, with respect to the disposition of its own controversies, that the best practicable method of judicial settlement should be provided. Every citizen knows that it is in the interest of domestic peace that we should maintain a tribunal by which controversies arising between any two states can be determined. It is equally essential to world peace that controversies not our own should be peacefully and impartially determined wherever that is possible.

"How are controversies between nations to be determined? Ultimately, the alternative to peaceful settlement is the arbitrament of force. The only way to prevent war is to dispose of the causes of war and the desire for peace must be supported by the institutions of peace. Because a court may not be able to deal with every sort of controversy but only with controversies that are appropriate for a court to decide is no reason for dispensing with it.

Permanent Instead of Temporary

"Second. Why should there be a permanent court instead of temporary arbitral tribunals?

"The principle of judicial settlement of international disputes has been applied from early times through arbitrators. It is a method of great value and I have no desire to underestimate it. We have been parties to more than 70 arbitrations and we have concluded a score of general arbitration conventions. Throughout its history the United States has consistently supported this sort of judicial process, but we have long recognized that it leaves much to be desired.

"Third, Is the present permanent court of international justice, to which the president's recommendation refers, established on a sound basis?

"The permanent court of international justice has been established under what is called a statute, or constitution, which defines its organization, jurisdiction, and procedure. In the preparation of the preparation of this statute the council of the league called to its aid an international committee of the most distinguished jurists, among whom was Mr. Root. This advisory committee of jurists formulated a plan for a permanent court. The plan was considered and amended in the council and assembly of the league, but its main structure was retained. While the amended plan was adopted by the assembly of the league, it could not be put into effect by action of the league. In view of the scope of the plan, it was necessary to have a special international agreement on the part of the states which were to accept it. Accordingly a special protocol or agreement was the subject of the court annexed to and drawn up [illegible] by the league council. I understand that [illegible] states have signed this special agreement and to these about [illegible] have been formally ratified.

"The permanent court is thus an establishment separate from the league, having a distinct legal status created by an independent organic act.

"Careful provision has been made to secure the independence of the court and to safeguard the appropriate discharge of its functions as a judicial body in accordance with accepted judicial standards. No judge can be removed by the league of nations. The statute provides that in deciding cases the court shall apply international conventions establishing rules expressly recognized by the contesting states; international custom, as evidence of a general practice accepted as law; the general principles of law recognized by civilized nations; and the judicial decisions and the teachings of the most highly qualified publicists of the various nations, as subsidiary means for the determination of rules of law. The judgment of the court is to be final and without appeal. It is expressly provided, however, that the decision of the court shall have no binding force except between the parties and in respect of the particular case decided. It should be noted, the council and assembly, in electing judges, do not act under the covenant of the league nations.

"The fundamental question is whether the league of nations controls the court. To this there is already answer. The league does not control the court; that is an independent judicial body. The league is composed of states; they of course, continue to exist as states. When the league acts, it acts under the covenant which creates the rights and obligations pertaining to the league. But when these 52 members act in separate groups to elect judges, they are, as I have said, not acting under the covenant, but following a course of procedure defined by a special international agreement in order to secure the independent and impartial body for which the world has been waiting.

46 Nations Have Signed

Fourth, Is there any good reason why the United States should not support the permanent court?

"It is objected that it is not a world court. But in what sense is it not a world court? Is reference made to the number of nations which supported it? The answer is, as I have already said, that about 46 nations have already signed the protocol, and if the United States adheres, there is every reason to suppose that participation by the other nations will be brought about. This should be our aim. It is not too much to say that there will be no world court if this court cannot be made one, and whether or not it is to be in the fullest sense a world court depends upon our own actions.

"Suppose we should now undertake to establish another world court. What would we do? We could not establish it by ourselves; we should have to prepare a plan and submit it to the other nations. We should need the approval of the nations who have already approved the present plan.

"Another objection is that the court has been established throught the action of the league of nations. This is not an entirely accurate statement, for the action of the league could not have established the court. It was necessary to have a special agreement signed or adhered to by the nations which support the court, and the court rests upon that agreement. The substantial point, however, is not the source of the plan but its character.

"But it is said that support of the court, although it manifestly does not involve entrance into the league, or the assumption of any obligation under the covenant of the league, constitutes an entanglement. But in what do we become entangled? Are we to abandon the effort to dispose of international controversies by judicial settlement which has been a feature of American policy since the foundation of the government? We can not have an ordinary arbitration unless we have an international agreement and an international tribunal for the purpose of the arbitration. We have never considered this to be an entanglement. We have manifested our desire for such judicial settlement by numerous treaties and special conventions.

"Certainly we do not object that the disputes of others should be settled peacefully by similar methods. Then, as I have shown, the establishment of a permanent court has been an American policy because we have desired this essential improvement in judicial process in international relations. Political platforms have treated this as an American policy and not as a forbidden entanglement. If you are to treat participation in a permanent court of international justice as an entanglement foreign to our institutions, you must 'rewrite American history.'"

Decker; Scotland, Harry B. Chesbro; Sterling, Edwin S. Gallup.

The continued case of William H. Horton, charged with reckless driving on the evening of April 14, was taken up for the fourth time Friday morning in the local police court. A large number of witnesses took the stand for both the state and the defense. The main question to be thrashed out was as to whether both rear wheels of the automobile had locked in making a turn from Maple avenue into Church street or whether Horton had driven at a reckless speed around the corner.

Witnesses testified that wheel marks showed that both rear wheels had dragged for some distance on Maple avenue in a straight line to the crosswalk on Church street and in an angle of about 45 degrees after the turn had been made into the latter street, before the car finally passed the curbing and turned over. The witnesses for the defense testified that only one wheel, the right rear wheel, had locked and dragged, that only one brake had worked when applied. Those who took the stand were Policeman Frederick Lariviere, Dennis McLean, Thomas P. Kinsella, Joseph Pugh, Arthur Clark, H. Dale, Louis Seidel, Mr. Wittier and William H. Horton, the defendant.

Judge Foss surmised that the automobile had either been driven at a reckless speed or that the truth was lacking. He imposed a fine of $10 and costs. Horton took an appeal to the superior court and furnished bonds of $200.

AMERICAN AND ENGLISH ATHLETES DIVIDE HONORS IN RELAY EVENTS

Philadelphia, April 27.—(By the A. P.)—Capturing the college sprint medley relay championship today from the pick of Yankee track stars, Oxford University's sturdy band of runners enabled England to share honors with America in the first day's events of the two-day relay carnival under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin field.

The Britishers, however, were forced to taste defeat in the only other event in which they participated when C. B. E. Morgan barely finished sixth in the two-mile international run, won by Walter Higgins, of Columbia, intercollegiate cross-country champion, in brilliant fashion.

In addition to emblematic [illegible] and individual championships [illegible] West, ex-star of Wash[illegible] Jefferson, and Georgetown [illegible] entered for a picked [illegible] from all parts of the country in the other major relay [illegible] Pennsylvania sprint [illegible] the quarter-mile [illegible] was victorious in [illegible] and Phillips-Exeter [illegible] placed the inter-[illegible] from Hamilton [illegible] of Florida.

These were outstanding features of the meet which attracted [illegible] which competed [illegible] and college [illegible] from all parts of the United States, England, including all provinces of Canada, and [illegible] the greatest athletes [illegible] of the world.

30,000 in Attendance.

[illegible] were [illegible] for [illegible] the daily [illegible] [illegible] the one-mile, one two and four-mile—was expected to bring out a crowd taxing the 30,000 capacity of the new stadium.

Two new meet records were established today, Pennsylvania's quartet of flying sprinters [illegible] new mark of 42 seconds in the quarter-mile relay, between Quarters' former record of 43 2-5 seconds, while T. D. Torrey, crack Boston weight man, tossed the hammer 174 feet 5 inches, eclipsing the meet record of 156 feet 7 inch, set by Baker of Princeton, and also bettering the intercollegiate [illegible] of 171 feet 2 inches, held by J. W. Merchant, of California. Torrey's heave was about fifteen feet beyond the best throw of his nearest opponent.

Oxford's Work a Surprise.

Oxford's victory over a dozen Yankee stars in the sprint medley was somewhat unexpected, but pushed the last minute decision of the English to enter the event instead of the distance medley. There was some consolation for America, even in defeat, however, for W. E. (Billy) Stevenson, formerly of Princeton, helped the Oxonians set the early pace with a brilliant furlong run.

The great running of Milligan, the captain of the English team, in the final relay of a mile, enabled the Britishers to win. Taking the baton a scant few feet in front, he kept stride with Newman of the rays and he was [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] before [illegible] French Hoy. Milligan put [illegible] with a spurt that seemed to leave his opponents standing still, and broke the tape a good 15 yards in front in the fast time of 1:27 4-5.

The showing of Morgan, the Oxonian in the two-mile individual run was a disappointment. He got off well in front, running in marked contrast to his American rivals with a powerful swinging motion of his arms, and held the lead practically unchallenged until near the finish, when Higgins who had been lagging behind, shot out ahead. The Columbian star was followed closely by W. M. Thompson, of Hamilton College and H. Holme, of Georgetown, while Morgan dropped steadily behind at the mile and three-quarters mark he was fifty yards behind Higgins. Starting the last lap Higgins and Thompson raced clear of the rest of the field, but the latter, after hanging on gamely until 100 yards from the tape, nearly collapsed under the killing pace and was barely able to stagger across the line 25 yards behind the flying Columbian, who had raced it up the stretch like a sprinter.

West Is a Star Performer.

West's victory in the Pentathlon was the result of brilliant performances in three of the five events making up this gruelling championship test, the outcome of which was in doubt until the Washington and Jefferson star captured the final event, the 1,500 metre run, from P. [illegible] of Haskell Institute, Kansas, with a brilliant finish.

West was [illegible] the javelin throw and tied for best [illegible] the 220-metre run. He placed fourth in the broad jump and ninth in the discus throw, [illegible] a maximum of sixteen points, two as many as the victorious Indian got last year at Negrtha-dre.

F. F. Mackey, of Georgetown, was second with 19 points, tying for first in the 200 metre run, capturing third place in the javelin, discus and 1,500 metre run and landing ninth in the broad jump. Elkins was third with 26 points, Newton, of the University of Florida, fourth with 27 points, despite firsts in the broad jump and 200 metres and Plansky, of Georgetown, fifth, with 28 points.

The failure of Emerson Norton, of the University of Kansas, all-round college champion of the middle west, to land in the first five was in upset to predictions. His best performances were in the broad jump and discus, in both of which he was fifth.

The interscholastic medley relay championship furnished keen international competition, with Phillips-Exeter Academy, last year's winner, barely nosing out Hamilton Collegiate Institute, of Canada, in a thrilling drive down the stretch between Barnes, the Canadian captain, and Prendergast, of Exeter.

DODGERS MAKE IT TWO FROM PHILLIES

Philadelphia, April 27—Brooklyn made it two straight from Philadelphia today by defeating the Phillies 5 to 3. Vance, pitching for the visitors, was wild at times, issuing seven passes, but was never in serious trouble. Four fielding errors gave the Brooklyn team the margin of win.

The locals were helpless during the fifth when three singles were combined with an error to produce the only runs scored by the home team. The score:

TIMELY HITTING AND ERRORS WIN FOR YANKS

Boston, April 27—Timely hitting by Witt and Dugan combined with two costly errors that helped to give New York two runs in the second inning brought a four to two defeat to Boston today. Jack Quinn, pitching his first game since a small bone was broken in his right hand at Madisonville, Ky., three weeks ago, relieved Fullerton in the second inning and pitched well. An exceptional catch by Meusel of Harris' liner near the foul line in the sixth [illegible] a [illegible] run. The score:

INDIANS BEAT WHITE SOX BY BUNCHING HITS IN 7TH

Chicago, Ill., April 27—Chicago's defense went to pieces when Evengros weakened and Cleveland overcame the local's lead, tied the count and then won out in the seventh by batching hits off Leverette. It was the sixth consecutive game the Indians have won from the White Sox. Karr's batting and fielding was the feature. He cracked out two hits, a single and a double and drove in four of Chicago's runs. In the field he clicked perfectly, starting a double killing which nipped the Indians' first rally in the second inning. The score:

EIGHT TEAMS HAVE NOW SIGNED FOR LEAGUE

With the addition of three more teams on Friday eight teams have now signed up for the Norwich Twilight league. The three teams to sign up yesterday were Harry Weisner's Norwich A. C. club, Duke Shea's Jail Hill A. C., team and Bill McGuiness' Whirlwinds. The Jail Hill team and the Whirlwinds, like the Nuggets and Spencer's Stars, have been playing indoor baseball all winter and practically the same lineups will be used in the league.

With the addition of the last three teams the eight in the league are: The Nuggets, Professional Men, Swamscott Colts, East Ends, Norwich A. A., Spencer's Stars, Jail Hill A. C., and McGuiness' Whirlwinds. All these teams are very enthusiastic over the league and are anxious to get started as soon as possible.

A meeting of the teams will be held early next week at which time there will be rules and regulations made to govern the league.

SENTELLE, NATIONAL LEAGUE UMPIRE, DIED YESTERDAY

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 27.—(By The A. P.)—Paul Sentelle, National League umpire, died in a hospital here tonight from the effects of an aggravated attack of appendicitis. Sentelle was 45 years old and lived in New Orleans. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

Sentelle was operated on here last Sunday by Dr. H. H. Hines, physician of the Cincinnati National League club who found his patient suffered from a ruptured appendix which made his condition precarious. Sentelle rallied after the operation and appeared to be recovering until yesterday when he suffered a relapse.

Sentelle was appointed an umpire in the National League two years ago by President John Heydler. He was considered one of the most accurate arbitrators in the league.

HUTCHINSON TO BE "PRO" AT COLDSTREAM CLUB

New York, April 27.—Jock Hutchinson, former holder of the American and British open golf titles, agreed today to become the first "pro" of the new Coldstream Golf club of Long Island. He probably will terminate his present contract with the Glen View club of Chicago late this season.

After a meeting of the club governors with Hutchinson it was announced that he will be paid one of the biggest salaries doled out to a "pro" anywhere. The Glen View contract does not expire until next year but the club officials there are understood to favor any financial betterment he can arrange.

Work on the Coldstream course now is progressing. Nine holes of the 36 hole course — actually two 18 hole courses, one long and one shorter—now are ready and the entire links will be available sometime next year.

RUTH IS GOING TO CARRY ON THE FIGHT

Boston, April 27.—"It is not going to stop there," was Babe Ruth's assertion today when he was told that Miss Delores Dixon had dropped her suit for $50,000 against him, brought on grounds of alleged seduction and assault. "There has been a gang behind all this and I am not going to stop until they are in jail. They have caused me much trouble, have disturbed my little family and they should suffer," Ruth added.

The baseball star had heard no word of the withdrawal from his counsel or others until informed by a newspaperman when he steped out for batting practice at Braves Field.

AMERICAN GOLFERS START THEIR QUEST OF BRITISH TITLES TODAY

Rye, Sussex, England, April 27.—(By The A. P.)—The visiting American golf players in quest of British amateur honors will open their campaign tomorrow in a series of matches over the Seaside links of the Rye Golf club with the top-notch players of the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing society as their opponents.

The British amateurs include three of those who crossed the Atlantic last year for play in the United States. Cyril Tolley, Roger Wethered and Bernard Darwin. E. W. E. Holderness, British amateur champion, and E. H. Gilles, winner of the Royal St. George's challenge cup in 1913, will tee off at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in a four-ball match with Jesse Sweetser, Sawtelle, and Francis Ouimet, Boston. They will be followed around the links in the forenoon by five other Anglo-American foursomes. In the afternoon two ball foursomes will be played.

Today, the American players had their first look at the Rye links. George V. Rotan, the Houston, Texas, pro player went around in 71, much too good a record for the course. Sweetser, whose putting is below his usual high standard, took one over the scratch score for the 6,376 yard journey. Other cards of the Americans were between 72 and 80.

Although the day was a bit chilly, Sweetser played in his shirt sleeves, a thing unheard of in England, even on the hottest days. It is a thing only a visiting champion could do without shocking the convention. On the other hand in fact on both hands E. F. Storey, captain of this year's Cambridge university golf team, wore gloves; and he got a better score than Sweetser, whose white shirt and attached soft collar, so unusual on the Yale campus, duly impressed the camera-carrying "flappers" who followed him over the fairway.

Rotan's low score was due largely to his clean and sure iron shots. The course is distinctly a Mashie and Niblick course, with great natural grass-covered holes. Not unlike those left by artillery fire and bunkered hard by nature, which for centuries have been bunkering up great sand mounds with the aid of the winds off the channel. There are few opportunities on the links for the running approach shots, so loved by the Americans. To keep out of trouble at Rye it is necessary on most of the holes for the players to pitch their approach shots squarely onto the greens, with plenty of backspin on the ball.

The only member of the American team who had seen the course before today is Robert A. Gardner, captain of the American international team, his previous visit having been made here eleven years ago. All the American players are in good shape physically.

The pairings for tomorrow morning's four ball matches follow. Sweetser and Ouimet against Holderness and Gilles; Harrison R. Johnston, St. Paul, and S. Davison Herron, Chicago, against Tolley and H. R. De Montmorency; F. J. Wright, Jr., Los Angeles, and Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, against Wethered and Darwin; Maxwell R. Marston, Philadelphia, and Reginald Lewis, Connecticut state champion, against A. J. Evans and D. E. Landale; Rotan and John F. Neville, San Francisco, against G. L. Mellin and M. A. Powell, and Gardner and Byers against A. C. M. Gronno and I. F. Storey.

The pairings for the two ball foursomes in the afternoon are: Sweetser and Ouimet against De Montmorency and Tolley; Gardner and Marston against Wethered and Darwin; Herron and Johnston against Holderness and Gilles; Willing and Wright against Evans and Landale; Rotan and Lewis against Mellon and Powell; Neville and Byers against Storey and Gronne.

Sunday there will be a series of informal matches, the chief of which will be one with Jess Sweetser, paired with Miss Joyce Wethered, the British woman champion, who will grant a handicap of four to Ouimet and Groome, the latter of whom is president of the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing society and one of England's oldest golfers, having participated in the national amateur championship as far back as 1894.

ACADEMY BEATS COLLEGIANS IN TEN INNING GAME

The Academy won its first game of the season Friday afternoon after a close battle for 10 innings. The Academy team showed more life than in any previous game and gave the Collegians a hard rub all the way finally winning out when George Madden made a wild pitch after Phil McNamara had hit for three bases in the [illegible] of the tenth inning.

The Academy boys hit hard but their defensive work was a little ragged at times which accounted for a large number of the Collegians' runs. Several combinations were tried in the Academy infield and the one that looked best was the one with McGowan at first, Tombari at second, Strouse at short and Phil McNamara at third. Walz, Seigal and Steinman pitched, Seigal and Walz showing up very well.

Bill Wright, old Harddig twirler was in the box for the Collegians and pitched for eight innings when he gave way to Madden. Wright has signed up with the Nuggets for the Twilight league.

The Academy plays Stonington at the Campus this afternoon and after the workout yesterday should get the best end of the score. The boys are beginning to absorb a little baseball and will give a good account of themselves this afternoon.

WATERBURY LOSES CLOSE GAME TO NEW HAVEN

Waterbury, April 27—Waterbury opened its home season today by losing a close hard-fought game to New Haven by the score of 3 to 2. Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, was present and acted as catcher for Governor Charles A. Templeton who pitched three balls to him. Herman Bronkie was the batter and he struck out according to the ruling of Umpire Dan O'Neil, president of the Eastern league. A record opening day crowd of 3,000 paid customers attended.

New Haven got off to a two run lead which the Brassees tied up in the fifth inning on hits by Howe and King assisted by costly errors on the part of Goff and Osborne. New Haven scored again in the seventh when Lamotte singled and Goff brought him in with a two ply swat to centerfield.

The score by innings:

New Haven	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	—3

Baumgartner and Withrow; Howe and McDonald.

HUTCHISON MAY ACCEPT OFFER OF AN EASTERN CLUB

Chicago, April 27.—Jock Hutchison, golf instructor at the Glenview Country club, is considering eastern offers effective after this season, it was learned today. He was reported today to be in New York where it is said offers have been made him by the Colt Stream club.

Hutchison, who won the American open championship in 1917 and the British open championship in 1921, is understood to have been granted a release at his request from his contract with the Glen View club after the 1923 season.

Friends today said they did not know whether or not Hutchison had decided to accept the eastern offer.

BRIDGPORT WINS FIRST HOME GAME FROM ALBANY

Bridgeport, April 27—Bridgeport opened its home season today by winning its first game of the year and defeating Albany ten to one. The Americans fell on Ketchum's offering hard in the first while Red Gillespie, former Cincinnati twirler, held the Lawmakers in tow in all save the seventh inning.

Smith starred at bat getting three hits in as many trips to the plate. Mayor Atwater threw out the first ball. The score:

Albany	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	—1
Bridgeport	5	0	0	1	0	2	2	x		—10

Ketchum, Spates and Connelly; Gillespie and Smith.

Brown Golfers Win.

Providence, R. I., April 27.—Brown opened its golf season defeating Wesleyan this afternoon, 5-1. Captain Lincoln turned in the best card, an 81. Thorpe, Wesleyan, scored his team's only point when he defeated Elmendorf, Brown, 3 up and 2 to go.

BAKER'S HOMER IN 12TH WINS FOR PITTSFIELD

Springfield, Mass., April 27.—Pittsfield defeated Springfield, 7 to 6, in 12 innings here today, in the opening game of the league season in this city. A home run drive by Baker furnished the winning run for Pittsfield, after Pittsfield had tied the score in the eighth. Manager Wilson, of Pittsfield, was put off the field by Umpire Brown in the first inning for disputing a called strike on Leathers. The score:

Pittsfield	3	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	1	—7

Two base hits, Rosse, Stapleton, Damreau. Home run, Baker.

WORCESTER TURNS BACK HARTFORD IN HITTING GAME

Worcester, Mass., April 27.—Worcester opened at home today, defeating Hartford 13 to 7 in a free hitting game. Each team scored 14 hits, but the Hartford pitchers were wild and did not receive as good support as the home twirlers got. A catch by Mayers and one handed stop by Gallagher were fielding features. Mayor Sullivan opened the game ceremonies pitching the first ball. Score

SCHMIELE TO REPORT BACK TO WATERBURY

New York, April 27—Manager Fred Mitchell of the Boston Nationals this afternoon announced the release of Schmiele, a young short stop, and Anderson, a left handed pitcher to the Waterbury club of the eastern league. Boston retains option on both players.

Norwich A. A. Practice.

The Norwich A. A. will again appear at Yantic Sunday afternoon for their final practice before they open their season the following Sunday. Several new names have been added to the list and will be given a tryout. Perry, who is a fast man at second, will probably be taken off as he is developing into a better pitcher and now will probably be seen at second. The rest of the new men will try out for the outfield with the exception of Kowkowski, who is a pitcher. All come recommended as fast men and hard hitters. The men will leave Franklin square on the 2 p. m. car.

Baltic A. A. Team Ready to Go

The Baltic A. A. baseball team is organized for another season and will play Saturday and Sunday baseball again this year. The team will also enter the Eastern Conn. League if the league goes through. The club will open its season a week from Sunday with some fast team. Next week will be spent in hard practice and the Baltic boys will be given a tryout in an effort to develop a fast team that will make a good showing among the teams of the eastern part of the state.

Putnam Teams Looking For Action

The Nightingale Juniors of Putnam are out after Saturday baseball games to be played in Putnam and Sunday games to be played away from home. The Nightingale Juniors are composed of players that made the Nightingale first team last year and the year before. Managers wishing for any bookings write to Ernest Lorrow, Manager Nightingale Juniors, Putnam, Conn.

Sterling Wants Games.

The Sterling Row Sox wish games with any fast amateur team. Would like to hear from the Baltic All Stars and any other team averaging 15 years. Write to Manager Irvin Brown, Sterling, Conn.

Tiger Golfers Win

Princeton, N. J., April 27.—Princeton's golf team again made a clean sweep of its match today, defeating Penn State, 7 to 0.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Frank Stapleton is continuing to hit the ball right on the nose and in the last three games has been credited with four two base hits.

It is said that Pancho Villa's ambition besides being a fly-weight champ is to break the world's record for continuous dancing.

Local fans who attended the boxing show at Danielson Thursday evening have nothing but praise for the bouts and feel well repaid for their visit up the river.

Billy Moore, an old time ball player and one who swings a wicked stick today, has been chosen coach of the Nuggets team this season by Manager Madden.

Howie Baker, the king of swat of the Pittsfield Hillies, came into his own yesterday when he poled out a homer in the 12th inning that won the game from Springfield.

Hank Rosse had a poor day in the outfield yesterday making three errors but made up for it by smashing out a triple in the eighth that was counted for a gain.

Art Wilson, manager of the Hillies was banished from the field in the first inning yesterday for daring to dispute an umpire. Wilson is going to get all that's coming to him ever if he has to fight for it.

Seven hits that totaled 20 extra bases would seem enough to win most any old ball game, but it was not enough for the Browns to beat the Tigers. They only scored two runs from them.

The entry of Robert Cannefax, of New York, has been withdrawn from the final round of the season's national three-cushion billiard championship tournament at St. Louis, Mo.

THE SPRING CLEAN UP.

We have reached the season of the year when thought may well be directed to the annual clean-up of outdoors.

There are evidences that it has already been started in certain instances. Others are certain to follow and some have been waiting for more favorable weather conditions. There are very few who have nothing of this kind to attend to in view of the accumulations of a long winter.

Cleaning up the yards, the alleys, the public as well as the private grounds should have its general appeal. All operates for the making of a more attractive neighborhood and city. Getting the ash heaps removed, picking up the old tin cans, raking up the debris that has accumulated or been thrown about here and there means no great effort if the proper attention is given to it and there is a general participation. Where everyone gets back of a movement of the kind great results are possible, and the results should appeal no more strongly to anyone than those who have had a hand in the accomplishment.

In the effort of cleaning up, particularly when applied to outdoors, there is too frequently the disposition to feel that something really accomplished when the yard is made spic and span by throwing the dirt into the street or into someone's yard there to remain a lasting eyesore until the next snow comes.

Such clean-ups deceive only those who are responsible for such actions. Improvements good intentions have been carried out. It pays [illegible] to wait for the municipality to sweep off the rubbish but the satisfaction of doing a thorough job and then [illegible] for property [illegible] in mind again to the proper workers [illegible] keep them in order. Don't let [illegible] your property look worse by making another's look worse.

SELLING WAR MATERIAL.

There is good and sufficient reason for applauding the action of President Harding in opposing the sale of any of the surplus war material of this nation to other countries. This doesn't mean that we have any more than we need, for in all probability there is much that could be gotten rid of to the benefit of the national treasury, but it does mean that this government is not going to stand in the position of aiding and abetting war among other peoples. The government's attitude that [illegible] cannot be a party to [illegible] war material from [illegible] private manufacturers [illegible] a different [illegible] of [illegible] manufacturers should say that such orders couldn't be filled, may in [illegible] hardly be expected. Such [illegible] is the least sought for [illegible] that is possessed of [illegible] it isn't obtained in one place it will be in another. If the manufacturers of the country to [illegible] those of all the world, however, only what might be sold by a government in response to applications for war material. What is done to make the quest for implements for warfare more difficult just [illegible] that much of an impediment is being put in the way of war, the only difference being that the manufacturer is in the business of turning out and selling war material while a government [illegible] is not.

Thus when the president waves aside any financial consideration from the sale of firearms to other countries he takes the attitude that a loaded revolver in the country is [illegible] if [illegible] consideration to the cause of peace which would not be the first thing to be thought of by private concerns which understand the handsome returns that come from the production of war material and especially where it is possible to quickly satisfy an eager demand.

PICKETING TACTICS.

The idea of trying to force a decision favorable to the petitioners regardless of the justice of the demands or the underlying facts in the case never fails to create resentment, and it seldom accomplishes what is sought.

The present picketing of the White House by representatives of certain World war veterans in an effort to have the president give immediate release to those who intentionally violated the war laws promises to get nowhere. Certainly such actions stand little chance of producing or hastening results. It has already resulted in other veterans of the war making a strong protest against any such action and petitioning the president not to pardon those who showed such little consideration for the country and such great contempt for its laws made necessary by emergency conditions.

It thus becomes quite evident that those who are besieging the White House do not come as near representing public opinion as they seem to think they do. They do not even represent the sentiment of those who participated in the great struggle. Certainly it is difficult to understand how veterans could take any position except that which those who are protesting against the picketers do, inasmuch as those who have been imprisoned were involved in hindering the government in defending its rights and were giving aid and comfort to those who were endeavoring to shed the blood of our soldiers.

There is no reason to believe that the president will be inclined to listen to any such form of appeal. Such an effort is invariably a waste of time. That he will in due time give his attention to the merits of such a proposition can be expected but it will be in accord with the facts rather than in sympathy with the carriers of placards that he will act. Attempts to force matters through such methods seldom gets anywhere.

THE REDUCED STATE TAX.

It cannot fail to be an interesting bit of news to the taxpayers of Connecticut that there is to be a reduction in the state tax this year. This is evidence of a much longed for move in the right direction and means the collection of a half million dollars less from the towns for the purpose of meeting the expenditures of the state.

The information comes at a time when this curtailment in the state levy was not expected. No intimation had come to the effect that it was possible and most of the cities and towns have probably ordered taxes in keeping with the requirements of the past.

While efforts are being made in Hartford to bring about a reduction of one-quarter of a mill in the tax at once it seems improbable that it will be undertaken generally.

For Norwich it will mean a reduction in the state tax of more than $7,000, or more than a third of a mill. Its collection as if the full state tax was to be demanded will provide more than the town budget calls for, but knowing the efficiency of the town government it can be anticipated that it will be put aside for the purpose of meeting the requirements of the next year or for helping to offset the county tax which will be imposed upon the county next year. By such an arrangement Norwich will get the full benefit of it whether it is collected this year or next. The relief will be fully appreciated whether it is devoted to this particular object or to the additional high school expenses.

THE WORLD COURT PLAN.

Two addresses strongly in support of the position that has been taken by President Harding relative to the permanent court of international justice have been given by Secretary of State Hughes and Former Secretary of State Root.

Those have emphasized the wisdom of approving the plan recommended by the president. They have discussed the points raised by the president and they have discussed issues which have been raised by certain opponents to the plan.

Much stress has been placed upon the danger of adopting the president's plan because it would be a step too far in entrance into the affairs of nations. This seemed to be effectively answered by the president, but quite as emphatic were Messrs. Root and Hughes that it would mean nothing of the kind. As a matter of fact Former Secretary Root had a hand in getting the permanent court of international justice started. The league has given it help but it does not exercise administrative control over it.

As if to clear the minds of those who think otherwise Secretary Hughes points out that "those who would say that by the method the United States shall become a member of the league are indulging vain hopes and those who are alarmed at such a possibility are entertaining vain fears." Acceptance of the president's proposal as to the international court will not obtain for the United States a single right or subject it to any such obligation under the covenant of the league."

In the most emphatic manner in which he could Hughes and Messrs. Harding and Root have set forth the [illegible] effectually overcome [illegible] of those who have been attempting to beclaud the issue.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It is not at all strange that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is finding scoffers at his claim to have successfully reproduced the images of spirits, not only from practical photographers but also from really scientific men. Some of us who are not initiated into the mysteries of the occult sciences find some difficulty in trying to understand how the invisible can be made visible. Does not the very word "invisible" preclude all possibility of making it visible? Those who have only a small knowledge of philosophy know that all phenomena are embraced under the terms of mind and matter, and that the distinction between them is eternal. If, then, one of the attributes of mind or spirit is invisibility, it is eternally impossible to make it visible. Philosophy makes it impossible for spirit to yield to the camera. However, there is this to be said, that if there is on earth a man who can juggle with the dead that man is the creator of the Sherlock Holmes stories.

Is there some conceivable recompense to the country for its contribution of man power to the city? Much has been written on this subject, and it is doubtless a vital matter. That rural life has suffered tremendously from these long-continued migrations is clearly indisputable. It is equally true that city life has not been correspondingly benefited, simply because all those who were helpful in rural affairs have not made good in our cities. To the writer's mind the loss is not without some advantages. Is it not possible to work our New England farms to the point of exhaustion, when we consider that the soil, for the most part, is not very deep? This would seem to be clear when we consider the unscientific (which means wasteful) manner in which farming was, and in many instances still is, done. It doesn't hurt machinery, it doesn't hurt beasts of burden or even that toughest of all created things, a human being, to rest statedly.

In the last installment of The Man Who Talks criticism bore quite heavily on the passing fad of appointing commissions to discover if possible some bad odor in all existing organizations. In some instances it will be taken for granted that they are necessary, for here as elsewhere it is the "exception that proves the rule." If there ever was a demand for an official investigation with plenary power, it is that recently appointed by the state legislature of Florida to investigate into the condition of the convict camps of that state. The whole country has been fired with righteous wrath over the fate of a 19 year old lad who was whipped to death by a monster of cruelty, a professional whipping boss by the name of Higginbotham. It will be well for us to withdraw our claim as superman among the peoples of the earth until some of these wrongs are righted. Possibly this boy was incorrigible, but he did not merit such a death. We are glad that this monster is indicted for murder in the first degree.

Years ago the scientist had much to say about the conservation of energy. Today emphasis is put upon the same ideas but along more practical lines. In the world of industry at present it is the avoidance of unnecessary labor. The tendency is to cut out all wastefulness in production. Up to the beginning of this century there were no cotton mills adjacent to the cotton fields. Up to the present time, while there are no cotton fields adjacent to the cotton mills of New England, yet the cotton mill has grown up near the cotton fields of the south, and the explanation is the conservation of energy. The clear-headed and practical Governor Ralston of Texas, in his inaugural address, discusses this subject at length. Texas is not only our largest state in area, it is also our greatest cotton producer. "Why," asks the governor, "should we send a bale of cotton to New England, receiving for it $100, and have it returned to us as finished product costing us $1,000? This question contains its own answer.

Within the realm of legitimate business there is no such thing as a "soft snap." No one who is worth his salt expects that some "soft snap" is going to float him into success—not along the line of any honest trade or profession. It may not be easy to determine what is a fair compensation for labor. Capital may have one standard and labor another but in neither case is the compensation a cinch. The "soft snap" means getting the big price by doing the small work, that is, getting big returns for which the equivalent has not been given. If this practice were general there is [illegible] world would soon [illegible] The poor man who expects [illegible] gains for a long [illegible] comes out rich may have a "soft snap" but remember somebody [illegible] the bill and he is [illegible] suffering taxpayer. Those who expect simply to float into prominence usually float into obscurity.

In one of our beautiful hymns is this sentiment expressed: "This day the noise of battle, the next the Victor's song." The object is to bring out the vital contrast between the life that now is and the life that is to come, and how near they are to each other the changes is so great. We can truly say that this day is [illegible] between two successive days. We can truly say that [illegible] the [illegible] with laughter or bathing suits and Palm Beach suits, the next we are hovering over oil stoves and crowding steam radiators. The important question, however, is do these rapid and rapid changes in temperature have any injurious effect upon our health? There is a popular notion that they do. But popular notion has to be taken with a good deal of caution. Hasn't it been dinned into our ears so long that we really believe that the weather which the good Lord sends us is designed for the most part to be a bane rather than a blessing?

By making a slight verbal change in one of Solomon's famous statements, we have the following: "Of the making of fads there is no end." A fad is usually some new and innocent toy that pleases grown-up children—for the time being. This faddist is found in all the ranks of human society. The top-notchers and the down-and-outers equally claim him. In all the ranks of the social order, in every grade of the educational world in all the sects of the religious world life, in business and in pleasure you will find fads. Fads have neither power nor influence. They do not make or unmake history. They are just harmless toys in the hands of adult children. The latest one is the non-stop dancer. If the painted little beauty wants to dog trot herself into notoriety, let her do it, as it's the only way she will ever get there. If the learned belles of Wellesley want to write or play marbles with their toes, let them do it. At any rate, their toes will get an airing.

One sad phase of the intellectual life is the static condition of the mind, i. e., some minds. When such a stand has been taken, the mind is hermetically sealed. It will not reopen the case even in the light of fresh evidence. Its attitude toward everything it deals with is that of cocksureness. All that can be known about a given case has already been revealed, which of course shuts out all progressive revelation. This is pathetically the position taken by many in regard to Biblical interpretation. The infallibility of this belief is usually expressed with great vehemence, which goes to show that while the mind may be closed the mouth is still open.

REVISION OF STATE'S FISH AND GAME LAWS.

The bill codifying the fish and game laws of the state passed in the house Thursday makes a number of changes in the present laws.

It seems that when the statutes were revised in 1918 the chapter of game laws received very little attention because the committee on revision did not feel sufficiently familiar with the subject to make a revision. The game laws therefore, consist of a collection of enactments and amendments covering the work of all the Legislatures since 1910, and laws relating to game are mixed in with those relating to fish and the laws relating to the commercial fisheries are mixed up with the laws in regard to game and game fishing. It has, therefore, been no small task during this session for the committee to revise these laws and avoid as much as possible new legislation.

Bills relating to fish and game to the number of 36 were introduced early in the present session and public hearings were held upon all of them. The committee made adverse report upon all of these bills with the understanding that what appeared to them to be the good features of the bills would be included in the revision of the entire chapter.

Clarifying Definitions

There are almost as many opinions as there are men interested in the subject on fish and game laws and the laws now on the statute books are a compromise supposed to represent the will of a majority of the people of the state. To illustrate what the committee has tried to accomplish in the almost daily executive sessions, the first section of the new law begins with an increased number of definitions over those contained in the old law. The definition of "angling" as it now reads in the statutes has been construed by some lawyers as limiting the angler to one line or one rod only, while others interpreted the law as permitting a person to use not exceeding two lines. The definition now makes it clear that one may use either two tended lines or two tended rods.

Other definitions are made to designate the common names of certain species of fish and game and avoid confusion.

The definition of "hunting" is elaborated upon somewhat, and the closed season is defined as the period of time which hunting or fishing is forbidden, including hunting on Sunday. In other words the Sunday hunting is not one of the so-called "blue laws" but is a conservation measure.

There has been so much confusion about what are public and what are private waters that the words "private waters" used several times in the chapter are defined.

It is not generally understood that there are practically no lakes and ponds in the state which may be called in the true sense "public waters" but there are a large number of lakes and ponds which undoubtedly will always be open to [illegible] fishing and [illegible] as public waters.

As an illustration of this general [illegible] reference may be had to one section of the game laws which prohibits the use of set lines and then proceeds to say that this law shall not apply to private waters. Inasmuch as all of the ponds which are open to public fishing have been construed as "private waters" the prosecutions for using set lines in lakes and ponds have not been strictly in accordance with the law.

Limit Number of Wardens

The number of deputy game wardens which may be appointed in any one county is limited to ten. Experience has demonstrated that a large number of volunteer wardens is not entirely satisfactory and adds to the responsibilities and duties of the office force in a proportionate manner not commensurate with results.

Pay Not Fees

The special fee of $10 which has heretofore been collected by wardens in connection with convictions for violations of the game laws is no longer permissible, but the commission is authorized to pay county wardens at a rate not to exceed five dollars per day, and deputies not to exceed four dollars per day the object being to make it possible to raise the standard to warden efficiency. It is understood that it will be the policy of the superintendent to keep the county wardens and a limited number of deputies on patrol every day in the year.

A section has been added to the hunting license law which makes it unlawful for any unnaturalized or foreign-born person to hunt or to have firearms in their possession.

Trappers are not allowed to use steel traps with a spread of more than six inches, or a steel trap having teeth jaws.

Open Sason Extended

Rabbit hunters will be pleased to learn that the open season has been extended to include the first fifteen days in December. The argument against such a law is that the hunter under the guise of hunting rabbits will kill more or less birds. On the other hand, the neighboring states all permit hunting rabbits after the close of the bird season, and December is really the best month in the year for hunting rabbits and furthermore their flesh is more edible than it is early in the season.

Raccoon Hunters.

Those who enjoy hunting the raccoon with gun and dog are allowed to begin hunting at the opening of the bird season on October 8, but those who trap for pelts may not begin trapping until the open season on other fur-bearing animals, November 1.

Foxes which are considered vermin may be shot or trapped at any time as in the old law.

The close season on water fowl and certain shore birds has been changed to conform to the federal migratory bird law as to the opening dates, and also as to the closing dates when the law has conflicted with the closing dates of the federal law. No state can provide an open season on any of the migratory birds longer than that provided by the federal migratory bird law, but any state may have a shorter open season so long as it is within the opening and closing dates of the federal migratory bird law.

Quail and Partridge.

The bill makes a close season of two years on quail and Hungarian partridge. Statistics obtained from a great many people who have been feeding birds during the past winter show that quite a few Hungarian partridges have survived, notwithstanding the fact that they were introduced many years ago, and the commission is inclined to use some of the hunters' license money to purchase more of these birds and to take advantage of the knowledge and experiences of other states in methods of distribution, in the hopes to have them become thoroughly established here. Like the pheasant they will act as a "buffer" for the native grouse. While the quail are quite abundant in New London county, the severe winter through which we have just passed has resulted in the loss of a great many, and in other portions of the state they are becoming quite scarce. Some individuals have expressed a desire to purchase new stock and under existing conditions the committee thought it advisable to protect these birds until the next session of the legislature when further action can be taken if deemed necessary. There seemed to be very strong arguments against a protracted close season on quail, but the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey is authority for advocating shorter closed periods when the birds are badly depleted.

The law with references to trapping or snaring birds is more clearly defined.

The Angling License.

The most important constructive new legislation involved in the revision is that which provides for an angling license. While this law is practically a revenue producer, which probably in connection with the hunting license will obviate the necessity of annually requesting special appropriations for the propagation of fish and maintenance of hatcheries, it has many other advantages. The careless angler who leaves the gates open or destroys property of the farmer, is easily identified for the reason that every licensee must show his license on demand to any land-owner on whose land he may be found with fishing implements. He must also show his license to any warden and if convicted of a violation of the law must forfeit the license under similar conditions which now prevail with reference to the hunting license. The angling license has reference to inland waters only and where these waters flow into the Sound, provision is made whereby after public hearing the commissioners may determine the dividing line between inland waters and the salt waters which are included in a marine district. Provision is made that revenues derived from the issuance of angling licenses are to be used for the propagation and protection of fish and for leasing fishing rights on streams which are to be thrown open to the public. The hunting licenses have for years been sufficient to make the propagation and protection of game self supporting.

Under existing conditions a stream may be liberally stocked by the state and then leased and privately controlled by an individual or a club. With sufficient revenue from the angling licenses some of the more important trout streams in each county may be leased for the use of the public and when thus acquired the commission can liberally stock them annually. This is rather a novel plan to safeguard some of the trout fishing for the large number of people who cannot afford to go to distant wilds in other states or Canada to indulge their favorite sport.

Some of the revenue may also be used for removing fish from municipal reservoirs, where angling is prohibited, for the purpose of stocking ponds and lakes which are open to the public.

The obstruction of streams against the free passage of fish to and from their natural habitat one season of the year to the spawning grounds or their natural habitat at another season of the year, by the use of racks or screens, is prohibited.

Commercial Fishing.

Commercial fishing is divided into two sections, one of which provides for the licensing of various kinds of nets used in fresh waters at a stated fee for each net; and the other provides for a flat rate of five dollars per boat for every boat engaged in commercial fishing in the marine district. Angling in the marine district may be indulged in without licenses.

Breeding Encouraged.

Special provision is made for the encouragement of commercial trout hatcheries, and the law relating to the breeding of game birds is extended to include and encourage the breeding of fur-bearing animals.

The bill repeals many of the special provisions in the present chapter, most of which pertain to commercial fisheries, for the reason that these are taken care of under the new license system.

The breeding derived from the commercial fishermen's licenses is to be devoted to the regulation of the fisheries, which includes the collection of statistics and the propagation of fish. It is understood that if the commercial fishing license becomes law there will be a hatchery somewhere on the Connecticut river where millions of perch can be annually hatched, the eggs being taken from fish which are caught by the commercial fishermen and destined to go to market.

The joint committee on fisheries and game is composed entirely of men thoroughly interested in the conservation of wild life and represents the varying interests of anglers, sportsmen and commercial fishermen. Among the 13 members will be found a few who would rather catch trout than any other fish; there are others who prefer the pond and lake fishing. Three of the members represent the commercial fishermen and two of these have themselves been commercial fishermen. The duck hunters are well represented by men who understand the game and the typical raccoon and fox hunters are also represented on the committee. It is doubted if it would be possible to select a committee better fitted to pass upon a chapter of game laws and assist in its revision and codification. The work has been a most arduous one. Aside from the public hearings on the numerous bills which have been introduced, the committee has been obliged to read word for word at least twice, and portions several times, the entire chapter with those who trap for pelts may not begin trapping until the open season on other fur-bearing animals, November 1.

The legal length of black bass has been made ten inches instead of eight as at present. The angling fee for residents of the state will be $1, and 25 cents for recording, and non-residents and aliens, $2.25.

In ice fishing but six tipups or bobs will be allowed.

Copies of the codification as finally passed will be printed for distribution as soon as possible.

The codification is to take effect on passage except the anglers' license law, which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1924.

No bill has excited more interest this session not excepting the standard time bill. Sportsmen from all parts of the state have appeared and urged its passage.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

HOME MISSION WORK.

His Lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. Matthew 25:23.

Home mission work. There is none better. We get to work among the sailors in our own ports, for instance, and they go to the ends of the earth singing the songs of Zion—telling ignorant people at the foreign ports which they visit of their great discovery. This is home and foreign mission work combined. That's the way it spreads heaven-like, till the whole lump is reached—till all know what a Friend Jesus is. Every city should thus be a city set on a hill sending far and wide the glad tidings. When things are all right at home, they'll be all right abroad. Heart and home the center. The upper rooms the pivotal place. This the school from which great men have graduated, and in which the mothers of the land were bred with gentle home manners. Much of the spelling and soiling, has been done out of the home, but, alas, that we must write it, much mischief has been learned at the fireside in example and precept. The little ones who come into our families one by one are keen watchers. The things they see first are the things that stay. The impressions of the first years are the longest lived. O that our ideals were higher and that we might thrive to be like to those ideals. If we would only take our ideals from the only safe guide, Jesus Christ, how much sorrow and regret we would escape.

He died forty years ago, but His influence is still felt in the neighborhood. Is it confined to his native place? No, it is spread over the world. A good man belongs to all ages and countries. No narrow man he. Have you any such men in the line of your ancestry? If not, lay the foundation. If you have continue the noble influence started. Begin the work of goodness which lasts for ever and ever. Open an account with this poor and needy world through which we are passing, and place large credits for the good of mankind. We read in Matthew 25:40, "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." What a blessed privilege is ours and how eagerly we should avail ourselves of it and do all in our power for the One who has done so much for us. Nothing else counts like this in Heaven above or in the earth below. Goodness is the everlasting aristocracy. Those who are now crowned are those who did their best to make this world like Heaven. They sang, "Heaven in my home," but worked for Christ here in all kinds of loving work.

Every church member a home missionary; that's the idea. Get hold of it and never part with it. Every day that passes there are those about us who are sinking in sin. Today we might have helped; tomorrow they will have passed beyond our chances gone forever. How do you feel about it? Any regrets? If not you are on dangerous ground. How many relatives and friends have we who died in their sins and we never spoke to them? Maybe we assisted them downwards. Is not all this dreadful? Haste, get to work and make peace with God. He expects us to bring these home with us. What answer shall we make with them absent. The possession of salvation is indeed a tremendous responsibility. Why stand ye here all day idle? We are in a crowd, and there are clouds around us unsaved without our uttering a word of warning. We sit at the communion table, but between times we do nothing. Hearest thou not the voice. Go work in my vineyard. Some one has said that too much of our religion is of a post-mortem character.

We've a message to give to the nations,
That shall lift their hearts to the Lord,
A message of peace and light.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Believes Residents Should Be Heard.

Mr. Editor: Judging by the articles that have appeared in The Bulletin this week about the removal of the trees on Laurel Hill avenue there are not many residents in that section that are willing to have the trees cut down.

Is it unreasonable to ask that the residents who live in that section should be considered more than the travellers who pass through there only occasionally?

Is it unreasonable to ask why the trolley track should be changed to the middle of the street? Why not leave it where it is?

I have yet to learn why a concrete road, or at least an improved road cannot be built there without sacrificing the trees. With the space between the trolley track on the side concreted that part of the highway will be just as good as the rest of it and able to take care of all the traffic without widening the street, and it is the widening of the street that seems to call for the removal of the trees.

In these days when we are being urged to plant more trees and to save the trees doesn't it seem a little inconsistent to cut down 30 to 40 trees that happen to be growing along a residential street?

A QUESTIONER.
Norwich, April 27, 1923.

Laurel Hill Avenue Must Lose Its Trees

Mr. Editor: The residents of this part of the city were startled when the announcement in The Bulletin of Tuesday, the reason given being the march of improvement for a better highway. Many of us remember when East Main street was a beautiful elm shaded street and from the Universalist church to Preston bridge was a place of homes. It seemed necessary with the growth and expansion of the city to sacrifice the trees and it is now given over to business. It is different with Laurel Hill. It is a section of the city which will naturally remain a place of homes. Is it right then to sacrifice those trees which have taken years to attain their present growth and detract from its beauty as a place of residence? The highway needs to be improved but it seems unnecessary to change the trolley tracks or remove the trees.

AN OLD RESIDENT
Norwich, April 27, 1923.

A Man of Many Virtues.

Mr. Editor: It was a pleasure to read Mr. Kahn's letter in your columns a few days since. His estimate of our missing townsman and neighbor, William M. Tibbetts was indeed refreshing and found an echo in the hearts of the people, who knew Mr. Tibbetts best.

Like the rich young ruler who came to Christ asking: "What must I do to inherit eternal life?" Mr. Tibbetts may have been lacking in more than one thing; but his life squared perfectly with the rules laid down in Luke 18, 20.

William Tibbetts was a man of many virtues, kind hearted, obliging, morally clean, as a worker he was in a class all by himself, where he reigned supreme. There is none to dispute his title, or would attempt to pluck the laurels from his brow.

Early thrown upon his own resources, by honest perseverence he won success. Having become the victim of a cruel fate, a crime without a parallel in the criminal annals of our county, his sudden disappearance was a shock to the community. We believe the day is coming when this mystery will be solved, it may not be until "the sea gives up its dead" and the mountain recesses unfold their secrets, but there is nothing hidden that shall not be revealed, and justice will prevail.

We hope the authorities will exhaust every resource to recover the body, that it may be given a decent burial and his friends may have the sacred privilege of paying tribute to his memory.

Against Changing the Clocks.

Mr. Editor: I notice our papers are suggesting that clocks be advanced one hour next week when daylight saving time goes into effect. As I understand the question, the clocks in railroad stations, in the schools and in the court house are not to be changed but the schedules are to be changed, and it seems to me considerable confusion will result if we are to be bothered with two kinds of time, same as in other years. Almost everyone I talked with last year said he did not care much what time we had as long as the clocks were the same, and I think the advocates of daylight saving time are hurting rather than helping the cause by suggesting any change in clocks. The fact that the legislature failed to change the law and penalize those who wish to cause needless confusion by changing public clocks does not change the situation. The law says standard time shall be used, and not for one moment should anyone suggest using any other. In these days when there seems to be a tendency to break laws, it behooves editors and all those who influence public opinion to advise their readers to observe our laws not only in letter but in spirit.

(There is no violation of the law by changing the clocks as suggested. The standard time law simply applies to departments of the state, municipalities and subdivisions of the state.—Ed.)

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Knud Rasmussen, who is to receive the Founders Medal of the Royal Geographical Society of Great Britain, is famous for his explorations and research in the Arctic regions. A native of Denmark, he joined his first exploring party to the far North in the '80's. Since then he has devoted many years to scientific research in Greenland and in the regions beyond the Arctic circle. Rasmussen won international reputation as a polemicist by his able, bold and prompt attack on the legitimacy of Dr. Cook's claims to discovery of the North Pole. He is far better trained for exploration than many leaders, because of the breadth of his interest in social and economic phases of the life of the Arctic dwellers, as well as in the mere facts of physical nature which he may bring to light. His work has been recognized in honors bestowed upon him by geographical and scientific societies of many countries.

OBITUARY.
Henry Hovey

After a short illness, Henry Hovey of 6 Cliff street, for many years one of the most respected residents of this city, died Thursday night about 11 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs, where he had been visiting for some time.

Mr. Hovey was born in Scotland, Conn., December 18, 1839, the son of Benjamin Hovey and Fanny Baker Hovey, both natives of Scotland, this state. His school days were passed in Scotland and South Windham, and while in his teens he began his business life as a clerk in a store at Greeneville for Patridge & Whitney. He remained in the employ of that company for four years and then became bookkeeper for the grocery firm of Norton Brothers, where he remained until the breaking out of the Civil war. In 1862 he enlisted in the 18th Connecticut Volunteer Infantry under Col. Ely, entering the quartermaster's department as commissary sergeant. Later he entered the war department office in Washington as clerk, and to work evenings accepted a position as clerk of the Ohio State Agency, under James A. Wetmore, remaining in this work until 1867.

HENRY HOVEY

He then returned to Norwich and then went to Webster, Mass., where he established himself as a merchant and in the following year returned to Norwich to enter the firm of Patridge, Pitcher & Co. In 1871 he went to Maynard, Mass., where for two years he conducted a store there, as a member of the firm of Setchell & Hovey. Coming back to Norwich he was for four years connected with the Norton Bros., and then accepted the position offered him by Lorenzo Blackstone as manager of the Ponemah Mill Company's store at Taftville. In 1899 after 22 years as manager of this store, he retired from active business.

On September 26, 1872, Mr. Hovey in Webster, Mass., was united in marriage with Emma F. Joslin, daughter of Nathan Joslin, founder of the "Joslin House" of Webster. Mrs. Hovey died on November 18, 1920. Of this union there were four children, Mabel Estelle, now Mrs. R. H. Vaughn of Norwich, Nathan Joslin, who died May 20, 1885, Grace E., now Mrs. William F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs and an infant who died Nov. 1, 1889. There is also one sister surviving, Mrs. Henry Freeman of Hartford, and two grandchildren.

Mr. Hovey was a member of Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., Franklin chapter, No. 64 and Columbian commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar. He belonged to Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., and had been commander and adjutant of the post, and was president of the Regimental Association of the 18th Regiment, being always interested in reunions and a popular man with his old comrades. He was one of five sons of his family to serve with credit in the Civil war. Mr. Hovey was a republican in principle and was a member of the United Congregational church.

Mr. Hovey was a citizen whose life was actuated by the highest principles in his family relations and in his business connections. He was an accurate accountant and scrupulously exact and honest in his business transactions and the type of citizen who make the strength of a community. His wide circle of acquaintances will feel a deep sense of personal loss in his death and will extend their sympathy to his bereaved family.

OTROBANDO FOREST FIRE IS FINALLY SUBDUED

The forest fire which started on Thursday in the rear of Otrobando avenue and which was subdued several times, continued to smoulder and blaze all during that night. It broke out again quite seriously on Friday having burned over quite a large area. For the third time the Yantic chemical responded to a call for help, twice on Thursday and again Friday afternoon. This time about 2 o'clock, and with the assistance of several men it was successfully in conquering the fire, about two hours later.

Some of the residents in that locality were beginning to feel that there was cause for alarm, owing to the high wind prevailing much of the time.

State Policeman McKesson was here Friday to give examinations and issue motor vehicle operators' licenses. He issued 33.

TWO MEN IN HOSPITAL AFTER TIRE BURSTS, AUTO CRASHING INTO TREE

Jeremiah Twomey and Benjamin Brody, both of New London, are patients here at the W. W. Backus hospital suffering injuries received Friday afternoon when the auto truck driven by Mr. Twomey crashed into a tree below Hallville, about six miles from Norwich.

The truck which was owned by the New London Glass Co., 170 Bank street, had been to Westerly and was headed for this city on the return trip. As the truck was going along the highway the right rear tire suddenly blew out causing the machine to swerve to the right and before Mr. Twomey could prevent it the truck ran to the roadside and crashed head-on into a tree.

Twomey and Brody were hurled through the windshield and were painfully injured. People nearby seeing their condition telephone to the Backus hospital and the ambulance was sent to bring the men to the hospital where their injuries were treated. Twomey suffered a fractured right wrist and minor bruises and Brody had a fractured right knee and other injuries.

William Salering, manager of the company employing the men who had just returned to New London from Worcester, was notified and came to Norwich and visited the men at the hospital, both resting as well as could be expected.

The front of the truck was badly damaged and the wreck will be towed into the city for repairs.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING PASSES SCHOOL VOTE

The special town meeting held Friday evening in the town hall had an attendance of about 60 men and women, disposing of its business in five minutes by approving the report of the town school board and voting to adopt its recommendations regarding the high school situation as affecting the Norwich Free Academy. The vote of the meeting will enable the Academy to proceed with raising the two wings of the Academy one story and dividing one of the large assembly rooms at a cost of about $50,000, and the town will pay $100 tuition for its pupils who attend the Academy.

First Selectman C. K. Bailey called the meeting to order and at his request Judge H. H. Pettis, town counsel, acted as chairman. Town Clerk C. S. Holbrook read the warning and call but was excused from reading the lengthy report of the town school board, which had been given wide newspaper publicity. In this the meeting concurred with the motion made by H. W. Gallup.

Frederick W. Cary offered a motion to accept the report of the committee and adopt the recommendations therein, saying that extended comment was unnecessary, he thought. The town school board has been endeavoring to solve the high school problem and some of the plans brought before them have been very expensive, some largely experimental, and some calling for too long delay to accomplish the object desired. The plan proposed is at once economical and efficient, and can be put into operation soon enough to meet the present emergency.

The meeting unanimously voted in favor of the motion and the meeting adjourned with a good laugh that seemed to express the feeling of the citizens that they had settled the matter in the best way possible.

CLEVER SKETCH GIVEN FOR C. E. SOCIAL

About 40 members of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor met Friday evening at the First Baptist church for a social and entertainment. At 6.30 o'clock the following supper was served by the committee in charge:

Salads. Cold Ham.
Beans. Rolls.
Pickles.
Pie. Coffee.

After a short business session, a delightful sketch entitled Reveries of a Bachelor was given, the cast being as follows: Bachelor, Earl Stamm; school girl, Marian Browning; sport girl, Alice Johnson; college girl, Celeste Copeland; winter girl, Justine Briggs; summer girl, Edna Jones; actress, Helen Woodworth; debutante, Lillian Sandberg; widow, Lillian Crumb, bride, Gladys Thornes.

After the play, games were enjoyed and a social time spent. The committee in charge of the affair comprised the Misses Margaret Copeland, Lillian Sandberg, Edna Jones and Merwin Leffingwell.

MOOSE ARE PREPARING TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose held Friday evening, Dictator George J. Goepfert presiding. Many familiar faces were to be seen that had not been present for some meetings past.

May 9th will be the ninth anniversary of the Norwich lodge, which was instituted by Jules P. Bovier with Joseph A. George dictator May 9, 1914. Plans are being made to celebrate the event with a special entertainment of some kind. The date has not yet been set for the burning of the mortgage.

Norwich lodge has now a membership of over 500 members and is one of the strongest fraternal lodges in the city today, its assets being over $25,000. Plans are under way to secure a larger and more spacious building for a home.

CHALLENGES SCHOOL BOARD ON DAYLIGHT TIME

G. Warren Davis of Corning road who has been a recognized die-hard as an anti-daylight saver, is in effect challenging the town school board to compel his children to attend school at the time the board has set for the sessions to begin under the daylight saving schedule. This is the purport of a public announcement made by Mr. Davis that his children will attend school on standard time. If they do, they will be registered as one hour tardy each day they attend. They are pupils at the Greeneville school.

Superintendent E. J. Graham said Friday night that persistent tardiness like this will be reported to the state department of education and it will lie in their hands what to do about the matter.

Last year, when the schools were placed on a daylight saving schedule, Mr. Davis continued to send his children to school according to standard time, although it is stated, he had told school officials he would abide by the majority vote of the town meetings. Two town meetings gave majorities for daylight saving, but the Davis children continued to come to school on standard time and the school authorities let it pass. What their action this year will be remains to be seen.

EIGHTEEN TABLES PLAY AT ALMY AUXILIARY WHIST

Eighteen tables were played Friday night at Buckingham Memorial at the whist given by Major L. B. Almy auxiliary, U. S. W. V. First ladies' prize went to Mrs. J. E. Rochette, a cut glass dish; second to Mrs. Clara Busch, cut glass dish; first gentlemen's prize to Mrs. Moran, silk socks; second to W. E. Andrews, brass smoking tray.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. B. F. Skinner, chairman, Mrs. Louis Waters, Mrs. William Wilson.

The auxiliary has accepted an invitation to attend the reception to be given by Clara Barton tent, No. 7, D. of V., to the department officers at the Wauregan hotel on May 3 at 8 o'clock in the evening.

A deposit of silica mineral of volcanic origin, found in Czechoslovakia, can be used directly in the manufacture of glass without adding any of the other ingredients commonly used.

GAVE INTERESTING TALK ON TOURISTS IN EUROPE

The European study class met at the Church of the Good Shepherd Friday evening. The topic considered was Tourists in Europe.

Rev. A. N. Foster spoke of the annoying incidents involved in the national passport regulations and the national custom house examinations.

Foreign travel may be pursued for the sake of rest or pleasure or instruction; the latter is much stressed now by leaders in educational work. Americans are the great travelers of the world and so would be logically expected that America would therefore develop a strong foreign policy. However, our governmental policy has shown an evasive reaction in recent years which has lowered the foreign estimate of America as a leading world power. The European feels that America made great wealth during the war and then withdrew from her allies at the time of pain reconstruction when American help would have been of highest importance.

American and European life contrast in so many respects. The European railway train is so small as to look like a toy and the passenger car doors open on the side rather than at the end.

Measured by convenience and safety and efficiency and cost, there is much to commend the European system over the American. The electric street car system also—for efficiency and cost in the cities—compares very favorably with the American.

National contrasts are seen, too, in the customs and etiquette at hotel service. The continental breakfast consists only of coffee and rolls, while the American insists on cereal and bread and butter and eggs and a full meal in the morning.

In the industrial realm the American farmer and mechanic use machinery extensively while the European commonly relies on hand labor as have his fathers for 500 years. The custom of tips or fees is quite the natural thing for European society, though repellant to many Americans.

Americans abroad are water drinkers; those who use liquor at table are exceptional and here again we see a contrast between Europe and America. The excellence of American drinking water and the development of soft drinks help to explain the wonderful growth of prohibition sentiment in the United States in recent years.

Americans freely express their opinions of things European. Conversely, many Europeans have felt bitter disgust at America's use of her great resources and the opportunity for world leadership in stabilizing after war conditions and helping the oppressed.

MT. CALVARY CHURCH TO ENTERTAIN CONVENTIONS

Mt. Calvary Baptist church is to entertain three conventions next week, bringing probably from 200 to 300 delegates to this city. On Wednesday at 9.30 the women's department of the State Union of Colored Baptist Churches will open its session. The address of welcome will be by Miss Fanny Thompson. On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock the Sunday school state convention and B. Y. P. U. will open. Miss Marjorie Williams will give the address of welcome.

Friday morning at 9.30 the general convention will assemble. There will be an address of welcome from Mayor Milo R. Waters, representing the city; a welcome from Rev. D. David A. Pitt, representing the Baptists and the Brotherhood, and a welcome by Cynthia Brown.

All the Baptist churches of the state are expected to be represented.

Used Pistol In Academy Initiation

Academy boys conducting an initiation Friday night used a pistol in the ceremonies. The firing brought a telephone complaint to police headquarters and Officer Sharvan arrested the pistol user on the campus. He was deprived of his gun and warned against its further use.

THREE ARE HELD ON CRIMINAL COURT CHARGE

Justice of the Peace V. P. A. Quinn presided at a justice's court held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Norwich state hospital when four men and a woman were before the court, following arrests made about 5 o'clock Friday morning at a house about 5 miles from this city on the Norwich-Westerly road.

Gus Zotal, 26, was bound over to the criminal superior court under bonds of $2,500. There are three complaints against him; keeping a house of illfame, accepting money from a woman for purposes of prostitution, and having in his possession heroin. Attorney Roderick M. Douglass entered a demurrer for him, which was overruled.

Mrs. Lillian McCabe, 20, wife of Thomas L. McCabe of New York, was bound over to the criminal court on an adultery charge. The bond was placed at $1,000.

John Konsinewsky, 29, of this city, was presented on the charge of transporting a female to a house of illfame. Attorney Earl Mathewson appeared for him and the case was continued to next Saturday under bonds of $1,000.

All three were unable to furnish bonds and were taken to the eNorwich jail after court adjourned.

Nolles on payment if a full bill of costs were entered in the cases of John Gorman, William MacInnis, and George Jackson of this city, all on breach of the peace charges. Attorney T. J. Kelly appeared for Jackson and Attorney Barry for Gorman.

A complaint was made by Gorman to the Norwich police that he had been struck in the mouth by Jackson when he drove to the house in an automobile about 3 o'clock Friday morning and knocked on the door to ask for Zotal. After this someone in the party threw a stone at the door of the house and Jackson fired a pistol from an upper story window to scare the Norwich men away. None of the Norwich party got into the house.

Capt. D. J. Twomey took up the complaint at once and communicated with Constable Michael Nolan and Judge John H. Barnes, who prosecuted the case for the state went to Preston at that time in the morning where he signed the complaint.

Constable Nolan then secured the assistance of Norwich officers and Sergeant Matthews with Officers Allen and Shahan went to the place with the constable in the auto patrol wagon.

They reached there about 5 o'clock and according to their statement found Zotal, Jackson and the woman all packed up as if preparing for flight. Zotal, it is claimed, was detected by Officer Shahan trying to slip something out of his sight, which when seized by the police was found to be heroin.

The trio was brought to police headquarters here where the woman signed a written confession that implicated Konsinewsky, who is a jitney driver, as the one who had introduced her to the place and had taken her there for immoral purposes about three weeks ago and she had remained there since then.

TO HALT "BOOTLEGGING" ALIENS INTO AMERICA

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 27.—Declaring that thousands of aliens "have been bootlegged into America," James J. Davis, secretary of labor, tonight at the Grant day dinner of the Americus club outlined a plan for the enrollment and an annual census of immigrants.

"I propose to enroll the alien upon his arrival in America," said Mr. Davis, "and to provide for an annual census of aliens over a period of years after their arrival. I would finance this enrollment system by a small fee to be paid by the alien.

"This enrollment would do more than aid in naturalization work. It would enable us to identify those who are here to preach the overthrow of all government, who are here as the agents of chaos to plunge America into chaos, and it would enable us to send these agents of destruction whence they came. It would enable us to know these aliens who have entered this country illegally and there are thousands of these who have been bootlegged into America."

BIDS ON SHIPS INVITED BY SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, April 27.—The administration's final effort to convey the government fleet to private ownership and operation was shaken today when the shipping board invited bids on all the passenger and cargo ships on its register.

A basic condition was that each offer must carry with it a guarantee to maintain one of the present government routes or some new route acceptable to the board.

Announcement was made at the same time that the existing routes had been consolidated so as to reduce them to eighteen which would be given first consideration in any plan touching on the operation of an American merchant marine.

MOTOR BOAT SEIZED WITH 1,600 CASES OF WHISKEY

New York, April 27.—The motor lighter Napeague, captured by coast guardsmen today off Sandy Hook with a cargo of 1,600 cases of whiskey, was brought to the Battery in Lower Manhattan tonight and the liquor transferred to a government warehouse.

The members of the rum-runner's crew who were taken with the vessel, were placed under guard of customs men for the night and tomorrow will be given a preliminary hearing before the federal district attorney.

The nest of the Baltimore oriole is of sufficient strength and durability, so that if a number of them were fastened together a protective garment could be made that would be fairly durable.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

That the little people in Killingly's schools concern themselves, with value of things other than their daily routine of study is indicated in a very interesting letter received by Supt. Leon M. Farrin from a miss in the seventh grade of the Attawaugan school. The letter, which is appended, will give the average citizen an insight into the work of the schools that otherwise would not be obtained and will indicate to many the broad scope of activities that even much junior pupils are profitably engaged in.

My dear Mr. Farrin:

Miss MacConnell told us that she thought you would like to receive a letter telling of all the things that we did in school this year, that were not required of us.

First we sent $4.60 to the Near East Relief. We organized a Current Events club which meets every Friday afternoon. The seventh grade wrotes to our Town Clerk for imprints of our Town Seal, which he sent us.

We bought a stereoscop outfit and are earning money to pay for it with the help of the other rooms.

The girls organized a sewing class which meets every Tuesday after school. We made some dusters and sold them and subscribed for "The Youth's Companion" for school. We also sent a gift of money for Christmas work to the district nurse, Miss Boomhower, and dressed some dolls at Christmas time, to send to poor children in Providence.

We are now making scrap books to send to the children's Home in Newington, Conn. Our room wrote some letters to children in Australia. Some of us have received answers.

I wrote a letter to "Uncle Jed" and received a book "The Girl Scouts' Rally".

Sincerely yours,
MARION YEOMANS

Grade seven.

Stockholders here, as elsewhere, of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company will feel like going out and buying themselves a good cigar or a parfait royale, as inclination dictates over the fact that sharp advance in Goodyear 7 per cent. preferred stock has quickly followed upon announcement of the big corporation's earnings for the first quarter of the year. A 10 point advance has been noted this week as set forth in the following statement issued from Boston Friday:

Publication of Goodyear Tire & Rubber earnings for the first quarter has occasioned an advance of about ten points in the 7 per cent. preferred stock to 63 1-2. This compares with a low for 1923 of 19 1-2 made on the New York curb.

No dividends have yet been paid on the $65,000,000 7 per cent. preferred, which is in arrears back to Oct. 1, 1920. In the first quarter the Goodyear Company earned its charges, the quarter's proportion of dividends on the prior preference stock and $6.72 per share for the 7 per cent. preferred. This is at an annual rate of nearly $27 a share for the period. It would be a mistake to assume that the company will maintain this pace throughout the year. At the same time the company's net could taper off rather sharply and still leave fairly substantial earnings for this second preferred issue.

Notwithstanding the rise in the 7 per cent. preferred it is doubtful if the company will inaugurate dividends at an early date. The policy is rather to buttress the junior stocks by cutting down the amount of bonds, debentures and prior preference stock issued as a result of the reorganization, was $87,402,500. This total of senior securities was reduced to about $72,750,000, or by $14,652,500 and should be cut down an additional $8,000,000 by next March.

Danielson awaited on Friday without a tremor the coming of another orgy of so-called daylight saving. With the railroad changing the running time of its trains tomorow (Sunday) and communities to the north and south of Danielson changing their time an hour by one device or another and with Killingly's manufacturing interests divided on the time keeping proposition official Danielson and spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce felt Friday that the one best bet for the immediate present is to sit tight and make no change from standard time. What may develop later is an open question.

The Quinebaug company, which stuck to standard time last year while most of the town of Killingly was on daylight saving time, will stick to standard time this year. At the Goodyear Mills it was stated Friday afternoon that standard time would remain in force there. This mill was on a daylight schedule last year. At the Connecticut Mills it was stated that no decision to adopt daylight time for the spring and summer had been arrived at.

Warden W. A. Burrows and President Alfred L. Reed of the Chamber of Commerce were in neither case inclined to press the time issue Friday afternoon. Personally, Warden Burrows likes the fast time. Both gentleman were inclined, however, to let the situation stand as it is for the present. It was pointed out that unless the change in Killingly to daylight saving time was practically universal that there would be little advantage in making it.

So there the matter stands for the present. Individuals, of course, may make their own time schedules, insofar as such schedules do not interfere with such obligations at their employment entails upon them.

At the state armory Friday evening members of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., and their wives and women friends and members of Danielson chapter of the Eastern Star enjoyed a social dance. Music was by a Willimantic orchestra.

Another invitation dance Friday evening was in the assembly hall of the high school building, the senior class entertaining at the annual senior hop. The hall was very prettily decorated. Refreshments were served. Music was by a Providence orchestra.

There was a promise Friday that there may be another match here between Ted Marshall of Pawtucket and Sailor Michaels of the Submarine Base. Marshall was fat and out of condition Thursday evening, and his next bout with Michaels will be contingent upon his being down to his usual boxing weight of 163 pounds.

PUTNAM

While official Putnam was silent Friday as to any prospect of recognizing daylight saving time as a basis for measuring time's activities from today until early in the fall, it is of special interest to note that several of Putnam's manufacturing concerns are for it and will go on "new" time next Monday morning. The Manhasset Manufacturing company, the mills of the H. K. H. Silk company, the Nightingale-Morse company and the Putnam Manufacturing company are among the concerns that will change the time insofar as their working arrangements are concerned. Like city officials, officials of the Chamber of Commerce had nothing to say for publication Friday on the daylight saving proposition.

To an observer it appears that the conditions that will be set up in Putnam by having two kinds of time in force will bring a recurrence of the inconveniences and little irritations that were experienced under similar conditions last year.

No great stretch of the imagination is required to picture a household in which there are school children, as well as mill workers, and even other members engaged in other fields of endeavor. Herein the housewife has two sets of meal hours, for Billie, who works in the mill, gets home for his dinner at 11 o'clock, while Coralea, pupil in the eighth grade, doesn't arrive for hers until an hour later

Possibly refraining from tampering with the clocks will help eliminate some of the difficulties experienced last year while two times were in force. There are bound to be some upsets, but they can be best reduced under the circumstances by having all of the clocks of the city read alike, then it will not matter so much if what hour some members of the family go to work and others go to school, though it is bound to make some irritating differences and cause more or less confusion.

Rumors are afloat here relative to the alleged efforts of the Theophile Geurin interests of Rhode Island to purchase the plant of the French River Textile company, which in a way is the equivalent of purchasing not only the big mill but practically the entire village of Mechanicsville. Mr. Guerin is the active head of interests that control half a dozen or more mills in Rhode Island. The French River Textile company plant is included in the monster estate of the late Frank Sayles. C. O. Read, one of the executors of this estate, when interviewed as to the truth of rumors relative to the Guerin interests taking over the Mechanicsville properties of the estate, said that no papers having to do with such a transaction had been signed and no agreements for the sale concluded.

The French River Textile mill is one of the finest in this corner of the state. It is engaged in the manufacture of high grade worsteds and gives employment to between 450 and 500 operatives, who with their families make up the bulk of the population of Mechanicsville.

The current issue of one of the best known monthly publications in the country contains an announcement relative to the Francis H. Smith investment company. There is local interest in this, for the founder of the company, Francis H. Smith, now dead, was an uncle of Mrs. Edward F. Perry of Grove street.

This remarkable man left his birthplace on a farm near Washington, Conn., at the age of 19, and, barefooted, set our for Washington, D. C., pictured in his vision as a city of vast opportunities. He prospered in Washington and at the age of 44 founded in that city an investment concern that has always had remarkable success. Washington was a straggling city in Mr. Smith's early days there, but he saw its future possibilities and became wealthy through his investments, especially in real estate. Eventually he became an outstanding figure in the national capital and numbered among his close acquaintances Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Blaine and McKinley.

The following are the newly elected officers of the Hold Fast class of the Congregational church: President, Mrs. H. J. Thayer; vice president, Mrs. C. H. Brown; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. John Dingwall; assistant, Miss Elizabeth Chase; ways and means committee, Mrs. Helen Scammell, Mrs. Geo. O. Ross, Mrs. C. H. Brown; good cheer committee, Mrs. E. M. Wheaton, Mrs. V. Levitt, Mrs. B. K. Smith; social, Mrs. George Cockell, Mrs. H. N. Brown, Mrs. Henry Maynard; membership, Mrs. E. H. Grosvenor, Mrs. Eugene Williams, Mrs. M. Kenyon, Mrs. Mary G. Sherman; floral, Mrs. W. R. Barber.

Forest fires lighted up the skies in various sections of this corner of Windham county Thursday night like beacons. Strenuous work was required to control some of these fires, especially in territory to the south. Lack of any great amount of rain during April has set the stage for serious forest conflagrations, and a special warning is being given to all who venture into woodland territory at this time that carelessness with fire in any form may lead to very serious losses for owners of property for long distances about. Fire wardens are particularly alert just now, that they may get in touch with any forest or brush or grass fire that may break out at the earliest possible minute.

For the time being, at least, Quinebaug lodge, A. F. and A. M., of this city, has had to abandon its plans to go to Southbridge on May 14 to confer the third degree for Quinebaug lodge of the order of that city. A large number of Masons had planned to make the trip from this city and vicinity.

A final request is made of citizens, in the name of the city, this morning, that all possible co-operation should be given next week in making Putnam's Clean-up week a success. Those who are particularly anxious to cooperate may place themselves in the distinguished service class by starting the brightening up of their premises today, getting all debris into neat piles, ready for the city teams to take away Tuesday or Wednesday. If this is done, Clean-up week to all the forehanded will be one happy period of watching neighbors do likewise to the general good of the city and its people.

On Tuesday next city teams will go along streets west of Main street and collect all refuse that has been assembled for removal. On Wednesday a similar service will be performed east of Main street. There will be no charge for this removal, this work representing the city's contribution to making Clean-up week a success. The laggard will be pointed out next week by his negligence, for the appearance of his property will tell as to whether he has entered heatily into this civic movement for spick and spanness.

Today, Monday and Tuesday are the last three days when dog owners of the town of Putnam will have opportunity to register their dogs for another year without incurring the penalty of an additional dollar charge if they delay until after May 1, and a delay until after June 1 will likely mean an appearance in court for Dog Warden William Jarvis will see to it that all dogs owned in the city are registered or the owners prosecuted. Up to Friday afternoon many owners of dogs in Putnam had failed to register the animals for the year beginning May 1.

Forces of the state were engaged Friday in oiling South Main street and School street. As these streets are parts of trunk lines running through the city, Putnam's street department was co-operating by covering the freshly oiled streets with fine gravel.

Leo Vannose, 19, was arrested Friday afternoon while he was at work at the Hoppin place in Pomfret and this morning will be arraigned in the city court to answer to a charge of breaking and entering a building in part occupied by E. L. Kelley as a place of business on Pomfret street, this city, during Thursday night and taking therefrom about 75 pennies.

In connection with this break, made through a window at the rear of the building, it is of interest that candidates of the tribe of Red Men who were looking out a window at the rear of the second story of the building saw smoke start to arise from near the corner of the structure and gave an alarm. The fire had every appearance of being incendiary in origin, but its prompt discovery led to its being extinguished before any damage was done. When arrested Friday afternoon, Vannose positively denied having had anything to do with setting the fire, or any knowledge pertaining to it.

Friday passed as another day without any tidings of importance relative to Benn Kershaw, whose body has been sought in Alexander's lake throughout the week. Mr. Kershaw disappeared last Sunday and is believed to have been drowned from a canoe on the lake, but diligent search of that body of water throughout the week has been entirely without result.

RED CROSS FILM AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

All men and older boys are invited to attend the interesting hour at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow, (Sunday) afternoon at four o'clock, when the Red Cross moving picture, "Winning Her Way," will be shown, and a short film on "Mars." As an added attraction, music will be furnished by Swahn's orchestra, and there will be given a brief and appropriate talk.

Announcement

For more reasons than one "Martha" in the favorite opera of Mario Chamlee, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, who will make his appearance in song recital at Slater Hall on Friday evening, May 11. He loves the opera for its own sake, and besides, he has associations with it that will keep it always enshrined in his memory.

It was in January, 1917, just before he joined the American army, that young Mr. Chamlee came to New York, arriving at the Pennsylvania station at 8 o'clock. He came to New York to hear Caruso sing and thus realize a dream that had haunted his waking and sleeping hours since he was a boy. That night it happened that the great tenor was singing in "Martha," and Mr. Chamlee knew that he barely had time to get to the Metropolitan Opera House for the opening scene. The rise of the curtain found him, breathless with haste, leaning on a rail and for the rest of the evening he drank in enthusiastically every golden note of a voice that he had known, until then, only through talking machine records. It made an indelible impression on the eager young men and stimulated his ambition to sing the part himself. Since then he has sung it many times on the boards of the Metropolitan stage and to this day it remains his best loved role.

Strand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

Gloria Swanson's large following will find perfect satisfaction in her latest Paramount picture. It offers the same type of sparkling entertainment as her others, only to a more compelling degree than usual. As a production it is always delectable to the eye. The spirit is decidedly modern, at times ultra modern and the movement is swift and spectacular.

It opens with a jazz party, that has a few colorful touches in which radio is introduceds, and an effective flash back to the primitive dances of the jungles. Interrupting this is a romantic aeroplane episode in which the storm effects are particularly good. Greenwich Village scenes later on, and a cafe raid add to the thrills.

Sam Wood has used his material to the decided advantage of the star and with regard for the tastes of those who are her greatest admirers. Besides a brilliance and dash, which the picture assuredly has, there are pleasing naturalnesses and on the whole a freedom from the stereotyped. The star is stunning as usual. Her physical beauty is a great point of appeal and her wardrobe shows not only quantity and richness but good taste in selection. The scenes take her through varying degrees of fortune and she dresses appropriately. Her supporting cast is excellent and besides Theodore Roberts, includes Ralph Graves as the hero and Vera Reynolds in an interesting flapper role.

A Christie comedy and news will make up the other subjects.

Next Week at Park Congregational Church.

Tueday, May 1—The regular afternoon of sewing for the Wayside Fair will be held Tuesday in the Parish House.

Thursday, May 3—The mid-week service in the chapel at 7.45 p. m.

Chelsea Savings Home Owners' Club

The Chelsea Savings bank has tarted a Home Owners' club. It is open to all who wish to meet their regular bills more steadily. The qualifications are a determination to form the habit of handling family financial affairs systematically and in the easiest way. The members are under no obligation except to themelves to carry out their resolution. The bank accepts the obligation of sending members a "gentle reminder" each month to make their deposits.

There are four big expense items of a home owner, taxes, repairs, coal, insurance. Are you able to meet these family bills without a groan when they come due? How much easier it would be, if you, as a home owner, would pay yourself rent (as it were) each month, creating a special fund with which to meet these obligations. Under the plan you may set aside each month any amount you wish. The club may also be used for any other purpose desired. Home Owners' club members will receive the regular bank dividends.

WESTERLY

The Phebe Green Ward chapter, D. A. R., held a whist and social at the Rhode Island hotel Thursday afternoon.

The regular session of the third district court was held Friday morning at the court house on Union steet. The case of Thurman F. Eldredge vs Daniel Vaughn was tried and a verdict was rendered for the plaintiff in the sum of $53.20. The following new writs were entered: Luigi Marchese vs Angelo Perunno; Westerly Lumber Co. vs Wilbert Clark; John Parono vs Joe Bacacqua.

Miss Kathleen O'Brien a well known Rhode Island soprano, has been secured for the coming concert which is to be given by the Church of the Immaculate Conception choir next week.

Hon. George O'Shaughnessy and Antonio Porente of Providence will be the principal speakers at the Westerly meeting of the workers on the $1,000,000 drive which is to be conducted for Catholic high school in Rhode Island. The meeting is to be held tomorrow afternoon at the church basement on High street.

Westerly will go on daylight saving time Sunday.

It Might Help.

TODAY'S EVENTS

One hundred and sixty-fifth anniversary of the birth of James Monroe, author of the Monroe Doctrine, the centenary of which is soon to be celebrated.

The Most Rev. J. J. Harty, Roman Catholic bishop of Omaha and formerly bishop of the Philippines, celebrates today the forty-fifth anniversary of his ordination.

Matters of vital interest to American veterans will be discussed at Kansas City today and tomorrow, when the council of administration and department commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet in conference.

The New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, where 75,000 babies have come into the world, including three sets of triplets and about 600 pairs of twins, today will begin an observance of the 100th anniversary of its founding.

A movement initiated by the department of education of Ohio with the object of educating the public in the appreciation of good music, and which the sponsors believe will ultimately sound the death knell of the popularity of jazz, will culminate in a state-wide music contest to be held today at Columbus.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mary Pickford's New Version of "Tess of the Storm Country" Booked for the Breed Theatre.

Devotees to the cinema art are going to have the opportunity of seeing "Tess of the Storm Country" again and therein lies a tale of more than passing interest.

In the first place, this was the picture in which Mary Pickford scored one of those earlier big screen triumphs, which insured her immortal fame and inspired the populace of the whole country to proclaim her "America's Sweetheart." That was just eight years ago, for this epochal photoplay had its inning in 1914.

Now, in this 1923, in her new "Tess of the Storm Country," a United Artists' release, coming to the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday Mary Pickford will be seen for a second time as Tess in an elaborated version of Grace Miller White's celebrated story. The "Queen of the Screen" re-created this lovable character before the camera at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio at Hollywood and this notable revival is now being presented internationally.

Although this particular story served to carry Miss Pickford to the foremost ranks of favorites among photoplayers, she had earned her rights to real stardom before its presentation. In fact, she attracted wide attention when she made her debut on the speaking stage at the age of five years. Her first role was that of a boy, Little Ted, and she did this so well that at the age of eight she went on the road in "The Little Red School House" and a year later was starred in "The Fatal Wedding," in which she played the part of Jessie, the little mother. Not long afterward, she won the honor of originating the part of Betty Warren in "The Warrens of Virginia," a David Belasco production, which was this star's first play on New York's Broadway.

After completing her contract with Mr. Belasco the lure of the movies gained an upper hand, and under the direction of David Wark Griffith, she made her first appearance on the screen, becoming a prime favorite from the inception. Her initial salary was $40 a week, but she was receiving $2,000 a week very soon afterward, and, ever since she has been climbing steadily until today she is paid $10,000 a week.

During the last year Miss Pickford has received thousands of requests from admirers to re-enact the beloved character of Tess and she has acceded to the wishes of her followers, beinf further actuated by a desire to improve upon her artistice achievement to such an extent as to make the characterization live.

The version of 1914 was in five reels and it was played until all the "prints" were worn out. Now, with the improvements made in the film-making industry, it will be possible to preserve the new conception so that it may entertain generations of the distant future.

Today's bill consists of Elmer Clifton's "Down to the Sea in Ships," Ruth Roland in The Timber Queen and the Pathe News.

Broadway Theatre Sunday Night Only

Norma Talmade's latest First National starring vehicle, "Smilin' Through," is coming to the Broadway theatre Sunday for return engagement of one night only.

Advance reports state that this is the most ambitious production yet made by Norma Talmadge. It is an adaptation of Allen Langdon Martin's stage hit of the same name, in which Jane Cowl appeared on the speaking stage.

Appearing opposite Miss Talmadge are two leading men, Wyndham Standing and Harrison Ford, and a splendid supporting cast, including Alec B. Francis, Glenn Hunter, Grace Griswold, Miriam Battista and Eugene Lockhart.

The production deals with the romance of beautiful young Kathleen, who is left in the charge of John Carteret following the death of her Aunt Monyeen. Monyeen was fatally wounded by a jealous suitor on the day of her wedding to Carteret. When Carteret learns that Kathleen is in love with the son of the man who killed his bride he interrupts the romance of the young people and the absorbing plot gathers dramatic momentum.

Norma, ever a great emotional actress, is said to have taken advantage of the great dramatic opportunity.

Other subjects will also be seen.

Fine Broadway Residence Sold.

Colt & Sholes have sold for Vera A. Trumbull the beautiful colonial residence, No. 167 Broadway, formerly the home of the late Dr. Rush W. Kimball to Mellie M. Wilson of Montreal, Canada, and Lena M. MacDougald of this city. The house has eight rooms and two baths and there is a large garage. The lot has frontage of about 100 feet on Broadway and a depth of 390 feet. It is next north of the residence of ex-Mayor T. C. Murphy.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

The annual Sunday school institute for the Norwich district will be held at the Community House, Tuesday, with sessions at 2.30 and 7 p. m., with supper at six o'clock. Wallace L. Woodin, and others will speak. All Sunday school workers are invited.

Mid-week worship, Thursday evening, at 7.45.

The Camp Fire will hold a ceremonial meeting at the Community House at seven o'clock Friday evening.

Sale of House on Otrobando Ave.

Through the agency of William F. Hill, Irene M. Burns has sold her cottage house of seven roms, large barn and two acres of garden land to Lyman A. Latham of Ledyard. The new owner intends to occupy this beautiful home as his future home.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ODD FELLOWS.

Shetucket lodge, No. 27, held its regular meeting Tuesday night in Odd Fellows hall, Main street, with a large attendance. The third degree was worked in full form on a large class of candidates by Degree Master A. A. Gulle and staff.

Considerable routine business was transacted and the entertainment committee reported that another ladies' night would be held by the lodge, the third Tuesday in May having been chosen for the affair. The committee in charge of the program for the evening plans to make the ladies' night one of the most enjoyable of its kind ever held by the lodge. It is planned to have instrumental and vocal selections, monologues and dancing numbers, altogether a well rounded out program.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and members enjoyed billiards, or cards in the amusement hall.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Norwich Grange, No. 172, met in regular session Wednesday night at Steiner hall with Worthy Master Mrs. John O. Peckham in the chair. Routine business was transacted and two applications were balloted upon. It was announced that the first degree would be worked on a large class of candidates at the next meeting.

The lecturer's hour was a surprise stunt members of the grange telling interesting and humorous accounts of the best garden they had ever owned. Several members read papers on the subject which were of great interest. A feature of the program was the act of the Clown Chorus, from the Y. M. C. A. circus, which proved highly entertaining. It was voted to hold all future meetings one hour earlier than in the past. Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

EAGLES.

Norwich Aerie, No. 367, held its regular meeting Monday night at the lodge rooms on Shetucket street with a large attendance and considerable important business was transacted. Much interest is being manifested in the membership drive, fifteen new applications being received and acted upon favorably. The aerie is to hold another large class initiation at the hall on Sunday, May 20, and the following committee has been appointed to make all arrangements for the banner event: Timothy Fields, Augustus Hastedt, Edward Mullins, David Farrell and R. A. Krohn.

At the next regular meeting the election of officers is to take place. Members nominated for the various offices are as follows: Worthy president, Henry Silverstein and Edward Mullins; worthy vice president, Timothy Fields; worthy chaplain, John F. F. Burns; secretary, John Leirich; treasurer, Charles O. Wright and Reginald Pardy; inside guard, Alfred Steinke; outside guard, John Bowne; trustees, Nicholas Sullivan, John Shugrue, R. A. Krohn and Victor Payment; physicians, Drs. Clarence Thompson and Louis T. Cassidy.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16, held its regular meeting on Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial with President Jayne E. Seed presiding and the usual reports of the treasurer and secretary were presented and accepted. Two names were balloted on.

Expressions of satisfaction were made at the election of James McKee as senior vice commander of the Connecticut department, G. A. R. and the women of the corps were all happy and proud that they had been able to serve the department encampment in Norwich.

Much regret was expressed at the death of Henry Hovey of this city, a past commander of Sedgwick post, who had been held in high esteem by the members of the Relief corps.

Next Thursday and Friday the corps will serve the dinners at 1 o'clock for the department convention of the Daughters of Veterans which is to meet here.

ODD FELLOWS, M. U.

Henry G. Brenton of Bridgeport was elected provincial grand master, succeeding Past Provincial Grand Master William Oliver of Hartford, at the 29th annual meeting of the Connecticut district, I. O. O. F., Manchester Unity, at the annual meeting held in Waterbury this week. The other officers elected were: Deputy grand master, George Robinson of Stamford; treasurer, H. C. Stevenson of Hartford; secretary, Joseph Coleman, New Haven, re-elected; auditor, George Robinson of Stamford; trustee, A. Addison of Baltic; book examiner, Past Provincial Grand Master Thomas Turner of Waterbury.

ELKS.

Norwich lodge of Elks, No. 430, had a delegation of about fifty members with the Elks' band conducted by John M. Swahn that attended the installation of the lodge in Webster, Mass., last Wednesday night. Most of the party went by auto bus from here reaching home again in the early hours of Thursday morning. Elks from all the surrounding territory were in attendance at the installation and the opening of the Webster Elks' home, and the B. P. O. E. practically owned the town for that night with the parade and other festivities that marked the occasion. Willimantic lodge also had a large delegation in attendance.

Norwich lodge members are now bending every energy to making a success of the silver anniversary bazaar which is to open on the grounds of their home next Friday. A programme that will fill every night of five days with features in entertainment has been arranged for and a throng is expected at the bazaar while it is in progress.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS.

As a result of the tie game played between the Giants and Yankees last year for the baseball championship, the Veterans of Foreign Wars have received a proportionate share of the gate receipts, amounting to $20,-351.18, headquarters of the organization announced recently. At present the fund will be securely invested, the interest only to be used in aiding needy veterans and other worthy causes.

When the battle for baseball supremacy was being waged at the Polo Grounds in 1922, the umpires called the game while still a tie, on account of darkness. To convince the fans that the game was on the square, Col. T. L. Huston, commander-in-chief of the V. F. W., and Jacob Rupert, Yankee owners; Charles Stoneham and John McGraw, Giant Moguls, decided to forfeit the entire receipts to charity. The amount involved was $120,000. Following a lengthy debate as to the merits of the various organizations, it was finally decided that fifty per cent. would go to New York charities and the remaining fifty per cent. to be equally divided between the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled Veterans of the World War and the American Legion.

FORESTERS.

A large attendance saw a big class of candidates initiated at the meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, on Tuesday evening, and by the interest shown there will be a big crowd going to Baltic Sunday. There will be a big parade and all the courts in eastern Connecticut will be represented. The supreme chief ranger and all the state officers will be present. There will be a class of forty or more candidates and after the ceremony there will be a social time, a real old fashioned Foresters day. There will be a special car leaving the square at 11.45 for those who do not go up in machines. All members are expected to attend as it will be something they won't forget right away.

After strenuous practise for the past three months the degree team of Court City of Norwich No. 63, will work the mysteries of Forestry on a class of 40 candidates at the Baltic gathering. Promptly at 1.30 p. m. the band will start playing and the lines will move through the streets of that small but thriving village. There will be several special features in the parade and among them will be the banner which Connecticut won from New Jersey last year in the membership contest, and which Baltic helped to win.

This is the last of the degree exemplification for this year as the grand court year comes to a close on April 30, and in honor of this event Supreme Chief Ranger George Sullivan of Derby and Grand Chief Ranger Robert Lodge of Meriden and Grand Secretary Thomas OLoughlin have all sent word that they will be present.

The candidates that are not intown have sent word that they cannot wait for the choo-choo train but are coming in an aeroplane and be in my Baltic home again tomorrow. While the ones who are at home are saying and we can all hear it; day by day in every way all I do is sit and wonder, oh, how I wish I knew.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, and Rev. Charles W. Hanna, pastor of the Bozrah Congregational church, will exchange pulpits on Sunday morning.

Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Bailey is to preach at the 7.30 o'clock service at the Third Baptist church, Greeneville.

The missionary committee of the Congregational Young Peoples Christian Endeavor society, Miss Vivian V. Lincoln, chairman, has invited the entire Sunday school of the Congregational church, to attend the C. E. meeting on Sunday evening.

The regular Sunday afternoon meeting of the intermediate C. E. society is to be omitted, to afford member the opportunity of attending the Young People's C. E. meeting in the evening.

Rev. D. A. Brown, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church (colored) of McKinley avenue and that church choir, will have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

Sixteen friends and neighbors gathered on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Ross, Wauwecus Hill, where a very enjoyable evening was passed with music, humorous readings and the singing of college songs and hymns. At the close cake and coffee were served by the hostess.

Henry Tyler, a delegate from New London, to the state G. A. R. encampment held in Norwich on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, was the guest over Wednesday night at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Thurston B. Barber of Peck's Corner.

Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey of Elm avenue, has been passing this week in Hartford.

Friday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Bailey and daughters, the Misses Marion L., Louise P. and Lucile D. Bailey, motored to Hartford. That evening in Foot Guard hall, the Bailey family attended the concert of the Hartford Choral club, of which Rev. Mr. Bailey's son, Harold Bailey, has been a member since last November.

Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue, motored to Colchester on Friday and spent the day at the home of her sisters, Miss Annie Smith and Miss Rose Smith.

An informal evening of music, comprising several vocal solos, vocal duets and selections by a male quartette, was held Thursday evening, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street. The participants were Miss Mary Gray, soprano and piano accompanist, Robert Gray, Frederic H. Wyant, John E. Vaughn and Dr. Lamb.

While the guests of friends on a motor trip to New London on Thursday, Mrs. Frank L. Weaver of West Town street, was a caller at the home of her brother, Elisha Post of Thames street. Mr. Post who has been quite seriously ill for a few weeks, is now able to again attend to his business interests.

Mrs. Frederic H. Wyant of Town street, had as a caller on Thursday, Mrs. Harding of Leffingwell.

BALTIC

Court Sprague, No. 90, Foresters of America, is all set for Sundays program. If the weather permits it is expected that the Foresters from all parts of eastern Connecticut will come to Baltic to take part in the doings of Court Sprague on that day. To begin the afternoon's schedule all the visiting brothers will join in the parade which will take them through the various streets of the town, then all will enter the forest of St. Jean's hall where a good class of candidates will be initiated into the secrets of Forestry. After which the remainder of the program will take place, this being concluded the members of Court Sprague will then bring to a fitting close the afternoon by serving the visiting Foresters with a light refreshment.

MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM REMEDY

When Prof. Munyon said that his Rheumatism Remedy would rout rheumatism there wasn't any guess-work about it—there wasn't any false statement about it. It relieves without leaving any ill effects. It is a splendid stomach and nerve tonic, as well as a positive relief for rheumatism.

All the Munyon remedies are just as reliable. 25c a vial. The Guide to Health is free.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

People who had waited for some time for the completion of the Air Line railroad learned with pleasure that the entire road had been finished. Action by parties in the other end of the state in suing the road is delaying the opening.

Other interesting stories of 1873 are taken from the files of The Bulletin as follows:

Monday, April 21, 1873.—People of Norwich were shocked to learn Saturday of the terrible wreck at Richmond Switch, R. I., in which nearly a score of people were killed or burned to death in the fire that raged in the wreck of the two trains. The accident occurred on the Stonington and Providence railroad when the Providence boat train, carrying 170 passengers plunged into the chasm at Richmond Switch. The bridge over the chasm had been swept away by a flood shortly after the mail train had passed over it, and when the boat train, traveling at high speed, rounded the curve it plunged off the end of the bridge into the raging stream below, a distance of over 15 feet.

People who were uninjured worked gallantly to save their fellow passengers, but suddenly flames broke out among the debris and many had only time enough to climb to safety and leave others in the cars to the terrible fate of being burned alive.

Many local people visited the wreck Sunday, but many found the scene too gruesome and soon returned home. The exact number of lives lost will perhaps never be known, but the list of injured has reached over 50, with others of the 170 passengers on the train to be accounted for.

Local coal dealers went to Strong & Rogers' Saturday to witness an exhibition of coal hoisting devices.

One of the large manufacturing establishments of the city has received an offer to go to Worcester and has accepted. A large manufacturing concern which was to come to this city may not take up the proposition.

Tuesday, April 22, 1873.—The county commissioners who were recently called upon by a petition from Joseph Doane and others to take into consideration the condition of the road from the bridge over the Shetucket, through Preston City to the Griswold line, have condemned the highway. They have ordered that the road be repaired throughout the entire extent; that all stones be removed and all hollow places filled in. It is felt that the action of the commissioners will awaken the attention of Preston to the condition of other roads within its limits.

The audience at Breed hall last night to hear The Mendelssohns was disappointed when Mrs. Dow, the prima donna, was unable to sing owing to illness. Mrs. Osgood took her place and sang several airs delightfully. Mr. Morgan, the tenor, sang but the less said of it the better.

John Lemley, a brakeman on the through freight, was thrown beneath the engine at Plainfield Sunday morning when he slipped while coupling the engine to a train of freight cars. His right leg was broken and the train stopped with the wheels resting on his left leg, which was badly mangled. He was extricated and was taken to a hospital in Providence, where his leg was amputated.

Wednesday, April 23, 1873.—Comment has been made upon the severity of our criticism of Mr. Morgan, who tried to sing his tenor in The Mendelssohn concert Monday evening. Justice to Mr. Morgan demands that we state that he appeared under adverse circumstances—facts which we were not aware of when the criticism was penned. He was severely ill, was not accustomed to sing with orchestra accompaniment, and was further greatly embarrassed by the snapping of the steampipes and the shrieking of an imperfect gas burner.

Rev. Fales H. Newhall, formerly professor in Wesleyan university, and who supplied the East Main street pulpit in this city for a short time, has been elected president of the Ohio Wesleyan university.

A Franklin square man tells a curious story of a very intelligent ox that slipped out of the yoke and went to a saloon to find its owner. The countryman returned with his faithful ox, yoked him up and departed, thinking it high time to be getting away from the allurements of that part of the city.

Thursday, April 24, 1873.—The soldiers' monument has received its finishing touches. It has now been in position for some days and long enough for our citizens to form an opinion of its merit as a work of art and the appropriateness of the site. We believe the monument is universally regarded as a most fitting memorial to the patriotic dead of our city.

The mud-digger Syracuse works persistently in the channel. Eight loads of mud are taken up daily and taken to a point one and one-half miles down the river.

A United States grand jury, D. A. Rood of this city, foreman, assembled at New Haven Tuesday and brought in true bills on two indictments against a well known sea captain of Montville for violating revenue laws by smuggling cigars. The little schooner Pioneer was seized by the revenue cutter Mohican a few months ago.

Friday, April 2, 1873.—Frank B. Adams of Norwich, in a game of billiards at the Bangor house, Me., recently scored 1,800 points. Mr. Adams used only his fingers while his opponent employed the cue. This is said to be the biggest run yet.

John Brennan, an employe of the Taftville company, had one of his legs broken yesterday when kicked by a horse while endeavoring to uncouple a team from a loaded freight car on the Taftville turnout.

Two amateur ball clubs, the Blue Jackets and the Thirty-Eights, played on Williams park yesterday. It was a close game, the score being Blue Jackets 115, Thirty-Eights 15. Umpire, D. Chittenden.

A little daughter of one of our citizens was poisoned Wednesday by drinking milk in which a green milk ticket had soaked for about two hours. The milkman had neglected to take it from the can and the coloring matter dissolved and mixed with the milk. Emetics were administered and with difficulty the child's life was saved.

The last rail was laid Tuesday on the Air Line between New York and Boston, first conceived some 30 years ago. The new road shortens the distance between New York and Boston by about 25 miles.

Saturday, April 26, 1873.—Rev. John Davies, pastor of the Central Baptist church, delivered a very interesting lecture at Breed hall last evening on An Englishman's First Impressions of America. Mr. Davies was reared in England and was thoroughly acquainted with the customs of that land, many of which impress us as very peculiar.

The 54th anniversary of the institution of Odd Fellowship in the United States will be observed by the order in this city Monday night. There will be a lecture by J. W. Smith, P. G. M., of Waterbury, entitled Across the Continent. A history of Odd Fellowship in this city will be given by a member of the local order.

The Otis library is quietly receiving a larger patronage than it has for years back. The management is very satisfactory, the new books well selected, and they are more numerous than heretofore. It is hoped that by another year the institution will be entirely out of debt, when its usefulness will be greatly enhanced.

JEWETT CITY

The Pachaug Community club held a very successful entertainment in the town hall on Thursday evening under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood, Elsie Lord, Susie Morgan and Elmer Campbell. There were two hundred present.

The Lincoln Club Quartette of Plainfield sang Kentucky Baby, Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes, Oh, Uncle Moon, Old Cabin Home, The Old Road and Whoa Mule.

Grace Campbell, Neva and Mura Moncini and Frances Montgomery gave a dialogue. Rev. William Prentiss of Plainfield gave an hour's illustrated talk on his trip through France, showing towns and chateaus and giving entertaining historical sketches of the places and people. It was a fine programme and greatly appreciated. The lantern and lighting power for the pictures were furnished by Carl Brown of Norwich. The accompanist for the quartette was Mr. Barstow of Plainfield. Chicken sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee were served. The committee for the May meeting are Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Terry, George and Marian Brink, and Wilfred Parker.

Rev. J. J. McCabe returned on Friday from Scranton, Pa., where Rev. Father Brennan, a classmate, was consecrated as bishop.

There were eight who attended the clinic held by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell on Friday morning in the Red Cross room. A small child was under the doctor's care last summer and improvement during the year between the clinics. They are in charge of the district nurse, who keeps in touch with the patients, keeps a separate record of every case.

A meeting of all the members of the Congregational church is to be held this (Saturday) evening, when the names of those who wish to join the church are to be presented. There are seventeen names entered to be read, and possibly some of the absence of the pastor the persons wishing to have their names presented should give them to one of the deaconess, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, who will present the names at the church meeting.

It is expected that there will be a stereoptican lecture at the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Congregational church Sunday evening. The subject of the meeting is, What My Denomination Has Meant to the World. The lecture is Congregational Women and Their World-Wide Work. It has seventy finely colored slides. This lecture takes a rapid view of the work in which the Congregational women are especially interested, not only in the home field but in the foreign, and gives a clear survey of the high points of the work as well as the needs which call so loudly to the women. Mrs. Earl S. Hiscox is the leader of the meeting.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Myott of Baltic is to be brought to St. Mary's cemetery in Lisbon this (Saturday) afternoon for burial.

Mrs. Harriett Tillinghast has returned to the home of her niece, Mrs. Clarence Mell in Lisbon, after spending two weeks with Mrs. P. D. Cheney.

Members of the Jonathan Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., met on Saturday with Mrs. Karl F. Bishop. The time was spent in sewing for rugs for the war office. While the ladies were sewing, their husbands painted the war office in its original color, red. A few years ago it was painted white but was never liked as well, so the men gave their time to repaint it. At noon an appetizing dinner was served them by the ladies, consisting of beans, hash, escalloped potato, salad, rolls, pie, pickles and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Abell and daughter Elizabeth of New Britain spent Saturday with the former's father, C. J. Abell.

COLUMBIA

The district schools in town have been holding spelling and speaking contests, which have created a rivalry among the pupils and are an incentive to attain perfection. A contest of this nature was held on Wednesday last at the Chestnut Hill school, Miss Marion L. Clough, teacher. The program was as follows: Song, by the school; recitations, Love of Country, Abraham Kirshner; Children's Hour, Blanche Zilitsky; Columbus, Henry Hankin; Lady Clare, Gussie Tenenbaum; Captain, My Captain, Ida Kirshner; Charge of the Light Brigade, Jason Solomon; The Glove and the Lions, Gussie Kaplan.

For the spelling match, Charles Seeley, Mrs. Helena Chappell and A. A. Latham had been selected as judges of the contests. Their decision was that Jason Solomon won the first prize in both the speaking and spelling contests. The second place in the speaking contest was a tie between Blanche Zilitsky and Gussie Kaplan, and in the spelling contest was won by Gussie Tenenbaum.

Mrs. Burton Clough of Willimantic, mother of Miss Clough, teacher of the Chestnut Hill school, spent Wednesday at Chestnut Hill and attended the speaking and spelling contests.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

JACK RABBIT GETS INTO A SCRAP.

Now, let me see where we left off in the last story. Oh, yes, now I remember. Professor Crow had just corrected Granddaddy Bullfrog, who was dreadfully angry to think that he had made a mistake in saying the sun got up every morning at the same time and, just as he was going to say something more, a little tadpole swam up to the log and whispered:

"Oh, Granddaddy Bullfrog, please take care.
The Miller's boy just over there,
He'll throw a stone at you I know
If you don't quickly dive below."

Well, sir, that old gentleman frog gave one look and then kerplunk! He

Oh dear, oh dear! said the poor little bunny.

dived into the water. Then away flew Professor Crow and Little Jack Rabbit—I mean, hopped, for little rabbits don't fly and pretty soon he got into a dreadful scrape. Oh dear me! I just hate to tell you about it, but I must for everything the little rabbit does, I write down.

And, do you know how I learn so much about him? I'll tell you. It's because every morning, Bobbie Redvest comes to my window pane and says,

"Wake up! Wake up! You lazy man,
And listen to my song.
I saw your little rabbit friend
Play tag the whole day long!"

Then I go to the window and give the little merry bird some cracker crumbs and as soon as he has had his breakfast, he tells me what to write about and if he didn't, there would be many days I couldn't, for I can't run after the little bunny in the forest all the time.

And now I'm going to tell you about the scrape this dear little rabbit got into. Oh, dear me again, I hope he'll get out of it again.

Well, just as Little Jack Rabbit hopped out of the Sunny Meadow, he saw the tip of Old Man Weasel's nose peeping from behind a tree and the tip of Danny Fox's bushy tail from behind a stone and the left ear of Mr. Wicked Wolf from behind a bush. Wasn't that too dreadful for anything? Here are these three enemies of the little rabbit just waiting to catch him.

"Oh dear, Oh dear!" said the poor little bunny, "I'm a goner now. I know, I know it! But he didn't give up hope. Oh, my no! He just said that to himself you see. Not to anybody else and then, all of a sudden, he heard Robbie Redvest sing very softly:

"Under the bush, by your left hind toe,
Is a little trapdoor that leads below.
Jump back three feet as quick as you can
And you will be safe, little bunny man."

And in the next story we shall hear what happened after that.

A KITCHEN FIT FOR A KING

A TALE OF OLD ENGLAND

The housewife of today would spurn the kitchen of a king of other days!

Kings were decidedly in the minority centuries ago, and only they and a few of the lords and dukes of old England were able to maintain kitchens.

If the housewife could turn back the pages of history, she would see some astounding things—things that would make her thankful that she is living in a century where modern science and craft have evolved the new kitchen and the kitchen range.

In the 14th century the kitchen of a king was in a building set apart from the castle, and all the food had to be carried through a long passageway to the great dining hall. The kitchen was usually one story in height, and in the center was an opening from which the steam and smell of cooking could escape.

There were two or more open fireplaces—one was used for making stews, broths and for boiling meat. Joints and poultry were roasted before the open fire on a spit resting in two grooved stumps. In the other fireplace were the ovens where the baking was done. The ovens were large ovals in shape and were built in the thickness of the wall with an arched roof over them. Bundles of faggots were placed inside, lighted and the iron doors closed in front. The burning faggots heated the air in the ovens and the brick work around them. The cooks raked the ashes of the faggots out of the oven and put in the bread or pastry. When the oven cooled off, the food was removed and was supposed to be cooked.

Of course, in the dining hall, where this carelessly prepared food was ceremoniously served, there were great scenes enacted. There was the raised table for the king and his close friends and smaller tables for the court attendants. Servants rushed to and fro, musicians played, harpers recited romances; acrobats and tumblers gave exhibitions. There was little delicacy. Food was devoured, and the royal hands were used to pick a joint, and even dipped in the gravy. The bones were flung on the floor where the dogs quarreled over them.

And this was the kitchen of a king! Our modern kitchen, with all its time saving equipment and spotlessness, is fit for a queen—the queen of every household.

The dirty, smoky open fireplaces and the ash-heaped ovens have given way to the Scientific Sterling Ranges. No longer are foods cooked in a haphazard way. The Sterling—using either coal or gas for fuel—furnishes an even temperature that thoroughly cooks, bakes or broils.

It is sanitary, economical, dependable, durable and beautiful and has the patented combination coal or gas water heater. To the modern housewife, it is indispensible, worth the ransom of a king of the middle ages.

Yes, worth a king's ransom, yet so easily purchased that every woman can now have one in her kitchen and let it practically pay for itself by the saving it effects in fuel, food and time. All you have to do is step into the Sterling Dealer's store today, he will show you just the style Sterling that best meets your needs and also arrange convenient terms of payment if you desire. Buy your Sterling and you will be more glad than ever that you are a queen of today.

Sanctification Hymn

Ye who know your sin forgiven,
And are happy in the Lord,
Have you read the precious promise
Which is left upon record,
I will sprinkle you with water,
I will cleanse you from all sin,
Sanctify and make you holy
I will dwell and reign within.

Though you have much peace and comfort,
Greater things you yet may find,
Freedom from unholy temper
Freedom from the carnal mind,
To procure your perfect freedom
Jesus suffered groaned and died,
On the cross the healing fountain
Gushed from his wounded side.

O ye tender babes in Jesus,
Hear your Heavenly Father's will,
Claim your portion, plead the promises,
And He quickly will fulfil.
Pray and the refining fire
Will come streaming from above,
Now believe and gain the blessing
Nothing less than perfect love.

If you have obtained the treasure,
Search and you shall surely find
All the Christian marks and graces
Planted, growing in your mind.
Perfect faith, and perfect patience
Perfect lowliness, and then
Perfect hope and perfect meekness
Perfect love for God and man.

But be sure to gain the witness,
Which abides both day and night,
Which your God has plainly promised,
This is like a stream of light,
While you keep the blessed witness,
All is clear and calm within,
God, himself assures you by it,
That your heart is cleansed from sin.

Be as holy and as happy,
And as useful here below,
As it is your Father's pleasure,
Jesus only Jesus know.
Spread, O, spread, the holy fire,
Tell, O, tell, what God has done,
Till the nations are conformed,
To the image of His Son.

Witnesses might be produced
Of this glorious work of love,
Paul and James and John and Peter
Long before they went above,
Hundred, thousands, tens of thousands,
Have and do and will appear.
Let me ask the solemn question,
Has the Lord a witness here?

Wake up brother, wake up sister,
Seek, O, seek, this holy state,
None but holy ones can enter,
Through the pure celestial gate,
Can you bear the thoughts of losing
All the joys that are above,
No, my brother, no, my sister,
God will perfect you in love.

Many a mighty sound from heaven,
Suddenly come rushing down,
Cloven tongues like as of fire,
May they spread it all around,
O may every soul be filled,
With the Holy Ghost today,
It is coming, it is coming,
O, prepare, prepare the way.

In the Spring

Something within us burgeons with the spring,
And proves our kinship with the grass and tree;
Something within us rises, glad and free,
When birds return, on northward-faring wing.
The life-tides surge and stand at full once more;
The pulses leap to greet the mounting sun,
Like the victors are we, who, the contest won,
Forgot the bitter strife that went before.
As long as human hearts know grief and fear,
With bud and leaf for every flower and tree,
As long as human hearts know grief and fear,
Sorrow when prisoned, gladness when set free,
So long shall earth with our thanksgiving ring,
When some fair morn we wake, and find the spring.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

RURAL DELIVERY: Cards received and forwarded as requested.

GREETINGS FROM LO.

Dear Sisters: I am very late in thanking the sisters for all the birthday cards they sent me, but now I will thank them many times, and tell them I was very pleased with them, for they do cheer up a body so. Isn't this lovely weather we are having? But it is time, for it is nearly time to plant our gardens. I am planning to have quite a flower garden.

Anastasia: You have guessed right this time. But you have me guessing yet, for I don't know you by your pen name. Why don't you come to our meetings at the Buckingham? We have lovely times and you cannot help but make friends for everybody is so friendly there.

Since you have guessed who I am why not write to me and we can be better friends, for I like to get letters and cards from my friends?

What luck did you have with the pie?

Sarapta: When will I see you at my home? I have been looking for you and Pocahontas since it has been such nice weather.

Scottie: My hubby said he remembered your mother well and was very glad to hear from you.

Triple E.: Why don't we see a few lines from your pen? I know you can write a nice letter. How is your sister? Saw by the paper that she is home again. Good luck and best wishes to all LO.

A RAMBLING LETTER WITH AN S. O. S. CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Now which one of you is going to answer this S. O. S. call of mine? I have forgotten how I used to knit a holder to use on the table when the teapot handle is too warm for us, with comfort. They were made with 10 stitches knit plain, then there were six ribs of six stitches (I think). We used to call them caterpillars and then 10 more plain ones. These center rows make the holder much thicker. I should think they were about five inches long with a narrow edge crochet all around it. The end used for the top was drawn together so it would hang on the teapot handle the other end left open. How did any of you make one and if so can you send me directions so I can do the trick again as I am doing to do it just now?

I don't know as I have made this plain enough so any of you will know what I want, but if you do and will write me I'll return the favor in any way you say as well as postage on your letter.

I see so many new names on the Social Corner page it keeps me wondering every week "Who is Who" and if I know them.

I wish I could get on and off the cars. If I could there would be many of you who would have a caller to entertain as the pleasant days come I am home all the time and ready to receive calls any time and very glad to do so.

I saw by The Bulletin this morning that Silent Stranger is going to be a neighbor of mine in the near future Hope she won't forget that I still may be found at 2 Soule street. I have two hyacinths which my neighbor's hens have not destroyed out of the 15 I had, also three or four of the four dozen tulips and a bunch of daffodils that are in blossom and budded. I have twe very thrifty begonias which have lots of blossoms in the house, and I am enjoying them very much. All my other plants are very, very near or quite gone by. I think it is because of the poor fuel we have been obliged to use the past winter.

Blossom: Do you remember I called on you long, long ago. And you never returned it? Don't you think it would be a good time now to do so when I can not get out?

Calla Lily: I wonder often if your Social Corner book has been returned. I'd feel so badly if mine was lost I know you must miss yours. If I could help you by a copy of the names mine contains I'd gladly do so, but you have been a member so much longer than I, I don't know as it would be very satisfactory to you. I joined on my birthday June 2, 1917.

Now with hearty god wishes for the editor and Corner members, one and all, I'll say good bye for this time.

DELIAH DEAL.

P. S.: While this isn't much of a letter it will answer to keep my membership in the Corner, won't it?

FLOWERS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Some of the sisters have been writing about getting ready for the spring planting of flower seeds and suggestions for the garden beds. I believe there is much pleasure and satisfaction in raising flowers to add cheer and attractiveness to the home life. We must do some work for most every thing we have. So it is with our plants and flowers, but it always appeals to me that the results exceed the labor. Trme it is the spring time is a busy season with the house cleaning and many odd jobs of mending or altering garments, etc. for warmer days, especially where there are children. But after all if we can so manage to give a little time for outdoor work, it will repay later on. I think the majority of people enjoy flowers and I believe nothing is more appreciated as a gift or any expression of sympathy than those beautiful blooms of nature.

They are something fit for every occasion and for every age. One of the sweetest memories of my early childhood was the first time I ever saw these little white flowers of May. I think they are called Eye-brights. It was a beautiful Sunday afternoon in May. I remember how I went with my mother and father to a tract of land that was being laid out for building lots and streets. They were considering the purchase of a lot on which to build a house, and while they were looking over the different sites, I was gathering those tiny little flowerets which I had spied in the green grass. It was something new to me for I was young, not having reached the fourth anniversary of my birthday. I recall how I was wondering in my mind, why it was mother and father were just "loking around" and they did not pick the flowers as I was doing.

I could not understand their object in being there until my father said to me, "Well, how would you like to have a house and live here?" "Oh, I would like that," I said, at the same time my thought was on those flowers with which my small hands were filled and how I should enjoy gathering them every day for I suppose there would be a full supply always, as I had found them then. However, before the return of the next year's growth of the dainty little flowers, the house had been built, and I could get all of my heart's desire in the very door yard. To me for this reason these early flowers of May, so plain and simple, even without a fragrance are dear reminders of that happy day in my childhood. I had always enjoyed all flowers, and I am pleased to give to others of my limited supply to please them with the thought of love and friendship.

GETTING UP A BANQUET.

Dear Cornerites: Some of you may be doing the same thing I and some others are just now—getting up a banquet for a party of about 25 or 30—and it occurred to me you might like to know our menu.

We will serve chicken and veal patties made as follows: Boil chicken and roast veal in the proportion of one-third chicken to two-thirds veal. We figure five or six portions to a pound of meat. Chop the meat, pepper and salt to taste, mix with bread that has been soaked in water, using one loaf of bread to ten pounds of meat, and one egg to two pounds of meat, and some grated onion, if desired. Make round flat patties and wrap around with a slice of bacon cut very thin. I get the butcher to slice mine on the machine. He makes about 32 slices to the pound. Make gravy from stock left from boiling chicken and from the veal. Half an hour before serving, put patties into gravy and let come to a boil slowly, and they will then be ready to serve.

I forgot to mention that we are serving creamed tomato soup first.

The patties are garnished with candied carrots, some fried beets and mashed potatoes squeezed through a frosting bag to make a fancy design. On the table we will have radishes, olives, rolls, butter and stuffed celery. Individual strawberry short cake will be the dessert and then will be coffee, after dinner mints and chocolates.

Wish you might be with us to enjoy it and hope there may be a suggestion for you therein.

Yours for the Corner,

MABS.

GETTING THE WHOLE OUT OF LIFE.

My Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Someone said something to me the other day that pleased me immensely, and set me to thinking. It was a woman, and she was repeating something that had been said to her about yours truly. In brief, and without going into details, someone thought that I "was living as I went along, and getting the best out of life at that." Then the question came: Is it true, and how do you do it?

I don't remember what I said to the woman now, but it started me to thinking. You see, I had never thought of it in that way myself, but it is true. As Jannette says I do "gather my roses" while I can—and being willing to be taught of life itself is all the trick there is to it.

If success is counted in dollars—why most of us fall short of the mark, I know; but if we start out almost making the dollar sign plus our goal, it makes all the difference in the world. Life—what do you do with it, and what does it do to you? These really are the only things that count in the long run. To live to love, to laugh, and to take all your days of life in such a spirit that the changes that come into all our lives do not succeed in taking the spirit out of us. I think that's the whole thing dear sisters. The real secret of "getting the whole out of life."

I have always contended one may become what she honestly desires to be, but it means putting your whole self into the job. Intellectually and spiritually one must keep awake, and lately I am learning a new lesson—that of silence. To think while others talk, to study while others play, not a book but my brother man. Then there's work—the work that you like, if possible. To do with all your heart, and as cheerfully as possible the work that presents itself to your hand. And there's kindness, not merely a kindly act that relieves another's distress, but kindness of thought that dislikes to cause distress.

The woman who finds herself "out of tune with" life has one of two courses open to her. Either go on as she is or take stock of herself and get rid of things she does not want in her scheme of things any longer. But I find there is much a thing as being too hard on yourself, too. To discover what are real faults that must be torn out by the roots is a job for "the other fellow," someone who really knows you as you are and will not hesitate to be honest, and that doesn't of necessity mean disagreeable about your shortcomings.

It isn't our friends that slap us on the back and tell us we are perfect—no, not by a good bit.

To accept criticism, to avoid the pitfalls of slander, gossip and small talk, to set a high standard and strive to reach it, even if you feel sure you will fall far short, to accept your woman's destiny, to hold your highest ambition does not end with being a good man's wife, and somebody's mother; to stand upon your own feet and believe in yourself, but not too seriously, and last but by no means least, to accept as true the fact that the longer you live the more you will find worth learning and the less you will think about yourself, your small successes and all the rest of it. Because you will find others whose deeds of do and dare will dwarf your own, however big you once fancied they were. That's all there is to my "psalm of lime." It's enough, isn't it?

It may not "get me anywhere." There are certain wise ones among my friends, who assure me it won't, not in a thousand years; but I don't expect to live a thousand years, and at least I can feel satisfied with life as I have lived it, when the last word has been said. And that's all anyone can ask at the "end of a perfect day."

Here is a suggestion: Small Gibson plaits run in by hand in shoulders of baby's dress make them fit better than gathered necks and can be let out as baby grows.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

ROSE OF SHARON'S BEREAVEMENT AND ILLNESS.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I am not a member of the Corner, but am an interested reader of same. I am writing this to let you know that one of your members, "Rose of Sharon," has just lost her husband with whom she has lived a devoted happy married life for nearly sixty years. She has been very ill herself, was "given up" by the doctor but she is recovering, and I thought some of the members might like to do something to cheer her through her convalescence which will at best be very sad and lonely. She is a very sweet and social woman and will appreciate any attention she may receive.

Wishing all good success for the Corner.

HERB GATHERING AND RUG MAKING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: After being absent for some time will endeavor to add my bit to the Corner page, which has been so interesting for some weeks. So many reminiscences of the past years, especially herb gathering. I wonder how many of the sisters had the task of digging the roots as well as gathering the herbs. I often recall the days when, after school and Saturdays, I dug dandelion and norrowclock root by the bushel, taking them home to wash scrape and spread to dry and all the while in my imagination tasting that delectable syrup which I knew would be forthcoming in the spring. How many had the pleasure of drinking ginassia? How well I remember that little innocent looking wooden cup, just the size of a wine glass, every morning filled with pure cold water, let stand about ten minutes and being told to drink it. Oh, my, anything but pure cold water.

Theoda: Thorough wort tea isn't any where for taste.

I see where some of the sisters have been making rugs. I have made a few. I only braided five, six were woven on a loom and ten were made on a frame, basket weave I call it. I have a frame fould cornered, four feet long by thirty inches wide. I have used the selvages from the woolen mill. You can use any rags, only have them folded right side out for they lay flat and are reversible when done.

I string one color or stripe with different colors the length of the frame by winding over and under until the entire frame is covered. Then I have a stick as long as the frame is wide and pick up these strands alternate over and under as if weaving a basket. Then have a wider stick, two inches wide the same length run in with the first one. Then pull the first one out. Now spread the wide one out, spreading the warp open so as to let the shuttle run through easily. My shuttle is simply a piece of flat thin board with the rags wound on lengthwist. Run this through and around the frame. This hold its firm. I put in different colors for a border. Turn the stick up and beat it down. After you get started this works fast. I can put one on one day and take it off the next. Before taking it off I baste all around the edge of the weaving then cut from the frame and stitch twice around on the sewing machine. Then I trim the sides close to the stitching and I have the ends left even length for fringe.

Calla Lily: Yes, I received the badges the next day and thought you prompt.

Well, I didn't think I had anything to write about when I began,but I see I've run on as all social people do when they get together.

Remember our gathering May 2nd in Buckingham Memorial as usual and I suppose daylight saving time as I see by The Bulletin this morning all Norwich practically is to adopt that time April 29th. So please be on time as not to have the dinner hour take all the time. When we want a little entertainment. Remember it is very hard for the hostesses to begin work at ten o'clock and keep it up four and five hours, which will be the case if we have two times to go by. So please be on time as we usually serve dinner at 12 o'clock. We are looking forward to a good time and a crow. The W's have it this time. So please do not take any offense from AUNTY NO. 1.

TOURING NEW ENGLAND STATES

Dear Editor and Sisters: Just been reading Mandy's letter on the little red New Hampshire school house, which reminded me that the only red school house I remember seeing I saw last summer. That was in New Hampshire, too, somewhere between Newport and Keene, and we wondered if it was the only one of its kind left.

When I wrote my last letter to the Corner in July I think, I did not think it would be so long before I wrote again. I certainly meant to answer X. Y. Z's query and Granger's letter, but a sudden auto trip, lasting a week, and followed by a long illness soon as we got home prevented. Perhaps the sisters would be interested in knowing that the building question is in the northern corner of Lebanon on the farm then owned by the Misses Kingsley. They often spoke of it to me, but knew of no records to prove it. It seemed to be a tradition told them by their father.

As I have been interested in the letters telling about the different trips some of the sisters have taken, perhaps others might like to hear of mine. We went to North Adams by the Mohawk Trail, crossing the Connecticut at Springfield, by the beautiful new bridge. At Greenfield we found that on account of construction work we should have to detour to get to Shelbourne Falls, which meant either to return to Deerfield, or to go over Cobrain Mt., a detour which the traffic cop said he knew nothing about. We dislike turning and do like exploring, so we decided to go by Colerain and found a very good country road, hilly of course, but not bad, and at the top of the mountain a gem of a bit of scenery that paid for the climb.

At Charlemont a drizzling rain set in which lasted until we reached North Adams, so we missed seeing the beautiful scenery at the mountain top. Sorry, for I love the view to the east from the top of the trail. Monday we planned to be at the community dinner of the Monroe Old Home week celebration. Hubby said, "I don't want to climb that awful trail again, can't we go round?" We could, and to any autoist who has the time I recommend this as a lovely trip, from North Adams to Red Mills, Stamford, (Vt.) Hartwellville, Readsboro, Monroe Bridge, which brings you back to Massachusetts and the east side of the Hoosac range. Good roads, easy grades, and some lovely scenery, make a worth while trip.

Early Tuesday morning saw us on our way to New Hampshire. The heavy fog prevented much sight seeing—but we noted the beauties of Williamstown, and as we neared Bennington it lifted enough to show us as lovely views as any the trail offers. We saw the monument a little to the left as we passed through Bennington, but we did not stop for we had a long drive ahead.

Our way led through Manchester, Peru, Londonderry, Chester to Springfield, where we crossed the Connecticut. My impressions of Vermont are mostly of a lofty nature. We seemed to be going up all the time. Especially through Peru. There we went through what seemed to be a shed set right over the road, but which I learned later was an old toll gate. There were some beautiful views through the Vermont mountains. But much of the way was through woods too thick to see them. They are probably worth the climb—but not very often.

We hoped for less climbing when we reached New Hampshire, and our hopes might have been realized if we had followed the route we laid out—Newport, Sunapee, Laconia and so on, but we got off the road at Newport and went south instead of east. Right here let me tell one lesson we learned which is if you don't want to lose your road don't be afraid to stop and ask questions. It is all right to follow the marked posts—as we did—but be sure first that they are not just being renumbered and painted over. We found that out later, considerably later in fact, when it began to get near supper time and the further we went only took us higher than the last climb.

At last, when we hadn't seen a house for miles and nothing but hills and woods about us we hailed a state traffic officer and found we were about nine miles from Keene, and sixty from where we thought we were. While we were talking with the officer a big truck loaded with rock passed us, and the officer told us that it came from a feldspar quarry near there (we were then in Gilsum) and was used in making spark plugs.

We finally decided to go on to Keene, turn eastward and go as far towards Concord as we could that night, then the next day go up the Daniel Webster highway to Franklin, and so on to Conway.

If I depended on that day's ride for my impressions of New Hampshire, they would mostly be included under mountains, straight up and down, then up again, woods, sand and swamps.

One thing we noted, that in New Hampshire very little provision is made for the thirsty traveler, or motor. I suppose they think there is no need, with so many wayside tea rooms and service stations, but we missed the delicious, cold running water that we found so often flowing from pipes on the trail and in other parts of Massachusetts. I think the best and coldest water I ever drank we found between Stamford and Hartwellville, and the next best not far from Monroe Bridge. I wish that Connecticut towns would see that watering troughs were placed at convenient points on the roads, and close enough together so the thirsty would not have to hunt a gas station for a drink. Which reminds me that at one place in New Hampshire where we stopped for gas, we tried to get water for the radiator, and were told they didn't have any. Plenty of water, when wanted, might help out the Volstead law.

Guess you all think my trip was too long, and I'd better stop for a rest (not mine, but the readers), but I must tell North Dakota how much I enjoyed her letter. Glad I don't have to live out there and dress as she describes, or I couldn't move. Some cousins who used to live out there wrote of having to eat from the top of a hot stove, or the food would freeze, and wear hood and mittens in the house, or they would freeze. Not for me. Connecticut is bad enough.

BETSY BOBBIT.

BELIEVES IN SETTING OUT DOORS.

Dear Social Corner Folks: I'm writing real often now. I was surprised to think that Theoda did not think it was much of a job to care for 400 chickens for we think it is. We have three brooders with coal fires and one heated with oil and the incubator must be seen to twice a day. With watering and feeding and keeping things clean it has been quite a job. Now the weather is warmer and chickens larger it lets up a bit. We are just starting in at the business, have built three new large henhouses and moved two more and tore down two large sheds to use as much as we could of them. I meant all of this in connection with the other work and it certainly took some time. And with one of the men, after the first week, working away with a truck and doing what he could before going and after coming home, another man suffering from a terrible abscess on his back, having it dressed every other day and doing all he could between times, and still another man well advanced in years and not being able to do a full day's work, I think we have done remarkably well. By the way these men are all in the family—no hired help. I thought I was or had been quite a smart active woman, but if Theoda did what she said she can beat me a mile.

I'm glad so many liked my ginger puffs. Most everyone does who has eaten them. The woman's club to which I belong has food sales quite often and I always make them and they sell fast.

Well, my house is cleaned and we have all lived through it and I am glad it is done before the weather comes too warm. Then I get weary and can't bear to clean. Now I'm going to hurry what sewing I've got to do so as to be able to sit out of doors all I can. I do enjoy that. I've got my chairs on the veranda already and mean to use one of them real often and I would advise all the sisters to do the same. We have had a long cold winter to stay indoors. Let's enjoy the air and sunshine all we can. As I've said before in the Corner, I'm no waiter, I always want to keep ahead but do not always succeed. But I like to get my cleaning and sewing done so as not to feel obliged to work so much during the hot weather. I want to come to it this day if possible.

Good wishes for one and all of the Corner, I am as ever

MA OF GREENE GABLES.

THE THREE H'S

Dear Social Corner Friends: Such splendid letters and helps from Kitty Lou and all the others, and I am interested in Theoda's chickens. I wonder if any of the other members raise 1,200 chickens.

Theoda: Do you always have just good luck with them all? Father kept a good many hens, but on free range, stealing their nests and taking care of themselves. He gave them very little attention except to feed them twice a day.

I sometimes raised a few chickens, not letting them say with the hens. But after some experience decided that the mother hen deserved a good deal of credit for knowing how to care for her family.

Some broods seemed more helpless than others, but I found it better to teach some of the strongest chickens to drink, and eat each kind of food and curiosity led the others to do as they saw the leaders doing.

I had one brood die after doing well go without eating for two days before they would eat the sour milk which they so much needed.

Equal to the small boy who went four days with very little food before he would decide to take the milk from a bottle. Most mothers would have fed him something else and said he was a child who would not drink milk.

But whether chickens or children they learn their lessons of we have patience enough. I lost one pen of chickens finding out too late that they had never slept in their new house but huddled outside in a corner of the yard until the first rainy night chilled them. I found another brood one cold rainy day lying on the ground apparently dead, but saved them all by quickly dipping them in warm water then wiping them dry and putting them in baskets near a hot fire.

When changing young chickens to a new place I found a fruit jar of hot water wrapped in several papers and covered with cloth placed in their house would make them cosy and contented to stay there.

North Dakota always writes interesting letters, too. But why have such a needless accident as the death of the young teacher in the blizzard, when a ball of twine fastened to the fence at the gap would have kept her from passing through into the prairie. It would seem that any of the parents would have noticed the danger. As it might have happened any time that the safety of the teacher and her pupils would depend on their reaching this nearest house.

"Eighty-two per cent. of the children of America are born with a chance to be vigorous men and women—born to be happy, healthy and honest. But only 17 per cent. grow up without some handicap. The 65 per cent. are cheated by life. The rules of life are simple but those who cared for them were ignorant or too absorbed in other affairs, so the children lose their chance."

We are exasperated by petty dishonesty, but forget that this kind of person is trained in the home of the poor. It would be pleasanter to prevent their being trained into wrong ways than to live bothered and in danger of this ignorant criminal class. Although the amount of their dishonesty is nothing in comparison to that caused by greed of some of those in business, who in their ambition for an enormous business do not think of the effect on others of their profiteering. Every wrong injures some one besides yourself. Everyone should have their chance to be happy, healthy and honest.

AN OLD SONG.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I am sending you a beautiful song I learned more than 70 years ago. My age now is 90. I was born Feb. 1, 1833 and my wife Nov. 23, 1833. We are both in our right minds, and doing the best we can, married 64 years.

Yours,

CLUB NO. 2 MEETS MAY 2

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Club No. 2 meets in Buckingham Memorial May 2. Each person is expected to bring an article of food for the table so as to be sure and have enough for all to be served alike.

To those who left their May donations in coffee and cash with me for the luncheon, Aunty No. 1 and Old Fashioned Mother, I thank you for your thoughtfulness.

I would like to ask those who come if you will cut out some favorite poem, bring music or whatever you wish to help in the social part after dinner so as to keep them interested and make them stay longer. We hire the rooms for the day and just as soon as dinner is over one follows another and leaves and by 3 o'clock every body is gone. Bring your fancy work and make an afternoon of it and let's get better acquainted.

Yours for the Corner

CALLA LILY

SEASONAL RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: You know there is nothing like being progressive, and while our corner is looked for with as much as a continued "romantic" story still I think there is a suggestion I would like to make as a key to cooking and helping solutions, which will hold the interest with a good grasp.

I think it would be nice to specialize occasionally by specializing, I mean "season recipes" for cooking. If you are writing in the forepart of April write recipes for May or the forepart of June. Then some one might specialize in helps in housecleaning, or canning, putting away clothes. Methods of fixing their fall and winter clothing. Some put them out and air them all day, while others steam them before putting them away. Of course each may have a different method. They could write and tell why and how.

Every man rides his own hobby and as President Lincoln used to say "If you like that sort of thing that's the sort of thing you like."

It does seem as if helps, cooking recipes, etc., sent in about four weeks in advance would be much appreciated.

I sit down and read the letters in the Corner as I like to get echoes of all these writers' activities, as it seems as if I have bright, gossipy visitors, bringing me their ideas through the silent medium of their pen.

Of course, the Corner suits me to a nicety, just the way it is. Some may agree with me while others might not think much about it, but I wish you might lend spice to my opinion.

Some weeks ago one of our good sisters wrote that she heard that some didn't like "chatty" letters or to that effect, but I remember she said, "that they didn't have to read them." Now I want every sister to read mine and I want their honest opinion concerning my suggestion. Now in May there are "pie plant possibilities" different ways to serve it as well as other things what you cook in May. I hope I have made it plain. Jennie's letter was very interesting for me for I like to get something new to make up a nice dish that is out of the ordinary with potatoes you are doing extremely well towards having a tasty dinner.

Scalloped potatoes made out of cold potatoes are pretty tasty. Of course there is a saving of milk and fire and I really think scalloped potatoes suit most tastes, as Jennie stated in her letter.

Escalloped Potatoes—Cut cold, cooked potatoes in dice. Put in frying pan, add a piece of butter, size according to the amount of potatoes, salt, pepper to taste, add a pinch of sugar.

Almost cover the potatoes with milk after heating it, then set potatoes with milk on the stove, let come to a boil, and boil about fifteen minutes. Then set in the oven and bake fifteen minutes more.

I never boil a potato unless I am going to make soup. I either steam them or bake them. In baking them grease the peeling well before putting them in the oven.

A different Potato Soup—Place 2 cups of diced cold potatoes in a good sized pan, add 1-2 cup canned tomatoes, one small onion, one tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon salt and pepper, a few shreds of cabbage or pieces of celery, 1-8 teaspoon of pepper, 1-8 teaspoon soda in tomato, 1-8 teaspoon of sugar. Now put in one quart of milk, allow it to reach boiling point serve with saltines which are crisp.

Breakfast Corn and Potatoes—Cut cold cooked potatoes into half inch dice (about 3 cups) season with salt and pepper and fry until a rich brown in bacon, when nearly done add the corn cut from the cob (4 ears) and stir lightly among the potatoes until the corn also is a delicate brown. Do this quickly.

Buttered Potato and Onions—Pare one dozen small potatoes and 1-2 dozen medium sized onions and put in casserole 4 tablespoons butter, salt, pepper. Cover and bake 3-4 of an hour.

Potato Balls Fried in Butter—Cut little balls from the cooked potato with the vegetable scoop. Put one cup of chicken fat (or butter with the salt washed out will do. Put this in a small frying pan. When hot, put in as many potato balls as will cover the bottom, and fry until a golden brown, serve very hot.

The part that is left after the balls are cut out I use to make Lyonaise potatoes.

Lyonaise Potatoes—One quart cold boiled potatoes, three tablespoons butter, one chopped onion, salt and pepper. Season the potatoes with salt and pepper. Fry the onions in butter, and when they turn yellow, add the potatoes, when hot, cook about three minutes. Serve immediately on a hot dish.

POTATO BUG

REMEMBER THE FEATHERED FRIENDS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: April showers, spring flowers and housecleaning!

So much is written every spring on this subject, but "lest we forget" I might suggest a few hints. So many methods are advocated from the very efficient housekeeper who keeps things so spic and span that the semi-yearly cleaning is unnecessary to the energetic woman who puts everything out of door at once, and has the family leave home for a week or else live in a state of confusion until things are righted. Time has taught us that one room at a time is the best method, and above all do not get too tired.

When getting ready for spring let's not forget our feathered friends. Try to have a birdhouse near the kitchen window. It certainly helps to break the monotony of dish washing.

I have a friend that has been an invalid for over a year and she is watching a robin and his mate build their nest and she said they had taught her a lesson in building.

Yours for the Social Corner.

BONIE (Jan. 13.)

A CORRECTION.

Dear Social Corner: Either the printer or I made a mistake in the directions for putting in a patch, which I sent last week, by putting in the word "don't." This is as I should read: You have to cut your patch a large seam larger than the old worn piece, because you take a seam out of it, sewing it in. I am very sorry the mistake was made.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amarillo, Tex.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years when a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."—Mrs. C. B. ROBINSON, 608 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Texas.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

MOTOR VEHICLE DEPARTMENT WATCHING VIOLATION CASES

Nearly 300 trials and conferences have been held so far this year by the hearings bureau of the department of motor vehicles, according to an announcement made at the state capitol Friday.

Of the 272 actual hearings, eighty-seven drivers were summoned in for conferences and were warned that any further accidents or motor vehicle violations would mean revocation of their licenses. The other 185 were all drivers under suspension who were presenting an appeal for the return of thir licenses. Of these 185, two were given indednite suspensions; one an additional year added to his suspension; four sixty day suspensions; four thirty day suspensions; two were forced to continue under their original suspensions, and five were given temporary suspensions pending reports and decisions of higher courts.

On the other hand, four were taken off the black list and were given limited licenses and one was given conditional driving privileges. One hundred and fifty-seven were held in Hartford, 36 in Bridgeport, 24 in New Haven, 18 in Stamford, 17 in New London, and 10 in Waterbury. These cases were all cared for by a traveling hearing inspector in the employ of the states department.

School Coal at $14.60.

The price at which the contract was awarded to the Shetucket Coal and Wood Co. to supply the 1,200 tons of anthracite for the schools of Norwich was $14.60 per ton. Through error it was stated that the award was at $14.70 which was the price named by another bidder.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL FIXES TAX RATE AT TWENTY-FIVE MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 27.—The rate of taxation has been practically decided upon. The decision was reached this evening at a special meeting of the city council. The rate is to be 25 mills. Whether that taxation will make payments demanded of individual property owners more than it was a year ago or before the present form of government was inaugurated is not known, but there are those who say it will be increased. The council, be it said, has not been niggardly in its provision for expenditures but it has been discerning and has not allowed money to get away from the city treasury that should remain in it.

The last addition made to the budget is for an extension of the pier at Ocean Beach. That will be widened and will be extended 70 feet further into the harbor.

The cost of the work will be about $10,000. This amount may be used also to do away with the temporary float that is used every summer and which is a source of expense, for permanent diving places will be established much to the satisfaction of the bathers. The addition to the width of the pier will be made on the north side, covering the ledge that is located at the present entrance to the pier. On the whole the improvement is such as has been needed since the beach was made use of as a public place. The largest excursion steamers may come to the pier for there will be a depth of water of about 15 feet at the end of the pier. The Merritt-Chapman-Scott company has submitted drawings of the pier and that company will undoubtedly do the work.

Residents in Mitchell court, interviewed City Manager Barlow today regarding the contemplated improvements in the court. They still maintain that the land on which the improvements are to be made belongs to the property owners and not to the city. They claim that they besought the city to make the improvements that are now contemplated and that then the city disclaimed ownership in the land. Now the city insists that the work shall be done at a time when the property owners do not want it undertaken.

The interview with the city manager resulted in the information from the city manager that the demonstrance was too late, that the city had gone about and had perfected its plans and there was nothing now to be done except to carry out the arrangements made. There is one step left for the remonstrants to take and that is in an injunction that will restrain the city from proceeding.

Whether that course will be resorted to is not known.

It is likely that Chief Engineer John Stanners will not retire from the fire department until some time late in the summer. He desires, it is understood, to serve the city until then and at that time to go on the retired list of city officials. Who his successor will be has not even been considered by the council for the members are not disposed to cross the bridge till they come to it.

It is known, however, that provision has been made for the pensioning of Chief Stanners and it is likely also that provision will be made for the pensioning of Police Lieutenant at the same time.

The retirement of Lieutenant Beebe will lead to the advancement of one of the sergeants of the force, it is generally conceded and that will make a vacancy in the sergeancies. There are a number of officers who are anxious to wear the chevrons of a sergeant and some of them have made a canvass among members of the council who have the approval of any appointment that may be made. There is a wide latitude to be exercised in the filling of both places and it is understood that faithful service and good work will be the guide of the council in making the selections. They are said to have but one mind as to that, and are determined that the appointee shall have a good record and be free from any entanglements of any sort.

Patrolman William Manice, who has been confined to his home on Starr street several days by an attack of indigestion, suffered a recurrence of the malady last night and will be unable to resume his police duties for another week.

Mrs. Lena Coombs and Mrs. Thomas Coombs and family have removed from No. 21 Pearl street to No. 68 Jefferson avenue.

Property owned by Connecticut College and located on Williams street, where it is familiarly known as the Chappell farm, was threatened with serious damage from fire this forenoon. A quantity of rubbish that was being burned on the property caused sparks to be blown to the roof of a barn, igniting the shingles. A still alarm summoned the Northwest and Thomas Hose companies and a quantity of chemicals poured upon the burning roof soon caused it to be extinguished.

Byron A. Fones, employed by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company and who was recently transferred to the New York office of the company, will, with his family, take up their residence in New York next week. Mr. Fones today sold his residence on School street to W. Everett Eagles.

John W. Sheedy, purchasing agent for the city, has purchased of Edith Burr a house and lot on the former United States Housing Corporation's plat off Jefferson avenue.

The Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association entertained their husbands, brothers and sweethearts this evening in the lodge rooms of the association on Bank street. Following the transaction of routine business there was an entertainment and feast.

A miscellaneous surprise shower was given Miss Alice Dervin, daughter of Mrs. Alice Dervin, at the home of Miss Dervin's mother, No. 116 Green street, last evening. Miss Dervin is employed as telephone operator by the Southern New England Telephone Company and will shortly become the bride of William L. Lloyd of the force of clerks in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at the union station.

Mr. and Mrs. James Floyd of Waterford departed this afternoon for a brief visit in New York.

Howard Hick, aged 14 years, son of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Samuel Hick, is confined to the home of his parents on Blydenburg avenue, suffering from injuries he sustained this afternoon by falling from his bicycle to avoid running down a child. Young Hick sustained lacerations of the left fore leg which necessitated fourteen stitches being taken at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital to close the wound.

The accident occurred when Hick was operating his bicycle near the Harbor school on Montauk avenue. As the cyclist approached the school a child ran to the highway and to avoid striking the youngster Hick guided the cycle upon the sidewalk resulting in its crashing against an iron fence. Hick was thrown from the cycle and came in contact with a section of the fence which produced the injury which will keep him confined to his home a fortnight.

M. F. McFague, special agent in charge of the American Railway Express company's force of police, and with headquarters in Boston, has communicated with the police in the hopes of recovering a shot gun which was recently stolen while being transported by the company. McFague doesn't know whether the gun disappeared in Norwich or New London, but is positive that it was stolen from one of the two cities.

Thieves continue to operate without detection at Ocean Beach and vicinity, although the police have maintained a rigid vigilance several months in an attempt to put an end to the breaking into of cottages. Two breaks occurred last night, but so far as is known plunder was only obtained from one of the places.

The cottage of Mrs. Effie Putnam Tobin on River Bend place was entered by forcing one of the windows and after entrance was gained a doorway was opened through which the articles stolen were removed. The break was discovered this afternoon when Mrs. Tobin visited the cottage and from an inspection of the place it is known that a Columbia talking machine, a watch, revolver and pair of shoes, besides about fifty records were stolen.

While making his rounds early this morning Patrolman John Sullivan found two windows broken in the summer residence of Isaac Bragaw of Hartford, located at No. 1024 Pequot avenue. The officer made a search of the place, but could not ascertain whether the crooks were rewarded for their trouble by obtaining any plunder.

In an endeavor to rescue one of two of her children, whom she believed would be struck by a trolley car, Mrs. Philip Brenner of No. 361 Broad street, was struck by the car and the child she was trying to rescue, was knocked down at the corner of State and Main streets, late this afternoon. Mrs. Brenner sustained bruises, while the child received a lacerated lip and contusions. Both were treated by a physician, after which they went to their home.

Mrs. Brenner and her two children were awaiting the passing of the trolley car before crossing the street when one of the children started to run in the direction of the car. Mrs. Brenner rushed for the child just as the car was rounding the curve. As the rear end of the car made the swing, Mrs. Brenner was struck and knocked down and the child, whom she had reached, fell with her, both landing face downward on the pavement.

It is believed that the New London fire department will establish a record for the number of alarms, both still and signal, that have been responded to in any one signal month, when the present month will have expired. From early in the month the several companies have been called out to fight a number of fires, most of which fortunately, were not of a serious nature. In many instances the fires were for brush blazes that were started by children and which eventually got beyond control of the youngsters, sometimes threatening buildings with destruction. Fire Chief John Stanners, this evening, in referring to the number of alarms that the department has responded to, stated that to date forty-seven calls had been answered in and as anywhere from two or three to half a dozen still alarms are responded to daily, I would not be surprising if the high mark of sixty responds was recorded before the first of the month arrives.

The county authorities and the police continue to make a search for Albert William Tyler, who escaped from the New London county jail a week ago Wednesday evening a six months' sentence hanging upon Wm. Walsh, a resident of Chinatown, who was the complaining witness against Tyler on the charge that he had [illegible] been run down and robbed by the negro here [illegible].

The graduating exercises of the 1923 class of the Backus Hospital Training School for Nurses will take place in Plant hall next [illegible] evening of Thursday, May [illegible] Young ladies who will graduate [illegible] Misses Edna M. [illegible] Maude Wier Roberts, Mary Kelly [illegible], Hannah Dunn Hyde, [illegible] Olive Louise Spencer, Barbara [illegible] Ida Thomas, Catherine [illegible] Gaither, Edna Bertha [illegible] Alice Josephine Gorham, [illegible] Mary [illegible] Haupt and Mary [illegible] McGuire.

It is probable that Dog Warden John Sweeney will be kept busy after the first of the month, when the time limit will have expired to register dogs without an additional license fee of $1 being paid. At present but 400 canines have been licensed and as there are close to 1,600 dogs throughout the city, a rush on the city clerk's office will have to result if all of the dogs in the city are to be licensed before the time limit to do so expires Monday night.

Joe Gowosky told Judge Prince in the police court that he was only a little drunk yesterday when the police found him and that he was given a couple of punches when he was taken into custody. He thought it was funny that he should be hampered in his desire to take a few drinks of wine. He said so. Then Judge Prince told Joe there wasn't any fun in the situation at all, and after fining him informed him that when next he came to the court for intoxication he would do

Day's total sales, 662,000 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 101.16, net loss .21; high 1923, 105.38, low 96.86.

Twenty railroads averaged 86.52, net loss .27; high 1923, 90.63, low 84.53.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, April 27.—The irregular price movements in today's comparatively quiet stock market reflected the play of opposing speculative forces, net losses exceeding net gains at the close.

Announcements of another cut of one cent a gallon in gasoline prices, the second within a week, brought about heavy offerings of the oil shares by short interests, the net losses ranging from one to nearly three points, but the rest of the list offered better resistance to selling pressure. High call money rates had a restraining effect on trading, but little significance was attached to them, they being regarded as incidental to May 1st payments and U. S. treasury operations in preparation for the new financing on May 15.

New low records for the year were established by a number of popular issues, notably Standard Oil of New Jersey at 36 7-8, Texas Company at 47, Pierce Oil preferred at 32, Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred at 41 5-8, American Cotton Oil at 11 1-8, Allied Chemical at 71, American Agricultural Chemical preferred at 45 1-2, Kayser Silk at 36 1-2 and Peoples Gas at 86, but most of these rallied later, the last named cancelling its 3 point loss and closing 1-2 higher on the day.

Motor shares were heavily bought in expectation of unusually favorable earnings statements. Studebaker, which the speculative community expects will show earnings of $8 a share for the first quarter, led the list, closing 1 1-2 higher at 123 1-4. General Motors also was heavily traded in, closing fractionally higher at 17 1-4. Stewart-Warner and Reynolds Spring were the bright spots of the motor accessory list, the former showing a net gain of nearly 2 points.

Railroad shares were heavy despite the publication of more favorable March earnings statements. The first twenty Class I roads to report show average net income at the annual rate of 6.07 per cent. on the property investment. Losses of a point or more were recorded today by Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley and Chicago and Northwestern preferred, other changes being of a fractional character.

Withdrawals of funds by interior banks contributed to the firmness of the call money market, which opened at 5 1-4 per cent., advanced to 5 1-2, and then 6, but eased off to 5 1-2 again just before the close. The time money market was fairly active with some 30-day loans arranged at 5 per cent. and the longer ones at 5 1-4 and 5 1-2. Commercial paper moved in moderate volume, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 and 5 1-4 per cent.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was a new low record for the year made early in the day by demand sterling at $4.62 3-8, but good buying support made its appearance and the price rallied a cent for a slight fractional gain on the day. French francs held steady at 6.80 cents. Spanish exchange also established a new low at 15.26 cents, but the volume of business was small. Norwegian exchange reacted one-fifth of a cent to 17.40 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 27.—A rally in the prices of United States government issues featured today's trading in bonds on the New York stock exchange. Price movements, generally, were mixed and dull. French issues continued to be in demand.

All active U. S. government bonds improved except tax exempt 3 1-2s, which were off 1-32 of a point. The French 7 1-2s established a new high record, and City of Prague 7 1-2s and Seine 7s each gained more than a point at one time. Both these bonds tapered off slightly and closed fractionally higher. Mexican issues were firm with slightly improved prices.

Trading in the railroad group was dull with few important changes. Atchison adustment 4s, stamped, receded 1 1-2 points, and the Reading issues were up more than a point. Interborough Rapid Transit 6s gained a point.

Copper Company liens were active and mixed in the industrial group, Magma Copper 7s gaining 1 7-8, while Chile Copper 7s dropped two points. Fisk Rubber 8s were up 1 5-8. Commonwealth Power 6s 1 1-4, and Colorado Industrial 5s 1. Losses of a point each were recorded by Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s, with warrants, and South Porto Rican Sugar 7s.

Total sales (par value) were $10,496,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 27.—Improvement in the outlook both for the spring crop and the winter crop had a bearish effect on the wheat market today. Prices closed unsettled, 3-8 to 1 1-2 net lower, with May 125 1-4 to 125 3-8 and July 123 1-4 to 123 1-2.

Corn finished at 1 1-8@1 1-4 to 1 3-8 cents decline, oats 1-4@3-8 to 3-4 cents down, and provisions varying from a setback of 5 cents to a rise of 2 1-2 cents.

Warmer weather northwest and clear skies there appeared to promise better conditions for completion of the seeding of spring wheat, and at the same time crop authorities in the winter wheat belt, especially in Nebraska, were sending reports of the help which recent rains had given to fields that previously were supposed to be of but little worth. Downturns in Liverpool quotations, accompanied by word that shipments from Argentina and from Australia were larger than had been expected, counted also as a handicap on wheat bulls here.

Rallies which from time to time took place in the wheat market failed to develop any lasting quality and the close was at almost the bottom figures of the day. The fact that purchasing of wheat for shipment to Europe totalled only 350,000 bushels and that one of this amount was United States wheat, seemed to have a good deal to do with lack of buoyancy which the market displayed. Sales of wheat to go into storage here were also a subject of comment.

Offerings of corn from private elevators here exercised a depressing influence on values of corn and oats.

In the provision market, the effect of higher prices on hogs was offset by the weakness of grain.

NUMBER FOUR

some work for the county and that he wouldnt get any pay for it either.

George A. Snow was found so drunk on State street last evening that he couldn't get his legs under him. He was bound for Groton, but Police Sergeant Howard interfered with his plans and locked him up for safety.

Judge Prince imparted to Snow the information that the straight and narrow path was the only one for him to follow in the future. He told him he drank too much and that the only way he could keep out of jail was to keep away from liquor. Snow was fined $5.

Albert St. Germain of Waterford was charged with failing to reduce the speed of his auto in approaching intersecting streets. He admitted his offense and his carelessness, but as he had never been in the court before he was spared the penalty of a fine by suspension of judgment.

An idea of what the congested condition of State and Bank streets will be during the summer season was apparent this afternoon for autos were parked on both sides of the street, making an unbroken line. It is apparent also that trolley cars must be operated in North Bank street if the traffic conditions are to be relieved. That would afford an outlet from Bank street and it could be made to take much of the trolley traffic from Main street, where there is no room for them. The latter street might be used for parking purposes and thus relieve State street.

Mrs. Mary Alling of Norwich, Miss Alice Connolly of Connecticut avenue, Mrs. Thomas Lalahan and baby of Squire street, Miss Rita Romano of Fisher's Island and Miss Elinor Burrows of Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Hattie Gurley, wife of Giles Burley, died this morning at her home in East Lyme. Mrs. Gurley had not enjoyed sound health for a long time. She was 72 years of age.

Mrs. Fannie G. Latham of No. 30 Granite street died this noon at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, where she had been under treatment about a week. Mrs. Latham was the widow of Daniel Latham and the daughter of Oscar F. Stanton, admiral, U. S. N., retired. Besides her father, Mrs. Latham is survived by one son, Stanton Latham of New London.

FOUND MISSING NORWICH BOY IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 27.—Michael Chinego, aged 15 years, ran away from his home in Norwich last night and decided to go to New York. His sudden disappearance was detected by relatives, who complained to the Norwich police, with the result that the New London authorities were requested to intercept the youth should he put in an appearance in New London. Chinego came to New London by trolley and went to the New London steamer, where he purchased a ticket for New York. Chinego didn't depart with the steamer, for he was found on the boat by Patrolman [illegible] Wells and brought to the police station. Later Chinego's uncle, James Chinego, of No. 71 Division street, Norwich, came to New London and took charge of the youth.

NORWICH MAN HELD FOR AUTO VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 27.—Arthur J. Plauffe of No. 107 Washington street, Norwich, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the automobile laws in operating an automobile past a standing trolley car while the latter conveyance is discharging passengers. Plauffe was taken into custody this morning following complaint being made yesterday against him by William Donovan, an inspector in the employ of the Connecticut company.

It is alleged that a trolley car of the one-man type was motionless on Broad street late yesterday afternoon discharging passengers, and as they declared the car owned and operated by Plauffe passed the trolley car at a dangerous rate of speed, narrowly avoiding hitting some of the passengers. As several complaints have been made to the police of the practice of autoists driving past trolley cars when passengers are in the act of boarding or alighting from the car, it is possible that Plauffe will be severely dealt with.

Cut Off Gasoline Pump

An automobile that got beyond control of its driver late Friday afternoon mounted the sidewalk in front of Preston Bros., store on Franklin square and crashed into the gasoline pump there, ripping it from its fastenings and toppling it to the ground.

After a woman makes up her mind to have her own way she isn't satisfied unless some man tries to restrain her.

It is difficult for a man to accumulate dollars unless he has sense to begin with.

To keep cool is difficult when a man has to choose between a frying pan and fire.

MAMMOTH TWO-DAY

AUCTION

to settle the estate of the late Wendell H. Phillips, Woodstock, Conn.,

TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1923,

at 10 o'clock a. m.

The entire farm equipment of a complete and modern nature will be sold, consisting of about every practical tool or implement ever manufactured. The farm of 1.166 acres, with all buildings thereon, will be sold at 12 o'clock noon on this date. This property is located about five miles northwest from the city of Putnam, Conn., which is a railroad center and a large manufacturing center. The land is now under an extremely high state of cultivation and is considered one of the best hay farms in New England. Buildings consist of large brick house, stock barn, henhouses, sheds, etc. Water supply excellent. A valuable 16-acre woodlot will be sold separate. Terms on real estate will require 10 per cent. of purchase price at time of sale in U. S. currency or certified check and balance when deeds are delivered.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1923,

the entire contents of this beautiful old Phillips homestead will be sold without reserve, consisting of considerable furniture of an antique nature, mostly family heirlooms. Also a large quantity of modern furniture, very much new in appearance. Terms on personal property, cash. If stormy, postponed to the first two fair days following at the same hour. A caterer will attend both days. This sale will undoubtedly be one of the leading events of the season. Apply to the auctioneers for posters and particulars.

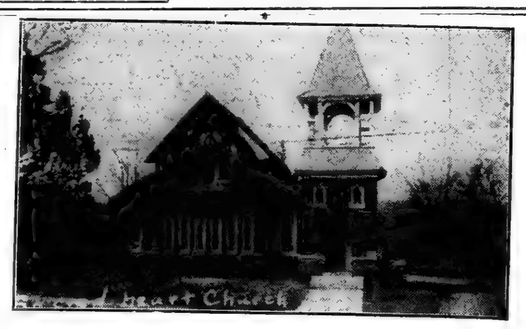
Garage Men Extinguish Fire.

A Cadillac car on which men were working in the driveway near Swan's garage suddenly caught fire Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock and a call for aid was sent into the fire station. Before the firemen could make the run men at the garage had extinguished the blaze which did little damage. The firemen had nothing to do but to return to Central station.

News of a fire at the garage spread quickly and a crowd of several hundred gathered expecting that the blaze would assume the proportion of the fire which some time ago caused considerable damage.

City Court Cases.

In the city court Friday morning a boy who showed signs of going astray was given some good advice and two local men paid $11.33 each for having engaged in a fight with each other.



SACRED HEART CHURCH
After the Fire

SACRED HEART PARISH READY TO BEGIN DRIVE FOR $40,000 FUND

... workers of Sacred Heart parish at Norwich Town are all ready to start on Sunday the campaign for the $40,000 re-building fund for their church which was burned on Easter Sunday.

Under the leadership of Patrick T. Connell as general chairman it is planned to cover the Norwich Town territory on Sunday afternoon. With this accomplished, St. Patrick's and St. Mary's parishes can be covered by the aid of the volunteer workers from these parishes who have offered their services. As the St. Patrick's and St. Mary's members cover their territory, each will be accompanied by a Sacred Heart parish member.

So far as the plans have gone towards a new church, it has been considered that it will be necessary to draw entirely new plans and it is not known whether it will be possible to use the sidewalls as they were left after the fire. A new organ will have to be secured as the fire and water ruined the organ which was at the front of the church. The beautiful and costly white marble altar with marble images was badly damaged and the images were destroyed by the fire.

The captains of teams in Sacred Heart parish of Norwich Town are: Joseph Pfeiffer, Thomas White, Theodore Marchand, Leroy Hubbard, Fred Kingsley, John Blacker, John Mullen, James P. McNally, John McKenna.

LOOSE WILES BISCUIT LOCATES AGENCY HERE

The Loose Wiles Biscuit Co., manufacturers of the famous Sunshine Biscuits with bi factories located in different sections of the United States and agencies in most of the principal cities of the country has decided to open an agency in this city. The demands for their products have increased to such an extent that it became necessary to have an agency to take care of their business in this territory which includes W. Thames, Putnam, Danielson and New London along the shore road to Westerly.

The central location of Norwich made this city attractive for a distributing point and the new concern with its staff will be welcomed by the citizens to the business life of the Rose of New England.

The agency will be in charge of E. C. Burt as sales manager and the local representative is J. E. Campbell. The agency is located at the rear of 37 Franklin street.

LONDON POULTRY EXPERT VISITED STORRS CONTESTS

Percy A. Francis, poultry commissioner for the Ministry of Agriculture in London, visited the laying contest at Storrs last week. Mr. Percy arrived just in time to see several shifts among the leading pens. He was gratified to find that Lady Anderson's pen from Harrold, England, had not lost the lead in the Wyandotte class. In the Plymouth Rock class Edgar Stoughton's pen from Wapping, Conn., was crowded out of fourth place by Agricultural college's pen from Guelph, Ontario. In the Wyandotte group, Woodbridge Orchard's pen from Woodbridge, Conn., is now tied with Frank P. Matteson's pen from Davisville, R. I., which has been holding down second place for the last four weeks. There were no changes in the relative positions of the Reds but in the Leghorn alley Roy H. Waite's pen from College Park, Md., had climbed back to first place after having lost the lead to a Long Island pen for the last six weeks. Small's Poultry Farm from Mt. Carmel, Conn., and Hollywood Farm from Hollywood, Wash., are tied for fourth place in the class instead of Rapp's Leghorn Farm that has clung to this position for the last nine weeks.

For the first time since the contest started in November, the hens have come through with more than 4,000 eggs. The exact production was 4,103 eggs or a yield of nearly 59 per cent., thus there was a gain of 263 eggs compared with the production of the previous week. There was a great scramble among eight pens to get into the honorable mention column. Charles H. Lane's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Southboro, Mass., laid 59 eggs, which was better than any other pen could do for the week. Another pen of Reds entered by Hall Farm of North Bennington, Vt., and the Barred Rocks from Guelph, Ont., tied for second place with 57 eggs each. Pinecrest Orchards' Reds from Groton, Mass., Hollywood Farm's pen of Leghorns from Hollywood, Wash. and Exmoor Farm's pen of the same breed from Lebanon, Pa., all tied for third place with 54 eggs each. Reds entered by Fellows Brothers from Norwich Town, Conn., and White Rocks entered by Harold F. Barber from Dover Mass., tied for fourth place with 53 eggs each.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

Plymouth Rocks.

Davidson Brothers (White) Upton, Mass.	957
Jules F. Francais (Barred) Westhampton Beach, L. I.	847
G. B. Treadwell (Barred) Spencer, Mass.	841

NEW LONDON WORST IN SERIOUS AUTO ACCIDENTS

In the first of a series of weekly statements on the automobile accident situation in the seven large Connecticut cities, the statistical bureau of the department of motor vehicles reports that 111 serious accidents occurred last week in Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New Britain, Meriden and New London. According to a grading system which has been established, Meriden reported to have set the best record and New London the worst.

The total number of serious collisions for the same week last year was only 98 in comparison with the 111 this year. Increases in these major accidents this year over last year are noted in every city except Waterbury.

To obtain the grade which is given to each city, the department reports that both population and automobile registration are taken into consideration. This grade signifies the percentage of perfection, a 100 per cent grade indicating that there were no accidents during the week.

City	Grade This Week	No. of Serious Accidents This Week	No. of Serious Accidents Same Week in 1922
Meriden	87	3	7
Waterbury	78	11	14
Bridgeport	77	20	17
New Haven	71	25	25
Hartford	67	31	29
New Britain	63	17	6
New London	64	6	6

There was a large attendance at the Battery B dance held Friday evening at the state armory. Music was furnished by the Swanie's Serenaders of Worcester, Mass., who made their third appearance in this city at a Battery B dance.

BOY SCOUTS DO TURN FIGHTING FOREST FIRE

The Boy Scouts of Troop No. 20, Norwich Town, did their good turn Thursday in fighting a forest fire on the hills to the west of Otrobando avenue, and on land known as the Whalem Rogers form, Joe Hunter farm, Bozack and Landman farm, owned by the Norwich Savings Society. The work of the Scouts was done in connection with the Yantic fire department and the Scouts were on the job from about noon until nearly 6 o'clock.

The fire burned over probably an area of 150 to 200 acres of brush land and second growth timber land.

The Yantic fire department was called out at 4.30 a. m. and responded with the pumper. The fire was extinguished in an hour and a half, as was supposed, and the company returned to Yantic at 6 a. m. Fire again broke out about noon and Scouts Chapman and Hinrichs of Troop No. 20, and Scoutmaster Wyant were notified of the fire. The Scouts being in school were excused as well as the other school boys and over twenty-three responded to the call. Mr. Wyant then notified Fire Warden F. A. Benton and he hastened to the scene. Upon arrival at the fire the Yantic fire department and Boy Scouts with sacks, wet bagging and chemicals were keeping the fire in check. The Yantic fire department received a false alarm for a fire in Yantic about 4.30 and left the scene, the fire being fairly well under control. Fire Warden Benton and about a dozen scouts continued fighting the fire until nearly six o'clock, the fire then being extinguished with the exception of a few dead stumps still smoking in the burned area. Scout John Adams was left to patrol the section during the early part of the night. The Yantic fire department did excellent service and the Scouts of Troop No. 12 and Troop No. 20 can be commended for their hard and persistent work, and for remaining till the fire was extinguished.

Any person observing a fire in brush land or in the woods is requested to telephone Fire Warden 1107 immediately. If this is done a fire can be extinguished before it has spread over a large area as did Thursday's fire. A further caution is given that persons burning brush should obtain a permit for any fire up to June 1.

ARRIVES HERE TO WAGE WAR ON RATS AND MICE

H. T. Pitts a professional pest exterminator of Buffalo, N. Y., has arrived here Friday and secured the endorsement of the city health officer for his campaign against rats. The chamber of commerce has also given approval to his plan.

Mr. Pitts wants the residents whose premises are infested with rats or mice to let him know the premises to visit them how to get rid of the pests without fail. He is to be located at the health department office at the court house where he can be reached by those who want to see him.

He will furnish a poison known as barium carbonate which will kill rats without fail but that will not injure other domestic animals. It has neither color nor smell. It will kill the rats within seven to 24 hours and they will positively leave the premises before dying.

The United States department of agriculture tells us that there is a rat for every person in the country and that each rat eats every day food valued at half a cent. That means that it costs $1.82 a year to maintain each rat or a grand total cost to this country of $54,600,000. A common brown rat breeds from six to nine times a year with an average of seven young. A fine pair of rats will propagate by the end of three years a family of 350,000.

Not only does the rat destroy crops and property to the extent of $200,000,000 a year, the United States government says the pest also spreads more than 30 diseases dangerous to human life, bubonic plague being only one of these fatal to man. It is responsible for more than half the deaths among human beings in the wars of history. On many occasions the plague-stricken rat was all that could have come between victory and defeat. The property loss could more than pay all the country's taxes. Such destruction is equal to the total earnings of an army of 500,000 men.

Mr. Pitts has an idea that he can sell wholesale destruction and rake back into your coffers in hard cash at annual savings amounting to thousands of dollars, and, at the same time, increase the general state of health many per cent.

Students Vote on Daylight Saving.

Today afternoon, before dismissing, the students of the Norwich Commercial school, after a discussion on daylight saving, voted unanimously to come to school at 8 o'clock standard time instead of 9 during the summer months, the understanding being that school be dismissed one hour earlier on account of the early start. This plan met with the approval of the faculty and the management. The night school students will take a vote Monday evening on the matter, but Monday evening's classes will start at 7, standard time, as usual.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary Aummage Sale

A successful rummage sale, from which about $70 was realized was held Friday at the store of C. V. Pendleton on Broadway by the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. It was in charge of Mrs. C. D. Sevin, chairman; Mrs. J. B. Oat, Mrs. Edwin Hill and Mrs. John E. Hawkins.

POETRY

MY COLORFUL DREAMS.

I shall keep my dreams, my colorful dreams,
These jewels I'll hide in my soul,
No man shall invade to steal and parade
The dreams that are in my control.
Like opals they leap into radiant flame
When I bring them at night into view,
The fires they own are kindled and grown
In the love which I bear just for you.

Oh, those colorful dreams, those wonderful dreams,
They thrill me with passion sublime
You and I seem to fly to the peaks of the sky
And laugh at the limits of Time.
We are young, Love is young, we'll never grow old,
My dreams have assured me of this.
Let the World fret and fume, in my dreams there is room
For nothing but Love and its bliss.

Let me live in my dreams, my glorious dreams,
When I awake all of romance has flown
Old Time, with a leer in the face of each year,
Just laughs and mocks from his throne.
He is cruel, unkind, in my dreams he is still,
And you, my sweet loved one and I
Shall go hand in hand to Eternity's land
Where youth and where Love cannot die.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN TO CURB MAY DAY DEMONSTRATIONS

French Labor Leaders Fear That May Day Will Likely Prove Tame—Bavarian Government Has Forbidden Demonstrations in Munich—Police of Constantinople Have Discovered a Bolshevist May Day Plot—In England, Denmark and Sweden the Workers Are to Have Peaceful Processions.

Paris, April 29 (By the A. P.)—Against alleged reaction. Nevertheless, protest against Ruhr occupation and less no disorders are expected, as the Swedish working classes are well disciplined and inclined to be reasonable.

Former Premier Branting is now attending the league of nations council at Geneva. He will return to Stockholm, however, in time to march as the leader of the demonstration to be held here May 1st. During the demonstration all work will cease. The street cars will halt at noon, but will resume at 6 o'clock in the evening.

COPENHAGEN TO HAVE PEACEFUL PROCESSIONS

Copenhagen, April 29 (By the A. P.)—The employers are of the opinion that no May day disturbances in Denmark are likely to occur. They point out as an argument the recent decision of unskilled labor to remain members of the trades unions instead of joining the Communists. It is expected, however, that there will be the usual peaceful processions on May day throughout the streets of Copenhagen.

MAY DAY DEMONSTRATIONS PROHIBITED IN THE RUHR

Wetzlar, Rhenish Prussia, April 29 (By the A. P.)—It is stated in German quarters here that the occupational authorities have prohibited May day demonstrations in the region.

TO REDUCE PRODUCTION OF COKE IN THE RUHR

Berlin, April 29 (By the A. P.)—The Ruhr mine owners, in agreement with the workmen, have decided to close all coke ovens except those that produce coke to furnish gas to German cities. This will reduce the coke production to less than one-fifth of normal.

GIFT OF $1,075,000 TO THE AMERICAN LAW INSTITUTE

New York, April 29.—The American Law Institute, founded four years ago at Washington, under the leadership of Elihu Root, today announced the receipt of a $1,075,000 gift from the Carnegie corporation to be used in completing the foundation's work in framing the restatement of the law and in the publication of the results of the restatement.

Chief Justice Taft, of the United States supreme court, president of the board of trustees of the institute, announced that the rapid progress of the restatement of the law by the institute "is a most valuable aid to the courts in overcoming the embarrassment of a too rapid production of precedents and in bringing about a certainty in the law which is essential to the proper administration of justice and to the successful conduct of business."

A committee of the institute, which, after months of consideration, decided that an association be organized to undertake first of all a restatement of the law. A national committee of Washington lawyers has been formed to assist the institute in its work. Among the members of the committee are Chief Justice Taft, Secretary of State Hughes, Attorney General Daugherty, Senator Borah, Senator Pomerene, Senator Sutherland and Senator Underwood.

The American Law Institute is incorporated, with one hundred members including Mr. Root, George W. Wickersham, Benjamin N. Cardozo, George Wetwood Murray and William Draper Lewis and will function through a committee of 21. This committee also will be increased to 33 also representing every section of the nation.

ESTABLISHMENT OF FOUR NEW ORPHANAGES IN GREECE

Athens, April 29.—The Near East relief announces the establishment of four new orphanages in Greece. They are to be located at Corinth, Kavala, Saloniki and Verria. Each will house about 1,000 refugee orphans from Anatolia.

The sites have been selected primarily for facility in teaching the children farm work. But it is an interesting coincidence that each has been importantly associated with sacred history. Saint Paul lived at Corinth for a year, working as a tentmaker, and later he wrote there the epistle to the Corinthians. Kavala is the ancient Neapolis, where Saint Paul landed in response to the call, "Come over to Macedonia and help us. Verria is the ancient Berea, and Salonika was the recipient of the epistle to the Thessalonians.

BODY WASHED AWAY WHEN AUTO OVERTURNED

Washington, April 29.—Searchers last night had failed to recover the body of Vivian H. Tibbs, a chauffer, who was washed away when his automobile was overturned late last night in the rush of water which followed a sudden downpour of rain, amounting almost to a cloudburst. The body of a negro woman, swept from another automobile, was found today.

The storm caused considerable damage in low areas of Anacostia, and of the District of Columbia nearby.

Hills in the vicinity turned a volume of water into the lowlands that in some places ranged from six to ten feet in depth.

GERMANS TO DISCUSS THE REPARATIONS QUESTION

Berlin, April 29 (By the A. P.).—The proposed conference between the central government and the presidents and premiers of the German states to discuss the reparations question was postponed today until Tuesday, when the political party leaders also will be received.

The new German reparations offer will be presented simultaneously to the London, Paris, Rome, Brussels and Washington governments.

NO DEMONSTRATIONS TO BE ALLOWED IN MUNICH

Munich, April 29 (By the A. P.)—May day demonstrations of all kinds, including those of disorder, are forbidden in Munich by the Bavarian government, it was decided the leaders of unions and the radicals to hold no demonstrations in Munich on that day.

The Bavarian government announces that it has discovered there are plans afoot in various parts of the state to overthrow it, and is taking precautions to prevent [illegible] May 1.

The national socialists and other political [illegible] have said they intended [illegible] government to prohibit May day demonstrations. It is declared, however, that the radicals are determined to render all labor [illegible] on the morning of May 1, and that they have planned a mammoth parade in Munich, for which they already have armed themselves with "knock a dusters," blackjacks and pistols.

The hostility between the social democrats and Adolf Hitler's national socialists appears to have been intensified within the past few days.

LONDON WORKERS TO HAVE MAY DAY PARADES

London, April 29 (By the A. P.)—Although the labor situation in England still is troubled, especially in the various shipbuilding trades, and the railway men's grievances remain unsettled, there is nothing thus far to indicate the possibility of disturbances to public order on May Day, which, as usual, will be celebrated in London by processions of workers with bands and banners.

CONSTANTINOPLE POLICE DISCOVER BOLSHEVIST PLOT

Constantinople, April 29. (By the A. P.)—It is reported that the police have discovered a bolshevist plot for the organization of a May day demonstration. Leaflets have been seized which call on the proletariat to rise against the capitalist government.

Reports [illegible] that the bolshevik commercial delegation here is involved and that the police have made several arrests of Russians and Turks.

TO HOLD DEMONSTRATIONS IN CITIES IN SWEDEN

Stockholm, April 29. (By the A. P.)—May Day throughout Sweden will be celebrated as Labor day. The socialist party is arranging demonstrations for Stockholm, Gothenburg, Malmo and other cities.

The overthrow of the Branting cabinet on the question of the principle of [illegible] has given a basis for the [illegible] that the [illegible] of May 1 [illegible] and the workmen will refuse to join in demonstrations as a protest.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

International Chess Congress.

Carlsbad, April 29 (By the A. P.).—The third international chess congress, held under the auspices of the city of Carlsbad, began at the Hotel Imperial today.

Stinnes Purchases Newspaper

Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany, April 29.—Hugo Stinnes, the industrialist, has purchased the Frankfurter Nachrichten, organ of the Germanpeople's party. This makes the third newspaper Stinnes now owns in Germany.

To Bring Pressure Upon Danzig

Warsaw, Poland, April 29.—(By the A. P.)—The Polish government will institute an economic fight to bring financial pressure upon Danzig unless the free city fulfills the spirit and letter of the treaty and allows Poland all her rights under the treaty. This announcement was made by President Wojciechowski during his tour through Pommerce.

This (Monday) morning's session of police court will not be without its regular list of week end intoxicants. Edward Willis was arrested about 7.30 Saturday night by Officers Bombria and Leahy and his condition was such that a taxi had to be called to deliver him to the police station. Three men, Michael Grady, John Hearne and Michael Moqua, frequenters of the Corporation boarding house on West Main street, were placed under arrest about 12 o'clock Saturday night when they created a general disturbance in the vicinity of the house, which is in plain view of police headquarters. All will be charged with intoxication.

In view of the fact that for the current year the taxpayers have adopted a city budget of $156,655, and that the amount cannot be raised by the 8 1-2 mill tax on the city grand list of $15,500,000, officials point out that a 10 mill tax will be necessary to raise the necessary amount. The 8 1-2 mill tax has been in effect for the past three years.

With a move of that nature to be discussed, there is every evidence that the city meeting this (Monday) night will have a large attendance. The opponents of a 10 mill tax on city property will be those who showed opposition against the increase in the town taxes last fall from 12 to 13 mills and who state that another raise within a year will bring hardships.

Others, however, who believe that if the 10 mill tax meets defeat, the proposed improvements in the city, such as block paving on Main street and work in other departments, will be held upto show favoritism for the tax.

With the city tax increased to 10 mills, it means a big increase due to the fact that the revaluation of property was carried out in 1911-42, when the grand list was increased from $6,206,378 to $12,561,160 and a 5 mill tax was levied. In 1915 the tax rate was raised to 6 mills and to 6 1-2 mills in 1915. It was then raised to 7 1-2 mills for 1917 and 1918, and in 1919 it received another boost to 8 1-2 mills, remaining at that rate to the present time. In 11 years the grand list of the city has increased approximately $3,000,000.

Another request will be made of the voters to appropriate and authorize the common council to appropriate the sum of $2,938.42 for the harvesting and housing of this winter's ice crop, at the municipal ice plant in addition to the sum mentioned in the budget, $3,500. Much of the added amount was caused by the many storms of the past winter, when work on the ice ceased to allow time to remove the snow from the surface of the ice.

An appropriation of $1,000 for the welfare bureau will also be asked of the voters.

The final point of discussion will be daylight saving time in Willimantic. The voters will be asked to express their opinions on the matter and as there is much controversy on the question a heated debate is anticipated.

The newly organized Windham High School Dramatic club, the Comians, made its first appearance in public Friday evening in the high school auditorium when it presented Three Pills in a Bottle and "The Neighbors, two one act plays. The first was a fantasy and the latter a comedy and both were well interpreted.

The plays were under the direction of Miss Ethel M. Reeves, a member of the faculty, and she was assisted by Lawrence King of the commercial department. The cast of the Three Pills in a Bottle follows: Tony Sims, Kenneth Trip, '24; Widow Sims, Cora Chappel, '24; Gentleman, Kenneth Fryer, '23; Gentleman's Soul, George Healey, '24; Scissors Grinder, Hazeldean, '24; Scissors Grinder's Soul, Elmer Gauthier, '23; Woman, Ruth Burnham, '23; Woman's Soul, Lillian Ottenheimer, '24. The play was written by R. L. Field.

The Neighbors was written by Zona Gale and the cast follows: Grandma, Helen Moffit, '24; Mrs. Able, Elizabeth Prescott, '24; Ezra Williams, Kenneth Fryer, '23; Peter, Mildred Johnson, '24; Mrs. Carolyn Cummings, '24; Miss Means, Doris Easterbrooks, '24; Miss Trot, Doris Murphy, '23; Miss Ellsworth, Madelyn Wheeler, '24.

Miss Maynard Dawson was business manager and she and Marian Taft were in charge of the properties, with Richard Shea assistant manager.

Sunday morning at 2 o'clock the trains on the New Haven system began operations on a new schedule and every train is advanced one hour from the past schedule, making exception for the State of Maine express, for which the leaving time from the local station is but slightly changed. The eastbound express leaves at 11.25 p. m. instead of 11.58 p. m., and the westbound express at 3.44 a. m. instead of 3.31 a. m.

The Central Vermont railway is operating two trains in each direction as in the past, with the following changes: Leave Willimantic at 6 a. m. instead of 7 a. m., 2.20 p. m. instead of 1.50 p. m.; southbound, leave 8.50 a. m. instead of 9.25 a. m., 5.45 p. m. instead of 6.27 p. m.

The funeral of Fardina Phaneuf was held at the home of Mrs. Leon Deiude at 11 Adelbert street at 2.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and was followed by services in St. Mary's church at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. J. Papillon, the pastor. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery and Rev. Father Papillon conducted a committal service at the grave. The bearers were H. Dion, Honore Lemaire, Camille Desrosier, Peter Berard, S. E. Cardinal and Rabuafi Bergeron.

George Louis DeMarchi, the 1 year and 7 months old son of John and Elizabeth Larkin DeMarchi, died Friday night at St. Joseph's hospital after a few days' illness. He is survived by his parents, two brothers, John and Francis DeMarchi, and one sister, Irene, all of South Windham.

Funeral services for Mildred Rood were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Horace Rood in Windham Center. Rev. F. C. Williams of Norwich officiated and burial took place in Windham Center cemetery. There was a large display of floral pieces from friends and sympathizers. Arrangements were in charge of the J. C. Lincoln company.

The last services for Mary E. Lincoln were held at the J. C. Lincoln company mortuary chapel, No. 62 Church street, and were conducted by Rev. Harry S. McCready of the First Congregational church. The bearers were William and Freeman Lincoln, Alec Allen and Fred Dureby. Burial followed in North Windham cemetery.

At the Saturday morning session of police court, with Deputy Judge Curtis Dean on the bench, John Foley, a transient cotton weaver, who gave his home as Attawaugan, was charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, but was without funds. A vagrancy charge was entered against John Gannon of Albany, N. Y., and he pleaded guilty, saying he had not worked in five months. A 30 day jail sentence was imposed and both men were taken to Brooklyn jail.

Things were very quiet Saturday afternoon for Clerk of the Court Edgar M. Warner and his stenographer, Miss Marjorie Bradford, of Putnam, on their visit to the town building to meet applicants for first and second naturalization papers. One solitary applicant appeared and qualified for his first papers.

Samuel E. Johnson, Willimantic's widely known minstrel man, arrived here from Philadelphia, Pa., to enjoy a few days with his friends and relatives in this city. He is connected with the vaudeville sketch The Boys of Long Ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert T. Trowbridge of Chaplin were recent visitors in town.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. N. McKinley of Ash street are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. David Carlson of Philadelphia, Pa.

The family of Attorney Frank H. Foss moved to South Windham Saturday, to occupy the house owned by Mrs. William C. Fitch of New York.

The family of Henry Nye of South Coventry enoyed at dinner Saturday potatoes which had been planted last spring and were harvested Friday of last week. Mr. Nye discovered the potatoes while digging in his garden Friday and they were in fine condition, having been saved from frostbites by a heavy bed of frozen earth and snow during the winter. About half a peck was found. Selectman John H. Reynolds of Ripley Hill, South Coventry, also reports the finding of a peck of Green Mountain potatoes planted last spring and overlooked at harvesting time last year.

The first in a series of practice drills for the fire department will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and not on Monday evening as previously stated. Drills of the same nature were held last summer and were not without good results. They are in charge of Chief James J. Tighe and Assistant Chief Henry J. Kelley.

Mrs. T. C. Chandler of Chestnut street had as a week end guest her daughter, Miss Jennie Chandler, of Dobbs Ferry.

Miss Alice Yeomans entertained over the week end the Misses Margaret Persons, Helen Stiles, Avis Thompson and Doris Willard at a house party at her home in Andover.

Mrs. William C. Fitch and daughter Florence, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Stiles of South Windham, returned to New York by automobile Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brick have returned from Florida and will occupy their new home on Lewiston avenue.

Miss Belle Chamberlain, a teacher in Hebron, spent the week end with Miss Elizabeth C. Peterson at The Ridges.

Judge George E. Hinman of Summit street spent the week end with Judge Marcus H. Holcomb at his summer home in Winchester.

The Misses Mary and Lucy Riordan, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Riordan, spent the week end with their grandmother, Mrs. M. Riordan, in Norwich.

Mrs. J. F. Wright of Pleasant street is spending several days with her daughter, Mrs. W. M. Trumbull, of Hartford.

John Lutton is recovering from an operation at St. Joseph's hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Case of Windham street recently entertained Huber Morrison of Gardner, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harper of Park Central hotel spent Sunday visiting friends in Holyoke, Mass.

Bernard Latham of Yonkers, Mass., is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Latham, of Pearl street.

Mrs. John Buckingham of Tacoma, Wash., is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. James Purdie of Walnut street.

Six local boys will be brought before the police court this (Monday) morning on the charge of gambling. The young men were caught rolling the "bones" about 3.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the corner of Mansfield avenue and Main street. Officer Frank McLean discovered the youths at their Sunday afternoon sport and placed them under arrest.

COLCHESTER MEN FINED FOR WATERING MILK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Colchester, April 29.—The cases of the state vs Max Ludmar, John M. Peters, Solomon Sugarman and Jacob Lenetsky were tried before Justice F. E. Baker in Grange hall, Friday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock. The cases were for watered milk. A plea of guilty was entered by the defendants and they were fined ten dollars and costs of $15.65 each, which they paid. W. J. Warner and R. A. Haynes of the state milk and food commission were present.

At 3.30 o'clock p. m. the case of the state vs Mike Bedman for burning brush, etc., on his farm about two and one-half miles northwest of the village without a permit was tried before Justice Baker. A plea of guilty was entered by the defendant and he was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $11.95. Edward J. Haines, state fire patrolman, was the complainant.

Wallingford—The local industrial plants and schools have adopted the daylight saving time. The schedules at the local post office will be arranged to conform to the train service, which will be advanced an hour.

RELIEVES BACKACHE

"Have had Kidney trouble and backache for many years and I tried several doctors but got only temporary relief. A friend advised me to try Foley Kidney Pills, and before I had two boxes I was entirely well," writes A. C. Perkins, Sumner Shade, Ky. Kidney and bladder trouble requires prompt treatment. Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief. Refuse substitutes. Insist upon Foley's. Lee & Osgood Co.

TWO MURDER CASES TO BE TRIED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 29.—State's Attorney Hull has summoned in for the term of the criminal superior court which opens in this city Tuesday a grand jury which will have two cases to consider, or at least will hear the evidence that is to be presented in a couple of complaints alleging murder. The one that attracts the most attention is what has come to be known as "the baby case" and originated in New London when some months ago Grace McSheffrey, a young girl who had a sailor lover, strolled in to New London and got into trouble. She was living in rooms at the Fournier house on Bank street and there finally gave birth to a child which she disposed of by leaving it at a dump on Colt and Blinman streets one night a few hours after the child was born. She had as a consort a sailor named John Guinan and he is accused with her as having knowledge before the fact of the murder of the child.

The woman, it is undergood, absolves Guinan of being the father of the child, and accuses some sailor who is now unknown or at least cannot be located. But Guinan was with the girl when she gave birth to the child or at least he was her roommate just before the birth. He alleges that the girl became ill and that he went after a doctor and that while he was away from her the birth occurred. He declares, and the girl is understood to corroborate him in the statement, that she herself and alone left the child on the dump where the body was found the next day.

The police hunted several days before they were able to trace the parentage of the child, but suspicion pointed to her so strongly that she was arrested. It then became known that Guinan had been her constant companion when he was not on duty at the base or on board one of the submarines that operate from the base, and he, too, was sought and found. He was absent on a boat from the submarine base, but only at Newport, and there he was ordered to be detained and was later brought to the base and taken into custody.

Miss McSheffrey admitted that she was the mother of the child. She was arraigned with Guinan in the police court and with him was held for trial. He obtained a bond, as he was not directly accused of the murder, but the girl has since been in the county jail. Guinan was defended in the police court by Samuel Randall, a Philadelphia lawyer, and it is believed that he will be here when the case goes to trial, probably the week beginning the 8th of May.

The other case that will go to the grand jury is that of the murder of a lumberjack at a Salem farm. John C. W. Wilbur is accused of having killed Frank Early, tramp who wandered to the Wilbur farm and later became involved in a quarrel that led to the slaughter of Early. The latter had been about the Wilbur farm some time before the murder took place, if it was a murder.

The petit jury will not be called in during the coming week probably, for there will be no trial during that time, the days of the week being necessary for the consideration of the evidence that will be presented in the two alleged murder cases. State's Attorney Hull realizes that there will be some 24 men summoned as a petit jury and he does not purpose to have them summoned until there is likelihood of a case being ready for them to consider. The jurors receive $4 a day while they are in court and that means considerable money for the 24 men for the week. This will be saved to the state if they are not called until the court can make use of them.

Two cases that will be tried and which will be followed closely by readers of the papers are those of Edward Young, an alleged Providence dope peddler, and of Dr. John N. Dimon of New London. The latter is charged with manslaughter in that he was the cause of an accident by which one Eugene Partlow of Groton was killed. Partlow was walking along Bank street when Dr. Dimon, using an auto which he had owned but a short time, drove out of Golden street and upon the sidewalk at the foot of the street, where Partlow was walking. The auto in some way, it is supposed by Dr. Dimon putting his foot upon the accelerator instead of on the brake, got beyond control and crashed through a show window of the Abraham Levinson electric store, pinning Partlow against the building. Partlow sustained a fractured skull which resulted in his death at Lawrence hospital about a week after the accident. Dr. Dimon has been at liberty on a bond of $2,500. Dr. Dimon is a divorced man, though he has since married again, and he has been in trouble before for alleged irregularity in his practice.

Young is said to be connected with a gang that operated from Providence and which distributed heroin and other habit-forming drugs wherever they could get the price for them. He came to New London and to a house on Hill street, where his accuser, a woman, says he solicited her aid in the sale of the drugs. She accuses him pointblank and has given the names of other persons to whom Young, she says, sold his drugs. The woman claims that she refused to do the bidding of Young and that he threatened her. She admits that she has been an addict to the drug, but that she underwent treatment and that she was cured of the habit. The witnesses in the case were very voluble at the time of the arrest of Young and it is supposed that they will be just as ready to tell of the case when it comes to trial as they were to lay bare all the facts they alleged at the time of the capture of Young. If what they say can be proven, there are others than Young who may be disclosed as dope hawkers.

Young is no novice, for he is regarded as being shrewd. He is a man well along in years and his accusers say he has long been in the business he is charged with. Names and addresses of Providence parties are in the possession of the authorities, so that a strong case is anticipated to be worked up.

The funeral of Robert E., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Searles of Willetts avenue, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking parlors. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Evelyn L. Kimball has sold a house and lot on the former United States Housing Corporation plat, off Jefferson avenue, to John Mondelci.

Mary A. Nearl has sold a house and lot on West Colt street to Vincenza Strezzere.

Mrs. Louise Masonheimer of Mystic, died at the Home Memorial hospital Saturday, in which institution she had been under treatment but a short time for heart trouble. Mrs. Masonheimer was 70 years of age.

Edgar Cook, a well known resident of Niantic, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital Saturday, where he had been a patient for two days. Mr. Cook was of advanced years and had not enjoyed sound health in many weeks.

Measles continue to prevail in New London as a result many children fall victims to the malady each week. Up to noon Saturday, 17 cases of the disease were reported to the health department for the week. Other contagious maladies reported were one each of diphtheria, whooping cough, tuberculosis, chickenpox and pneumonia.

Miss Margaret Scarano of Groton, Miss Marjorie Gates of Gales Ferry, Mrs. Harold Geer of Barrows street, Cadet John Kohler of the United States Coast Guard academy, Frank Peabody of Waterford and George Smith of Broad street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Saturday night the fire alarm system went on a rampage, but because of the irregularity of the alarm, none of the fire companies left their houses. The alarm started off with a call for Box 511, which is located on Montauk avenue, near the Harbor school at 11 o'clock and then another alarm was started and ended as quickly as it had commenced. Chief Stanners and assistants have been engaged throughout today perfecting repairs.

An automobile owned and driven by Henry Wade of No. 92 Willetts avenue and a machine, owned and operated by Charles R. Bump of No. 654 Bank street, were in collision Saturday night on Bank street. Neither auto was seriously damaged.

Monday will be the final day for the licensing of dogs and if all owners of canines are to take out 1923 licenses there should be a rush tomorrow at the office of the city clerk. To date less than half of the dogs owned in New London have been licensed, although the owners have had ample notice to do so.

The banquet of the players of the Knights of Columbus, who recently concluded their pitch tournament will be held in the rooms of the organization on the evening of May 7. A committee has been appointed to perfect arrangements for the event.

John Ramistella, of No. 197 Bank street, driver of a public service automobile, will be arraigned in the Groton town court tomorrow morning, charged with reckless driving. Ramistella is at liberty, having furnished a surety on his bond of $100 following his arrest three weeks ago.

Ramistella, who is a former deputy fish and game warden, reported to the New London police nearly a month ago, that while operating his machine between Groton and the submarine base, he found a man lying beside the road north of the Groton station badly injured. While Ramistella went to a telephone to summon medical assistance, the victim disappeared. It later developed that another public service operator, Tony DiLaura, happened along and DiLaura observing the injured in the road, investigated and ascertained that he was a sailor from the base. Di Laura placed the victim in his machine and conveyed the victim, who turned out to be C. G. Boyer, a cook, to the base hospital, where Doyer has been under treatment since. The Groton authorities investigated the accident and from the facts that were obtained they believe that it was Ramistella's car that struck Boyer.

Two members of The Merry Widow company, which appeared at the Lyceum theatre Saturday night, escaped prosecution in Middletown because of their evading the payment of their bill at the Hotel Chaffee. But for the willingness of the Middletown authorities to allow the two thespians to pay their bill to the New London police the couple would have been compelled to return to Middletown and face a police court trial. The members of the troupe were J. Beecher and Marion Martin and they each departed for New London owing the Middletown hotel management $1.75. When the New London police were notified of the couple being wanted, Beecher was found at the Crocker House and Miss Martin at the Hotel Mohican. Both readily paid Patrolman David Nagle the amount of their bills, stating that they had no intention of evading payment.

An automobile, owned and operated by Dr. Ross Black of Montauk avenue and a car, owned and driven by Cornelius Walker of No. 14 Blydenburg avenue, were in collision early this morning on Ocean avenue, at the corner of Squire street.

Both cars were headed southward and with the physician's car in the lead. When Dr. Black's car reached Squire street, he attempted to enter that street and is alleged to have given a signal that he was going to make the turn with the result that Walker's car, following closely, collided with it. The damage was of little consequence other than a disfiguration of both cars.

It is probable that fireworks will be started at the weekly meeting of the city council Monday night because of the failure of City Manager James E. Barlow to cause three supernumerary patrolmen to be assigned to duty May 1st. Councilor Thomas Gragan is authority for the statement that he will seek information from the city manager as to his reason for failing to comply with a recent vote of the body that the three supernumerary officers be assigned to patrol duty.

Saturday City Manager Barlow informed Supernumaries Jeremiah Murphy and Thomas Lyden to report to Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney Monday night, but the other supernumary, John Sheridan, was informed that when his services were needed he would be notified. Sheridan is the senior member of the supernumary force and naturally feels that he is entitled to first employment and he has already taken the matter up with members of the council, so that when Councilor Gragan brings the matter to the attention of the council there are likely to be pointed questions hurled at the city manager.

During the heavy northeast gale late last night, which was accompanied by rain, two barges at anchor in the upper harbor, dragged their anchors and were in danger of collision with other craft. The barges finally drifted close to the New London line wharf where they were boarded by stevedores and made fast to the Fishers Island Navigation company's wharf, later being towed to another point of anchorage by a tug boat.

Charles H. Noyes, of Old Lyme, and connected highly in that town, will be arraigned in the police court Monday charged with having obtained habit forming narcotics on prescriptions that were forged. His case has been dragging along in the court the past month and he has been before United States Commissioner Matthewson. Now he is held on a mittimus in the county jail there and is to go before Judge Prince.

The introduction of daylight saving time Sunday was the cause of considerable confusion, as many of the clocks in the homes in the city were not changed, nor were the public clocks on the streets of the city. Most of the churches held services on the new time but others were on standard time.

Jeremiah Twomey of Garfield avenue, is still a patient in Backus hospital, Norwich, where he will remain a day or two longer receiving treatment for the lacerations he sustained Friday by being thrown through the windshield of an automobile, owned by the New London Glass company, Benjamin Brody, driver of the automobile, also of New London, will be in the hospital indefinitely because of a fractured leg.

H. H. Bennett of the crew of the U. S. Pequot, reported to the police late this afternoon that he had been robbed aboard ship, a Hamilton watch having been stolen from him on the 18th inst. Mr. Bennett delayed making the report of the theft the thief undoubtedly has disposed of the watch and will escape detection.

Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy is confined to his home on Ledyard street, having contracted an attack of the grippe Saturday night.

Fifteen or more cases will be presented before the police court when that tribunal sits tomorrow forenoon and in most of the cases "King Alcohol" which flowed freely throughout the city, is responsible for the arraignment of the unfortunates. At midnight all but three of the thirteen cells were occupied.

STATE PIER LABORERS GO OUT ON STRIKE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 29. — Because Waldo E. Clarke, superintendent at the state pier, refused to grant a demand for an increase of wages of 40 cents an hour, about fifty laborers went on a strike Saturday. The strikers had been receiving a wage of 51 cents an hour, although in some instances a few were being paid 61 cents an hour. The strikers declared that in other places the laborers are paid anywhere from 61 to 71 cents an hour for the same kind of work.

When the laborers, who were engaged in loading the steamer Chatham Miller with lumber for New Zealand, made their demand, it was promptly refused them, whereupon the men and youths, who comprised the workers, assembled at the office of Clarke and demanded their money. The police were summoned as trouble was feared and Sergeant Nelson Smith and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock were sent to the dock.

With the arrival of the officers the strikers were driven from the pier and finally dispersed when a conference between representatives of the strikers and Superintendent Clarke resulted in an arrangement being made for the paying of the wages of the men at 5 o'clock. When that hour arrived all of the strikers were paid in full and as the boat had been fully loaded by its crew there was no delay in the steamer being made ready for leaving port.

NEW LONDON POLICE GET SIX IN RAID

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 29.—The police raided a house in the rear of John street early this evening and when they dragged in their net, six victims came with it and all were negroes except one, the white being George McBride, stranger in New London, but who claims to be an employe of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

McBride appeared before Patrolman Walter Rehn, who was on patrol of the former Tenderloin beat and declared that he had been robbed of $100 while participating in a drinking party at the home of George Bates. Patrolman Rehn informed Sergeant Samuel Hick and with Patrolman Clyde Murphy, William Corcoran and James McKenna the police swooped down on the place, arresting all the occupants of the place, together with McBride and seizing a couple of half-pint bottles of home-made gin as evidence.

At the police station McBride identified Mandy McGee as the woman who relieved him of his $100. The money, however, was not found on the McGee woman. The McGee woman was charged with theft and McBride was held as a witness. George Bates was charged with conducting a disorderly house and his wife Effie and Kate Harris and William Wilkinson, the latter more familiarly known as "Shorty" were charged with being frequenters.

Three others who will face trial before Judge Prince are sailors stationed at the Submarine Base, one being taken from the Salvation Army lodging house, corner of State and Atlantic streets, charged with breach of the peace.

JACKSON—WHITON NUPTIALS AT NEW LONDON SATURDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 29.—Miss Dorothy Quincy Whiton, second daughter of Lucius Erskin Whiton of 71 Williams street, this city, became the bride of Allen Winchester Jackson of Cambridge, Mass., at the Second Congregational church in this city Saturday afternoon in the presence of 200 or more guests. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Beveridge Lee, the pastor of the church. The auditorium of the church was beautifully decorated in green and white for the ceremony. Roger Daboll, the organist of the church, rendered Mendelssohn's march as the bridal party approached the altar. Miss Whiton was a charming bride gowned in brocaded white satin with court train. She wore a tulle veil and carried a massive bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Winifred G. Whiton, in mauve tinceee. Her bonquet was of pink and lavendar sweet peas. The best man was Robert F. Jackson of Brookline.

The ushers were close friends of the groom and were Charles F. Whiting, George F. Pierce and Ralph Perry of Cambridge, and Richard Earle of Providence. The chimes in the belfry of the church which were the gift of the bride's father some years ago sounded in joyous greeting of the happy couple as they departed from the edifice, and proceeded to the home of the bride where a reception was held.

Mrs. Jackson is a graduate of Williams Memorial Institute in this city and of Dana Hall at Wellesley. Mr. Jackson is an architect of repute in Boston, and is a graduate of the Massachusette Institute of Tecnology.

The out of town guests were Mrs. Richard Earle of Providence, Miss Louise Jackson of Cambridge, sister of the groom, the Misses Harriet and Nancy Jackson and Richard Jackson, children of the groom; Mrs. George Pierce and Mrs. Giles Taintor of Cambridge; Judge and Mrs. William B. Boardman of Bridgeport; Miss Anna Jackson, sister of the groom, of Brookline, Miss Charlotte Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rollman, Mrs. John Waller of New York and Stephen M. Lee of Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will be at home on and after the first of June at 202 Brattle street, in Cambridge.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Jack Rabbit's Escape.

Don't stop to ask the reason why,
Nor say "Just in a minute!"
But do the thing you're told to do
For all that there is in it!

Well, you remember what little Bobbie Redvest told the little rabbit to do in the last story: to jump backward three feet and hide under the trap door beneath the bush.

Well, sir, in less time than I can take to tell it, he was under the bush

"I'll dig a hole all around it," said Danny Fox.

and then he lifted up the door and hopped down a little stairway. But he didn't forget to lock the door and it's a mighty lucky thing he didn't for Old Man Weasel, Mr. Wicked Wolf and Danny Fox tried to lift it up.

"I'll dig a hole all around it," said Danny Fox when they found they couldn't get in. So he set to work and so did Old Man Weasel while Mr. Wicked Wolf sat down and took out his pipe and smoked and whenever Danny Fox stopped to wipe the perspiration from his face, Mr. Wicked Wolf would say: "Hurry up or the little rabbit will be in China before you get started!"

And whenever Old Man Weasel stopped to wipe a little piece of dirt out of his eye, Mr. Wicked Wolf would say, "Hurry up or Danny Fox will get in first!"

Well, by and by, after a while, Danny Fox came to the flight of stairs and maybe a minute or two later, Old Man Weasel got his head inside the hallway but there wasn't room for both of them at the same time.

"Get out of here!" said Danny Fox, "I saw the little rabbit first!"

"I won't!" said Old Man Weasel, "I saw him before you did!"

And then they started to talk and talk until at last Mr. Wicked Wolf put his pipe back in his pocket and said:

"You are both wrong. I saw him first!" and he took hold of their tails and dragged them back.

"You two talkers stay here while I go after the little rabbit!" said Mr. Wolf and he ran down the stairs as fast as he could, but goodness me! It was dark and every once in a while he'd knock his head against something; but he kept on just the same and pretty soon he saw a little light ahead. Then, all of a sudden a voice said:

"What are you doing down here under ground.
You wicked old wolf from the hill?
You haven't got brains to go in when it rains
If you wake up a man when he's ill."

"I don't know who you are and I didn't know you were ill," answered Mr. Wicked Wolf, looking all around to see who was talking. "Who are you, anyhow?"

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

SECOND WEEK IN MAJORS BEGINS TO SHOW RELATIVE STRENGTH OF TEAMS

New York, April 29. (By the A. P.) —Inability of the St. Louis Browns to strike a winning stride has been one of the outstanding features of the first two weeks of major league baseball play.

Although the Browns hit well they lacked the punch when punch was needed. Their pitching was ragged and the absence of Sisler from the game had its effect.

The St. Louis Nationals came out of their early slump during the week. At the expense of Pittsburgh the Cardinals won their third straight game today.

The Giants held to the lead in the National. The Braves, however, developed a punch and made trouble for the champions in the opening Polo Grounds series. Fletcher's Philadelphia team, with an excellent offensive, defeated the Giants in the first of their series today. The Giants have outhit all other teams in tha league.

The Cubs continued to show good form, but met better pitching in their latest games. The Pirates shook off the losing habit they fell into at the start and began hitting in a terrific clip. The Reds improved as well as the Braves, while the Brooklyn club slumped deeper.

Speaker's Indians held their lead in the American. Their toughest opposition has been Detroit. Ty's men are the most consistent hitters in the league so far. The Athletics proved [illegible] good club; Mack's nature show [illegible] improvement over [illegible] boys the White Sox showed [illegible] were always. The Yankees [illegible] round the Red Sox so easy [illegible] the middle [illegible] of the season] met a greatly improved team when [illegible] Boston.

ANOTHER TEAM WANTS TO ENTER LEAGUE

The U. S. Finishing Co. wishes to enter a team in the Twilight league and another team by the name of the East Ends also wishes to play in this league during the summer. Already there is one team entered in the league under the name of the East Ends.

With the addition of these two teams the total number seeking admission to the league is ten. There are also several other teams that have been considering entering the league and it is expected that when the meeting is called this week there will be at least twelve teams ready to start a schedule during the coming month.

It will be up to the meeting to decide whether the league shall consist of only eight teams or whether ten or twelve teams shall constitute the league. There are several other matters that will have to be decided at the meeting before a successful league can be conducted.

WESTERN ATHLETES MAKE BETTER SHOWING THAN THOSE IN THE EAST

New York, April 29.—(By the A. P.) —The speed and brawn of the west proved superior to the east in the first major outdoor track and field tests of the season, it was revealed today by a comparison of the performances in the Drake relays, of Des Moines, Iowa, and the historic Penn relay carnival, at Philadelphia yesterday.

While the fact that more favorable track conditions prevailed at the western meet than at Franklin field probably influenced the calibre of rival performances, this advantage could not discount the decisive superiority of the west, which hung up better marks in ten of the thirteen major events on which a comparison of the meets is based.

Runners at the Drake meet were clocked in faster time than easterners in four out of five university relay championships, while in special track and field events, marks recorded at Des Moines were better in six out of eight instances than those made in Philadelphia. In addition, the broad jump performances at Franklin field which was better than that made at Des Moines, was achieved by a western, Dehart Hubbard, brilliant negro athlete of the University of Michigan.

Each meet witnessed the shatter of a world track record, Penn State's spectacular quarter of half miles [illegible] more than spot of the Quaker [illegible] when they raced the two-mile distance in 7 minutes, 48 4-5 seconds to defeat the famous Oxford [illegible] while the University of Illinois Saturday furnished the [illegible] of the Drake meet by setting a new mark of 42 3-10 seconds for the 880-yard relay. BRITISH GOLF CRITICS FAVOR AMERICANS

London, April 29.—The Times' golfing expert, commenting on Saturday's play at Rye, in which the American amateurs participated, admits there is much hard work ahead for British golfers if they desire to keep the championship cup at home or to win back the Walker cup from the present holders.

Sweetser, Ouimet and Gardner, in the opinion of the experts, are outstanding good. Sweetser is the greatest artist of the three and of most deadly efficiency, while Gardner, "if he lacks some of the polish of the one and the relentless accuracy of the other, is the most likely of all three to put in a mortal thrust at a desperate moment."

CARPENTIER TRAINING HARD FOR HIS COMING BOUT

Paris, April 29 (By the A. P.)—Georges Carpentier is training hard for his fight next Sunday in the Buffalo Velodrome here against Marcel Nilles. In fact, it is said, "Georgeous Georges" never before has trained harder for any contest than for the 20-round battle in which he hopes to regain his prestige lost in the velodrome ring to the big black Senegalese fighter, "Battling" Siki.

Carpentier has been away from Paris since the articles for next Sunday's fight were signed a month ago, and it is reported from his training quarters at La Guerthe that he is in the best of condition physically and paying especial attention to his hands, which he admits still are brittle and may be the cause of the tide of battle turning against him should the fight with Nilles go more than a few rounds.

The velodrome program contains, in addition to the Carpentier-Nilles fight, battles for two European championships. Piet Hobin, of Belgium, will fight Porcher of France for the welterweight crown, and Charlie Ledoux will do battle with another Frenchman named Routes for the bantamweight title.

TILDEN PLAYS SENSATIONAL TENNIS AT HARTFORD

Hartford, Conn., April 29.—Champion William T. Tilden, 2nd, defeated Manuel Alonzo, noted Spanish player, here today in a sensational exhibition match at the Hartford Golf Club.

Alonzo took the first set 6-2; Tilden the second 6-2, also the third by the same score. Alonzo showed marvelous form in the fourth set, winning a 6-4 victory.

In the deciding set the champion unveiled an unbeatable brand of tennis, winning 6-3. In an exhibition doubles match Tilden and Alonzo were opposed by H. Holbrook Hyde and Leland H. Wiley, prominent Hartford players. The champion and Alonzo won the first set, 6-3, losing the second 8-10.

The match was called as Tilden and Alonzo were obliged to catch a [illegible] was announced tonight that Tilden and Alonzo would compete in the New England tennis championships to be held here in June. Both will be entered in the singles and will be partners in the doubles.

SELLING OUR SHIPS.

Another month and it will be known in what light the offer of the shipping board to sell 375 of its ships is held by those who need ships or those who are anxious to get into the business of running them. The board has been told by the ship owners and operators what they think of the situation. They failed to give much encouragement to the board's policy, although they would like to see the government get out of the business of operating ships.

There are those who would like some of the ships if they could be obtained for a song. Some such offers have previously been made, but the market value of ships must govern when the government owned vessels are on the market quite the same as when other are.

One restriction to the bidders may come from the insistence of the board that the vessels must be operated upon certain trade routes. The board has been consolidating these routes until there are 18 and one of the requirements of the sale is that the ships must be operated on some one of them for a period of years. These trade routes are important for American commerce. They have been established for the furtherance of the American merchant marine and that idea is not to be abandoned.

If there are not enough bidders, or the bids are not what can be accepted by the board the alternative is that the board will continue to operate them. It insists upon the routes being covered by American ships and if private operators will not undertake it against foreign competition the board will continue to do as it has been doing and make the expenditure for that purpose no greater than is necessary. In the past offering to sell the ships and actually doing so have been far apart. It remains to be seen whether time and conditions have brought the board any nearer to the selling

RECOGNITION IN BALANCE.

It might be possible for this government to appoint at any time a commission to deal with Mexico with the object of reaching a better understanding. That doesn't, however, mean that such action would amount to anything for the naming and sending of a commission to Mexico must be based upon a reasonable belief that Mexico was in a mood to and only cordially receive it but to [illegible] in cooperation with it to a common end.

This the fact that Secretary Hughes has announced that Charles B. Warren, former ambassador to Japan, and John Barton Payne, former secretary of the interior, have been named as commissioners for such a purpose, strengthens the conviction that this government not only has confidence in their ability but that it is firm in the belief that the situation has reached the point where the desired object can be accomplished.

This country asks nothing of Mexico that it cannot give. It may claim that we have not sought such guarantees before but it knows with what little respect the promises have been kept in the past and it must recognize the fact that right down at the bottom of it all this country is simply seeking assurance that the rights of foreigners living in that country be given protection. It may involve little more than what has been the record during the Obregon regime, but it wants that to become an established fact and not a temporary situation which can be changed over night.

Recognition of the Mexican government is what hangs in the balance. If the commission can reach such an understanding with the Mexican government as will satisfy it and this government there are reasons to believe that it will mean a speedy establishment of improved relations. When we are asking no more than Mexico should be willing to grant it ought not to require much time to come to a proper understandings.

DEALING WITH IMMIGRATION.

All indications point to the fact that there will be plenty of discussion concerning the question of immigration at the next session of congress. There has been much talk about not undertaking to pass permanent legislation and it is quite evident that it will be a long time before there will be an immigration law that effectually meets all kinds and satisfy everyone.

Whether the bill that is being drafted by Senator Sterling of South Dakota will make it possible, if adopted, to let the question rest for a while is uncertain, but apparently with that hope he proposed to introduce a bill that will create a board of immigration to which there will be left the job of determining what the conditions in the country are relative to immigration and let it say each year what the quotas are to be for the next twelve months.

At the present time the quota admitted are figured on the number of nationals in the country in 1910. He would reduce the percentage admitted to three-quarters of one per cent but would base it upon the 1920 figures.

It would be the duty of the immigration commission not only to say how many could come in but to carefully study the situation throughout the country as to the way in which Americ[illegible] standards are being maintained, the assimilability of those from the different countries, the labor situation here, the economic conditions of industries and sections of the country and whether those from one country would meet the requirements better than those from another. Broad powers would be given the board. The fact that it is planned to give it so much power may create unexpected opposition, but it is evidently aimed at providing that elasicity in connection with immigration that would make it possible to serve the economic conditions without waiting for many months for special legislation to be enacted to cover the situation.

It will be one of the many bills that will be offered to change the present immigration law but it is not probable that any new bill without modification or change will be applied.

OUTHS HELD FOR BREAKS AT BEACH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 29.—As was suspected the thieves who broke into the cottage of Mrs. Effie Putnam Tobin at River Bend place, Ocean Beach, and among other things stole a talking machine, large number of records, watch, revolver and some money, were taken into custody this morning by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolmen John Sullivan and Joe Hogan. The thieves, seven in all, all minors, have confessed their guilt and are being held in bonds of $250 for a hearing in the city court.

The investigation has developed, it is learned, that some of the youths was implicated many weeks ago, but was not discovered until Mrs. Tobin went to the cottage Friday. The watch, it has been learned was disposed of by being sold at a pawnshop and the talking machine and records was disposed of for sale to a New London man.

It is believed that the youths are responsible for some thing that has committed many breaks of unoccupied cottages at the beach since the close of the season.

RAISE $6,000 ON FIRST DAY IN SACRED HEART'S $40,000 CAMPAIGN

Canvassing of the Norwich Town district was taken up vigorously Sunday afternoon in the first day of the campaign of Sacred Heart church for its $40,000 rebuilding fund, and when the reports were made Sunday night to General Chairman P. T. Connell at the campaign headquarters at the K. of C. home on Broadway the total of $6,000 was shown. It was received with cheers and gave the workers heart to work on with vigor in the drive.

Chairman Connell announced that workers who have not received their cards are to notify their team captains or let him know.

One of the pleasing expressions of interest in the campaign was received in the following letter to the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan:

Norwich, Conn., April 27, 1923.

Dear Father Brennan:

Mrs. Burns and I are glad to send to you the enclosed check as a contribution to the rebuilding fund of your parish.

It is easy for me to do this, as I have lived so many years uptown and count as more than good friends not only you but very many among your parishioners.

With deep sympathy for you all in your great loss, and confident that eventually you will find yourselves in even better condition than before the fire, believe me

Very sincerely yours,
CHARLES R. BURNS.

Nearly all directors were present at the dinner during which President James [illegible] Mr. Clark [illegible] beautiful [illegible] Mr. Clark responded [illegible] Mr. Clark [illegible] for the [illegible] Mr. Clark [illegible] many friends [illegible] success in his new office.

TRIANGULAR TANGLE OF AUTO BLOCK TROLLEY

Three automobiles were in a crash Sunday night about 8.20 o'clock opposite the Joseph Gorman's blacksmith shop on the road to Taftville just beyond the city line. No one was hurt as far as is [illegible], but the damage to machines knocked the trolley track and passengers had to be transferred around the point until the track was cleared.

A Dodge with a front wheel [illegible] landed across the trolley track headed towards Taftville, a Chalmers with a front tire and rim torn off was up on the bank headed [illegible] and a Buick with a rear bumper was headed [illegible] shop yard.

It was not learned whose the machines were.

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE IN THE POST OFFICE

Beginning today (Monday) the arrival and dispatching of mail at the Norwich post office will be one hour earlier than formerly. Deliveries and collections from the street letter boxes will be in accordance with the new schedule. The last evening collection in the business section of the city is from 5 to 6 and the latter hour only including the boxes on Main street near Franklin square. The last mail at the main office closes at 7 p. m. These hours are standard time, and if in summer as to the hours being collected bring the mail to the post office before seven o'clock.

RECTOR WILLIAMS PREACHES FAREWELL AT ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. Frederick C. Williams, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, preaching his farewell sermon Sunday morning to the church before a congregation that filled the edifice. Since coming to Norwich two years ago Rev. Mr. Williams has made many fast friends, all of whom regret that he is to leave the city.

About a month ago he received a call from St. Paul's church in Willimantic and shortly afterwards accepted the call to the pastorate of the Willimantic church. He will preach his first sermon there on Sunday, May 6th, but will remain in Norwich for several days afterwards before moving to that city.

As yet a new rector for St. Andrew's church has not been secured but Wardens William J. Banfield and James Johnson are in touch with the needs of the church and it is hoped that the new rector may be secured [illegible] Sunday.

In farewell to his congregation Rector Williams spoke as follows:

Almost two years ago, I came to you, enthusiastic, and with the desire to stay a long time. This feeling and desire was increased when I experienced the expression of your generosity and good will so that it was with the greatest reluctance that I considered the invitation to go elsewhere. Twice I [illegible] the call to Willimantic I was given opportunity to go to churches with larger salary, one of which was a call of much larger work. And when the call to St. Paul's church, Willimantic, was suggested, I was reluctant to consider it at first. My desire was to stay with you. I had been happy in our church life here, our work together, under God's blessing had been successful. But there was another side, and as I began to question whether or not my desire to say a [illegible] was misconstrued, I began to see the matter more favorably. For although individually, nothing more could be desired than the cordial relations with our people, I felt a strong under-current of opposition to my methods. You took me unknown, you did not know what ideas and plans of work I might have; but my new parish does not take me blindly. They want me because of the [illegible] work I have been doing here, and there [illegible] I expect fuller co-operation and more enthusiastic participation in the things which I sure[illegible]. As I looked at the matter in [illegible] and as the opportunity for [illegible] aggressive work for the [illegible] was presented to me, I considered it favorably. Yet I would not accept the call until I had given our people here opportunity to show me [illegible] wrong in my conclusions.

[illegible] in the way of explanation [illegible] apparent inconsistency of going [illegible] from you when I wanted to stay [illegible] consciousness and enthusiasm of many people in the parish, particularly among the young people has been [illegible] warming and encouraging. But we have with us still too many brakemen on our train. There are enough [illegible] in the church if we never receive another one for many years. By brakemen, I mean the people who are afraid the church will move ahead too fast. We have them in the parish, we have them in the diocese, we have them in the national church. What we need more than anything else are firemen. If we can turn those whose great delight is to put on the brakes into those who delight to get up steam and forge ahead, we shall do well.

At the present time, I think there is a feeling of discouragement and pessimism in the parish. I know that there is a scarcity of clergy almost as great as there was during the war. We have not yet made up for the loss of the war years. And right here, let me ask, what have you done to help make up the loss? What have you done to recruit the ministry? Have you encouraged any of your boys to study for the ministry? Upon whom do you think rests the duty of supplying men to do the work of the ministry? Why should another parish supply men for the service, and you supply none? That is something to consider very seriously. And I hope you will consider it earnestly and prayerfully and that the future may bear witness to a growth of he feeling of responsibility for recruiting the the ministry by a number of boys from this parish taking up the work.

But the situation now may not be as discouraging as some think. You can give St. Andrew's a reputation which will draw men here, from churches which can pay higher sal[illegible]aries, and where there is more wealth. You can, if you will, give St. Andrew's a reputation and a spirit which will make a rector want to come here, and which will hold him when you get him. One of our clergy was requested to recommend to a certain church a preacher who would draw. He replied, "What you want is a church that will hold. Success depends not half so much upon the minister as upon you, the church."

Let us then, consider some of the things which will help to make St. Andrew's such a parish as will hold a rector so that he cannot think of leaving. The first thing is to grasp the certainty that nothing is too good for the church—not even progress. You are progressive in your business. People don't want to work along the slow, labor-killing lines which were common in grandfather's day. The merchant who persisted in ways which were good enough for his father would fail in short order. You are progressive in your home. You like to use gas for cooking, electricity for lighting, although many of the mothers refused to have anything to do with these new fangled ideas. You even go so far as to use vacuum cleaners and washing machine when you can afford them, and there are some people who have automobiles, and many who would like to have them, although our fathers and grandfathers thought they were well off when they a good driving horse. Even in amusements, you are progressive. The Punch and Judy show, the pantomine, the dime museum have no charms for you now. It must be the most modern thing in the line of moving pictures, in the theatres, and music by radio in the homes.

Progress is not too good for you in business, in the home, in your amusements because you consider it gives you the best. I say the church should have the best—the best materials to work with, the best methods, the best machinery, the best spirit of cooperation and organization. And the right spirit and enthusiasm is most important because no matter how fine a working plant we may have, no matter how elaborate and delicate a machine we may possess, if there is no steam in the boiler the engine will not run. We must have the fire of enthusiasm to heat the steam, so that the engine will run. In the world about us things are advancing so rapidly that this simile of the steam engine is behind the times, and some of the boys and young men in the congregation are saying to themselves we don't need steam to make an engine go. We have gasoline engines and we have electric motors. So I shall have to change my simile and say that we cannot run our parish machinery, no matter how fine it may be unless we have gasoline that which gives it pep and that it won't run well unless we clean off the carbon and grind the valves. If we allof the accumulation of even weeks to remain in the engine, it will not do effecient work. Or if our engine is run by an electric motor, we must have the power-giving current; and the brushes, the points of conpact must be clean and free from corrosion.

Now that you agree with me that the church must have the best that there is, even including the [illegible] which stand for progress, let me pass on to consider means by which these are gained.

You secure a rector; what is his duty? You engage a specialist, a leader, a trained man; do you want him to be simply a private chaplain to a few people, or a janitor who is to take care that the church building and parish house are clean and prepared for the services and meetings, do you want him merely to conduct the services on Sunday and preach an interesting sermon which is not too long or too dry? Or do you want to use him for all he is worth in the things for which he has spent many years in preparation? Do you want him to give you his very best in leadership? He comes to you as the trained specialist for the work of leadership. Then why not let him do his work? Men in the trades think it foolish to pay a master carpenter to do the rough work, a master mason to mix the lime and cement and carry the hod, the expert electrician to do the unskilled hand work. There would be chaos in the erection of a building if every man on the job tried to direct things; if the hod carrier tried to tell the mason how to lay the stone, if the carpenter tried to direct the architect, and all told the boss what to do. The boss is supposed to be a master builder, and if the owner does not have confidence in him, that he can manage the work, he gets someone else; but he does not allow the workmen to dictate.

So with the church. What does the average member know about church methods, especially if he has hardly ever been away from his home parish, and has done no study or reading to learn how things are done elsewhere? Is he more prepared and better able to say what should be done than the leader who has especially trained for the work, and who is constantly observing and studying and reading to learn what things are building up the churches. Each member of the church has his gifts and can give his best in certain kinds of church activities. Those are the places for him. When all work in their proper places, with one director, in the spirit of love and loyalty to the Master, there is no place for quarrels which weaken the church as the body is weakened and made sick by angry feelings. Then a spirit of loyalty and devotion to the church and rector will develop which will make the parish a place of joy to work in.

You can have this spirit of love and loyalty throughout the parish, if you will. There is much of it now. It can be made complete, but all must work for it. Especially must care be taken not to talk in the homes, before the children, as though you were not loyal, and did not love your church or respect your rector. The attitude of the children clearly indicates the attitude of the home. The insubordinate and disrespectful children do not always come from families where politeness and courtesy are not taught. They often come from the most refined and cultured homes. And the cause of their rudeness is the disloyal and unkind criticism of the rector and the church. Few realize the blighting effect of quarrels and vindictiveness on the spiritual growth of their own children. Some parents who would not dream of injuring their children physically do incalculable harm to them in the most tender and delicate portion of their life by harsh, unkind, mean criticism of the church or its members. Such talk in the presence of children teaches them disloyalty, making them despise religion, laying the crumbling foundation of infidelity and godlessness.

On the other hand, parents may build solid foundations of Christian character by always expressing loyalty to the church, by upholding the rector, even when they disagree with him, by counting religion first, by always speaking kindly and appreciatively of those who work in the church. Then the church can do her best work with the children, and give them her best. She can overlook and ennoble them, and the mutual reaction builds up a noble church of noble members.

Begin now in your attitude in your own home; by your attitude in the services of the church; by keeping bravely together if there should be a time before a new rector comes; by supporting [illegible] community [illegible] and methods may be from your own or from those of the last rector. If the new rector totally changes the ways in which you and I have been doing things, go with him, back him up, help him. He may have later information than I have. He may have experience which shows him that his way is best. You are loyal members of the church when you follow loyally his lead. If you can't help disagreeing with him, go on working just the same, and in the meantime study and learn about the subject so that, if after added information, you still disagree, and feel sure that he is doing harm by his methods, you may be capable of talking over the matter with him. No rector objects to adjusting matters with those who intelligently disagree, but everyone objects to changing his plans because people stubbornly oppose anything which has not been done that way before.

Three injunctions which I quote from the May number of the Expositor tell us of that which may be a great help in every church: "Don't stay away from church because of company.—bring them with you. Don't stay away because the church is not perfect—how lonesome you would feel in a perfect church. Don't become angry and act childishly and remain away from the house of God because you have had your feelings hurt. Be a real Christian, do your stunt, and be cheerful about it."

A stronger appreciation that we are members of Christ, working together in God's kingdom, guided and directed by the Holy Spirit, if we will allow it, ought to help us all to live better and to build up the church in a spirit of love and loyalty which will be a source of joy not only to the new rector but to ourselves. Let us then strive to "Hold the faith in unity of spirit, in the bond of peace and in righteousness of life."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

This (Monday) morning, is a day of significance for hundreds of mill operatives in plants along the Quinebaug valley, for the advance in wages announced several weeks ago becomes effective, the advance averaging about 12 1-2 per cent., it is understood, although the majority of the mills have not stated in their notices the exact amount of the advance.

The new and higher wage rate will mean in the aggregate an addition of many thousands of dollars weekly to the payrolls in this part of the state. The advance already has had a stimulating effect on business, for it has impressed the workers with the abundant prosperity that is at hand and promises to continue throughout the year.

Saturday morning the funeral of Andre Proulx was held at his home with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. John Roux, M. S., Rev. Joseph Mousser, M. S., and Rev. J. E. Sheehy, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Xavier Godreau, Joseph Brodreau, Theophile Bernier, Felix Lajeunesse, George Messier and T. Poirier. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Today, April 30, is the last day of the administration of Raymond E. Allen as postmaster. Tomorrow, May 1, the office will be taken over by E. H. Keach, recently commissioned for the position. Postmaster Allen retires from the postal service with the best wishes of the people of Danielson for his future success. He has been a very efficient postmaster. Mr. Allen has been in the postal service since Jan. 6, 1908, being first a clerk, later advancing to the assistant postmastership and eventually, during the second administration of President Wilson, became postmaster, Jan. 1, 1919. Mr. Allen is a republican.

His successor, E. H. Keach, is one of the successful business men of the borough and for many years has been identified with trade interests here. Mr. Keach will strive to give Danielson postal service of the highest efficiency. To that end he will devote his entire time to the duties of the postmastership, having incorporated his business, which will be conducted by associates long identified with it and perfectly familiar with every detail.

Mr. Keach has been a prominent figure in the republican party in Killingly for years. He has represented the town in the general assembly and the 25th senatorial district, of which Killingly is a part, in the state senate and made an excellent record. He is a very capable business man and will exercise his activities and abilities in maintaining the postal service here at a maximum of efficiency.

This is Clean-up week in Danielson, so proclaimed by Warden W. A. Burgrows. Of course, there isn't any law that obligates a property owner or tenant to tidy up his premises, and no penalties attached to being negligent in this respect, but those who like a spotless town will be glad to co-operate, and as every little bit helps all who do lend a hand to removing all the waste matter that has accumulated around back yards will be doing a civic service in which they may well take pride.

Some already have cleared their yards and the results that have been obtained are amply encouraging to induce others to do likewise.

In the town court Saturday morning Judge W. Fenner Woodward found Orrin B. Carpenter of Eastford not guilty of a charge of reckless driving. The charge grew out of an incident that occurred some time since on the new state highway leading to Providence and at a point on one of the steep hills in the Rhode Island-Connecticut border section. It appears that Mr. Carpenter was driving his truck down the hill, in low speed, and traveling very slowly, when it struck a car driven by a woman who was making her way up the hill and had stopped near another car parked at the side of the highway. There was not much damage. Attorney Harry E. Clark represented Mr. Carpenter and it was established to the satisfaction of the court that although there was a collision Mr. Carpenter was not driving recklessly at the time it occurred.

The 71 women who now make up the local chapter of the Catholic Welfare council of the state have a meeting scheduled for next Sunday, at which time a representative of the state organization will be present and address the gathering. It has been proposed that the local chapter be organized as a Catholic Woman's club and it is possible this will be done. Such a club might attain a membership of several hundred in Danielson and be a force for accomplishing much good work. Rev. J. E. Sheehy, M. S., addressed this week's meeting of the club, which was held with Mrs. L. E. Kennedy of Furnace street.

Following services conducted by Rev. John Roux, M. S., at St. James' church the body of Peter Julian Cloutier, infant son of Mr and Mrs. Onesime Cloutier, was interred in Holy Cross cemetery, Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Saturday's rain, introduced with an early morning thunder shower, has for the time being lessened the danger from forest fires, which during the past week swept over many acres of territory in various sections of Windham county. The rain also had the effect of starting foliage, which is approximately three weeks late this spring.

The new and advanced wage scales for union carpenters in this territory become effective this week. The rate hereafter for journeymen carpenters will be 87 1-2 cents an hour, instead of 75, which rate has prevailed since the cut in pay during the general business slump in 1920.

Several parties of Danielson people were at their cottages at Oakland Beach over Sunday, making the cottages ready for the summer season.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bassett motored to New London Sunday.

John A. Whittaker of Marlboro was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Minor baseball games scheduled for Saturday in this territory had to be cancelled on account of the rain.

PUTNAM

Members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., will go on their annual trip to Eastford to call on their honored member, Mrs. Sarah Bosworth Bradway, whose 105th birthday today (Monday), finds her in the enjoyment of her faculties to a remarkable extent considering that she has passed the century mark.

Mrs. Bradway has the distinction of being one of the nineteen "real daughters" of the American Revolution in the United States as her father fought in the Continental army. She was born in Eastford and has always lived there.

Mrs. Bradway has for years been a member of the local D. A. R. chapter and the members have made her birthday a day of observance since she has been too feeble to attend meetings of the chapter. Fruits and flowers are carried in profusion but on account of her feebleness the calls have been made shorter from year to year. Mrs. Bradway's eyesight has failed but she is cheerful and always has a story of the long ago to relate to her guests.

This year's committee of arrangements for the annual visit was composed of Mrs. S. Nilkoff, Mrs. Thomas H. DeCoudres, Mrs. George S. Bradley, Mrs. Herbert J. Smith and Mrs. George E. Sampson.

People of Putnam were awakened shortly after seven o'clock Saturday morning by the rumble of thunder, the first electric storm of the season. While a shower came over the city at the time the rain began to fall the thunder had ceased. Two hours later the clouds rolled away and a beautiful April day followed, showers showers and more showers.

Mrs. William H. Holmes and her son Richard Holmes left Saturday morning for their home in Mount Vernon, N. Y., after being in Putnam several weeks with Mrs. Holmes' mother, Mrs. A. W. Macdonald, Oak Hill. Richard Holmes came to Putnam following an operation in Worcester. Where he is a student at Clark college, for the removal of his tonsils. He expected to remain two days and then motor home with his mother but complications from the operation for two weeks he was a patient at the Day Kimball hospital. He is now making a good recovery in health.

Miss Nellie Bloxham, superintendent of the Day Kimball hospital, has taken charge of the institution after being off duty for two weeks as a patient. Miss Bloxham has went an operation and had been confined to her room ever since.

The Putnam Manufacturing company in the north end of the city will wire its 52 mill tenements for electricity. While the work has not been let it is intimated that it will be done by a local concern.

Rev. A. von P. Huizinga of New York has arrived in Thompson and his family and opened his home south of the common.

Notwithstanding the severe winter Putnam people will have to pay 10 cents more per hundred pounds for ice this summer. Instead of 50 cents the price is 60 cents to householders. Stores will be charged 50 cents and large users such as markets 40. Increased overhead charges are given as the reason for the advance in price.

The Junior World Wide guild served a supper at Mrs. A. E. Wilkins' on Saturday evening. Revenue obtained will be used to defray the expenses of two delegates to the Northfield summer school.

Vincent Gartland has been named captain of the hook and ladder company of the fire department and Thomas as lieutenant. Harold A. Clarke is treasurer and Howard Withey is secretary.

Members of McGregor W. B. C. have a meeting scheduled for Wednesday evening of this week.

Arthur A. Gregson of Haverhill spent the week end with friends in Danielson.

The Service battery is to have a baseball team, and there are already candidates for places upon the team will arrange a schedule of games for the summer season.

It's not what you earn but what you save that makes you rich. Make it your rule to deposit your money every week in the savings department of the Danielson Trust Company. Pierre Boulaine, recently operated upon at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, was reported at the week end as showing steady improvement.

Byron Larkin, sole survivor of a family ravaged by pneumonia, is steadily gaining strength and his recovery now seems assured, though his condition was very critical when he was taken from his home in East Killingly to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam for treatment.

Good progress is being made with the construction of the Plainfield High school building at Plainfield and the walls are now up two stories. The school will be ready for occupancy at the opening of the new school year in September.

Charles T. Wescott is dead at his home in East Killingly, where he was born April 2, 1840. While the early years of Mr. Wescott's life were spent in his native town of Killingly, he went west in middle life, locating in Sioux City, Ia., where for many years he was successfully engaged in the undertaking business. Three years ago Mr. Wescott retired and came east, living for a time at Dayville, but later going to East Killingly, where he purchased a home in which to spend his declining years.

Mr. Wescott was of a family long identified with the town of Killingly. He was a son of James and Marinda Bartlett Wescott, both his father and mother being of old Killingly families. He is survived by his wife and by a daughter, resident in Sioux City, to which place the body will be forwarded for burial.

If you feel "out of sorts," sluggish and weary

If you feel "out of sorts," sluggish, weary and irritable; if you lack the spirit and sparkle and the ability to do your work with the same briskness and cheerfulness that you see in others, it is probably because your organs are not generating enough vital energy.

If your blood lacks the normal amount of the elements that are necessary in the production of vital energy, it is not possible for you to feel strong, industrious and sprightly; you are bound to tire quickly, feel downcast and find it difficult to take proper interest in your work or your favorite recreations.

If you are not feeling as "fit" as you would like to, if you are in need of relaivigoration, you should take Wincarnis for a week or so. You will probably be surprised and delighted at the promptness with which this general, tonic-cum-restorative will enrich your blood, strengthen your nervous system and relieve your feeling of general debility and exhaustion. Physicians are prescribing Wincarnis because of its great virtue as a tonic and reconstructive.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Our Mary Charms in Her New "Tess" —Favorite Artist in Favorite Photoplay the Rare Combination at Breed Theatre.

Never before have local theatregoers shown such favoritism for Mary Pickford as they did last night at the Breed theatre, where this illustrious star is appearing in her new screen version of Tess of the Storm Country, a United Artists release.

It is truly a combination of a favorite artist in a favorite play and the amusement seekers of this city are displaying a marked avidity in embracing the opportunity offered for genuine diversion of a rare variety. Few photoplay classics have ever elicited such unstinted and universal applause as this one, and if Miss Pickford could only look in on the capacity audience at any performance here she would undoubtedly feel highly complimented for she would see her art wielding a powerful influence in lightening the cares of the masses of people. Judging from the initial popularity of this release, it is destined to enjoy many runs at various houses and times in this section, and it deserves this success.

Broadway Theatre.

An exceptional variety program of B. F. Keith vaudeville will greet the patrons of the Broadway theatre for the first half of this week. Johnny Clark & Co. will open the bill with a comedy novelty acrobatic act. Following, Monty and Parti, the two-man jazz band, will render some real snappy music. E. H. Murray and Betty Love for third spot offer Explanations, a comedy skit. Harry Evans and Charlotte Pearl are fine comedians. Closing the vaudeville program, will be Les Salendid's European champion art roller skaters in their latest novelty sensation on the high table.

Speed, comedy, action and drama—all merrily intertwined in a melange of six fast reels of action—is promised the patrons of the Broadway theatre this week, when Sure Fire Flint, featuring Johnny Hines, is to begin a week's engagement.

The story of Sure Fire Flint, adapted from the story of the same name as it appeared in Ace High Magazine, and written by Gerald C. Duffy, has all to do with the hectic experiences encountered by Flint, and aptly nicknamed Sure Fire Flint because of his dynamic temperament and his utter disregard for danger and the soft, easy path of least resistance.

Other prominent figures in this photoplay are such stellar screen players as Doris Kenyon, Edmund Breese, Robert Edeson, Effie Shannon, J. Barney Sherry and Charles Gerrard. In view of this excellent combination of clean comedy and genuine drama, Sure Fire Flint will in all probability do more than please the patrons of the Broadway theatre.

Gloria Swanson's Latest at the Strand Theatre.

Gloria Swanson's latest Paramount starring vehicle, Prodigal Daughters, is sure to receive a great reception at the Strand theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Swanson in the role of Swiftie Forbes will prove a strong attraction. During the absence of her father, who is in Europe, Swiftie has broken all rules of convention. On his return he learns that parental discipline is a relic of a past age and that his daughter insists upon continuing her adventures without restraint. Swiftie tries life in Greenwich Village and falls into the toils of a gambler.

Ralph Graves efficiently plays opposite the star and gives a splendid presentation of the modern young man who clings to clean ideals and fights to preserve them. The cast generally renders excellent support.

A Christie comedy and news well round out a fine program.

Famed Tarkington Story Told in Film.

Coming to the Strand theatre on Thursday of this week for the engagement of three days is Universal Pictures' corporation's latest Jewel production, The Flirt, a filmization of Booth Tarkington's famous story of the same name. An all-star cast interprets the various roles.

The title role is played by Eileen Percy, with Helen Jerome Eddy as the other sister. George Nichols as the father and Buddy Messenger as the little imp of a brother are two others whose work in this picture stands out prominently.

The story deals with life in an average American family where a beautiful daughter, who knows she is beautiful, tries to rule the family and nearly wrecks it, and sends father to prison in her longing for finery like other girls have. Advance reports from all sections of the country term this production a real masterpiece of the screen.

This masterpiece will be shown for three days only.

Buys Winchester Street House.

Through the agency of William F. Hill, Hector Bernier has sold his beautiful three-apartment house located at 20 Winchester street to Harry Blachyshyn, a well known proprietor of the Moheagan restaurant, this city. Mr. Blachyshyn purchases this fine property for his future home and will shortly occupy one of the apartments.

Hamden—Dean Charles R. Brown will open the parish house campaign Friday evening, May 18, by delivering a lecture at the Whitney Congregational church. The drive for funds will continue for 10 days.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

An Indication

He's goin' to be a genius, the long-legged boy of ours,
He's goin' ahead an' develop some wonderful mental powers.
We used to be right discouraged by noting his indolence,
But now we know that he moves so slow because of his thoughts immense.
I've seen him sit as the hours passed by beneath an orchard limb,
The same as ol' Isaac Newton did when the apple fellon him.
But the thing that proves that he's talented, an' proves it good an' strong,
Is this one significant circumstance, he's lettin' his hair grow long.

I can't yet see what his line will be.
Perhaps he will stump the state
An' wave his hair as an orator, decidin' a nation's fate.
Or maybe he'll turn to music an' soothe us with gentle joy—
He could beat the world on a jewsharp when he was a little boy.
Perhaps he will be a painter, or a poet whose tuneful mood
Will wake our souls to appreciate some succulent breakfast food.
But whether it's speeches or pictures or the starry paths of song
We know he has started for something, 'cause he's letting his hair grow long.
—Philander Johnson in Washington Star.

Grandmother and Me

Grandmother dear is a very old lady,
Grandmother dear can't see.
But when she drops things or loses her spectacles,
Grandmother's eyes are me.

Grandmother dear is a very old lady.
Sometimes she never hears.
But I always run when the postman comes ringing;
I can be grandmother's ears.

Grandmother dear likes houses all tidy,
Everything dusted and neat.
So I work with my little red broom and my duster,
I can be grandmother's feet.

Grandmother dear is a very old lady,
Can't walk, can't hear, and can't see.
You never could tell, though the fun we have playing,—
Grandmother and me.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

How many of you know where the blackboard in your school room came from or how it was made? To most boys and girls a blackboard is just part of the school room and they never give a thought as to how the blackboard was made by nature or where it came from.

Perhaps it will surprise you to learn that the blackboard, which is slate, came from the bottom of the ocean. Many, many years ago, millions of years in fact, rushing rivers and brooks washed down mountains, in the form of mud, into the sea and the mud sank to the bottom, becoming clay. This went on for ages and the clay on the bottom of the ocean became deeper and deeper

While the rivers and brooks were bringing the mud down to the ocean many forms of ocean life, shell fish, etc., lived and died and became buried in the clay. All this happened while the earth was much hotter than it is now and as it cooled it became smaller and the clay was squeezed by pressure. As the pressure became greater the clay began to bulge and finally it was pushed right up out of the sea, the mud splitting up into layers, and became mountains of slate.

Slate is found in a number of states in this country and in other parts of the world and there is an enormous supply. It is quarried by blasting and cutting with specially made tools, cut into the proper shape by workmen, leveled off on what is called a planing table, placed in specially made frames and sent to the school where the blackboards are fastened to the walls.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

The School House Stove

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you what happened to our schoolhouse one day.

One day early in March I was engaged in reading a book. All the children were gathered in the school house. There stood in the corner a very old stove, which was weak and mischievous. It had a pipe going straight up the garret, then twisting until it reached the chimney. It was a quarter to nine, when I heard a crash. I looked up and saw one of the boys as white as a sheet, and what surprised me was that the old stove was off its legs. The girls seized their coats and ran screaming out doors. Others stood benumbed looking at the stove. The boys were all cheerful except the one who had knocked down the stove.

I soon told the other boys to get planks from out of doors, and bring them in. We first took the pipe down, then the jacket, and then with the aid of the planks lifted the stove and set it in place. After we had finished and straightened everything we called every one in. The girls still as white as sheets, but after seeing that the stove was up they were cheered. It didn't take more than five minutes to put it up. We then settled down and school started. We expect to have it fall over any time, but we will always be ready.

Narcissa

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. I hope you will like my story.

It was a pretty picture. Narcissa made sitting in the doorway, leaning on a door post. Her hair was nearly black with no gloss or sparkle, only a soft dusky cloudiness. It curled in little rings about her broad low forehead and round her soft pale cheeks. Her eyes were dull, too, but more gray than brown, and the only vivid color was in the scarlet line of her lips. There was nothing unhealthy in her clear pallor, no hint of sallowness, but a soft white glow. The nostrils of her little straight nose were cut high which gave them a look of being always slightly dilated. This caused the neighbors to say that Narcissa White was proud though nobody knew what she had to be proud of.

As for her dress, it was of blue jean, a good deal faded, but all the better for that, and her white apron, though coarse was spotless.

My Home and School.

Dear Uncle Jed: My home is a one and a half story building with seven large rooms. My father's barns which are large, are connected and one is the other. In the right one is an icehouse connected and a chicken coop where has enough floor space for about 150 chickens. We have two horses, nine cows, two heifers 13 old hens and 50 pullets.

I live one mile away from school. We begin school at 9 o'clock and get out at 3.30, with one-half hour at noon. We have the following program: Morning exercises, reading, penmanship spelling, arithmetic, language, geography one day and history the next.

Last year we earned a phonograph and 6 records of pictures, a teacher's desk and Water Colors. Daily Health building exercises by selling candy.

In school we have eight windows, three on each side and two on the back with blackboards on all unusable walls. There are 27 children in our school, 14 girls and six boys.

My best pet is a dog named Brownie. His body is all brown and his feet are white.

Two Little Kittens.

Dear Uncle Jed: One night while I was reading, my big brother came in the room and said: "Want to see them?" My mind was on pirates and that was what I expected to see.

He led the way to the shed and there in a box what do you think I saw? My Cat, Peggy owned with two little balls of fur. One was black, the other gray.

This happened some few days ago but they have no, their eyes open yet. I watch them day by day.

The other day their mother tried to bring them into the house and put them on my sister's bed. They will soon have their eyes open and then they will grow like weeds. It is a funny sight to see the old cat carry them around in her mouth. I should think she would hurt them, but she doesn't.

My Easter Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: During my Easter vacation I went away. On my way home I saw some bluebirds and robins. They were the first I had seen this year, and I was surprised to see any so early in the spring.

I went out to gather pussy willows, and I got my feet wet going after them in the swamp.

I have some playmates that I play with. We play house, ball and tag. We had a very good time, indeed.

Spring.

Dear Uncle Jed: In spring a lot of birds come back from the south. I like to hear them sing their sweet songs. There are a great many birds that build nests in my yard in the maple trees. I am glad it is spring, for I like to see the little birds come back.

Feeding Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: This has been a very bad winter for the birds up here at Storrs. They could not get a thing to eat, there has been so much snow on the ground. I felt very sorry for them it was so cold. I fed them every day, and later on they came right up to the house to get something to eat. I am glad the snow has gone for the sake of the poor little birds.

Two Bobtail Cats.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have two bobtail cats. One is called Bobtail and the other Peter Cottontail. Peter was born on the last day of July. Sometimes I take him in my arms for a baby. His mother catches meadow moles for him. He has caught two already, and every day he goes in the swamp and watches for them.

His mother has some kittens. When she had Peter she had another one, and at our neighbor's they have a barn and she took them both up to the barn and hid them. My mamma took them away from her.

Peter goes way up at the top of the trees. We tie a string on a feather and he runs around and plays with it. He likes to play in a pail of water.

This is the first time I have written to you.

BEATRICE H. CARLSON, Age 7.

Care of the Nails.

Dear Uncle Jed: We should have our hands and nails clean. In doing this we should scrub them well in warm water, then rinse and dry. Never cut the little skin at the bottom of the nails. If we do it will always be rough around the nails. The thin fold of the scarf skin at the bottom of the nail is like a piece of cloth. When it is cut or torn, the whole nail rim ravels out. You can take off the edges with cuticle removers.

The root of a nail is one-twelfth of an inch below it. If you bite your nails it not only spoils the shape but does not protect the finger as well.

For many years we American people have taken good care of our teeth. Now we are considering our nails also.

An Exciting Occurrence.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you about an Exciting Occurrence. One day as I was walking down Gilmore street, I was stopped by an unusual moan. I looked all around but nothing was in sight. But being inquisitive I determined to find out where the moan came from.

All of a sudden something told me to look behind the tree, and what do you suppose I saw? You could not guess so I will tell you. A little dog with a large cut in its leg.

Feeling sorry for the helpless animal. I picked it up and put it up in my lap.

I happened to have a handkerchief so I wound it around the dog's leg. What a sign of relief it was. I then got up and started to run towards home with the dog. When again I was stopped by a hoarse voice.

I turned back to see who it was and to my surprise it was a very cruel looking man. At that moment I did not know what to do. By that time the man had caught up with me and had the dog in his hands.

He said I was trying to steal his dog. I tried to explain to him but he would not listen. He then made the dog walk and every once in a while would kick it. That was my "exciting occurrence."

FRANCIS GARNEY, Age 11.

More About the Toad.

Dear Uncle Jed: When the outside skin of a toad becomes old and dry or too tight for it, a new covering grows underneath and the old one is shed. The toad keeps moving and wiggling to loosen the old skin. To get it off the legs and feet the toad puts its hinds leg under its front leg and in that way pulls off the skin as if it were a stocking. But when the front legs are to be stripped, the mouth is used as is sometimes done by people in pulling off their gloves. Sometimes the toad swallows the cast-off skin.

The toad's tongue is fastened to the front part of its mouth, not back in the throat as with dogs, cats and most animals.

On it is a sticky substance and when, quick as a flash, it touches an insect, the insect is caught as if by sticky fingers and then taken into the mouth.

I think the study of insects, birds and animals is very interesting.

My Hens.

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about my hens. At home I have some hens and I get six or seven eggs a day. When I feed them they fly in the pail. Two of them are setting now, and I hope that I will have some little chickens soon.

My Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: My dog's name is Dewey. He went out into the woods on June Feb 12th and did not come back until the 18th, being gone six days. I think he was caught in a trap for he was almost starved and lame. I soon discovered that his foot had been frozen. His foot is all healed over now, but he will always be lame.

I hope hunters won't set any more traps for dogs to be caught in. It is a wonder that he didn't starve and freeze to death, as he was gone some of the coldest weather the past winter. I hope nothing more will happen to my dog Dewey.

Making Maple Syrup.

Dear Uncle Jed: My brother and I tap the maple trees near our house as early in the spring as the sap will run. We make a fireplace to boil the sap outside. We gather our own wood. When the sap is nearly boiled down, we take it in the house and mother finishes it for us.

We have made about 35 quarts this spring. The season is about over.

My Fishing Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: I will tell you about my fishing trip. First I dug some worms. Then I got my line and went to the brook. I put a worm on my hook and threw the line into the water. I caught 15 fish.

ALEXANDER MACKOS, Age 5.

Snake Trapped Itself.

Dear Uncle Jed. I am writing to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about a snake I found trapped. Our hens had a very bad habit of laying in the horse mangers. One evening I noticed a large snake in the manger. During the day he had swallowed an egg which was in the manger and had then tried to cross to the next manger by way of a knothole. In the course of his procedure he had got about halfway through when he discovered eggs on the other side of the partition. These he swallowed, ignorant of the fact that in so doing he had trapped himself very securely. The egg kept him from going back.

A Band of Gypsies.

Dear Uncle Jed. I have not written to the Wide-Awake Circle for a long time, so I will tell you about some gypsies. There is a band of gypsies camping out by my house. These people seem to like the hard life of living out of doors. They stayed in a house in Norwich last winter.

There are eleven children, who seem to be quite nice, though they are used to the hard life. These children like to camp out in the summer. They are going to Boston to stay next winter. These people make baskets and tell fortunes. The children taught me how to make baskets. The gypsies have two tents and inside of these tents they have camp stoves, a table, two beds and some chairs.

I will close now as it is getting late.

BESSIE CONGDON, Age 11.

Making Salt Pictures.

Dear Uncle Jed: At school we make maps, known as salt maps, of salt and flour. First we must furnish the salt and flour and something to place the map on, such as a piece of stiff cardboard. Then we must have for the mixture, three parts salt and one part flour, adding one part water to the mixture that it may be fit to be spread out.

When all the materials are mixed we spread it over the outline of the map which we have drawn.

After it is all spread over the outline we must set it up to dry before we paint it. Five days are ample time for the drying. The maps must be dry when painted, because the colors would run otherwise.

After we have the map painted we paint the ocean blue. Now there is a slight difference in the work in making a salt picture. The material for the landscape is made in the same way as the material for the map, but the landscape may be painted as soon as it is spread over the cardboard as there isn't any danger of the colors running, because there are only one or two colors.

In making the model of "A Little Village Near the Sea," I had a boat, three houses, a church, a barn, and a chicken coop. Trees stood near the houses and the church. The boat and the buildings are made of one inch wood from packing cases. I used a select piece without any knots or nail holes, for the purpose.

First I sawed off a piece of wood from the board which I just described, about three inches long and three quarters of an inch wide. Then I took some little blocks and made houses of these. I made a boat of a larger piece of wood. The masts and spars and the bowsprit are made of matchsticks. Holes were made with a nail to put the masts and bowsprit in. After I put the masts and bowsprit in, I glued on the spars. Then the boat was finished except for the painting. The houses needed painting, too, so I painted the houses and the boat.

The boat was painted black and red, with a yellow deck. The houses were painted green, yellow and red, with black roofs. The church was painted red with black roof and black steeple. I made some bales of wood and paper and painted them green and brown.

When all these things were finished I made the salt mixture and put the houses, etc., in place and painted the landscape. Within twenty-four hours the salt mixture was all dried and the picture was finished.

Found Muskrat in Barrel

Dear Uncle Jed: In our cellar we have drain pipes, which lead out into a meadow. We have these because at certain times of the year we have a great deal of water.

One day I went down the cellar to get an apple. I went to the nearest barrel and put my hand in. I felt something. I felt again and then something bit my hand. I put the cover on, and ran up stairs and told my mother something bit my hand. I was most sure that it was an animal that had fur.

My brother took a lantern and went to see what it was, he looked in and what do you think he saw? I will leave it for you to guess. My brother ran up stairs and got my father's thick leather gloves and pulled the animal out. It proved to be a big sized muskrat. A few weeks later we captured his mate and that was the last of muskrats in our cellar.

A Black and White Calf.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a little black and white calf at my house. I give it milk and then I tie her up again. I like her very much and she is very pretty. She stays in the barn all of the time until I come from school. My mother lets her mother out every morning to get a drink and then I put her mother back in the barn at night.

Care of the Nails.

Dear Uncle Jed. The nails should be kept clean because they are a part of the body. The American people are taking just as good care of the nails as of their teeth. It is important that we should take good care of the nails because there are many germs that will settle underneath them. The root of the nail is very sensitive and the only protection it has is the skin, called the cuticle. The nail is useful because it protects the end of the fingers and helps us to pick up things.

If we polish our nails it will give them a delicate brilliancy. There are many different kinds of polishes.

You cannot have smooth nail rims if you cut the cuticle at the base of the nails. The thin skin about the base of the nails is like the edge of a piece of cloth. The hard, dry edges can easily and harmlessly be removed.

A manicure once or twice a week will give a dainty appearance to your nails. The dirt should be removed with the end of a file as often as they show a dark color and every morning as a part of the daily toilet.

My Pet Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before, so I thought I'd write to you, so I thought I would write. This morning I was going to school when suddenly I heard a mewing behind me I was frightened, but I looked behind and saw my cat following me and mewing.

My Trip Down South.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would tell you about my trip down south. In November, 1921, I left my home here in Connecticut and went to New York. There I took the steamship Mohawk, bound for Jacksonville, Fla. We stopped at Charleston, S. C. There were 150 U. S. ships anchored in the harbor. That was a wonderful sight at night to see them all lighted up.

Arriving at Jacksonville, I took the train for Punta Gorda. I spent the winter at Charlotte harbor with my grandparents. They had a grapefruit and orange grove, so I had all of each I wanted. I also went in bathing every day. In March, 1922, I returned home after having had a lovely trip.

Fed Hungry Pheasants.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about some pheasants that my sisters and I saw when we were going home from school one day. I knew that they were looking for food but how could they find it when the ground was covered with snow? We had some crumbs of bread in our dinner box so I threw the crumbs of bread to them. The pheasants flew away, but they did not fly far. So we drove on. I turned around and saw that the pheasants were going where the crumbs of bread were. We were very glad to feed the pheasants that day.

Margaret Learned a Lesson.

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell you about a girl named Margaret. One day when Margaret was called she said "Wait a moment." A half hour had passed when she came in and said, "Did you call me?" And her mother replied "Yes, we had ice cream and thought you would like some, but it must be melted now."

Margaret said "I will never wait so long when I am called but will come right away."

The Story of Sugar.

Dear Uncle Jed: The Arabs brought sugar cane from the Nile valley to Sicily and from there it spread to Spain and finally to France, Holland and Italy.

In the fifteenth century the king of Portugal sent as a personal gift to the Canary Islands cuttings of cane.

The principal cane growing countries in the world are the West Indies and Cuba, India, Java, the Philippine Islands, Hawaiian Islands, South America, Egypt and Formosa. In our own United States, Louisiana is the great cane growing state.

A first step in the work of development is the clearing off of the timber. Much of this wood, cedar and mahogany, is of great value and care must be taken in the foresting to see that its lumber value is preserved. After the lumbering works are completed, the brush and creepers are cleared by burning. The burning doesn't entirely clear the land and partially burnt stumps and logs are left to disintegrate under the warmth and moisture of a few dry seasons. In cutting, the leaves are stripped from the stalks which are then loaded into ox carts. The leaves are for the oxen the same as fodder for cows. The cars have hinged sides so that when these tilting tables are elevated to a sufficient angle, the sugar cane load slides from the cart on to a belt conveyor which carries the sugar cane stalks to the first rollers or cane shredders. The sugar thus produced is known as raw sugar.

St. Valentine.

Dear Uncle Jed: Perhaps the Wide-Awakes would like to know how we came to send valentines.

Long years ago there lived a priest whose name was St. Valentine. When people were in trouble he would send messages to them. These messages were full of good cheer. After a while he died. The people wanted to do something to honor his memory. At last they decided to send messages to each other on his birthday. Thus grew up the custom of sending valentines on February 14.

The Cat and the Bird.

Dear Uncle Jed: A cat once lived in a village. He was sitting on the doorstep. A bird flew on a tree. The cat said to himself, "I will catch that bird." The cat felt very sure that he would catch the bird, so he sat on the doorstep and waited for the bird.

The bird fled to the ground. He saw the cat so he flew back on the tree. Then the cat said, "I will see the bird again." When the bird flew down the cat ran after it but he didn't catch it. Then he said I don't want it anyway because it is not big enough for me.

My House.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about my house.

My house is in the town of Lebanon Center. It is a large house containing twenty rooms, not counting the halls and a large attic. My sister and I have a play room. I like my house. It is red and the blinds are green. We have a large lawn around our house. There are eight trees on the lawn and a great many rose bushes and other shrubs.

A True Story About Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you a short story about some birds. It is a true story.

I have a friend who is very fond of all kinds of pets, and most of all birds. She loves to watch them so she has put two little bird-houses in the trees near her house.

Here, every year, a pair of bluebirds come to make their home for the summer. My friend likes very much to watch them, as they fly around so busily, getting food for their little ones, and when warm weather comes teaching them to fly.

So, very early every spring, my friend has a gardener clean out the the houses, and make them ready for the little birds. But this spring, she was busy about other things; and it was so cold and chilly, she scarcely thought of the birds.

But one morning, as she was sitting by her window, she heard a great twittering and fluttering in the old maple tree. It was the bluebirds and they were in some trouble.

Mrs. Bluebird would go into the house and look around, then come out and talk to Mr. Bluebird. They examined the other house, but it did not suit them any better. They said, just as plainly as birds could, that they would not do their own housecleaning, and then they flew off.

My friend was very much amused, and disappointed, so she had the house all put in order that very day.

The next morning the birds came back. Don't you think they were funny bluebirds?

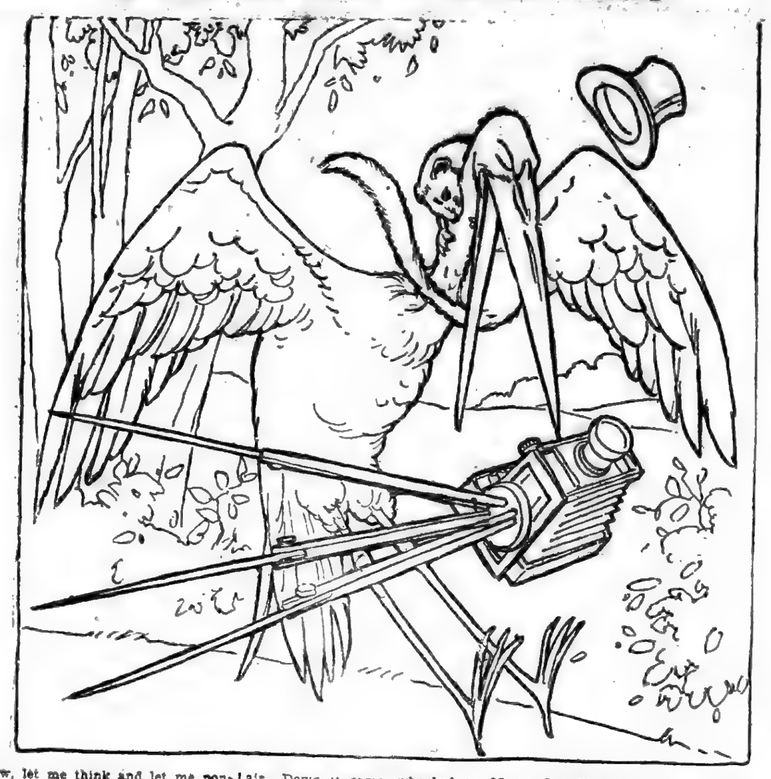
THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING



Now, let me think and let me ponder, lest I make a mistake. You see it is a whole week since I wrote about the Photographer Crane and his nice big camera. We left him sitting on a fallen log in the Shady Forest. Oh, yes, that's where we left him, just as Mr. Wicked Weasel crept up behind a nearby tree.

Now, we're all right, little reader, so "pop goes the weasel," as they used to sing in the country when I was a boy.

Yes, that's it, "pop" went Mr. Wicked Weasel and the poor photographer Crane found himself and his camera flat on the ground, underneath that wicked furry animal.

"Help! Help!" shouted the long legged camera man bird, and he gave three loud squawks and a kick with his long left leg.

"Keep quiet," snarled Mr. Wicked Weasel, trying his best to bite the poor, struggling Crane's bobbing about head.

"Help! Help!" shouted more loudly the photographer Crane, "Help! Help! Please help me, somebody!"

"I will," replied a kind voice and the next minute the Policeman Dog swung his big hickory stick in the air. Down it came, whacko! on Mr. Wicked Weasel's little red cap.

"Ouch! Ouch!" he whined, letting go of Photographer Crane in a hurry.

The next minute the Policeman Dog slipped a pair of handcuffs over Mr. Wicked Weasel's front paws.

"Dear, dear me!" sighed poor Photographer Crane, struggling to his feet which was no easy matter, let me tell you. It was like walking up to the top of the Woolworth Building when the elevators are on strike. At last, when he had straightened up on his knobby long thin legs, he turned to the kind Policeman Dog

"Whenever you want your picture taken, come to me. I'll take you in fourteen different poses for less than nothing. Why, I'll tint them in pretty colors and maybe win a Little Jack Rabbit book for a prize

Then, off he went to the Old Bramble Patch, while the Policeman Dog trotted away with Mr. Wicked Weasel toward the Jail House in Carrot City, U. S. A.

At last Photographer Crane reached the Old Bramble Patch. There stood Lady Love and Little Jack Rabbit at the front gate, all dressed in their Sunday-go-to-meet-'em clothes, ready and smiling for a picture.

"Now look pleasant," said Photographer Crane as he set up his big camera on its three long slender yellow legs, though why he said it when both little bunnies were all smiles, puzzles me, but I guess it must be from force of habit.

"Now, look as happy as you can. Don't you move, my bunny man. Lady Love, smile 'neath your bonnet, A butterfly is sitting on it."

"All over!" he said in a minute, that is, after he had squeezed a little rubber ball on the end of a tube of rubber. "All over," and he smiled at the two little bunnies.

"I hope my hair wasn't all mussed," said the pretty little rabbit's mother.

"You're the prettiest bunny I ever photographed said the picture taker bird, "and your blue apron will look just lovely in the photo."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Lady Love and she hopped back into the kitchen to look after the Lollypop Stew.

Then, Photographer Crane folded up his camera and looked over the Sunny Meadow and in the distance he saw dear Uncle Lucky in his Luckymobile.

MANSFIELD CENTRE

A very successful entertainment was given at the town hall on Thursday evening for the benefit of the Mansfield library. The hall was crowded and when there was no longer standing room, numbers had to leave. The program, every number of which was well rendered, included music by the Mansfield orchestra of five pieces, songs by the C. A. C. male quartette, solos by Mrs. Frank Grant and F. C. Littleworth; a reading, Asleep at the Switch by Mrs. Theron Swift; and three humorous sketches, A Slight Misunderstanding, by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Anthony; Dot Entertains by Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Jenner; and A Wedding Notice, which abounded in local "hits," by L. J. Storrs, D. C. Flaherty, F. C. Littleworth and Mrs. LeRoy Smith. The closing number, the song, America the Beautiful, was very fine, Mrs. L. J. Storrs representing the Goddess of Liberty.

After the programe the people of Spring Hill served ice cream and cake, adding thereby to the proceeds for the library, which will probably amount to nearly $100. To ensure a successful affair A. E. Anthony and H. C. Hawkins furnished free transportation from this village. Credit is also due to Mrs. Theron Swift, the director, Mrs. G. C. Jenner, D. C. Flaherty and many others for their untiring work.

Echo Grange conferred third and fourth degrees Tuesday evening upon a class of nine. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jansen, Rexford Crane, Miss Frances Crane and Frank Gray. In honor of the new members an excellent supper was served under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Littleworth, Mrs. Frank Aanthony and Mrs. G. L. James.

The Young People's club has been invited to hold its May party at the home of of Kenneth and Mervyn Little.

The Ladies' Aid society met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. Lauder. Mrs. Lauder served a dainty lunch as others have done at the last meetings.

Miss Eunice Buchanan has been the guest of her father for several days this week. Miss Buchanan has completed a special course in nursing, and will soon enter a hospital.

The second lesson in chair caning was given at the library Friday afternoon by Mrs. E. R. Dimmock. Rope weaving was also taught. The next lesson is to be on Friday, May 11.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, April 28.—Stock prices again lost ground in today's brief and relatively dull session. Net losses in the active issues ranged from small fraction to 2 points.

Outside the stock market financial interests centered in the sharp reactions in the cotton and sugar futures markets, the former dropping 40 to 70 points and the latter 26 to 27. Cuban raws were offered late in the day at 6 3-8 cents a pound or 1-4 of a cent below the previous sale.

Bear operations in the stock market were encouraged by the emphasis placed in the weekly mercantile reviews on the slackening of industrial expansion, the speculative uncertainty concerning the immediate course of oil prices and the easing tendency of commodity prices recent advances in which furnished the impetus for bullish demonstrations in various sections of the list.

Oil shares were again the principal target for selling pressure, the Barnsdall issues being singled out and depressed to new low prices for the year, the A stock touching 20 1-2 and closing 3 points lower at at 21 and the B stock closing 1 1-2 lower at 15 1-2. Several other shares in that group were forced down a point or so but good buying support set in at the lower levels and net losses were limited to fractions. One block of 7,500 shares of Texas company changed hands at 47.

Report of buyers' strikes against the high prices of sugar inspired some hurried liquidation of those shares. South Porto Rican Sugar and Cuban Dominican preferred each dropping 2 points; Cuba Cane preferred, 1 1-4 and Cuban-American Punta Alegre and Cuban Dominican common each yielding 3-4.

Some of the other important recessions in the industrial list were made in Studebaker, Corn Products, American Can, Bosch Magneto, Central Leather preferred, General Electric, Mack Truck, Mallinson Silk, Lorillard Tobacco, Philip Morris, United Fruit and Stromberg Carburetor, all off at 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Trading in railroad shares was dull with price changes mixed. Gains, however exceeded losses among the standard issues at the close.

Du Pont Powder was one of the strong spots, establishing a new peak price for the year at 148 1-2 and then slipping back to 147 1-4, where it was up 1 7-8 on the day.

Little business was done in the foreign exchange market with only nominal changes in rates. Demand sterling held firmly steady around $4.63 1-4 and French francs around 6.77 cents.

The weekly clearing house statement showed increases of $36,375,000 in loans, discounts and investments; $787,000 in cash in own vaults and $309,000 in time deposits. Reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank decreased $11,990,000 and net demand deposits were $43,035,000 below those of last week. Aggregate reserve totaled $510,644,000, leaving excess reserve at $9,427,320, a decrease of $6,-378,420 below last week.

JEWETT CITY

The second joint banquet of Reliance Lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F., and Unchanged Lodge, No. 34, K. of P., was held on Friday evening in the Methodist church vestry. Mrs. W. C. Jeffers, Mrs. A. W. Harris and Mrs. R. W. Robertson were in charge of the supper which included potted beef, mashed potatoes, peas, pickles, rolls, cake, ice cream and coffee. The waitresses were members of Mrs. Herbert Wood's Sunday school class. The entertainment and dance were in Rix hall. Miss Mabel Kanahan gave a reading solo and responded to an encore. Miss Ruth Miner read A Week in School. Her encore was The Prayer of Cyrus Brown. Vincent Dixon of Norwich who was at one time with Neil O'Brien's minstrels, told a number of funny stories and concluded with a fine exhibition of dancing, which he was insistently called upon to repeat. L. M. Carpenter announced the program. Dancing followed, the music being furnished by Mrs. Vernon orchestra, Prof. F. H. [illegible] prompting. The committees were:

Masters of ceremonies, N. G. Frank C. O'Hugh Davis.

Floor director, Norman Parkhurst.

The train and trolley schedules were advanced one hour on Sunday, and read as follows, standard time:

Trains north, 5.12, 8.03 a. m. and 2.35 p. m., week days. Sunday the last train north, 4.23 p. m. Trains south, 9.4 a. m., 2.40 and 7.26 p. m. daily. Sunday the last train south, 8.26 p. m.

Trolleys south, 6.10, 8.03, 10.12 a. m., 12.03, 2.05 and 4.05, 6.03 and 8.03 p. m.; north, 5.33, 7.12, 9.15, 11.19 a. m. 1.19, 3.19, 5.19 and 7.26 p. m.

Saturday and Sunday nights the last car will arrive and depart about 10. Those using the first south should notice that it leaves six minutes earlier than formerly. If timepieces are advanced, advance this schedule one hour.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Buckingham spent Sunday with Prof. and Mrs. Champion Mathewson in New Haven.

Very Reverend Michael McCabe council, K. of C., is to hold its first banquet with a turkey supper served by Sol Mugavero in Rioux hall tonight (Monday). State officials are expected to be guests.

The post office opens at five a. m. and closes at 6.30 p. m. standard time, in conformance with the train schedule, standard time. If timepiece are advanced the hours remain the same as formerly.

Miss Rose Sharkey, who covers the afternoon trick at the local passenger station has returned to duty after seven months absence, following a surgical operation. She returned on Friday from Greylock Rest, Adams, Mass., where she has spent several weeks.

Whiting Fitch of Lisbon, one of its oldest resident, remembers well nearly everyone of the men who served as postmasters in that town. He traded at the store in which the post office was kept.

William Jeffers picked a fine lot of sowslips on Saturday.

Mrs. Edward Cregan has a lovely orange blossom which has bloomed on a small sprout coming from an orange seed which she planted. It is as sweet scented as any southern blossom.

WILLINGTON

The funeral of Mrs. Esther Dimock, widow of Addison Dimock, was largely attended at the Baptist church on the hill Sunday afternoon, April 22, at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Dimock died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arnold Houchens in Hartford from heart trouble and the infirmities of old age, having lived eighty-three years, most of which was spent in town. She came to the farm in Moore Meadow when she was married. Rev. M. V. Allen officiated at the funeral services and burial was in the family plot. A Hartford undertaker had charge of arrangements, and there were many beautiful floral pieces.

Mrs. Dimock leaves besides her daughter, a son, Joseph Dimock, of Willington, a stepdaughter, Mrs. Hattie Pierce of Providence, R. I., four grandchildren and a brother in Maine. People were present at the funeral from Hartford, Providence, Jewett City, Norfolk, Willimantic and other places. Mrs. Dimock was a woman of culture and refinement, highly educated, and a great Bible student. She was a member of the Baptist church. Many friends, as well as relatives, mourn the passing of this gifted woman of beautiful character.

William Ruby is having a monument set up in his lot in the cemetery.

Mrs. George Brown of Norfolk, Conn., a former resident, came to the funeral of Mrs. Dimock, and was the guest of Mrs. Annie Preston.

B. G. Robbins has gone to work in the button factory at Parizek's plant. For the past three years he has been teamster for W. C. Ruby.

Albert Parker, with four horses and help, is working on the town roads.

An attractive addition to Mrs. Clark's house is being built by Roy Flint.

Frank Parizek is having repairs done at his house, and a cement walk made.

Messrs. Cavor, Durian and Fliegel are building a pearl button factory half a mile north of the hill. They purchased their machinery in New York.

William Parizek is having a pearl button factory built at the glass factory. The building to the windows will be of cement, and the upper part of brick.

Edwin Cushman has returned to the state road to work.

Miss Vera Coleman came from New York Monday and will remain at her home two weeks. She expects to return in June for the summer.

Miss Nellie Thrall has returned to her home in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gardner of New Haven are guests of their sister, Miss Genevieve Gardner.

John Mroczkowski sold his stock, farming tools, and household goods at auction and left Tuesday for Detroit, Mich., with his family.

Miss Phyllis Ryder, who has been employed as bookkeeper and stenographer by the state road for three years, has resigned her position. Mr. Kelas of Tolland succeeds Miss Ryder.

Misses Barbara and Jennie Parizek are working at West Stafford in the button factory.

JEWETT CITY ARREST FOLLOWS DEATH OF WILLIAM GROVES OF NEW BEDFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, April 29.—Thomas Murphy, a stone mason employed here, is under arrest and is held in the local jail following the death last Thursday in New Bedford of William Groves, 50, from a stab wound in his head received here last Monday night.

Groves came to Jewett City last Monday to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Hugh McLaughlin, who had lived with her daughter, Mrs. Velo Sharkey. While here he met Murphy, a lifelong friend, and left Mr. Sharkey's house to meet him.

In the evening he walked into the Sharkey home with a terrible cut on his head. On being questioned as to where he had been, he said at a man's house by the name of "Nuckle," as near as he knew. When asked if the name was Nolle he said it was. He said they "chucked" him, but there was not a bit of dirt on his clothes or in the wound.

It is known that he was brought to a point near the Sharkey home in an automobile and that he walked into the Sharkey house after he had been let out of the machine.

He had $500 with him when he came to Jewett City, and when relatives looked in his pockets, at his request, he had $380 left. This was pinned in a back pocket, and he said "they" tried to get all his money. He refused to tell who "they" were. Dr. G. H. Jennings was called and wanted to send him to a hospital, but he did not want to go, and his family took him to New Bedford, where he died on Thursday.

Officers McDermott and Viegard found Murphy and he is in the local jail awaiting a hearing.

William Groves was born in Jewett City and his father, David Groves, seven or eight years ago held the position of overseer in Voluntown with the Briggs Manufacturing company. Dr. Barnes of New Bedford said the wound when opened up was found to be a stab wound and had infected the brain. Groves was unmarried and for several years has been a total abstainer.

21,460 LIQUOR CONVICTIONS SECURED IN YEAR

During the past year 21,460 liquor convictions were secured in federal courts alone—outside of convictions under state codes—according to figures just made public by Federal Prohibition Director Harry E. Mackenzie, of Connecticut. Of these, more than 20,000 entered pleas of "guilty". During the same period nearly 300 breweries were reported for violation and the permits of 100 breweries revoked.

Figures given out by Federal Prohibition Director Roy A. Haynes show that:

During the past year less than 3,000,000 proof gallons of spirits other than alcohol were withdrawn for medical purposes, nearly 7,000,000 proof gallons less than the previous year.

During the past year there were approximately 200,000 gallons of spirits seized and destroyed, and nearly 300,000 gallons seized and not destroyed. Gallons of malt liquor seized and destroyed 3,392,174.17; seized and not destroyed, 486,703.08 gallons. There were 4,563 automobiles seized, with a total value of $1,709,197.85. There were 119 boats and launches seized, with a total value of $2,968,866.30. There were 60,019 arrests.

There was an increase of approximately 10 per cent. in the number of convictions secured for violation of the Harrison narcotic acts compared with the previous year.

From figures obtained from the United States census bureau, the states which were wet before national prohibition showed a decline in the death rate from alcoholism of 86 per cent. from the 1917 figure.

The plan of dividing the country into 18 divisional areas, each having a mobile force, has been in operation just one year. The reports show that the general agent's force last month had a total of 1,623 cases, which was 600 more than the best previous months. Director Mackenzie has advised Commissioner Haynes that cooperation between the police and city officials in Bridgeport has materially reduced the number of arrests for misdemeanors resulting from the conception of intoxicants, mainly because the courts are imposing all sentences and heavy fines in practically every case.

COLONIAL CLUB ANNUAL WITH OFFICERS ELECTED

The Colonial club received reports of a prosperous condition and elected officers at its annual meeting held Friday evening at the clubhouse on West Main street. The annual meeting was preceded by an oyster supper served by W. J. Koonz, and President Harry C. McNaught presided at the business meeting.

The reports of Treasurer Frank D. Davies, secretary Frank G. Waters, Charles Lamb for the house committee and John B. Oat for the entertainment committee were accepted.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Harry C. McNaught, vice president, Charles Moore; secretary, William Huntington; treasurer, W. Smith Allen; collector, John B. Oat; director for three years, Elmer R. Pierson.

Mr. Allen, who had served so acceptably as treasurer for many years, declined a re-election.

In behalf of the club, David J. Kenefick presented Mr. McNaught, the president, a handsome and serviceable flashlight as a token of regard and the excellent service he has rendered the club.

Prizes in the recently completed pinochle tournament were awarded as follows: First prize, fountain pen, Charles Sherman; second prize, box of cigars, Elmer R. Pierson; third prize, pack of gilt-edge playing cards, Dr. H. E. Higgins.

Starting on Monday evening, the pinochle experts of the club will contest with the best players of the West Side Pinochle club in a tournament for the championship of the West Side. The tournament will run three successive Monday evenings. Twelve members from each club, or six tables, will participate.

VACATION AND TRAINING FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS

Church school teachers and officers may combine vacation and training at Wesleyan University, Middletown, from June 26 to July 3.

The Connecticut Sunday School Association will provide an exceptional program at the fifth annual session of the Connecticut supper school of religious education, which has been transferred from Connecticut College, New London, to Wesleyan.

A comprehensive curriculum has been adopted and a faculty of outstanding educators employed, including Dr. David G. Downey of New York, Dr. W. E. Raffety of Philadelphia, Dr. F. M. Sheldon of Boston and Miss Nannie Lee Frayser of Louisville, Kentucky.

A carefully planned program of recreation will be under the direction of Miss Evelyn Sears Robertson of Portland. The school will have the use of the fourteen tennis courts, the baseball diamond, the gymnasium and the swimming pool. A number of short excursions are also being planned.

GEO SYDLEMAN AT 90 CUTS WINTER FIREWOOD

George A. Sydleman of Whitaker Ave., Laurel Hill, celebrated his 90th birthday Tuesday. He is very active and has cut down trees for his firewood this winter.

A brave man never lifts up a foe for the purpose of knocking him down again.

PROMINENT LEADERS FOR FOUR ACORN INSTITUTES

As the time draws near for the first of the four Acorn Institutes to open, there is great interest being shown in Christian Endeavor circles in the leaders who have been secured. While only the first institute, that to be held in New London May 5th and 6th, is in such shape that the leaders can be announced with any degree of certainty, the names which appear for that one assure those which will attend the others, to be held in Bridgeport, Hartford and Middletown on each of the three week ends following, of the quality of the program. Foremost of the list stands Alvin J. Shartle, treasurer of the United Society of Christian Endeavor in Boston. Mr. Shartle was for a number of years field secretary of the Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor Union, being one of the first of the men to enter field work for full time. He is much sort after as a speaker and conference leader all over the country, and has a fund of information on all branches of the work for young people. He is to give the address Saturday evening, lead a conference and give the closing address Sunday afternoon. The Saturday evening meeting in each of the four conferences is to be the rally of the local union, and it is expected will be the largest attended meeting of the institutes. It is hoped that Mr. Shartle, or E. P. Gates, the general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor will be at each of the four conferences.

Other conference leaders include Mrs. George A. Pease, Somers, junior superintendent of the Conn. C. E. Union, who will be at all the institutes; Miss Dorothy E. Burdue, Willimantic, intermediate superintendent of the Conn. C. E. Union, who will also be at the entire series; Miss Isabelle M. Chute, Brockton, Mass., missionary superintendent of the Mass. C. E. Union, who will have charge of three of the missionary conferences at New London and Hartford; Albert P. St. Clair, Hartford, missionary superintendent of the Conn. C. E. Union, who will take the three conferences or missions at Middletown; Howard E. Pomeroy, Hartford, publicity superintendent of the Conn. C. E. Union, who will take the missionary conferences at Bridgeport and Frank G. Russell, Hartford, state representative in the Christian Endeavor world campaign. The denominations will also be represented at the four institutes, the Congregational and Baptists having three conferences at each, while the Presbyterians will have three at Bridgeport and Hartford. Besides these, local pastors will take prominent parts in the meetings.

SAYS REPORT BASED ON STATEMENTS FROM STORRS

Mr. Howell Cheney of South Manchester, chairman of a sub-committee of the committee on survey of state finances of the Connecticut chamber of commerce which made several important recommendations with respect to the future growth of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, replies in a letter sent to the board of directors of the Connecticut chamber of commerce to the criticisms of President Beach and friends of Storrs college that the committee acted without adequate information. The committee, of which Mr. Cheney was chairman, was appointed to consider primarily the financial needs of the state in view of the large appropriations requested by Storrs college from the general assembly. Their report, which was made from a financial point of view, contain a number of recommendations which included a revision of the course of study at Storrs by devoting more time to subjects relating to agriculture; that over-crowded conditions at the college could be relieved by the transfer of women to the Connecticut College for Women at New London by the elimination of the short twenty week course and by the raising of the standards of admission at least 2% per cent. The committee further recommended that the erection of a new recitation building be delayed two years.

Mr. Cheney in advising the members of the board of directors states in his letter that the recommendations and conclusions of his committee were based upon detailed statements by President Beach and officials of Storrs Agricultural college. Mr. Cheney's complete letter follows:

"Hon. George B. Chandler, Secretary, Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, Hartford, Conn.

My dear Mr. Chandler:

"You have brought it to my attention that certain criticisms have risen out of the report which the sub-committee on state finance have made in regard to the Connecticut Agricultural college.

"I understand that these criticisms are based upon statements that our decision was rendered without an examination of the catalogue of the college and without any member of the committee having personally visited the college and was in general made without conference with the president of the college, all of which would seem to infer that our report was based upon insufficient information and without having heard the college's side of the case.

"As you will find from the records of your office, we appealed to the college for information in regard to the financial side of the college's problem. Also, in response to our letter they sent us a very complete and detailed statement covering the proportion of time spent by the students and instructors in various courses of study and as to the character of the student body, its years of attendance and the source from which it was received. We, of course, did not in any respect dictate the character of the information which they should supply to us and assumed that President Beach would give up everything he had that was pertinent to the case, and still believe that this is true.

"In addition to this, we have had two conferences with representatives of the college. At one of these two members of their board of trustees and two professors were present. I am unable to state whether President Beach was personally invited to this conference or not, but I assume that the college selected its own conferees, and I am unable to state why President Beach was not one of these, but shortly following this conference I met President Beach personally and went over with him the essential points which had been brought out in the conference and receive his reaction upon them.

"I am unable to state whether other members of the committee have visited the Connecticut Agricultural college. I have been there many times and am thoroughly familiar with its layout and its general plan of operation. I was brought into college familiarity with the problem during my years on the state board of education, but more particularly during the investigation made by a commission of the legislature appointed to consider the consolidation of state commissions, of which I was a member and wrote the report.

"I have only seen the newspaper clippings of the criticisms which report to come from the Connecticut Agricultural college. From these I should judge that the report had only been imperfectly read and very imperfectly understood. So far from condemning the agricultural college, we have attempted to show that the way to gain public support was to build up a technical college of agriculture of high grade and to relieve it from the burden of criticism which has so often and so long hampered its growth because of its efforts to build up a state university, and in later years of its efforts to run a junior high school of low grade.

"The issues involved are fairly clear and are becoming more generally understood by the public at large each year, and I trust that the new committee which President Bullard and the board of directors are to appoint will be able to convince those who are vitally interested in agriculture that the paths which we have indicated are sound, progressive and reasonable.

SPRING SEASON SCHEDULE FOR Y GYM ACTIVITIES

The "Y" physical programme starts on its spring season this week and an attractive as well as busy schedule is being arranged, both for the young men and boys' groups. The gym activities will be more recreational than during the winter and will include athletic meets, leagues, social stunts and the like.

One of the feature stunts of the spring programme will be a swimming campaign May 9-21, during which time every boy between the age of 11 and 18 in the city of Norwich will have an opportunity to learn to swim free of charge, regardless of whether he is a Y. M. C. A. member or not. Some outdoor events and outings will also be conducted.

Y. M. C. A. GYMNASIUM CIRCUS BROUGHT IN ABOUT $150

The "Y" circus committee has just announced that their gym circus netted them a profit in the neighborhood of $150 which was far ahead of any gym exhibition held in recent years. A feature of this year's circus was the large number taking part, and the type of work exhibited, which offered the public an opportunity to view the kind of work being developed in the Y. M. C. A. and Norwich Academy gymnasiums.

RECTOR BONDARCHUK RETURNS FROM CHURCH CONSECRATION

Rev. A. E. Bondarchuk, rector of St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox church Convent avenue, has returned from New Britain where he went to attend the consecration of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church. The event was one of the largest religious affairs in the history of New Britain, and the ceremonies opened with a procession of sixty clergymen of the Episcopal and Eastern Orthodox churches. The church was consecrated by the bishop of Kentucky.

AUTOMOBILE SMASHES IN BAD DRIVING CONDITIONS

Weather conditions that were the worst possible for automobile drivers prevailed Saturday night, wet and slippery streets with a driving rain that was driven in blinding clouds against windshields, while the glare of headlights on the rainsoaked highways turned them into mirrors that added the difficulties of the man at the wheel.

Five accidents were reported to the police that were attributed in a measure to the weather conditions.

Dan Shahar of New London, a traveling salesman driving a sedan car, on West Thames street, crashed into a wagon from the farm of Attorney Edwin W. Higgins at Massapeag, smashing the wheels and otherwise damaging the vehicle.

John Rydel, of 663 Main street, New London, who was driving a coupe on North Main street, near Sixth, became stalled and was run into by a car driven by a Norwich man named Bosko, who lives on the Prospect park section. The New London man had his mudguards damaged.

The automobile of Rutherford A. Snow of Norwich Town, which his wife was driving, struck Henry Zimmerman of 31 Union street in Broadway near the Congregational church corner. According to the report made on the accident, Mr. Zimmerman was crossing the street as the Snow car approached and was clear of the approaching machine and he stepped back into the path of the Snow car and was hit. He received a bad cut on the calf of his leg and was taken to the Backus hospital to have it treated.

Michael J. Read of Pacawtuck, R. I., started out from the curb on Franklin street near the corner of Chestnut street when his coupe was sideswiped by a trolley car and driven into two or three other machines, among them being the car of C. C. Treat. Bent and twisted mudguards were the result.

Jesse J. Amaral of 1 School street, Stonington, made a complete wreck of the silent policeman on Main street, opposite the foot of Cliff street.

STONINGTON

Saturday evening a group of young men were present and attended a social at the Congregational chapel these young men were from the Yale "Y" team and were here in the interest of the Y. M. C. A. The young people were present and a delightful social was enjoyed. Music and refreshments were on the program.

Sunday morning several of the young men spoke at the Second Congregational and First Baptist churches, and also were present at the church schools at noon. A union meeting was held Sunday evening in the Second Congregational church. At the close of the Y. P. S. service, four young ladies, two from each church, sang.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Mallory Williams are guests at Manor Inn.

The whistles of the town's plants, Atwood Machine Company and the American Velvet Co., mill were blown on the new summer schedule daylight saving time, this (Monday) morning.

Rev. T. R. Sanford spent the week-end in Middletown, being a guest at Beckley Divinity school, where he is serving as examining chaplain of the diocese of Connecticut.

Paul Scheppes has returned from a business trip to New London.

The Friday Afternoon Whist club was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bingham on Main street. Candy was served.

Capt. Manuel Fratus, Jr., was a week-end caller in Hartford.

Dr. F. Stanton is confined to his home on Main street with an attack of grip.

COLCHESTER

At the regular meeting J. Wood-ridge chapter, O. E. S., held in Masonic hall a very pleasant program was given after the work of the evening by the Bacon Academy orchestra. The orchestra comprised Edward R. Gillette, bass horn; J. Vey Merrill, trombone; Francis Brooks, flute; Arthur Stebbins, Jr., violin; Misses Mary Curgenvin, Helen Wallis and John Wallis, mandolins; Miss Janet Pendleton, pianist; Miss Clarice Brooks, soloist. The next meeting will have for entertainment a May basket party, in charge of the Lebanon members of the chapter and the Academy orchestra will furnish the music.

Myron R. Abell, James S. Case and Frederick O. Brown were visitors in Hartford Friday.

Miss Addie May Wickwire and Miss Virginia Dicks have returned from a few weeks' stay in New York.

Fred J. Hudson returned Friday from a month's visit with his sister, Mrs. Perry in Wymore, Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Baker were guests of their son, George, in Meriden over Sunday.

John O'Connell of East Hampton was the guest of his sister, Mrs. John O'Brien on Norwich avenue on Friday.

Hyman London was a visitor in Hartford Friday.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Mrs. Herman Ladish of Grant avenue is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Simons in Worcester.

There will be a meeting of the town school committee at the public library this (Monday) evening.

A delegation from the local Current Events club in response to an invitation of the Woman's club of Willimantic will go to that city on Tuesday for a social and literary afternoon.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hanna M. Hewitt were held at her home on Grant avenue, Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Levi Rees of the Congregational church officiated and the body was taken to Pine Grove cemetery in Whitinsville, Mass., for burial.

There was a large attendance at the old fashioned dance given by the Catholic Daughters of America at St. Edward's hall Friday evening.

William Roche was sent to jail for 45 days and Louis Gerard for 30 days by Judge Heald of the borough court Saturday morning. Officer Hayes received the complaint Friday night that Roche and Gerard were intoxicated and creating a disturbance in the vicinity of West Main street. They were both taken into custody and presented in court Saturday morning, charged with drunkenness and breach of the peace and pleaded guilty.

POETRY

BY INSPIRATION GIVEN.
(II Tim. 3: 16)

"But John is unreliable." (Modern Critic)

Can the Light of Life be fading,
Evanescent thus the glory
That thro' centuries past, out-shining
Came from St. John's Christ-Heart story?
Is the Sun of Inspiration
Doomed to suffer weird eclipse
Viewed through glass of human vision—
Sealing, too, th' Beloved's lips?

"For a hundred years not written,
John's dim memory must have failed"—
What is time to th' Holy Spirit,
Had long years His power assailed?
"I will bring to your remembrance"—
Did it mean if promptly written?
Could Christ's promised inspiration
By mere lapse of years be smitten?

Fools, and slow of heart t' believe
"All that Prophets spake of old"—
Might Apostles not receive
Truth the same Inspirer told?
Why place trust in vain opinions
Framed in pride of critic's skill,
Inspiration soared on pinions
Of the Holy Spirit's will.

Lapse of ages casts no dimness
O'er the Sun of Righteousness.
All the Holy Ghost indited
The Good Shepherd's flock will bless—
Trust to what His Word doth say.
"Taught of God"—not John's own story—
Years a thousand as one day
Change not Him, the Lord of Glory.
—Rev. George G. Phipps, in Boston Transcript.

THE ROAD OF REMEMBRANCE.

The old wind stirs the hawthorn tree;
The tree is blossoming;
Northward the road runs to the sea,
And past the House of Spring.

The folk go down it unafraid;
The still roofs rise before;
When you were lad and I was maid,
Wide open stood the door.

Now other children crowd the stair,
And hunt from room to room;
Outside under the hawthorn fair,
We pluck the thorny bloom.

Out in the quiet road we stand
Shut in from the wharf and mart,
The old wind blowing up the land,
The old thoughts at our heart.
—Lizette Woodworth Reese, in Indianapolis News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Did you ask Miss Howles to sing?"
"Yes, and she refused."
"Considerate girl!"—Boston Evening Transcript.

She—A man should always embrace his opportunity.
He—Won't you please be mine.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bob—"Hear you were in a free fight last night."
Nob—"It was a fight all right, but it cost me ten quid in court today."—London Answers.

"The scene," declared the young reporter, "beggared description."
"Your description was rather ragged," suggested the veteran editor.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mrs. Newlywed—"I want a shirt for my husband."
Clerk—"Is he a big man?"
"No, he's just a bookkeeper now, but he's going to be."—Life.

He (at freak art exhibition)—"Only the artists can tell what these pictures mean."
She—"Then I think they ought to hang the artists, too."—Boston Transcript.

"The boss has invited me to play golf with him next Saturday."
"Is he a good player?"
"He's going to think he is before the day is over."—New York Sun.

His Wife—Remember, when poverty comes in at the door love flies out through the window.
Mr. Everbroke—Then love can't get far away from us because all our windows open on a light shaft.—Detroit News.

"Isaac! Isaac! I can hear a man snorin' under the bed! He must be a burglar!"

"Hush, Rebecca! Don't vake him, an' den ve vill charge him for a night's lodgin' in de mornin'!"—London Tit-Bits.

"Will all these little courtesies do the world any good?"
"I'm for 'em," said the Washington man. "Every little country has a legation all its own. And every legation can bring in a reasonable amount of cheer, you know."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Crawford—I suppose you expect your son to make a great name for himself in the world?
Crabshaw—I don't know about that, but he's certainly making a noise in the world at the present time. He's the cheer leader of the football cohorts.—New York Sun.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were returning from a dinner party.
"John, dear," she said, "what ever made you tell the Thompsons that you married me for my voice when you know I can't sing a note?"
John thought deeply for a moment. The dinner had been good, which perhaps accounted for his reply:
"Well, darling," he said soothingly, "I had to give some reason, and that was the only one I could think of at the moment!"—Exchange.

Farmers last year entered over 194,000 cows in cow testing associations to determine their standing as butter-fat producers through demonstrations by agricultural extension workers, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture.

The alfalfa area of Michigan increased over 260,000 acres this year following alfalfa campaigns conducted last winter by agricultural extension workers in that state, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Over 9,450,000 pounds of meat cured, 2,600,000 pounds of lard, and 3,900,000 pounds of sausage made in 1921 in farm homes where none had been made before are reported to the United States department of agriculture as the result of demonstrations in meat conservation by home demonstration agents.

Colonel L. H. Ruggles, of the United States ordnance department, advocates drafting all labor from bankers to laborers in wartimes. He says: "If we can draft men's lives, we certainly can draft their business during an emergency. Each man would be required to keep up the work assigned to him, as a soldier must stay on his job. There would be no striking for higher wages, no absence without leaves and no quitting one job to go around the block and hold up another agency for higher wages."
